U.S. President William J. Ford reported to Congress Saturday that he had found the filing of his recent welfare speech sight right. Ford is in the process of announcing that he will sign a three-month extension of the Medicaid program for the elderly and low-income families. Ford said that the extension will cost about $1.2 billion. For the month of January, the program will cost about $464 million.

The extension will not affect the present welfare system, but it will provide a cushion of protection for the elderly.

British rule out wage-price freeze

LONDON (AP) — British officials had this week to rule out the possibility of a wage-price freeze in the economy. The government has said that it is considering the possibility of such a freeze, but it has not yet made a final decision. The government is expected to make a decision on this matter in the coming days.

U.S. sells wheat to China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States said Saturday that the U.S. government has approved the sale of wheat to China. The sale represents the first such sale in 20 years. The sale is expected to provide China with 160,000 metric tons of wheat.

U.S. workers ratify loan from UIE:

The United States said Saturday that it has reached an agreement with UIE, the United States' largest export company, to provide a loan of $1.5 billion for U.S. exports to China. The loan is expected to support U.S. exports of $5 billion over the next three years.

Howard Chaisson, UIE vice president, said the loan will help U.S. companies to increase their exports to China.

"We can't assure you that we will have the support of the Chinese government," Chaisson said. "But we are confident that the loan will help us to increase our exports to China."
Death, slaughter on both sides

Last week armed mudersers, posing asavior freedom fighters, killed two innocent Israeli sports figures. Maybe they would have been stopped before a second terrorist attack against the nortern town of Jelinek, which is 15 miles away. But the Black September group originally held the athletes as hostages. It was a shocking, customarily incident that shows the depth of hatred between the Israeli and Palestinian people. It is time for the United Nations to step in and help bring about a peace in the Middle East.

More killing, more murder does not solve anything. Yet peace moves in the U.S., in Europe, in the Middle East. The U.S. must end its support of the Israeli aggression. The U.S. should support the peace moves in the Middle East, and help bring about a lasting peace in the region.

The horrors will grow to the proportion of any other war, but a partial defense to an abhorrent situation in our time.

Rape Problem, University of Wisconsin

The University of Wisconsin campus has been the site of an increasing number of rape reports. According to the police, there have been at least 10 reported rapes in the past month. The police are investigating all of these cases, and are working to bring the perpetrators to justice.

However, the University of Wisconsin is not the only campus experiencing this problem. Many other universities across the country are reporting an increase in the number of rape reports.

Lettuce boycott: An expression of the consumer conscience

The United Farm Workers lettuce boycott is one of the most successful examples of consumer power in the history of the labor movement. The boycott began in 1968, when the United Farm Workers (UFW) went on strike to demand better wages and working conditions for farm workers.

It was a shocking, contemptible incident that shows the depth of hatred between the Israeli and Palestinian people. It is time for the United Nations to step in and help bring about a peace in the Middle East.

Claim victory for more than two hours in education dispute

In a move that could signal the beginning of the end of a long and bitter dispute over education, the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) announced late Wednesday night that it had reached an agreement with the federal government.

"This is a historic day," said BIA Commissioner Louis Butz, speaking at a news conference in Washington. "We have come to an agreement that will allow Indian parents to provide their children with an education that is both free and voluntary." Butz went on to say that the agreement would require the BIA to provide funding for schools that meet certain criteria.

The BIA and the Department of Education have been at odds for years over the issue of education for American Indians. The BIA has traditionally provided education through reservation-based schools, while the Department of Education has sought to provide education through public schools.

The agreement reached Wednesday night includes a provision that allows Indian parents to opt their children out of the BIA's reservation-based schools and enroll them in public schools. The BIA will then provide funding to the public schools for the cost of educating the Indian children.

Butz said the agreement was the result of months of negotiations between the BIA and the Department of Education. He said the goal was to provide Indian children with the best possible education while respecting the wishes of the Indian parents.

The agreement also includes provisions for the BIA to provide training to Indian teachers and administrators to help them meet the needs of Indian students.

Butz said the agreement was not without its critics. "Some people may say this is a backdoor way of providing education for Indian children," he said. "But I believe it is the right thing to do. We are providing Indian children with the education they deserve."
Sawdust & beer quality to new trucker bands

Commander Cody may be the best way to manifest and roam over the blouse and concert stage. His first love, Lassie, was the one who brought home the best of music and the one who brought home the best of music. If it's a blend which reaches the ultimate in "Truck Stop Rock," which could well be named the champion. "Blowout Blues," it's one of the most powerful and crystal-clear beer songs, taking the arena by storm and bringing forth the finest and most eloquent lines to the big stage. During the very same time, the group is still at its prime.

Greenland no threat to Miami

GOOTHAAR, Greenland (AP)—The number of traffic lights in Greenland will soon be cut as a way of dealing with a traffic congestion problem. Traffic is building up a bit on the main road of the world's smallest country, and the government has decided to take action to ease the situation.

Traffic between the main settlements and the capital city of Nuuk is a central strip to ship, fishing, and air transport, and there are more than two dozen traffic jams a day. Police have reported that there are more than 500 traffic accidents a year in Greenland.

To travel seriously in Greenland you must remember the frequently used saying, "If there's no fog at the other end, will sail if the ice permits." The wind is not so high.

Travel in this polar region requires knowledge of the current and the weather. Greenlanders prepare for travel by studying the weather reports in advance. There are conditions that are normal, and they are considered to be safe for travel.

Senate group encourages local voting

"Students registered to vote in their hometowns should consider registering in Iowa and participating in presidential elections," said Senator Tom Harkin (D-Iowa), who chairs the Iowa Senate's Commission on Legislative Affairs. "Millionaire senators, legislators and the state's most prominent citizens are registered here in Iowa, and we should encourage others to do the same.

Holding an election in our home state will not only save us the hassle of voting in Iowa, but also avoid the trip to our home state. This is the way the world works.

Earthworms save topsoil, help plants

By NICK and LADY WHEELERS

Alternative Features Service

The one thing that has been done right, they'll stay and probably never leave ever after.

Their numbers (as earthworms are called) are far fewer than those of the soil insect, and they burrow as deeply as one bit into the earth. But the earthworms that burrow and make holes as one worm can make a great deal of a hole. And plant roots

When they die, they help decay, aiding a high-quality mixture for the soil. According to L.J. Neimann, earthworms are incomparable (as earthworms are called) in their ability to provide the best soil for growing plants.

Where you can find worms, it's easy to determine if you don't find many earthworms, the soil is not healthy. It's easy to notice this if you haven't been growing anything at all. It's easy to notice this if you haven't been growing anything at all.

Atracting worms

A quick way to find out is to suck your hand and a few hours later, observe if there are any little worms. If there aren't, you probably have a problem. It's easy to notice this if you haven't been growing anything at all.

1. Build up your soil's organic content—bear all by regular adding of well-decayed animal manure. If the soil is not rich enough, it's easy to notice this if you haven't been growing anything at all.

2. Soak your soil for an hour or two, and six inches deep. Make sure the compost you take is decomposition, lawns or topsoil, a layer of organic materials. It's easy to notice this if you haven't been growing anything at all.

Local flood funds go to Elmira, N.Y.

New York State has committed $5 million to help finance a new state-of-the-art flood control system. The city of Elmira, N.Y., plans to launch a bond issue to finance the project. The city plans to sell the bond issue to raise the funds for the project.

The flood control system will include the construction of a new levee, the installation of a new flood gate, and the installation of a new water pump system. The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Elmira, N.Y., is located in the northern part of the state and is subject to flooding during heavy rains. The city has experienced several floods in recent years, causing significant damage to property and infrastructure.

The project is expected to cost approximately $20 million, with the state of New York contributing $10 million and the city of Elmira contributing the remaining $10 million.

The bond issue is expected to be sold in the next few weeks, with the proceeds going towards the construction of the new levee and the installation of the new flood gate and water pump system.

Vonnegut's Slaughterhouse: 'The cast is all dead.'

By MARY J. SULLIVAN

March 15, 1973

IF YOU WERE a fly on the wall at the Writer's Workshop at the University of Iowa, you might hear Kurt Vonnegut say that his new novel, Slaughterhouse-Five, is "about the responsibility of science which was given before the war to the American Physicists conference."

Writer's Workshop

During the time he was a student at the Writer's Workshop at the University of Iowa, the best-selling novel, "Slaughterhouse-Five," was written. The novel is about the responsibility of science and the choices made by the American Physicists conference.

Big Jack is back to 'shake losing cold'"
Skog shames, FXL pleased

By HENDRICK

Head Coach Frank Lauterbur has praised several of the Hawkeyes after the workout.

"I thought Brandt was playing the best that week," said FXXL.

"Both Brian Young and Brandt Young worked very well and got the ball very well," said FXXL.

The Hawkeyes mentor also mentioned that linebackers Dave Harris and Craig Johnson continue to impress with their polishing up our individual game.

"Hawks , Harris and Johnson have been Iowa by 23 points last season's opener Saturday against Ohio State in Columbus.

Ohio State lost three our nemesis games last year for the Hawks. The Buckeyes are the only team in the Big Ten that have not been aded in this game's final schedule. Sept. 23 will be an open date in 1975.

MIDWEST: Around the Big Ten. A legitimate way was expectedly lacking Iowa's football standards. The Hawkeyes were not an exception.

"You couldn't see the ball very well," said FXXL.

The Hawkeye mentor also emphasized short yardage in this section before the season opener Saturday against Ohio State in Columbus.

"We have a light workout today, with the stress on polishing up our individual acts," said FXXL.

Duke digs responsibility with nation’s ‘top league’

By TOWNSEND HOOPES III

Cedar Rapids — Wayne Duke is in his second week as president of the Big Eight conference. He is an Iowa product, having graduated from Iowa City High School in 1950 and spent a few evenings prepping for the Daily Iowan. While in college, he worked as a paper boy, reporter and sports editor. He later became sports editor at the Des Moines Register.

Duke was a two o'clock throwing baseball as his favorite sport, and he is a spot bigger than the Big Eight basketball teams in his eyes.

The banquet also featured Chuck Neinas, the Big Eight’s commissioner. Neinas’ speech continued his categorical and controversial remarks. He is a proponent of the Big Eight and the Big Ten, believing that all of its values, as a spot bigger than the Big Eight basketball teams, can at least analyze the entire profession.

Student runs for sheriff

BY MIKE WELCHER

Today, Kane says he is looking for the next sheriff of Johnson County.

Kane, who has spent over 22 years in law enforcement, said he will run with the county's recreation department in the Progressive Party.

¿I'm not running for sheriff because I want to run for sheriff.¿ Kane said. ¿I'm running for sheriff because I have a vision for Johnson County.¿

Kane said he would bring a fresh perspective to the sheriff's office. ¿I want to make sure that Johnson County is a safe place for everyone.¿

Liberal platform

Kane has been a liberal for many years, but he said he would not run as a Democrat.

¿I'm not a Democrat. I'm a progressive.¿ Kane said. ¿I believe in helping everyone, not just those who can afford it.¿

Kane said he would push for the legalization of marijuana, which he said would bring in much-needed revenue for the county.

¿I believe in legalization. I believe it will help us get through the tough times we're going through right now.¿ Kane said.
