Representatives without recognition; EPC meets

Even though the Liberal Arts Student Association (LASA) has been recognized by the College of Liberal Arts, it still cannot operate because the College of Liberal Arts Educational Policies Committee (EPC), Greg Herrick, president of LASA, said his student group is not fully recognized.

The EPC, which holds its first meeting of the year today, studies and makes recommendations about rules, requirements, and degrees in the Liberal Arts.

Drewery Shaw, dean of the college of Liberal Arts, said LASA has not been recognized because it has failed to submit a satisfactory charter.

Herrick and LASA has been given an office, a small amount of funds, and a place to operate as if it had been recognized.

The concept of LASA was approved last year by the EPC, Herrick said, and it will continue to operate whether it receives official recognition or not.

Also, a new charter has been written to replace the old one that was submitted last year.

Herrick said one of LASA’s main goals is to try to help plan a nutrition program for the elderly.

Under the present system the student members are polled on questions being considered by the committee, but their decisions are not in any way binding on the faculty members.

Herrick said the students need regular voting members of the committee, but there should be at least one vote for all five members.

Ruth said he did not think a change in the voting system was necessary.

The new charters were written with the students’ help.

Herrick has appreciated the student position and he said he was impressed.

CAMBUS Pros and Cons

CAMBUS is a good thing. The aim of the campus bus system is to ease the traffic around campus—a noble pursuit. It is also commendable that CAMBUS employs about six students (through work-study). They have all had a week’s training course. Most have had quite a bit of previous experience in bus driving as well. CAMBUS claims that so far this year there have been few accidents involving buses and all minor ones than last year.

One of the best things about the bus system is that students are not paying the original suggested $3 fee that was to be charged to everyone’s U-bill. The Regents said that tuition could not be raised this year and therefore CAMBUS had to be funded by other means.
And it’s really expensive. It is costing about $275,000 in initial capital and operating expenses for this year.

How is it being paid for? The initial capital comes from a trustee’s temporary investment. Half of the operating expenses are being paid for through parking fees and the other half are coming from excess student fees.

Since the University administration strongly supports CAMBUS as a means to the students, there is a good chance students will continue to use CAMBUS even after the initial capital is paid back.

Little extras that CAMBUS offers are free advertising space on the buses to unfamiliar organizations, low charging rates to such organizations if they don’t travel farther than 25 miles from Iowa City, and special funding for some concerts.

Because of the much increased popularity this year has increased by thousands of dollars, CAMBUS has added another route in the regular routes. This means that during the day, buses should now come every seven minutes. The evening schedules haven’t been altered and CAMBUS success isn’t totally therefore. There are a few things that could be improved.

The form is not too bad, according to students.
People get upset when they are late for their class for the first time. The buses should be coming more regularly.

CAMBUS isn’t the only one who could use some effort. Some of the problems, CAMBUS on the whole is one of the most popular and practical innovations on campus in recent years. It will be appreciated even more when the snow and drizzle arrive. Admittedly, the Urban renewal offers temporary housing

Merchants show mixed reaction

By LINDA WEBER
Staff Writer

Merchants in downtown Iowa City were displaced by urban renewal in the 1960s, and two decades later, they are seeing a repeat of the process. Many merchants are concerned and angry about the plans, but a few are hopeful about the outcome.

The plan is to build a new public market on the site of the old market, which was destroyed in the 1960s. The new market will be a permanent fixture in downtown Iowa City, replacing the temporary market that has been in operation for the past few years.

Some merchants worry that the new market will drive them out of business. They fear that the high costs of rent and utilities will force them to close up shop. Others, however, are hopeful that the new market will bring in new customers and help their businesses thrive.

One merchant, who wishes to remain anonymous, said, "I have been in business here for 20 years, and I'm not ready to give up yet. I think the new market will be good for us, as long as we can afford the rent." Another merchant, who also wishes to remain anonymous, said, "I'm worried about the high costs, but I'm hopeful that the new market will bring in more customers."

Lost you were here, but not. That's what the headline read and what we saw.

But to those in the crowd, it was ridiculous, and quite an overstatement of what happened in Saturday's game at the Kinnick Stadium. It was a long time ago.

The biggest news out of the game was the injury of the Hawkeye quarterback, Craig Johnson. He was injured in the first quarter, and he is expected to be out for the season. This is a major loss for the Hawkeyes, as Johnson is one of their top players.

The game was a close one, with Iowa leading 7-6 at halftime. However, Iowa pulled away in the second half, taking the lead and running away with it in the final quarter.

The Hawkeyes fought hard, but they were unable to overcome the deficit. The game was a testament to the strength of the Iowa defense, as they held the Hawkeyes to just 260 yards of total offense.

Our team had a good game, but we were still disappointed with the result. We expect to see them improve in the future.

Bears sweep Yoctan stars

In Saturday night's game, Iowa outfielder Jack Hiatt hit two home runs and drove in five runs as the Bears defeated Yucatan 12-2, clinching the four-game sweep of the Mexian Independence Day series. Hiatt's three hits included a two-run single that scored two runs in the first inning.

His hit total in the series was 7 for 16, with four home runs and 11 runs batted in. The Bears (6-0) moved into first place in the league standings after winning all four games against Yucatan (0-4).

On Friday night, the Bears won 4-3 on a walk-off home run in the ninth inning by catcher John Beaded.

On Thursday, Iowa and Yucatan split a doubleheader, with the Bears winning 10-2 in the first game and Yucatan winning 6-3 in the second. Hiatt had four hits and three runs scored in the first game, and two hits and two runs scored in the second game.

Iowa outscored Yucatan 40-16 in the four-game series. The Bears scored 27 runs in the last two games alone.

The Bears will next face the Texas Rangers in a three-game series next week.

Winners will be announced in this column by the following Monday.

And the grand prize! Each week the C: column will publish one picker of base of the授予, and Ted McGaughy, the American proprietor, will toss in another out of the game.

To be eligible for the prize, you must be in the American's pavilion at 1 p.m. When the winner is called, you will be in the other out of the game.

Whatever, collection of winnings must be made in two weeks.

If you don't succeed, keep these terminals in summer. We'll have an up-to-date running tab of all entrants throughout the season and will publish the names of those who have won.

To be considered for the grand prize, you must submit a minimum of eight entries.

Early opportunity

Bucks fall shy of pregame goals

By TOWNSEND HOOPES III

Buckeye mentors Woody and C:OLOMBUS, Ohio—Sports Information.

Colombus State defeated Iowa 24-0 Saturday afternoon, but through a spirited 60-minute work out, they went to the scoreboard read: Ohio State 21-0, Ohio.

The Hawks' Bill Windauer (65) eyes loose ball on in to recover pigskin. He's effort gave the Hawks' offensive running mate and Iowa visitors, half the time I couldn't raise my shoulder.
