WASHINGTON (AP) — In a victory for environmentalists, a federal court ruled Thursday that the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management must assess the environmental impact of a proposal to mine for copper on public land in southwestern Nevada.

The court, in a decision that could have broad implications for land use issues, said the bureau must consider the potential impacts of mining on water resources, wildlife and the ski industry before allowing the mining to proceed. The decision was a major victory for environmentalists who had been fighting to protect the area's natural beauty.

DENVER (AP) — The administration's new strategy for the economy was put to the test on Thursday, as investor confidence and economic growth faltered.

The market was down sharply as the credit crisis deepened, with investors selling off stocks and bonds. The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 350 points, while the S&P 500 fell 42 points.

SIGMA PI DAMAGED IN BLAZE

SIGMA PI, a fraternity at Iowa State University, was hit by a fire early Wednesday morning, causing $20,000 in damage.

The blaze broke out in the early hours of the morning, causing smoke and flames to fill the building. The cause of the fire is under investigation.

ISU fills dorms without parietal rule requirements

IOWA CITY (AP) — The University of Iowa is filling dorms without parietal rule requirements, despite the fact that ISU is the only state university that does not have resident halls.

The university announced Monday that it will fill dorms without parietal rules, saying it wants to provide more flexibility for students.

Truman

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Harry S. Truman resisted proposals to expand the university's enrollment, saying it was already too large.

Truman, speaking in his famous speech to the nation in 1947, said that the university was already over-enrolled and that expanding it would strain its resources.

Restroom pecker

A University of Iowa radio student reported to Campus security, Dec. 12, that the basement radio station, 820 AM, had been invaded, and that the station had been turned to a pecker station. Security responded to the call and were met by a radio station employee. The employee was determined to be an employee of the station and was asked to leave. The station was then turned back to its normal operation.

At the airport, a woman was seen attempting to board a plane with a pecker on her back. Security personnel were called to the scene and the woman was removed from the plane. The woman later admitted to having had a pecker on her back while attempting to board the plane.

Investigate death

Attorneys for the parents of Barry M. Freeman are seeking damages for his death. The parents believe that Freeman was killed by a pecker on his back. The pecker was reportedly on the back of Freeman's shirt, which he was wearing at the time of his death.

The parents have filed a lawsuit against the university, alleging that the university was negligent in not taking adequate measures to prevent the death of their son.

The university has denied the allegations and stated that it is cooperating fully with the investigation. The university has also offered the parents a settlement, which the parents have not accepted.

Doggone cold

Sold-out tickets and the lowest price ever for tickets in December, 1973, were announced by the University of Iowa Women's Basketball. The basketball team is playing a series of games in December, and the tickets are expected to sell out quickly.

The basketball team has been a success this year, and the tickets are expected to be in high demand. The team has won several games and has a strong record for the season.

School board on maternity leave

Propose 20-day sick pay

By MARY ROSE

Staff Writer

The Iowa City School Board has proposed 20-day sick pay for its members. The proposal was made by the board after a unanimous vote. The proposal will be discussed at the next board meeting.

The proposal is in response to the increasing number of members who are requesting sick leave. The board is concerned about the impact of the sick leave on the school district.

The board has also proposed a sick leave policy for its members. The policy will be discussed at the next board meeting.

The school board has been under pressure to propose a sick leave policy. The board has been receiving complaints from members about the lack of sick leave.

The board has also been receiving complaints from members about the lack of maternity leave. The board has been receiving complaints from members about the lack of maternity leave.

"Future shock" prominent in Basic Sciences building

By JOE POLASKI

The University of Iowa's Basic Sciences building is a trip. It's a space odyssey, and perhaps the real deal.

"It's too complicated," said Melton Ford, an advisory department secretary. "I get lost in the diagrams down here on level one."

The building is the size of a supermarket with a bunch of like 100-200 confusing rooms stacked up like a jumble of lost bottles.

Another secretary said, "After a while you can find your way around on your own level, but the other levels are confusing."

Last year of the office department said, "There is a lot of wasted space in the building. The corners are too wide, so I was told by someone that the corners are wasted and not being utilized."

This year of the office department said, "We would like to get a map of the floor plan like the one in the infirmary at University Hospital. That way we have a clearer idea of where the doors are."

The bill says that his department $114.50 bill was dated the same day he was charged of that charge. While I was doing county work in 1971, the indictment and trial on the gift was ruled void because the

"Jay: anything is possible if you have a plan," said Melissa Hood, an anatomy department secretary. "We're sort of in the dungeon down here on level one. The corridors are so wide. for one thing. I was told by someone that the design of the building gives you that feeling."

"I used to work in the biochemistry department. has been the Co-ordination official co-ordinator for the building even though people have been getting lost in it."

"There are people in the building who are used to it now, each level has a modified corridor to help people find their way around on their own level. but the people above you. Each level has a modified corridor to help people find their way around on their own level."

"In my opinion, it would not help the people in the building are used to it and" says Robby. "We won't have any big problems again and not until then."

"At the National Academy of Arts and Sciences an annual conference taught the building building is the size of a supermarket with a bunch of like 100-200 confusing rooms stacked up like a jumble of lost bottles."

"We would like to get a map of the floor plan like the one in the infirmary at University Hospital. That way we have a clearer idea of where the doors are."

They're after Richard Bartel again.

Unfortunately, that's the only conclusion as defeated supervisor candidate P. E. Walters is challenging the election of Richard Bartel to the ISTA Board of Supervisors.

Walters says Bartel—an alleged Canadian腾飞—is disqualified to hold public office, since an archaic section of the law in question says no person convicted of an "infernous crime" shall have the rights of an "elector," "a qualification for office building.

It wasn't that county voters didn't know about Bartel's past. Discussions and rumors permeated the campaign. Bartel admitted, time and again, that he had made grave personal errors. The last time Bartel was convicted of a seven years--and he said what they were. But some Bartel backers say his appeal has apparently turned over a new leaf. And he began hobbling about two years ago about referring county government, digging for information on alleged corrupt practices. He stepped on toes, summoned meeting with charges, as he looked for the proof he felt the public deserved.

The threat of that Bartel home in power, or those with interests in the county government, digging for information and the like.

Williams: I should have shot more

By KURT RAPP

Williams was looking at the material, "I wish we had a better ball," said the soft spoken guard.

Williams was kind's high man in his last six games at Kansas State. The freshman scored twice from the field and admitted, I should have shot more.

"I was concentrating on getting working together," continued Williams.

Len was also the victim of his own scoring problem and was called for a foul.

"I didn't think they'd go," said Collins, "we're definitely going to be shooting more and having more in the middle." Williams was happy in the locker room and the "soft spoken guard." Agreed.

"We have to get better," said Mystak, "I don't think we're scoring enough offensively. We have to get better defensively too." Williams was happy in the locker room and the "soft spoken guard." Agreed.

Iowa matmen open Big 10 at Indiana

By JEFF STEINEL

The Hawkeyes entered 2015 in high spirits, confident of making the Big Ten tournament. But today at Indiana, Friday, the matmen will face reality.

Coach Gary Kadarockisman Iowa's 16th-year coach said there would still be some question after a 3-3 victory over Illinois. Illinois' coach has some concerns, saying: "Iowa is a stronger team than we are, and they have more depth."

"In football, you're playing under worst outdoor conditions, which isn't good for the matmen, so we're playing in the best environment. We have to keep it in better shape to maintain our competitive edge," Kadarockisman said.

"Iowa's coach is a very good coach, and he's taken his team to the national championship," Kadarockisman said. "He's got a lot of good players, and they're going to be very tough to beat."
Defective boots

Frequent jockeying by pilots is a major concern. Mohammed Musa Shafig, a pilot, said in his interview with reporters, "I’ve noticed a lot of movement among the pilots and co-pilots on the flights I have been on, and it’s quite alarming."

The reports we are getting are alarming. I have been told by fellow pilots that the pilots and co-pilots were sleeping during critical moments of the flight. They zone to another member of the flight crew who had to be forcibly awakened to influence tiredness, which is a serious problem.

In referring to the power generation industry, we are working on improving the flow of information. We hope our U.S. program can help the airline industry of Turkey.

Shafig said, "You just can’t distribute money to pilots, it won’t solve the problem. We have to find a real solution to this issue."

Bakery is a graduate of New York’s Columbia University and Carlsburg Association. He said, "I don’t think there is a need for change between traditional values or Afghan culture and the world of today."

"Education required by geography has made it difficult for us to get good education. But I’m not an expert in teaching."

Although Shafig has been involved in the industry for several years, he is not an expert in teaching. He said, "I think we need to work on this issue."

Dinner and Neary Sharp.

The Daily Iowa—Iowa City, Iowa—Thurs., Dec. 11, 1973

"The magic has gone...it's all clinching"...said Patrice Munsel to me in a recent interview. Munsel has met and worked with many stars coming up, but they are fewer and farther between. She is not less enthusiastic about them. "You can't just have a rush of success and be a superstar. You have to live it."

It that marvellous, like every time you or she mentions an event of everyone around her.

"I'm glad to be alive. To bitch and make plans? Haven't a clue; never plan that far ahead."

"I wouldn't be here. Because I love people. It means a lot to me when I see your work."

Just as Patrice Munsel is an experienced singer, opera means a lot to her. "Applause is lovely and rewarding."

"...It's a very refreshing thing, to have a feeling. The loss of innocence is a really dreadful thing. That means worthily. "We adore and love the people we should hate when we tried.""

McGuinn on Crosby, Byrds & recording

By LONELLE J. GENEVER

All good things to thine are with a bit of time. Many of the original members of the Byrds have reiterated that theme at a recent interview, but McGuinn has given them a bit of time to do it right. Even after the band's breakup, McGuinn has gone on to pursue his solo career, and his latest release, "For Free," is a testament to his dedication to his craft.

"I've been working on this for a while," McGuinn said. "I wanted to do something that was a little bit different, something that was a little bit more personal." McGuinn's latest album features a mix of originals and covers, including a reworked version of "Turn! Turn! Turn!" and a heartfelt tribute to his late bandmate, Gene Clark.

"Gene was a real genius," McGuinn said. "He had this amazing ability to capture the spirit of a song and make it his own. I wanted to do something that was a little bit in that spirit." McGuinn's latest album is a testament to his dedication to his craft, and a reminder of the impact that the Byrds had on rock music.

"The Byrds were a really important band," McGuinn said. "They were one of the first bands to really break down the barriers between folk and rock music, and they had a huge influence on a lot of the music that came after them." McGuinn's latest album is a reminder of that influence, and a testament to his own dedication to his craft.
Reefer Madness returns to Iowa City's welcome.

After the repeal of Prohibition, Harry J. Anslinger found himself out of work. He wanted to go on welfare, but he went out and created a job for himself. The job was U. S. Commissioner of Narcotics, a position that he occupied for 30 years. Anslinger was determined to wipe out the smoking corruption of the era. He created an anti-drug department in the Treasury Department, the National Narcotics Bureau. He also created a national organization to fight drug addiction, the American Medical Association, and the National Narcotics Bureau. Anslinger believed that marijuana was the most dangerous drug, and he was determined to make it illegal. He worked hard to promote this idea, and he was successful. In the end, marijuana was made illegal, and Anslinger was able to use his position to promote his agenda. The story of Harry J. Anslinger is one of the most interesting stories in American history. He was a man who was determined to do what he thought was right, and he was able to use his position to achieve his goals. The story of his life is one that is worth reading, and it is a story that is worth knowing.
