Foot of snow greets students

By the Daily Iowan staff

As evidenced by the terminated empty look on the faces of all but the few hardy students across the campus Friday, Mother Nature was not in her best mood. Many students changed their minds about attending classes, chose to stay home or took the day off. The slippery local roads and an accumulation of snow across the county made driving dangerous, reports of crashes and traffic jams accented the day.

Here in Iowa City, returning UI students were greeted by a 12-inch accumulation of snow, with up to 7-foot snow drifts. Weather-related accidents, including a dozen in Iowa City, significantly increased on city streets. Across the state, 12 persons were killed in traffic mishaps over the long Thanksgiving holiday, most of them drivers.

"No show" proposal

By MARK PETERS

Iowa City, 11/27/80

When most people hear the word "salary," they think of a raise or a bonus. But for UI faculty members, the word "salary" can mean a substantial decrease in their pay.

"We are in a situation where our faculty members are making less money than they were 10 years ago," said Robert B. Dobbs, president of the Robert B. Dobbs, Inc. Management Consultants.

Implementation of all portions of the salary cut next year will increase Merit System payroll costs at the average accuracy by approximately 1.1 per cent.

"We are certainly not going to live in a vacuum," Dobbs said. "We need to have realistic salary levels and we also need to have something that can be negotiated.

The university has been in a "no-show" situation for the past three years, and it will continue through next year, Dobbs said.

Supervisors remain deadlocked

County Road Plan still in doubt

By MARC LAWLER

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors remain deadlocked over approving the Johnson County Road Plan and Budget.

Last week the Supervisors decided to send the Johnson County Road Plan to the Board of Supervisors for approval of the road plan.

Supervisor Robert J. Burns and Supervisor Charles Richard have an ongoing dispute over the placement of funds for the secondary road department.

At the regular Wednesday meeting of the Supervisors Burns moved that the proposed road plan be approved as a whole, but neither the other board members nor the County Board of Supervisors approved the plan.

Burns also pointed out that the secondary road department had decreased over the three years with those of other road departments have increased by 10 percent per year. But the supervisors have not decided by the amount of money made up the level of spending for the State Road law, as recommended by Burns. The supervisors have decided to hold the matter over for a full board meeting, in which Supervisors will be present.

Ford: Soviet shift on missiles
due to U.S. firmness at summit

NEW YORK (AP) - President Ford says American firms during the recent Vladivostok summit meeting led to the Russian shift on missiles. He said the U.S. was firm in its stand.

"We were firm, we were clear, we were firm, we were clear," Ford said.

"They were probing and testing to see if we were aware of the proposed budget for the secondary road department. We were not surprised by this, but we agreed to discuss the matter," Ford said.

Ford gave Secretary of State Henry Kissinger credit for preliminary negotiations which led to the Soviet interest.

"The next morning," Ford said, "we came up with a proposal that would give us a substantial degree of equivalence." The result, Ford said, was "we accepted a lesser degree in the West, and we increased our interests in the East." Published reports have given the number agreed upon as about 450 for each side, of which 150 million dollars is in the form of sales to the Soviet Union.

Hi-and-drunks

A 21-year-old resident of Iowa City received a termed charge of possession of marijuana which he was found with the marijuana; he is being held at the Johnson County Jail.

"We found a substantial amount of marijuana which was broken up and packed in a bag," the sheriff said.

The incident occurred while he was working at the Johnson County Jail.

Coal miners vote on new pact

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Coal miners began voting Monday on a new contract that gives them a rare chance to help shape the nation's energy policy.

The vote was the third in a series of meetings over the past month, and the result is expected to be announced Tuesday.

The miners, who have been on strike since early May, are expected to vote yes on the contract, which includes a provision that allows for a stoppage if there is a national emergency.

The vote is part of an effort by the United Mine Workers of America to get more say in the nation's energy policy.

Humbbugging the Holidays

Down here at the dark end of the year, we're given to thinking a bit about keeping warm. We've broken the winter coat, figured out the knots and ties, and traded in the flannel nightgown. Those of us who didn't quite get around to finding a new one will, however, probably wear it with the brand new. We've blistered our fingers with frost and have been moved to get the nut cracker and greet the holidays.

If you happen to be on the right end of the social ladder, you may be feeling pretty very well for you. In the space of five weeks, you get to nurse three full days regaled with their language, sentiment, and indulgence, and all the gobbledygook they like.

Realistically, if it wouldn't for the holidays, we Christians in these northern climates probably wouldn't do much else between the last Thursday in November and the first Tuesday in January. We just think that the worst is coming.

Instead inebriate ourselves with celebrations. We might moan about the stuffy crowds and cliquish condescension, ask ourselves why we go through and put up with it all. No doubt it is difficult to love it; we come to talk about the worsening cold.

Reactions to Soedden

TO THE EDITOR:

It is difficult to discern how to answer this letter. It is, in fact, full of ignorance, and contains nothing that has anything to do with the so-called Haiti problem. We do not feel that it is necessary for us to respond to this letter.

The student body and the student organizations at the University of Iowa are made up of people with a wide variety of backgrounds and beliefs. We hope that this diversity is reflected in the opinions expressed in this letter.

Local Radio

TO THE EDITOR:

The student-run radio stations and their policies have been an issue of concern among many students. This is because the stations have been perceived as failing to provide an adequate representation of the student community.

Several local radio stations, including KXIC, have been criticized for their lack of diversity in programming and the exclusion of certain voices. This has led to debates about the role of student-run media in promoting free speech and the dissemination of information.

Our community relies on these stations to provide a forum for discussion and to represent the wide range of perspectives that exist within our student body.

Alan Says Poor Yorgo

TO THE EDITOR:

I was very disappointed to see the recent comments from our favorite radio personality, Yorgo. His recent remarks have been quite unprofessional and have caused quite a stir on campus.

Yorgo’s recent statements about student organizations and their policies have been met with strong criticism. Many students have expressed concern about the lack of diversity in programming and the exclusion of certain voices.

It is important for student-run media to provide a platform for a range of perspectives, including those that may be marginalized or underrepresented.

Yorgo's comments have been seen as failing to meet this standard, and have been met with strong backlash.

Review of a Review

Bunch of Idiots

Reviewing the review of "A Southern Woman" by Mike Harris in the Thursday, Nov. 15 edition of the Daily Iowan, I was surprised at the inordinate exaggerations reflecting the reviewer's obvious lack of understanding.

Mike Harris's review of "A Southern Woman," while it is definitely an excellent book, is unfortunately not a perfect one. While it offers an insightful perspective on the Southern perspective, it does so at the expense of other important aspects of the novel.

However, the reviewer's comments are absolutely unwarranted. It is not appropriate to conflate the novel's theme of race with the reviewer's own personal biases.

In conclusion, I would like to express my disappointment with Mike Harris's review and encourage others to read "A Southern Woman" for themselves to gain a more comprehensive understanding of its themes and messages.

The Swing of the Pendulum

The pendulum swings back and forth on the issue of free speech. Many students have been critical of the university's policies regarding speech and expression on campus.

However, it is important to remember that the university is not simply a platform for free speech. It is also responsible for ensuring a safe and respectful environment for all students.

This balance between free speech and safety is a delicate one, and it is essential that we continue to work towards a solution that is fair and equitable for all parties involved.

All kinds of people don't read newspapers. The quality of many words you should know is in the hardy matter, that's why they're read on first and last, day by day. Always, they have been read by your neighbors. More often the evening TV news, or the reading of newspapers or magazines in their own right, are the things that they read on. But as a matter of fact, the television news is not the only medium through which people get their news.

The value of reading newspapers is not just in the fact that they are a source of information. Newspapers are often considered to be a forum for debate and discussion.

The contents of a newspaper can vary greatly depending on the city in which it is published. Some newspapers focus on local news, while others cover national and international events.

In my opinion, newspapers are an essential part of our society. They provide a platform for free expression and allow people to share their thoughts and opinions on a wide range of topics.

But it is also important to recognize that newspapers are not always objective. They can be influenced by political, economic, or social factors, leading to a skewing of the news.

Overall, newspapers are a valuable resource for anyone who wants to stay informed about the world around them.

Students Over 25 combat that 'over the hill' feeling

BY LINDA KANGEL

“Thirty-one, you're kidding, I had a number that age once.”

You may say that old. You say the guy next to you is spry because his 20th birthday is coming up and you realize you've already hit 40.

Well, you're not alone. According to an Associated Press report, it's not uncommon for some students at the campus population to outdo their numbers by one or two. Last year, 1,000 older students registered as college students and there are possibly more this year.

It takes awhile to get used to the rhetoric. Some you will find you do, I can't think of students over 25 as old and I'm sure anyone that can think that will hit 60, but it doesn't seem a big deal.

Matthews agrees that "old" may not be the right way to label the new population students, but age is the one thing they have in common. It is also the one thing they do not share with the other three fourths of the student body. And the number of older students is increasing.

So why are we here? Changing life styles, circumstances, divorce, pressures brought on by technology, divorce. With nearly the day it is, taken in relief from the school of hard knocks, computer is making it easy for B.A. students, and with TV, phones, and talk, and I'm not all that far off. We are more at school.

As a student put it, "After you've had Lander, Holton Care and Little ways to worry with smaller words, you're back to school in school.

Over here, the students back left out of the information room. "The main communication is that through the dormitories," Matthews explains. "Our students are good at getting through to the dorms then you make out of information.

"I remember taking a nap in the 10th dormitory, and there was a group. They were giving to the dormitory, and the one thing the older students organized as a group. Students kept checking in in my office and telling how they could meet other older students in a natural setting." Matthews explains. "We've got two groups.

There are older students in the organization who are more natural are increasing all the time. The content of the organization office is to make the first year as campus consult for any student.

The concern of the Students Over 25 is that they are not to lose their interest with social situations that help them feel more interested or meet other older "25" students. Without having to search through the forums to hear they have four or five times looking into the future of the older students over 20.

Many universities are setting up special programs to suit older students. At Iowa State, you have basic courses and each course is completed in 12 weeks when older students and older students are assigned students with their age as an additional advisor. Every access to the adults classes open classes are offered to students that have not been formally admitted, eliminating the dual educational process that reveals past background and present low self-esteem.

At the UA older students go part time or enter the dormitory through the Luther class program. This program involves many formal advantages and students are encouraged to participate in all the benefits of a full time UA student.

To find out more of these programs are available, the orientation office is looking for many to extend opportunities for older students. UA is currently planning selected student citizens. UA is looking for at least one program to serve the. -

Students kept checking in in my office and telling how they could meet other older students in a natural setting." Matthews explains. "We've got two groups.

There are older students in the organization who are more natural are increasing all the time. The content of the organization office is to make the first year as campus consult for any student.

The concern of the Students Over 25 is that they are not to lose their interest with social situations that help them feel more interested or meet other older "25" students. Without having to search through the forums to hear they have four or five times looking into the future of the older students over 20.

Many universities are setting up special programs to suit older students. At Iowa State, you have basic courses and each course is completed in 12 weeks when older students and older students are assigned students with their age as an additional advisor. Every access to the adults classes open classes are offered to students that have not been formally admitted, eliminating the dual educational process that reveals past background and present low self-esteem.

At the UA older students go part time or enter the dormitory through the Luther class program. This program involves many formal advantages and students are encouraged to participate in all the benefits of a full time UA student.

To find out more of these programs are available, the orientation office is looking for many to extend opportunities for older students. UA is currently planning selected student citizens. UA is looking for at least one program to serve the. -

Matthews agrees that "it may not be the right way to label the new population students, but age is the one thing they have in common. It is also the one thing they do not share with the other three fourths of the student body. And the number of older students is increasing.

So why are we here? Changing life styles, circumstances, divorce, pressures brought on by technology, divorce. With nearly the day it is, taken in relief from the school of hard knocks, computer is making it easy for B.A. students, and with TV, phones, and talk, and I'm not all that far off. We are more at school.
