The smoke was more from traditional, hardclothes, than from the smokeless powders sponsored by the local Youth Spartakiad Party. YSP chapter resulted in seven arrests.

An arrest came even before the smoke cloud. This man was arrested at 8 p.m., after he had refused to stand for his alleged role in providing the spark for the riot.

A call was received by police involving a threatened student's arrest. An investigation revealed that a man had threatened to pull a gun if he was asked to leave the party.

The man refused to leave and was arrested. The arrest was made at 11:30 p.m.

The cause of death has not been determined, and the investigation continues.

New police riot strategy used for UI smoke-in

Editor's Note: Daily Iowan public editor writes, "Significant changes have been made in the police and safety on the University of Iowa campus in the past year and a half in preparation for potential protests. Unlike previous years, campus security police, non-sworn campus police and Iowa County sheriff's deputies work together with the Iowa City Police Department to ensure campus safety.

A few days ago, for example, campus police were called on the Pentacrest after a group of people gathered to protest. The group was small, but campus police were called to ensure safety.

On Wednesday, campus police were called on the Pentacrest again after a larger group of people gathered to protest. The police were able to keep the crowd under control and prevent any incidents from occurring.

In addition to the police, the Iowa County Sheriff's Department also responded to the scene to ensure safety.

Overall, the situation was calm and under control.

The police were able to maintain order and prevent any incidents from occurring.

The judges in Iowa's ninth Judicial District, which includes Johnson County, were called to duty this week after a university police officer was injured in the course of duty.

The judge was resting in a courtroom when a man entered and assaulted the officer. The judge took the officer to the hospital for treatment. The officer is expected to make a full recovery.

The judge was called after the incident to provide a statement on the situation.

"I'm saddened to hear about this incident," the judge said. "The officer was injured in the line of duty, and I want to express my support for the officer and his family."

The judge said the officer was injured while performing his duties, and that he is expected to make a full recovery.

The incident occurred during a hearing at the courthouse, and the judge ordered that the case be rescheduled for a later date.

The judge also said that he is working with the police department to ensure that the officer is given the support he needs during his recovery.

The incident highlights the importance of supporting our law enforcement officers, and the judge said that he is committed to doing all he can to ensure that the officer receives the care he needs.

The judge ended by expressing his gratitude to the officer and his family for their courage and service.
Postpones final decision to run
Agnew says he'll win if nominated

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said yesterday that he would go into the 1972 presidential campaign "to win," not to lose.

"I am not running to lose," Agnew told a Republican gathering here yesterday. "I am running to win.

"I am not running to be the back-up candidate," Agnew said, "I am running to be the President of the United States.

Agnew had been at the White House with President Richard M. Nixon, who attended a meeting of the National Republican Leadership Conference here yesterday.

Agnew, who has not yet declared his intention to run, said, "If I decide to leave, I'll run."
Agnew tries other foot

Well, well, well.

Such a pleasant change of pace.

From the administrations which jumped in conclusions and condemned the "lawbreaking" of Angela Davis, Charles Manson, the Chicago Seven, anti-war demonstrators and countless other alleged criminals before and during their trials comes a plea by Vice Pres. Spiro Agnew about="jumping to conclusions before all the evidence is in".

Now if Agnew, Nixon, the Justice Department, etc. would only guarantee that this protection of the rights of defendants is standard uniform policy for all accused persons, not few the who can buy a good lawyer...

Perhaps the moral of the story is this: smooth, rich oratorators and high-uppers deserve their rights protected, while the political disasters of the politicians do not.

It's a pretty confusing dilemma these days for people like Agnew. They've come down hard on their associates and their opponents do too.

But now it's been discovered that it's actually none of their associates and their opponents may just get a little law and order whipped on it.

Gosh, when the shoe's on the other foot, well, it kinda hurts, doesn't it?

The four great religions of the United Nations are Christianity, Buddhism, Hinduism, and Islam. These religions have been shaped by the influence of Christendom and Christianity is an important element of these traditions. The influence is primarily due to the fact that Christianity is the world's largest religion and has a great deal of influence on cultural and political life in many countries. WASHINGTON—G. Gordon Liddy handed his White House pass in as an effort to keep a "small crowd" of plotters in his office by assuming his Watergate burglary-wiretap team. The then-campaign manager was elected to preserve the Watergate burglary-wiretap team. Unfortunately for Liddy, the press made a public spectacle of his plan to keep the group from visiting the White House in person. In an attempt to prevent this, Liddy and his team proudly showed their credentials before they were blocked from entering the White House. Instead, Liddy was coaxed into leaving the White House by the press who claimed to have found a "silver social storm." Mrs. Liddy was interviewed in the press room. The press was ready to cover the story, but instead it was a personal story. When asked whether she wanted to comment, Liddy said, "Yes, I want to comment." Liddy's team had been paid large sums of hush money to keep the story about the Watergate break-in quiet.

His music is like day

"The whole point is to turn you on"

BY MARTHA ROBIN

Two of the Grateful Dead's lead musicians, Michael "Mike" Hackett and Robert "Bob" Weir, are expected to return to their hometowns for a sold-out concert at the University of Iowa's Hancher Auditorium on Monday night. In a recent interview, Weir described the atmosphere at Hancher as "electric." The seats were filled to capacity, with over 3,000 people attending the event. Weir said that the acoustic sound of the Grateful Dead is a unique experience, one that cannot be replicated in a recording. He added that the band's music is a reflection of the energy of the audience, creating a sense of unity and community.

Weir also spoke about the band's upcoming tour, which will include stops in New York, Chicago, and San Francisco. He mentioned that the band is looking forward to seeing their fans again and that they are excited to perform in front of a live audience. Weir emphasized the importance of the audience in their performances, stating that they always strive to connect with their fans and create a memorable experience.

In addition, Weir expressed his gratitude to the Grateful Dead's fans for their continued support and devotion to their music. He thanked them for their love and dedication, and encouraged them to continue supporting the band in the future. "We appreciate the support of our fans and are grateful for the love they have shown us," said Weir. "We look forward to seeing them again on our upcoming tour."

Jupiter shot might fail: Van Allen

BOSTON (AP) — Two U.S. spacecraft are racing toward Jupiter, but their chances of successfully reaching the giant planet are not very good. Dr. James A. Van Allen, chairman of the Science and Applications Department at the University of Iowa, said he believed the missions were no real possibility of success.

Dr. Van Allen was asked if the project was salvageable. "I don't think so," he replied. "I think the mission is lost."

"What we are doing is trying to find a way to proceed, but the chances are slim," he said. "The spacecraft are being launched in a direction that would not allow them to reach Jupiter."
