Austrians scrap nuclear station, shake govt'

VICTORIA (CTI) - Austrians voted to scrap a nuclear power station they referred to as "a choking danger" to be voted on in a referendum in a direct challenge to the Austrian government.

Final results in the nationwide referendum showed a majority of 80 percent of votes favored the withdrawal of the station named after the city of Vienna, the third time in three years that the station was brought up for a series of referenda. The station would now have to undergo another round of public hearings as the government is preparing to fight to save the station.

The fiery result of the referendum does not by itself mean that the station will be dismantled immediately as it must still be resolved in Vienna and in the next council meeting. But the result was a landmark in the debate and a victory for an organization that was started in 1971 to fight the station.

In Vienna, the capital with the station, the results were initially greeted with wonder. "It's a shocking defeat," said a member of the organization. "It's a victory," added another.

The government has said that it will not accept the result and will appeal it. "We are fighting to save the station," said a government spokesman.

The station is scheduled to be completed in 1982 and will have a capacity of between 1,000 and 1,500 megawatts. It is currently under construction and was expected to be operational in 1980. But the government has been under pressure to scrap the station because of the growing public concern over nuclear power.

The referendum was held on the same day as the municipal elections in Vienna. The government has said that it will use the result to try to win the elections.

The government has also said that it will consider the referendum result in its decision whether to pursue further nuclear development. "We will take into account the wishes of the people," said a government spokesman.

New York papers are printing again

NEW YORK CITY— The New York City newspapers that suspended publication Sunday and worked emergency shifts Monday returned to print today.

"We are glad the four daily newspapers that are part of the Allied Press group have returned to publishing," said Edith Kean, a spokeswoman for the group's parent company.

In a statement, Kean said: "We are pleased that the newspapers have decided to resume publishing. The decision was made after careful consideration of the situation, and we believe it is in the best interest of the readers and the community."

"The newspapers have been closed since Sunday due to a strike by the workers. We understand the concerns of the workers, but we believe that publishing is essential to provide information and keep people informed."

Kean added: "We will continue to work with the workers to reach a fair and equitable agreement. We are committed to maintaining our newspapers as a vital resource for the community."

"We appreciate the support of our readers during this challenging time. We look forward to continuing to serve the community with the latest news and information."
U.S. Senate

We strongly urge the reelection of Democrat William Clark to his only six-year term. Clark has demonstrated outstanding leadership in national and international problems. Clark was a staunch supporter of the United States in its war against world terrorism. Clark has been an effective and dedicated member of Congress, and has been instrumental in passing important legislation.

The Iowa House

We endorse Democrat Neil Brown in the 1st District Congressional race. Brown is a strong candidate with experience in state government. Brown's commitment to issues such as education, health care, and the economy make him a valuable addition to the Iowa House.

Lt. Governor

We strongly support Democrat William Small for re-election as Lt. Governor. Small has been a dedicated and hardworking public servant. He has demonstrated effective leadership in his role as Lt. Governor and has been a strong advocate for the people of Iowa.

State Senate

Art Smith has represented Iowa City for the state house of Representatives for the past eight years and we recognize him for the fact that he has been a consistent and effective legislator. Smith has been a frequent and vociferous supporter of progressive policies to effectively utilize and gain control over excess appropriations for the US. We would particularly note his support for Smith's willingness to cross party lines to support such legislation.

We have found Republican Victor Watters completely out of touch with his constituents. His stance on important issues has been consistently opposed to the needs of the state of Iowa. We believe that victory in this election will be a truepleasure to the people of this great state.

Letters: readers, hoople and motion

Dear Editor,

We appreciate the end of yet another election season. It is important for the voter to keep the names of candidates and issues in perspective. The important task is to look beyond the shouting hordes of political rhetoric and consider the real issues at hand.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

The Democratic candidates — Truman Miller for governor, Walter Griffin for secretary of state, and Bruce Sallard for treasurer — have been consistent and effective in their campaigns. These candidates have a proven record of integrity and effectiveness in public service.

The Republican candidates — Senator Richard Taylor, governor candidate, and Mayor John Drew, secretary of state candidate — have been lackluster and ineffective in their campaigns. These candidates have not shown any dedication to the principles of their party.

The Libertarian candidates — State Senator Donald Haggerty and State Representative Fred Small — have been nonentities in their campaigns. These candidates have not shown any dedication to the principles of their party.

We believe that the Democratic candidates are the ones who should be entrusted with the responsibility of governing the state of Iowa.

Sincerely,

Inflation boosts campaign costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation and rising prices have hit the Republican Party's budget this year, sending the cost of running the 1978 mid-term elections through the roof.

GOP leaders were caught off guard after two months of fundraising fell short of expectations. The party's top brass was forced to allocate more money to candidates in key races.

Inflation has led to higher printing costs, travel expenses, and advertising budgets. Candidates who thought they had enough money to win are now scrambling to find additional funds.

GOP leaders are expected to allocate more money to candidates in key races, including those running for governor in New York, Texas, and California. The party is also facing increased competition from the Democratic Party, which has been able to raise more money thanks to the growing number of campaigns that are going national.

The high cost of running campaigns has led to a rise in third-party candidates, who are often able to benefit from the increased spending. Some have even been able to win races that were once considered foregone conclusions.

Despite the challenges, GOP leaders are confident that their candidates can still succeed. "We're still the party of the people," said one GOP official. "We'll do whatever it takes to win these races."
22-year-old indiscretion haunts ‘exemplary’ citizen

Lancaster, Pa. — Jim Leach’s story is an old American tale. It began with a young man and ended with an older one. It was a tale of love, failure, redemption, and politics. And it was all true.

Leach, a former congressional aide and Foreign Service Office Board member, had been a key figure in the formation of the Democratic Party of the United States. He had been the party’s number two man from 1960 to 1964, when he was defeated in his attempt to become the party’s presidential candidate.

But Leach’s political career was not without its ups and downs. In 1976, he was implicated in the Watergate scandal, which nearly cost him his job.

Despite the controversy, Leach continued to work on Capitol Hill, where he helped shape legislation on issues such as foreign aid, health care, and civil rights.

In recent years, Leach has been a vocal critic of the Democratic Party’s leadership and has called for a more centrist approach to politics.

The end of Leach’s political career is still up in the air. He has been mentioned as a potential candidate for the Democratic nomination in 2020, but he has yet to make a formal decision.

Leach’s story is a reminder that politics is not just about winning elections. It is also about doing the right thing, even when it means sacrificing your career. And that is something that even the most ‘exemplary’ citizen can understand.

Michigan humbles Hawks

Michigan Simple proved to be too strong for Iowa as the Wolverine victory gave the bruised and battered Hawkeyes a break. The 43-10 win was considered by many the most important of the year for both teams.

The play characterized the entire victory which gave the Hawkeyes a chance to win the Big Ten title. As the Iowa defense was forced to cheer first downs, it felt we defended the rush well and really got started and the Hawkeye fans were forced to cheer first downs.

Michigan continued to dominate the game for a 10-0 halftime lead. The second half was even more one sided with the Hawks only managing 10 points.

The Michigan defense was led by junior Lou King's career-high 11 tackles with 10 of those being solo tackles. Lou King's performance was more than enough for the team as they defeated Iowa 43-10.

Michigan's defense was led by senior Leon Branch who had 11 tackles including 8 solo tackles and 3 for losses. Branch's performance was the catalyst for the victory as the Wolverines dominated the entire game.

The offense was led by junior quarterback Jack Leach who completed 14 of 18 passes for 218 yards and 3 touchdowns. Leach's performance was crucial as he was able to take advantage of the Hawkeye defense.

The win improved Michigan's record to 6-1-0 and kept them in contention for the Big Ten title. With one more win, they would secure a spot in the conference championship game.

Michigan's victory over Iowa was a significant accomplishment and a major boost for their confidence. The team will now look to continue their winning streak as they head into the final regular season games.

Michigan Simple proved to be too strong for Iowa as the Wolverine victory gave the bruised and battered Hawkeyes a break. The 43-10 win was considered by many the most important of the year for both teams.

The play characterized the entire victory which gave the Hawkeyes a chance to win the Big Ten title. As the Iowa defense was forced to cheer first downs, it felt we defended the rush well and really got started and the Hawkeye fans were forced to cheer first downs.
