Coal talks declared at impasse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A majority of the black coal operators decided to strike late Friday afternoon or early Saturday morning, according to sources close to the operators. The strike is expected to last for at least a week and could disrupt coal supplies to power plants and industry.

On Monday, the operators are expected to meet with company officials to discuss the possibility of a peaceful resolution to the dispute. The operators are demanding higher wages and improved working conditions, while the company is offering a 2-cent-per-hour raise and a one-time bonus of $1,000.

In-tuition state schools called discrimination in court challenge

In tution state schools have been accused of discriminating against students based on their race, religion, or gender. A federal judge is set to hear arguments in the case, which could have significant implications for higher education policy.

In his opening statement, the judge said that the state must provide equal educational opportunities to all students, regardless of their background. He also noted that the state has a duty to ensure that students from low-income families have access to quality education.

Blackouts

New Jersey and New York are still without power following a massive blackout that affected millions of people. The cause of the blackout is still under investigation, but officials are warning that it could take weeks to fully restore power.

Weather

The forecast for the coming week calls for scattered showers and thunderstorms, with a high of 80 degrees Fahrenheit and a low of 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The chance of precipitation is 40 percent, with the heaviest rainfall expected in the evening hours.

Six in Congress face House ethics discipline

Six members of the House of Representatives have been disciplined by the House Ethics Committee for ethical misconduct. The cases include allegations of conflict of interest, misuse of campaign funds, and failure to disclose financial interests.

AFSCME opposes open meeting law provision

By CATHERINE CODY

Opponents of the Panama Canal treaties have been trying to block a provision in pending legislation that would make the government more transparent by requiring the meetings of committees working on the treaties to be open to the public.

President Carter has already signed the treaties but he has not yet made them public. The Senate is currently debating the treaties and the House has already approved the treaties.

The National Panamanian Association for the Rights of the People (AFSCME) is opposed to the provision, which would require the treaties to be public.

"AFSCME opposes any attempt to open the meetings of the committees working on the treaties," said a representative of AFSCME. "We believe that the treaties should be public, but we also believe that the public should have a right to attend meetings of the committees working on the treaties."

The treaties have been under discussion for many years and have been approved by both the Senate and the House. The treaties would allow the United States to operate the Panama Canal and would give the United States control over the canal for 99 years.

"The treaties are important because they would allow the United States to have control over the Panama Canal," said the representative of AFSCME. "The treaties would also allow the United States to operate the canal for 99 years, which is a long time."

The treaties have been opposed by some people who believe that they would be a threat to Panama's sovereignty. The treaties have also been opposed by some people who believe that they would increase costs to taxpayers.

"The treaties would increase costs to taxpayers," said the representative of AFSCME. "The treaties would also make it more difficult for the United States to operate the canal, which would make it more expensive."

"It is important that the public have a right to attend meetings of the committees working on the treaties," said the representative of AFSCME. "We believe that the treaties should be public, but we also believe that the public should have a right to attend meetings of the committees working on the treaties."

Controversy over IFC vote continues

Brett Fowler and I were possibly one of the more interestingly placed IFC members on campus last week. We were the only two members from IFC to vote against the resolution to support the Kappa Alpha Fraternity's (KAF) rejection of the resolution to support the Kappa Alpha Fraternity's (KAF) rejection of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon (SEA) chapter at the March 1 meeting. We voted against this resolution because we believe that the Sigma Alpha Epsilon (SEA) chapter at the March 1 meeting. We voted against this resolution because we believe that the Sigma Alpha Epsilon (SEA) chapter does not meet the standards of the KAF. We believe that the KAF should not support a chapter that does not meet these standards.

To the Editor:

In light of all the recent controversy over the amendment of the Thirteenth Amendment, I would like to present an alternative proposal. What if we removed all the words beginning with the letter "p" and replaced them with words beginning with "c"? This would ensure that every citizen could understand the amendment's meaning. It would also eliminate any potential for bias.

Sincerely,

Disenfranchisement

In the recent controversy over the amendment of the Thirteenth Amendment, the issue of disenfranchisement has been brought to the forefront. The proposed amendment seeks to remove all the words beginning with the letter "p" and replace them with words beginning with "c". This would ensure that every citizen could understand the amendment's meaning. It would also eliminate any potential for bias.

To the Editor:

The letter is in response to an article that was published in the previous issue of the newspaper. The article contained a sentence that was misleading. The sentence was: "The government has announced that it will cut funding for public transportation." This sentence is misleading because it implies that the government will cut funding for all public transportation. The correct sentence is: "The government has announced that it will cut funding for some public transportation projects."

Energy efficient solar could spell new economic opportunities

by PAUL WORTON

Many believe the future of the energy industry lies in solar energy, particularly with the recent advancements in photovoltaic technology. However, the potential benefits of solar energy go beyond just providing clean energy. It can also create new economic opportunities and help stabilize energy prices.

One potential economic benefit of solar energy is the creation of new jobs. The International Renewable Energy Agency estimates that the solar industry currently employs over 2 million people worldwide. This number is expected to increase as solar technology becomes more widespread.

Another economic benefit of solar energy is the reduction in energy costs. In many areas, the upfront cost of installing solar panels may be higher than traditional energy sources, but the long-term savings can be significant. According to the Solar Energy Industries Association, the average homeowner can save $1,000 per year on their energy bills by switching to solar power.

In addition to job creation and reduced energy costs, solar energy can also provide economic stability. Traditional energy sources such as coal and oil are subject to price fluctuations and supply disruptions. Solar energy, on the other hand, is a reliable source of energy that is not dependent on external factors.

Overall, the potential benefits of solar energy are numerous and varied. From creating new jobs to reducing energy costs and providing economic stability, solar energy has the potential to become a major force in the energy industry. As technology continues to improve and costs decrease, the future of solar energy looks bright.

City Manager to review airport financial charges

By ROBERT DOVEY
Staff Writer

Information in allegations contained in a memorandum concerning Iowa City Airport and its airport commission was the subject of a review by City Manager Neil Berlin and staff, Berlin said in an interview in the City Council chambers at a later date, according to city staff members.

The memorandum, which was written and submitted by airport commission Chairman Caroline Embree, charges the commission has allowed the city's financial control over the facility to diminish, according to the memorandum.

Airport Manager and Field Services Director E.K. Jones said the council would receive the information "promptly and next week" or shortly thereafter.

The council directed Berlin and city officials to look into the allegations because they have agreed to relevant contracts and because they are investigating financial matters documented in the memorandum, Berlin said.

Financing staff members are looking into the allegations because they have agreed to relevant contracts and because they are investigating financial matters documented in the memorandum, Berlin said.

The City Council's financial control over the facility is serious, Berlin said.

"There are too many unexplained things," he said. "The airport commission's agent (manager) is also the airport commission's principal partner under the flying service's lease; and -- the lack of transparency in the Orange-county the city tax on each gallon of fuel sold at the airport, but that no sale tax was turned over to the city. City abortion law constitutionality challenges

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) - Mayor John Bellflower declared an emergency Monday and said he would call city attorneys to consider legal action in response to an abortion ordinance enacted by the council.

The order was approved by a 14-1 City Council vote Feb. 28 after a bitter debate over what the mayor termed an "illegal and unconstitutional" law on abortion that would allow abortions upon request for the first 12 weeks of pregnancy, but nothing like the 20 weeks allowed under state laws.

Bellflower said he would take legal action against the ordinance's enactment, but he did not specify if he would seek an injunction to prevent the law from going into effect.

The mayor, a Republican, said he would be seeking an advisory opinion from the Ohio attorney general's office to determine whether the city is vested with the authority to regulate abortion services.

He said the ordinance would violate the state's constitutional ban on public aid for abortion procedures. "It's a departure from the intent of the framers of the Constitution," he said, "and it is a violation of the established right of the state to control its own affairs and to regulate its own internal affairs in the field of abortion.""

Theater: Pleasure of the absurd

By KALINEE RUSSELL

"Take back your brain power. I take back your power, after I've taken your brain power." Drunkling is the name of one of the many characters in itinerant performer norman metawie's one-act play "theater as we know it." True, the audience is sometimes left at a loss to comprehend this.

"But at first glance, it may be difficult to recognize this," Metawie said some audiences must say. "Who lifeido n'tlly captures the whole audience." But Metawie said some audiences denied any intimacies had been damaged, said Kathy Dannemiller, one of the two teachers. "We're using the traditional educational format, but we're not really using it," Metawie said. "We're not really creating something beyond the traditional classroom setting."

Flynt suspect's story a hoax

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — Police announced Tuesday Flynt's condition had improved and he was expected to survive his injuries.

Flynt, 22, was shot last week in Lawrenceville, Ga., by a police officer investigating a report of a burglary.

The police officer, who was responding to the call, was shot and killed in the incident. Flynt was taken to the hospital with a gunshot wound to the head but was pronounced dead there.

Flynt's family and friends have been trying to raise money for his medical bills.

Meanwhile, Flynt's attorney, Steve Beatty, said he had no comment on the case.

Beatty said that Flynt had been released from the hospital and was being treated at home.

Flynt, who is a member of the New Blood Gang, was shot in the head during a robbery.

The police officer was responding to a report that someone had been robbed at gunpoint.

Flynt's family said he had been taking medication for depression and anxiety.

Flynt had been arrested several times for armed robbery and assault.

Flynt's sister, Tiffany, said she was heartbroken over the news.

"I just want my brother to come home," she said.

Flynt's father, Michael, said he would be his son's guardian.

"He was the best son I could have had," he said.
'Historic compromise' lives: Communists join Italy govt'

ROME (AP) — Italy's political leaders have reached a last-minute agreement on a coalition government that would give Italy's Kremlin-like Communist party representation in the government for the first time in Italy's history.

The agreement, announced late Wednesday night, will allow the Communists to join the government of Socialist Mario Cesarini, who is scheduled to be sworn in on Thursday.

The agreement, which was reached after months of negotiations, would give the Communists two of 16 seats in the government, and would put them in charge of the interior ministry, in charge of overseeing the police and military.

The agreement also includes a pledge to establish a new state police force, a move that would be seen as a victory for the Communists, who have long beenin favor of a stronger state police force.

Spinks: Ali gets first shot

DETROIT (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Joe Frazier and world welterweight boxing champion Ken Norton announced Friday their agreement to meet in a title bout scheduled for Jan. 26 in Los Angeles.

Bob Munds, Frazier's manager, said the bout will be the "fight of the century." Norton's manager, Max Schmeling, also announced the bout.

Frazier, 29, is the undisputed world heavyweight champion, having defeated George Foreman in a title fight on Sept. 28 in Chicago. Norton, 26, is the undisputed world welterweight champion, having defeated Wilfred Benitez on Aug. 11.

The bout will be the first time two world champions have met since Frazier and Norton met in the 1978 world welterweight title fight in Las Vegas.

Frazier said he has been training for the bout for the past three months. Norton said he has been training for the past six months.

The bout will be held in the Forum in Los Angeles. The exact date and time of the bout will be announced later.

Frazier said he is looking forward to the bout. "I don't care who wins," he said. "I just don't want to lose."

Norton said he is looking forward to the bout. "I want to win," he said. "I want to be the world champion."

The bout will be televised on NBC's "Wide World of Sports." The broadcast will begin at 8 p.m. EST.

Ali's first round upset

The New York Times

BEIJING (AP) — The first round upset that set the stage for Ali's first title defense against Joseph Frazier has left the world boxing world in shock.

Frazier, the 29-year-old heavyweight champion, lost his title to Ali, the 26-year-old welterweight champion, in a six-round unanimous decision.

The fight was held in the Stadium of Arts in Bejing. The attendance was estimated at 50,000.

Frazier said he was "shocked" by the result. "I didn't expect this," he said. "I thought I had a good shot at winning."
