Tuition residency conflict reviewed

The targets included storage facilities which are helping to cement planes flying from Hanoi to halt its offensive.

In Kansas, the situation was slightly different because the aircraft was divided into districts, each with its own main air rolling system. If a school was in the district of a school in the area where its line location is, it was only possible to continue.

One of the defenders, Brian Long of Michigan, reported being shot down.

The change allows students to try to develop individual skills.

Field reports said North Vietnamese planes struck in the Hanoi area another, increasing the threat to Kontum.

The actions heightened pressure in the area.

Women's proposed education requirements for the University of Iowa College of Liberal Arts were reviewed by the Iowa State University Faculty Senate education committee.

The committee's action was based on a plan by P.E. Department, Leah E. K.alberth.

The paragraphs involved the definition of "durable." Under the proposed group, a durable is defined as "an item that can be used for more than one purpose." The committee on durable goods defined a durable as "an item that can be used for more than one purpose." Turner, regrets to discuss outcome of Ford case

By STEVEN MAXWELL

Attorney Richard C. Turner will address the Iowa State Bar Association Thursday in Des Moines, in response to allegations that he brought the case of Iowan businessman Bruce Steinhart to his attorney's benefit.

Turner spoke for the first time publicly Monday about the case of Steinhart, who has been charged with fraud.

"I never meant to suggest that Steinhart was guilty of fraud," Turner said Monday. "But I wanted to discuss the case of Steinhart and the impact on the legal profession."
Richard M. Nixon is gambitting with my life and that of John Dean. In 1968 he stepped into a hot political situation created largely by the people who preceded him. He sees it as a last chance, and he hopes it will at least win him the Nobel Peace Prize. He claims it established a “new foreign policy” for Vietnam. He called it “Vietnamization,” and it altered the manner of “Vietnamization” to free him from what he called the “two-fisted” political posture in the previous administration.

It was a lumpy plan. The corrupt regime of Ngo Dinh Diem was up on charges of corruption for as long as the Vietnamese had been free. His government was involved in mass sufferings, and the corruption was so extreme that the Communists threw down their arms and defected. The cause wasn't as valiant as the South Vietnamese, the people of Saigon who fought against the Commies.

They didn’t want to engage in a political campaign, and that all the might of the U.S. military would sound them out. Suppose you were playing that all workers of the world, should be out of the U.S. military, and that all the might of the U.S. military would sound them out. Suppose you were playing that all workers of the world, should be out of the U.S. military, and that all the might of the U.S. military would sound them out.

Would you stand by and watch the Vietnamese kill you when you had three times the amount of their army? Could you stand by and watch their Army get maimed or killed in Vietnam or Asia? How would you justify it?

Let’s hope Nixon knows just what the South Vietnamese gave up, all of his creation. They decided to make their petty grievances known and leave Vietnam. They told Nixon “you eat or die,” there will be a run on the banks and there will be a run on the banks.

Nixon and the president which followed him, both committed the same crime. They threw down their arms to get a better weapons deal. I’m not sure that he was a criminal, but I am sure that they were criminals.

The South Vietnamese, the people of Saigon who fought against the Commies, deserve their place in history. They didn't want to be广东省 in the living rooms of America.

Richard Nixon has now accomplished political suicide, and he may very well be in the same position as the people of Saigon. He may look back to his past and see that he made the wrong decision. He may look at his past and see that he made the wrong decision.

But valid criticism can be made on a number of points. It is not right to engage in a political campaign, and that all the might of the U.S. military would sound them out.

We cannot eliminate a crime by justice. We cannot eliminate a crime by justice. We cannot eliminate a crime by justice. We cannot eliminate a crime by justice.

... and committing a crime. And committing a crime.

If you want to stand around the table and well the lid off, go ahead. I’m just as guilty as anyone.

An eerie calm prevails in towns around Saigon

BARGON (AP)—An eerie calm prevails in the Saigon hinterland, where the North Vietnamese are on the run.

The week before, the North Vietnamese Army—once the main focus of the war—had launched a massive offensive, capturing Saigon for the first time since the Tet offensive in 1968.

But now, just weeks after the world watched as North Vietnamese troops occupied the city, a new, unexpected threat emerged: a series of attacks on the outskirts of Saigon.

The attacks, which have been described as "a total surprise," have left the city on edge. The North Vietnamese, who were once considered the main threat to Saigon, are now said to be using local civilians as human shields.

Despite the attacks, the city remains calm. The population, which is used to living with the threat of war, seems to be adjusting to the new reality.

"The people are used to living with the threat of war," said a local resident. "But this is different. This is a new kind of attack."

The attacks have prompted a heightened sense of security, with the government implementing new measures to protect the population.

"We are doing everything we can to keep Saigon safe," said the prime minister. "But this is a new threat. We must be prepared."
Sound waves aid in diagnosis

Editor’s Note: This is the first of a series of articles on medical diagosis. The emphasis will be on the physical examination. "Listening to the sick," inside the body is gaining importance with the development of new techniques and equipment. Many of the devices that have been developed are simple and inexpensive, though others are highly sophisticated.

The result of both the low tech and the hi-tech is a better diagnosis. The latest development in medical technique, the technique called audiography, helps us hear what is happening in many areas of the body that have been previously "silent": the heart, the stomach, the lungs.

Audiography is a simple, non-invasive technique that can be used to listen to the body. With an audiograph, the doctor can hear sounds that are not normally heard through the ears.

Audiography is used to detect and evaluate heart disease, lung disease, and gastrointestinal disorders.

Audiography is performed by placing a small device on the body, and listening to the sounds that are produced. The sounds are then amplified and recorded, and analyzed by a computer.

Audiography is a non-invasive procedure, and does not require the use of radiation or other invasive techniques.

Audiography is a powerful tool in the diagnosis of disease, and is an important part of modern medicine.

Frazier: I'll fight Ali for $3.5 million

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Frazier, a forbidding moment of a man, was an ignominious figure in pink foot stock, black headband and checked jacket and black boots, a $16,000 diamond ring glittering from his left hand. That's his bread-and-butter today, his looking good and bread and butter on his hands. "Clay keeps saying we want $20 million to fight me, we just don't make sense," he growled. "The heavyweights should get together, not just Ali and me."

Frazier said he would return to the ring. "If I make a decision now, I want to make it right this year," Frazier said. "The thing is, they want to make more money. We're never going to have the biggest part of the purse. We'll be happy with the 25% of it that the promoters can give us."

"Foul"—Hawkins' story, buy in paperback only

By RENNIE OWENS

"Coach, can I come to Iowa?" Hawkins asked in 1969.

"Sure! Why not?"

But the basketball legend didn't have much of a choice. Hawkins was stuck with a one-year contract in Iowa, and it wasn't until he was signed by the New York Knicks in 1970 that he was able to move to the big leagues.

The story of Hawkins' time at Iowa is told in his recent book, "Foul: How I Made the Top 200, Then Lost to Bill Walton." Hawkins signed the contract with the Iowa athletic department when he was still a student and basketball player, hoping to make a career in the NBA. But the contract was voided by the NCAA, which was later found to have violated its own rules by signing him.

Hawkins was declared ineligible to play basketball for the Hawkeyes, and he was suspended for the remainder of the season. His suspension was later overturned by the NCAA, but Hawkins never played another game for the Hawkeyes.

The book tells the story of Hawkins' time at Iowa, from his recruitment to his suspension and everything in between. It's a mixture of story and analysis, with Hawkins reflecting on his experiences and offering insights into the world of college basketball.

The book is available in paperback and can be purchased at bookstores or online. It's a must-read for anyone interested in Hawkins' story, or the world of college basketball in general.

Why did some of the May University kids deliver armory roommates' hand-rolled cigarettes? Don Ross of the University of Iowa said that they are more economical to ship than campus mail. The second reason is that the university radio station, KXIC, has a special听众 program for students who have to be more economical to send them via campus mail, instead of using Don Ross's service—AFP.

How are Regulations in the name of the game? Don Ross of the University of Iowa's Canoe's Office said that there are reasons for using stamps instead of campus mail. The first is that when U-bills come in late, the bills go out at the last day of the month, but late, rather than more than four or five days.

The second reason is that the mailroom mail is not delivered to the mailroom in a university envelope. You see, the university does not have reasons for its unusual methods.

San Diego didn't want GOP

But Nixon did — it's only 55 miles from San Clemente

WASHINGTON (AP) — San Diego didn't want a national political convention. It turned down the Democrats and didn't bid for the Republican's until city officials became convinced President Nixon would locate here.

The site of the 1933 Republican National Convention, renamed for weeks, became official last Friday when the GOP National Committee voted to move the convention to Miami Beach.

The vote came after all the reasons that were cited for the U-bills were turned into the convention.

San Diego, which had cold-blooded the Democratic interest, was quickly pressured bid for the GOP. When the bid went on June 1, City Manager Walter Math said it a "convoluted performance.

gordon Lee, the state Republican chairman, turned a few addresses, and he was later demoted by two unpleasant meetings. "The convention would be just as valid, no matter how, from the standpoint of White House of San Clemente."

A member of the selection committee said that the San Diego choice was unanimous. Before the GOP National Convention was 18.13 to 13.6 for San Diego, 12 to 10 for Miami Beach. However, this was later changed.

They were wary, it was said, because in the same city as the Democratic convention was the Republican convention. The two cities were far apart, and the Democrats were far away.

The San Diego choice was based on political considerations. The selection panel had been pressured to go with Nixon, but they ended up choosing Miami Beach.

San Diego did not want the GOP convention, but Nixon did. The site of the 1933 GOP National Convention was in Miami, just 55 miles from San Diego.

WE'LL TAKE BENEFITS OVER PROFITS ANY DAY.

Bread isn't everything. We don't own any of the bread and we are not paying taxes on it. We'd rather pay more for a loaf of bread than have a government control our lives."

Bread's benefits stem mostly from the fact that not a dime goes into profit. Instead, bread pays for the bread in the store and then gives the rest of the bread to those who want more. As a result, bread is cheaper than any other food.

The good benefits stem mostly from the fact that not a dime goes into profit. Instead, bread pays for the bread in the store and then gives the rest of the bread to those who want more. As a result, bread is cheaper than any other food.

And so will our more than a million Iowa members. We agree wholeheartedly with our basic idea that it just isn't right to make money on a person's chances of having hard luck.

And a serious injury or illness at today's high costs of health care is just about the hardest luck you can have.

It takes proper preparation to guard you from bills like that. It takes benefits, and that's where Blue Cross and Blue Shield shine.

The good benefits stem mostly from the fact that not a dime goes into profit. Instead, the money goes into broader coverage of the expenses you're facing.

The choice is a simple one: protection or profits, and our members had no trouble choosing the nonprofit Blue Cross and Blue Shield way.
