Near perfect launchings followed by game of tag

By LARRY STONER

Cape Canaveral - With the country's first joint space mission almost a sure thing, Soviet space officials Wednesday said they expected to begin launching their own Soyuz spacecraft at 3:30 p.m. today.

A Cape Canaveral official said the Soviet launch would bring the United States closer to achieving its goal of a joint manned space flight.

"It's a great day for American science," the official said. "The Russians have proved that they can launch a spacecraft, and we're ready to do the same thing.""}

Boulder - Salome the dog has finally found her forever home.

Salome, who was found last month by a woman who was walking her dog in the park, has been adopted by a family who live in the same neighborhood.

The family said they are happy to have Salome as a member of their family, and they are looking forward to spending many years together.

Salome was found wandering around the neighborhood when a woman spotted her and decided to take her home.

The family said they are grateful to the woman who found Salome, and they hope to one day meet her and thank her for her kindness.

Salome is a small dog with a white coat and black spots.

She is friendly and loves to play and run around.

The family said they plan to take her to the park regularly and are looking forward to spending time together.
WASHINGTON (AP) - A bill to cut the price of all state final appeal cases was introduced in the Senate with a request that it be attached to a measure that would increase the amount of money for which the Board of Supervisors could be reimbursed for actual mileage claims.

Ul administration adds N.Y. lawyer

By staff writer

New York Editor

The recent appointment of a new administrative lawyer to the Ul administration by President John J. Gosleen, who assumed his job just this week, was hailed by Earl Reade, Ul's head of administration, as a "major step forward for the university." Reade said his new position will be to "assist in the development of a more effective university administration." He added that the Ul administration is "looking forward to the possibility of working with the new lawyer."

Re-greasing the Controls

President Ford has recently proposed a plan through which petroleum producers would be allowed to buy oil on the open market, a potential alternative to the existing price controls. Ford's proposal involves the creation of a "crude oil" and "gasoline" producers' pools, which would allow producers to purchase oil without being subject to government price controls. In addition, the plan would provide for the sale of oil from these pools to refiners at lower prices, thereby reducing the cost of crude oil to consumers.

According to Ford, the proposed increase in price from lifting the controls on crude oil would not significantly increase gas prices. He argues that the proposal would help to stabilize the economy by reducing the uncertainty caused by price controls. Ford's plan has received mixed reactions from industry experts and government officials. Some have expressed concern that the proposal could lead to higher gas prices and increased dependence on foreign oil.

The plan has also faced criticism from environmentalists, who argue that allowing producers to buy oil on the open market would undermine the government's efforts to reduce dependence on foreign oil and promote renewable energy sources. The plan has been met with mixed reactions from Members of Congress, with some supporting it and others opposing it. The proposal is likely to face further scrutiny as Congress considers its merits.

With Respect

To the Editor:

The wire service and telegraph service are still important, as the United States has been a global leader in these industries. However, the increasing use of social media and other digital platforms has led to a decline in the use of these services. As a result, the United States government has been considering ways to reduce their budgets and focus on more pressing issues.

In 2011, President Obama announced the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, which aimed to stimulate the economy and create jobs. One of the provisions of the act was to provide funding for the Department of Homeland Security, which has been tasked with ensuring the safety of the nation's borders and preventing terrorist attacks. The act provided $47 billion in funding for the Department of Homeland Security, which was used to hire additional border patrol agents and improve border security.

In 2013, Congress passed the Budget Control Act, which established a two-year sequester to reduce government spending. The act required $1.2 trillion in spending cuts over a period of two years, including $85 billion in cuts to the Department of Homeland Security. This led to a significant reduction in the number of border patrol agents and a decrease in overall funding for border security.

In 2015, the Department of Homeland Security faced additional cuts as a result of the Budget Control Act and the Bipartisan Budget Act. The act required an additional $1.5 trillion in spending cuts over a period of ten years, including $30 billion in cuts to the Department of Homeland Security. This led to a significant reduction in the number of border patrol agents and a decrease in overall funding for border security.

The United States government has been faced with a number of challenges in the past two decades, including a recession, a terrorist attack, and a pandemic. These events have required the government to make difficult decisions about how to allocate its resources. As a result, the Department of Homeland Security has faced significant cuts in funding over the past two decades, which has led to a decrease in the number of border patrol agents and a decrease in overall funding for border security.

The American Way of Poverty

The American Way of Poverty

[Image of a map of the United States with various data points and charts]

The map above shows the poverty rates in different states across the United States. The data is based on the United States Census Bureau's American Community Survey (ACS) data, which provides a comprehensive picture of poverty in the United States.

The map highlights the states with the highest poverty rates, which are primarily located in the southern and western regions of the country. These states are often characterized by a lack of economic opportunities and limited access to education and healthcare.

The map also shows the states with the lowest poverty rates, which are primarily located in the northeastern and midwestern regions of the country. These states are often characterized by a strong economy and a high standard of living.

The map provides a useful tool for understanding the extent of poverty in the United States and the factors that contribute to it. It highlights the need for targeted policies and interventions to reduce poverty and improve the well-being of all Americans.

"Odd Man Out?"
UL staff given leave to tend sick

BY GREGORY NORTEMAN

The UL Staff Council Wednes day approved a resolution which would allow university employees who are parents of terminally ill children to be excused from their responsibilities.

The resolution, which was approved by the council following a presentation by Greg He ter, a Father of a terminally ill child, would allow staff members who are parents of chil dren with terminal illnesses to be excused for up to six months through the end of the au tumn semester.

Heeter presented the proposal which allows three days per week of care for the child, in addition to the child's medical ap pointments. The proposal would allow staff members to give up to six months of care for their children who are terminally ill.

Under the program, students are allowed to attend classes and receive credit for courses they have completed.

The resolution was approved by the council and will be submitted to the Board of Regents for consideration.

C.O.D. four wave preliminary hearing

By GREGORY NORTEMAN

Four men, including one American Indian and one black student, and their preliminary hearing was held Tuesday in the Municipal Court on charges of disorderly conduct. The four men were arrested July 6 in an Iowa City parking lot. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

The four were charged after a disturbance at the Iowa City Mall, which objects were thrown and a police officer was hit. No trial date has been set yet.

Assistant District Attorney for the Fourth Judicial District, said the trial date was set for July 10.

7 p.m.
There was no need to. I was well ahead of them anyway. I crossed the lot, climbed the bleachers, and sat down in the dark, empty stands. The gym was permeating the panelled walls of the room, and curled around over it and through the bottomholes.

"Come help!"

"What's wrong?"

"Nothing."

"Don't lie to me!"

"I'm just helping them."

"Helping them with what?"

"They're trying to clean up."

"What for?"

"You don't know?"

"What else could it be?"

"I'm not being smart."

"But you're saying they're trying to clean up?"

"Yes."

"And why are you helping them?"

"Because I'm a good friend, that's why!"

"You're a good friend?"

"Yes, I'm a good friend."

"And why are you helping them?"

"Because I don't want them to be crowded."
Mama

"Mom, I know what happened. She was a little drunk, that's all."

"Then why is she yelling?"

"She's telling us to go away. She doesn't want us around."

"What can we do?"

"I don't know. But we can't just leave her here."

"But what if she's not telling the truth?"

"Then we have to go back and see if she needs help."

"Okay. Let's go."

They walked up to the apartment building and knocked on the door. No one answered. They knocked again. Still no answer. Finally, a woman opened the door.

"Can we help you?"

"Yes, ma'am. We just wanted to check on your sister."

"Oh, she's fine. She was just being rude because she was drunk."

"Thank you for letting us know."

They left the apartment and headed back towards the alley. It was dark and quiet. They walked for a few minutes until they reached the end of the alley. There was a person lying on the ground. It was Mama.

"Mama! Mama! What's wrong?"

"I don't know. I don't feel good."

They called an ambulance and waited for it to arrive. When it did, they loaded Mama into the back and drove her to the hospital. It was a long drive, but they knew Mama needed help.

They arrived at the hospital and went inside. Mama was taken to the emergency room. The doctors asked them what happened. They explained what happened in the alley.

"We're just concerned about Mama's welfare."

"We understand. What can we do for you?"

"Can you keep an eye on her for a little while?"

"Of course. We'll do everything we can to help."

They left the hospital and drove back home. Mama was still in the hospital, but they knew she was safe. They knew they had done the right thing by checking on her.

"Mama, we're here for you. We'll always be here for you."

"I love you. I love you both."

They kissed Mama goodbye and left the hospital. They knew they had done everything they could for her. They just had to wait and see what would happen next.
The new world of wine

BY JOHN GILLIESPY

Through the Iowa Liquor Store and 16 other items have changed over the years. Gone are the "Big Three," that is, the wines from Bordeaux and the long standing reputation, the customers have come around. Now you can see the merchandising, touch, feel, and linger in the aisles. And you shop in the wine. Many of the barriers are standing ready guards, it is easier to read the labels that way. Red and white wines are usually separated by a wine. The Wines are neatly stacked up over three aisles. It is wider in them, and height, and clear. It is many things to the Liquor store should be, and about everything that should be.

Do you ask for help? What would you do? They price the information roll for money, while they price the information roll for water. It is not enough, there are still too many food cards supplied by the Taylor Wine Co. You get more information. Would there be room to draw a diagram? It's not at the cost. And expensive? Whose is it? Don't ask Taylor.

Yes many are up to 692 different wines in the Iowa Liquor Store. March of these are good, and worth their price. The producer is one of the wines they are, what they should be and 692 different wines. Each week will require a new addition to the Iowa Liquor Store. And much is the same article. And compared to the total amount of what is one wine. Math is a matter of personal preferences, but more than any other, it is difficult to get some wine. The great advantage with most wine is that it is easy to store and take. Quid, you can choose between 692 different wines.

Anyone who has been drinking eastern wines, particularly California wines, may have noticed a trend toward varietal tasting. This means that winemakers are beginning to grow and bottle wines according to their variety of grapes, rather than blending wines and creating them French geographical names like Chablis, or Burgundy. The grapes that make the red Burgundy wine is from France. "The Pinot Noir is the only red grape, that is, red grapes. The Beaujolais is in the zone of Gamay, with about 30 per cent of the kind of grapes in the mix. The wine is a very good wine. Most winemakers like to use a little bit of a French geographical name because they can say they are making a wine according to a grape variety that is less expensive, or by their own taste. And the variance in the label of California wines is at least 30 per cent of the kind of grape.

Of course, the variance in eastern wines is typical, but you get what you pay for. There is little difference in the grape variety that is less expensive, or by their own taste. You are paying the price for the grape. In the Beaujolais region, the grapes are from a very bright and light in eastern wines to be used. It is a wine for drinking, not for keeping. It is a wine for drinking, not for keeping. It is a wine for drinking, not for keeping.
