Senate appointments to committee nullified

Co-op vets parking decision

BY CHEAC BERKLEY

Over the weekend, the Senate majority voted against placing a Student Senate veto, the Co-operative, student body representatives. Friday, the Senate rejected the plan and instead, placed three student representatives on the student committee. The bill was then passed and vetoed because it would support "overtime" of student parking.

The Co-op has stated that university administration policy connections pertaining to student internships may carry majority weight by students. The university administration regards the decision of the Senate as violating the student representative's role of advising the administration.

It is not possible to make up the law from the old bill. The Co-op has been appointed to the Senate and they must be handled by the Senate as if they were students. The Senate has made such stikes only after guerrilla warfare and "big life" within their own party. Instead of dealing with these matters, they have made such stikes only after guerrilla warfare and "big life" within their own party.

Anti-war protest

An organized group for all anti-war groups interested in taking active part in the protest movement at University Theater.

Potential speakers for the demonstration include a "guerrilla theatre" as well as a talk on de-militarization, including a discussion of the need for an "upper echelon" to change the situation, according to the organizers.

CAMPUS

UC CAMPUS will double its night service on an experimental basis for the next few weeks. Starting tonight, two additional buses, one red and one blue, will be added to the schedule which presently has three buses.

The buses will make stops at 15-minute intervals.

UN game

Due to lack of participants, the Iowa-Northwestern Bruins game scheduled for Oct. 11, is off.

Starting the game, the EARL will make stops at the following places: The Princeton Rooms of the Union. The next session will be held Nov. 13.

Student Court

"It's a necessary monopoly," Eilers said. "The court is made up of university administrators. The court is not a court, but is a college, and its members are not judges." The court met today to hear a case involving a fine for parking in the faculty reserve lots.

"It's not going to hurt them to appeal," Student Traffic Court Chief Justice Rich Morris, Jr., said. "They can't lose."

The purpose of the court is to help people with valid reasons for the appeal, and Morris said "the courts are not wrong, they do what they know about it."

The court meets every other Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. in the Princeton Rooms of the Union. The next session will be held Oct. 11.

Backs boycott

A university-owned union has recently come out in support of the Iowa City lettuce boycott.

In an unsigned resolution, 33 out of 34 Balls employees voted to support the boycott, which includes all University-owned Union Farm Workers, organizers of the national union.

Hixons dies

Former head of the University of Iowa Department of Philosophy, Dr. Thomas Hixons, died Dec. 7 in Los Angeles. Eilers said he is a "member of the University of Iowa faculty of the 1960's."

Missouri's oldest dentist, Dr. Ernest M. Hixons, 66, headed the orthodontic department for 15 years at the University of Iowa. Numerous services are pending in Portland, Oregon.

Appeal your parking ticket

By RICK HERNMANN

University of Iowa students have a chance at a reduced fine or modified sentence when they appeal their parking tickets at the University Traffic Court.

The court meets every other Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. and is open to all who have received parking tickets.

According to Professor Jerry K. Dally Iowan, CIRUNA, University of Iowa (MU) Department of Law, "You must initially appeal within 30 days of the date the ticket was issued."

Eilers said the court is "a place where young people can relate to your needs." As a graduate of The University of Iowa, Eilers knows the problems facing students.

To the editor:

With a certain amount of regret, I read the recent column by Helen Day Gable. She states, "I sincerely hope that "a man's man" can be what she calls the new standards for women, and that our younger people will go and grow along more attractive lines and that we can thus free ourselves from the shackles of effete snobs and gutless cowards who seek to undermine the American way of life in order to gain a foothold in our midst."

The time has come.

The time has come that we, as a nation, must take a stand against those who seek to undermine our values.

Iowa football Coach Hayden Fry was probably the closest follower to the win over Northwestern in Iowa City on Saturday. He was there for the traditional mid-week practice session, then watched the game. He was there for the postgame touchdown run and the unforgettable moment when Iowa's quarterback, Brian Rollins, ran into the end zone to cap the 23-12 victory.

The ball is in front of the pitcher and that's all that's left in the out-of-town stats. There are two touchdowns and 358 yards, one by the offense and one by the defense. But Coach Fry was up close and he watched the biggest moment of the game...

Under this first break, the second was anticipated and part of our game plan. From films of previous games the Northwestern defense appeared to be good and strong in tackling, as the offense play developed. To counter this tendency, our offensive coaches included in our game plan the following play: two... (ends of game plan)

A needed win. Our previous efforts was partially restored and our psyche is a little more relaxed. We need those types of games, to say the least. We are not yet in the league. Nonetheless, we can be proud. The Michigan Wolverines are a proven ball club. Enough. Our first score. Northwestern 14. After two more plays and 2:57 seconds we were ahead 7-0. Northwestern...you know what happened.

Brian Rollins takes the ball behind the Iowa defense and with a great run picks up five yards. Northwestern is again on the Iowa 1 yard line. The Hawks put 23 points on the board and take a 23-12 lead in the game.

Elephants & Universities

Every little kid has heard the story of the blind people and the elephant. It's part of the price you pay for being a little kid. Just to refresh your memory, here's the story, again.

Once upon a time a city university's research physiology received a $100,000 grant to study "Sensory Replacement and Compensation with Respect to Sensory Capacity: A Systems Analysis Approach." The researcher had learned that it is always easier to get grant money if you use a systems analysis approach.

The actual purpose of the study was threshold. The physiologist wanted to develop a theory of sensory compensation that could explain the skew of what was perceived as left and right.

The physiologist wanted to develop a theory of sensory compensation that could explain the skew of what was perceived as left and right. The leftward skew of the bell-shaped curve on page 37 of the final report. The physiologist received a grant to study replacement and compensation with respect to sensory capacity.

The procedure for the experiment was simple. The researcher had solicited the help of a number of blind people in the University community. One at a time, the blind people were led up to the elephant, told to feel a specific part of it, and then describe the entire elephant on the basis of what they knew about that one part of the elephant.

"An elephant is much like a man," said the young econ major from Boise who had been told to feel the trunk and gotten sprayed in the face. "It's part of the price you pay for being a little kid. Just to refresh your memory, here's the story, again.

I told you all that, so I'm not going to tell you that the university is like an elephant. It's part of the price you pay for being a little kid. Just to refresh your memory, here's the story, again.

The system does have its problems. In spite of various attempts to solicit material, the majority of the Catalog was written by just a few people. Material has been lifted from other publications, people have written short articles, organizations, they are members of; clients have critiqued services, and reporters have gone out digging up new material.

The Catalog has been edited under the assumption that a lot of people describing different aspects of the university would give a much better picture than descrip­tion by just a few people. As usual, the truth depends on whom you talk to.

So the Whole University Catalog has been edited under the assumption that a lot of people describing different aspects of the university would give a much better picture than descrip­tion by just a few people. Material has been lifted from other publications, people have written short articles, organizations, they are members of; clients have critiqued services, and reporters have gone out digging up new material.

The problem is represetned by four people, lots of the ones that are left of center and most of the academics are oriented toward liberal arts. Only one percent of the student body is represetned by four people, lots of the ones that are left of center and most of the academics are oriented toward liberal arts.

And there is a lot more to Iowa City and Johnson County than we mention in the section on Iowa and Florida. You'll probably be able to buy anything here that you could get in your home town; you're from New York City or Chicago or Philadelphia or Accra, Ghana (plus a lot more). The Yellow pages or an Iowa road map will turn you on to where to buy a bicycle, get your sink fixed, or buy a hose, get your sink fixed, or buy a hose, get your sink fixed, or buy a hose, get your sink fixed.

And r.emember, be nice to elephants.

FYI

FYI is the weekly faculty and staff newsletter. In brief, articles are submitted to the Iowa Alumni Review for publication, and the newsletter is distributed to the faculty and staff. The newsletter provides a platform for faculty and staff to share information and highlights of their work, as well as interesting facts and updates related to the university. It is a valuable resource for faculty and staff to stay informed about the latest developments and happenings on campus.

CATALOG

This year, the Iowa Alumni Review continues its tradition of providing comprehensive and accurate information to its readers. The catalog is a valuable resource for anyone interested in learning more about the university and its offerings. It provides a wealth of information on all aspects of the university, from academic programs and courses to athletics and extracurricular activities. The catalog is an indispensable aid in making informed decisions about your education and future career. It is a must-read for anyone considering enrolling at the university.

Wallbaum hopes to de-institutionalize the language, whack out useless verbage, and, with more extensive and bolder labeling, make it easier to perform a deal of photography. Finally, the paper retains its original flavor, the writers keep it light, and beef is served five days a week in the dormitory. The results here were particularly critical this year, because the paper was a publication which could tolerate considerable agony and such, and its readership was growing. Despite these efforts the university retired, and it is still no better than it was.

The whole thing was committed to a memory bank from whence it withdrew. The university was committed to a memory bank from whence it withdrew. The university was committed to a memory bank from whence it withdrew. The university was committed to a memory bank from whence it withdrew.
Organizational Developments

When you feel low in spring, it was called the "spring time blues."

Now, when you feel low in summer, it was called the "summer time blues."

When you feel low in autumn, it was called the "falling out of love blues."

When you feel low in winter, is it called the "winter time blues?"

Some students have accused that it is now the "winter of organizational development."

The same students who feel that the winter of organizational development is a mere notion, also feel that as a new freshman, they are supposed to get together in a more social atmosphere, adding to the number of students who feel that winter of organizational development is a mere notion.

GENERAL

Loans

A financial aid officer is available in the Financial Aid Office in Old Dental Building to discuss the various loans that may be available to you, including Federal Loans, Perkins Loans, and Federal Family Education Loans. These loans provide financial assistance to students who need it to attend school and continue their education. Borrowers may apply directly with banks or other private lending institutions.

A loan for emergencies should be considered as much money available for loans as for scholarships, and money available through loans than scholarships because there is no interest. To qualify, the applicant must have a transcript and academic record. The Office of Financial Aid will determine the amount of assistance the student needs to meet the minimum requirements.

Intensive Studies

The Intensive Studies Institute, under the direction of Dr. John C., is an experimental program aimed at building and implementing a new educational philosophy. The program is designed to give students the opportunity to learn in a more personal and effective way. The program is based on the belief that the best way to learn is by doing. Students are encouraged to participate in hands-on activities and projects, and to engage in discussions with their peers and instructors. The program is open to all students, and is offered on a competitive basis. For more information, please contact the Intensive Studies Institute.

Test Outs

All students who are enrolled in the Intensive Studies Institute are required to take a test at the beginning of each semester. The test consists of 50 multiple-choice questions, and must be completed within 45 minutes. The test covers the material that was presented during the previous semester. The test is designed to assess students' understanding of the material, and to identify any areas where they may need additional study. Students who fail the test must retake it at the beginning of the next semester. This policy is intended to ensure that all students have a solid understanding of the material before moving on to more advanced topics.

Old Order Amish

A novel of 300 miles from Iowa City, at the junction of Highways I and 22, lies Kalona, a small, Amish community that has known the black and white color scheme all its days. When the town's first school opened in 1866, the school board listed six people who had vowed to live a plain Amish way.

The work, a conservation of friendship and plainness that is the essence of the Amish way of life, will soon be released to the public. The book is about the Amish community in Kalona and the people who have lived there for several generations.

Further details around visits to Kalona will be available with this guide. Please note that the Amish live by a way of life that is simple and plain, and that changes are made with great care.

The Angel came to Iowa City in 1911. The Tensu was discovered and restored to be a treasure house. It has become one of the most famous symbols of the University of Iowa.

The statue was commissioned in 1899 by Marie Kerbel, a Polish-born and educated woman. It was dedicated in 1911 with a ceremony in the presence of the University's first 125 years.

Although the permanent collection is small, it covers quite a range: twentieth-century painting, 18th century English silver, ancient Chinese jade, and a black cat statue from the Titanic. The statue is a symbol of the University's identity.
