WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan's recent mendacity was the first time he referred to himself as the "president," mentioning instead that he would be "the president for the next five years and beyond." But the person who signed the letter in response to moves to control nuclear weapons was his replacement, the one who had been working on the issue for five months.

118 Haitian refugees give in, leave island

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — A sticky hand of 118 Haitian refugees smashed through the window of their crowded boat Wednesday, igniting near panic among Daisy Jules and other Bahamians who will return them to their homeland, officials said.

The action came despite an offer to Bahamian authorities by the United Nations high commissioner for refugees to send representatives to Nassau to interview the Haitians to determine whether they political refugees.

A U.S. government spokesman said the offer, confirmed by a spokesman for the United Nations, had been rejected by the Bahamian Ministry of External Affairs. Their statement was not clear.

The government said it would not learn the boat's identity until the Sunday, three men were also said to have been aboard. A small part of both West Virginia and Cabo Verde-owned the trailer.

Newsweek magazine reported last month that the Khmer Rouge, led by Pol Pot, have taken over a vast region of Cambodia. The Khmer Rouge forces, under the guidance of the Khmer Rouge leadership, have been fighting against the government of Cambodia. Although members of the Khmer Rouge group are not always easy to identify, they are known to use guerrilla tactics and to have a strong influence in the region.

UI energy planning
The UI is planning to implement two new conservation measures to cut fuel costs during the winter months. As part of a 16-year energy conservation plan, the UI will reduce heat to some campus buildings during the day when not as much heat is needed, such as during lunch hours. It will be done automatically by the computerized temperature control system used to turn heat on and off at night.

The UI also will attempt to cut campus lighting by 10 percent to further reduce energy costs. These measures, which are expected to save as much as 30,000,000 kWh per year, are indicative of the common-sense efforts that can save utilities.

Petition protests cut in Cambus Oakdale service

By Jim Paulk

A 36-signature petition protesting the possible discontinuance of the Cambus service at Oakdale Avenue has been submitted to the Cambus office by residents of the Oakdale Avenue area. The petition, which contains the signatures of residents who live in the Oakdale Avenue area, was presented to the Cambus office by resident Robert Green. The petition seeks to increase service frequencies on the Oakdale Avenue route.

The petition states that the Oakdale Avenue route is an important link in the city's public transportation system. Residents of the Oakdale Avenue area rely on the Cambus for transportation to work, school, and other destinations. The petition argues that cutting service on this route would have a negative impact on the local community.

The petition also notes that the Oakdale Avenue route is one of the busiest routes in the Cambus system. The petition states that cutting service on this route would not only inconvenience the residents of the Oakdale Avenue area, but would also have a negative impact on the city as a whole.

The petition calls on the City of Iowa City to take action to prevent the possible discontinuance of the Oakdale Avenue route. The petition urges the City to consider alternative solutions, such as increasing service frequencies or adding additional stops, to ensure that the Oakdale Avenue route remains a viable option for residents.

Voyager

A twin spacecraft is due to reach the outermost rings around the planet. A third was found later, bringing to seven the number of rings outside Saturn's largest moon, Titan, revealed during the week of November 13. The point at which the bow shock and magnetopause meet is called the magnetopause. Voyager 1 entered the magnetopause five times, indicating, as scientists expected, that Saturn's magnetopause is in a transient period of time and space.

UT PROFESSOR of Physics and Astronomy Donald Gurnett, who is at the University of Iowa, has been awarded a two-year, $100,000 grant by the National Science Foundation to continue his studies on the interaction of charged particles with magnetic fields around the planet. The grant will allow him to continue his work on the Voyager spacecraft's ion plasma-wave instrument as well as by the plasma-wave instrument as well as by the Voyager spacecraft's ion plasma-wave instrument.

In an article entitled "Selecting Microphones for the Classroom," authors David Thomas and Donald Wockenfuss of the University of Iowa describe the use of microphones in classrooms and the importance of selecting the right microphone for the job. The article focuses on the different types of microphones available and how they can be used to enhance learning in the classroom.

Voyager was designed and built at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, California. The spacecraft passed through Saturn's rings on August 29. The full implications of the data obtained by Voyager will be analyzed by scientists at NASA's Ames Research Center in Mountain View, California. The Voyager spacecraft is still searching for Saturn's innermost moon, Prometheus, which is thought to be a transitory flux of material, and a moon yet to be discovered.

The Voyager spacecraft was launched in 1977 and has been studying the outer solar system for 21 years. It is now approaching the outer edge of the solar system, where it will reach a distance of 22.9 million miles from the Sun.

In 1979, Voyager 1 and Voyager 2 flew by Jupiter and Saturn, respectively. The spacecraft passed through the outermost rings of Saturn and encountered Titan, Saturn's largest moon. The Voyager spacecraft continues to provide valuable data on the outer solar system, including the outermost regions of the solar system.

The Voyager spacecraft has encountered a number of unexpected phenomena, including the discovery of a new moon around Saturn, called Prometheus, which is thought to be a transitory flux of material.

The Voyager spacecraft is currently heading towards Uranus, which is the next distant planet in the solar system. The spacecraft will pass through Uranus's rings in 2025 and will make its closest approach to Uranus in 2058.

The Voyager spacecraft has provided a wealth of information about the outer solar system, including the composition and structure of moons, the magnetic fields of planets, and the distribution of charged particles in the solar wind.

The Voyager spacecraft has been a remarkable success, and its continued operation will allow scientists to continue studying the outer solar system for many years to come.

Music

position "Soapbox" by Jean-Claude Risset is music programmed into and generated by computer. Risset's "Soapbox" is a suite of computer (electro-acoustic) pieces featuring his new electronic instrument "Soapbox" (soapbox stage) and is composed of electronic and theatrical elements. Risset and Redolfi's "Ganges" is a "series of single fragments"; a speaker system to be worn by the performer, invented by the composer, is a prelude to a new work for synthesizer by Appleton.

LA GROUPE de musique expérimentale was formed in 1968 by Risset and Lucier Berthaud. It has presented an extensive program of contemporary music at institutions in the fields of music research and composition. Its touring season, composed of the finest works from the French avant-garde, will take it to the following institutions: the University of California, Los Angeles; the Carnegie Mellon University; the University of California, Santa Barbara; and the SUNY College at Purchase. The program features acoustic and electronic music groups of France, La Jolla, La Jolla (California) and a teacher at Dartmouth and Georges Boeuf; and Jon Appleton, director of public information, said: "A standard procedure in Illinois. Student wishing to succeed in medical school need perseverance and a variety of interests, according to a panel of three medical students.

The advice was offered Tuesday at an approximately 125-person gathering of prelaw and premedical students at the University of Iowa's Reitz Union's Administration Center and the Career Services and Placement Center.

The discussion was aimed at preparing students with information about medical school admission and the analytical skills needed by medical students.

"I was not prepared for that situation or the types of standardized tests I would have to take," Williams said. "I was not prepared for the interview by reading standard medical books."

Williams and the other panelists stressed the importance of perseverance in the medical school admission process.

"You aren't prepared for that situation or the types of standardized tests I would have to take," Williams said. "I wasn't prepared for the interview by reading standard medical books."

A random survey of people living in the Melrose Court area indicates that some residents are not satisfied with the current road situation. While some feel that the street is quieter than before, others report an increase in traffic noise and congestion. One resident noted, "Everyone ignores the speed limit that had been lowered from 25 mph to 15 mph for this area, and the noise level is a significant issue." Another commented, "I've seen about three police cars on this street since I've lived here," adding, "I think they're doing their job well, but more patrols would be helpful." One resident expressed concern about the impact of through traffic on their neighborhood, stating, "I'm uneasy about the number of cars passing through here." A few residents noted that they had received tickets for speeding, indicating that the enforcement is sporadic at best. Overall, there is a sense of frustration among some residents about the current traffic situation and the lack of effective measures to address the problem.

In response to these concerns, the city council has discussed the possibility of re-opening Melrose Court, which was closed to through traffic a few years ago. Some residents favor re-opening the street as a way to improve access and reduce traffic congestion. However, others are opposed, citing concerns about safety and the potential for increased noise and pollution. A public meeting is scheduled to discuss these issues further and gather input from the community.

The Melrose Court area is home to several businesses and residential properties, and the traffic flow through the area is a significant consideration for both residents and local businesses. Given the mixed feelings among residents, it is likely that any decision about re-opening the street will be closely monitored to assess its impact on the neighborhood.
Coach expects newcomers to boost men's gymnastics to winning year

Iowa State's new head coach, Don Dunn, is still in the early stages of restructuring the program, but he is already looking to the future with optimism. Dunn, a former NCAA champion, is excited about the potential of his new team and the role it could play in the future of the sport.

Dunn's philosophy is to focus on developing a strong foundation for the team. He believes that by improving the fundamentals, the team will be better equipped to compete at a higher level. Dunn is also looking to attract top talent to the program, which he believes is possible with the right approach.

The team will be led by two returning seniors, Remy Corrales and Dan Urben. Corrales is a former NCAA champion, and Urben is a strong all-around athlete. Dunn is confident that these returning performers will be key to the team's success in the years to come.

Dunn knows that recruiting is a critical part of building a winning team. He is already working on building a strong recruiting pipeline, and he is optimistic about the future of the program.

Dunn's experience and leadership, combined with the talent on the roster, make him confident that the team can achieve success in the years to come. He is already looking forward to the challenges that lie ahead and is excited about the opportunity to build something special at Iowa State.
Traveling freshman a field hockey rarity

By Jay Christensen

Most students do not graduate from high school and then directly begin traveling around the country with the Iowa field hockey team.

But some, like Iowa freshman Ellen Egan, do. She is the only freshman traveling with the Iowa team this fall.

"I like the traveling," Egan said. "It's a fun time that you're playing a sport you love the way you love it."

Egan was a highly recruited link wing from Gibbsboro, N.J. The New Jersey high school seemed to care. "I thought I should go here. I came in the spring for a visit. Just the attitude towards field hockey was good. This was the only school that seemed to care."

Egan said she turned down offers from Michigan State, Duquesne and Richmond to attend the U. of Iowa. "My coach and athletic director impressed me with their hard work and devotion."

The transition from high school field hockey to a college game isn't that difficult, according to Egan. "It's a little bit harder," Egan said. "It's just a lot faster. You have to start playing with your feet."

AND SINCE Iowa is the only team in the nation with two seniors, this freshman has to be one of the better players on the team. Just the attitude towards field hockey was good. This was the only school that seemed to care.

"I think Minnesota had played harder than the first time they played Iowa. The players were all looking for a quick exit."

New records in IM swim meet
By Mike Elks

Last year, Kate James set two records in the women's intramural sports. This year, she's back to try and break her own meet records.

James, a sophomore, swims for the University of Iowa and is a member of the women's green team. She set two records last year: the 100-yard freestyle and the 200-yard freestyle.

James is currently training with her coach, Bob Smith, at the University of Iowa pool. She is looking forward to this year's meet and hopes to break her own records.

In the 100-yard freestyle, James swam a time of 55.2 seconds, beating her own record of 55.3 seconds.

In the 200-yard freestyle, James swam a time of 1:47.6, breaking her previous record of 1:48.3.

James is excited to see how she performs this year and hopes to continue her success in the pool.

Running back may risk paralysis over football
By J. C. Bowles

DENVER (AP) — Olds Armstrong, the Denver Broncos' second-hand all-time gridiron great, Wednesday was named the team's new quarterback, and he continued his professional career.

Ivy Class of Manchester, Mo., named Armstrong on condition that Armstrong undergo an operation to remove the football from his body. Armstrong, a former member of the football team at the University of Denver, is expected to remain in the starting lineup against the Houston Oilers, where he played for two seasons, after his return to the football field.

The operation was performed at the University of Denver and Armstrong is expected to continue in training for the next two weeks.

Armstrong has been on the Broncos' roster for three years and has played in 12 games, including the 1969 season finale against the Houston Oilers, where he was injured.

Armstrong acknowledged that he would not play in any game again, saying: "I feel I have a chance to play, but I don't have the physical ability to do so." He added that he would like to return to the football field one day.

Sports clubs

Iowa City Field Hockey

In its third year of competing for national honors, the University of Iowa Women's Field Hockey Club has been competing in the national tournament over Thanksgiving. The Iowa City woman's club, under the leadership of Coaches Wilma and Karen Turner, has been one of the top teams in the country.

The club has been一只 strong team in recent years and has been consistently ranked in the top ten in the nation. The team is comprised of both Iowa City natives and non-natives.

Iowa Mountaineers

The Iowa Mountaineers will face John Godbald's University of Denver Highway Comanches in the Mid-West Intrastate Audition on Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the Field House. The game will be the opening game of the season for the Mountaineers.

On the line

The week's events are all right for the Mountaineers, with a young squad that is looking to make a name for itself.

The game will be the Mountaineers' first chance to demonstrate their ability to compete at the next level, and the team is looking forward to the challenge.

Iowa's Basketball Coach Don McKee does not know how many times Barbara Person, the 1979 third with 37 game, and the 1980 third with 37 points, will start or finish games. Person, who has been Iowa's leading scorer in each of the last two seasons, is a key member of the Hawkeye basketball team.

McKee's team is one of the best in the nation, and Person is one of the key players. She is expected to have a big season, and her success could help the Hawkeyes win their first conference title in several years.

Person was selected to the All-American team in both 1979 and 1980. She has also been named to the All-Big Ten team in each of those seasons.

In 1979, Person led the Hawkeyes in scoring with 37 points per game. In 1980, she averaged 37.2 points per game, setting a school record. She also became the first Iowa player to score 2,000 career points.

Person's success on the court has been matched by her success off the court. She is a two-time Academic All-America selection and has been named to the All-Academic team in both 1979 and 1980.

McKee said that Person's success has come as no surprise to him. "Barbara is a very talented player who has worked hard to get where she is," McKee said. "She has a great work ethic and is always looking for ways to improve her game."
The Iowa City women's basketball team has been working on their precision and finesse. "Flores thought they would have to adjust their game to be experts after five games of competition," said Flores. "The Iowa team is quick enough to be dangerous," she added.

Although Iowa will have the home court advantage, they will face a tough opponent in Montana. The women won their first contest against Wisconsin-Platteville, scoring 87-41. They will need to maintain their scoring pace against Montana.

The Iowa women are expected to face their toughest competition this week in preparation for the season opener. They will be up against teams such as Texas-Austin, ranked fifth in the country.

"It's going to be a tough week," Flores said. "We need to work on our defense and improve our rebounding.

The Iowa women are looking forward to the challenge of facing the top teams in the country. "We are excited to see how we stack up," Flores said.

In other news, the Iowa State University basketball team is preparing for their season opener. They are looking forward to showcasing their skills against their opponents.

Orioles claim AL Cy Young pitcher again

Baltimore (AP) - Even the most casual fans would have to be glad when Cy Young award winner Steve Stone was only one of the top 25 on the list. The Orioles' right-hander was a hit with the fans, who showed their appreciation by giving him a standing ovation.

"He's our ace," said GM Ron Guidry. "Stone was our number one this year, and he didn't let us down."

Stone finished second in voting for the Cy Young award to Texas' Nolan Ryan, who had 37 wins with a 2.00 ERA. Stone finished with 25 wins and a 2.50 ERA.

"I'm happy," Stone said. "I knew it was going to happen, but I was surprised."

Stone's success this year is in part due to his consistent pitching over the past few seasons. "I've worked hard to maintain my form," Stone said. "I made sure I stayed healthy, and I worked hard in the off-season."

Stone's success has helped the Orioles win the American League East for the second consecutive season.

"We're really proud of Stone," Guidry said. "He's our number one, and we're confident he'll have a good year next season."
Since college traditionally is a time when income falls short of outgo, finding a happy medium can be tough. To make the balancing act as painless as possible, we've assembled a wealth of tips to help you tap the cash flow and channel it for maximum effect. Read and reap!

What Econ 101 Never Taught You...

SHOPPING SMART

Are You Shopping for a Better Buy?

If you're buying a new item, pay attention to how it is packaged. The packaging tells you a lot about the product inside. It can indicate quality, freshness, and even price. Here are some tips on how to read packaging:

1. Check the Ingredients List: Look at the first few ingredients listed. They should be the most abundant. Avoid products with long lists of ingredients, as they may contain fillers and preservatives.
2. Look for Nutritional Information: Check the calories, fat, sugar, and sodium content. Compare these values with other brands to find the best value.
3. Check the Expiration Date: Make sure the product is fresh. Avoid expired or close-to-expired products.
4. Check the Size: Compare the sizes of the packages. A larger package may be a better buy, but make sure it's worth the extra cost.

By taking the time to read the packaging, you can make informed decisions and find the best value for your money.

Remember When?

When it comes to making purchases, the good old days of paper coupons and sale flyers are a distant memory. Today, the world of retail shopping has evolved, and so have the ways we find great deals. Here are some tips to help you stay on top of the latest trends:

1. Use Online Tools: Many retailers offer online tools and apps that can help you find the best deals and compare prices.
2. Join Loyalty Programs: Many stores offer loyalty programs that can save you money on future purchases.
3. Check Social Media: Follow your favorite stores on social media to get exclusive deals and offers.

In the ever-changing world of retail, staying informed and using the latest tools can help you find the best deals and save money.

When Handling Life You a Lemon

Building your trust until you turn blue won't solve the problems that cross your capricious ways. When you think you had bad luck, you really have been avoiding some strategies for effective coping.

"Starting with a simple mention of all the wrongs of the past, the future is always bright. As a New York school principal, you are often asked how to immediately deal with a person with whom you do not get along. There are three very important things to do:

1. View the situation as a learning experience.
2. Do not react immediately.
3. Take action.

These principles will help you to avoid this type of situation in the future."

A Sale by Any Other Name

A sale is a sale is a sale. Or is it? In some cases, advertised "sale prices" are actually the prices at which something is regularly available. For example, the Better Business Bureau (BBB) notes that the BBB offers a "sale" on a car to someone who is not all students at registration.

What's Up With Warranties?

The next time one of your household gadgets goes on the fritz, be sure to follow these five steps to make your claim:

1. Call the company.
2. Check the warranty terms.
3. Write a letter to the company.
4. Take the product back.
5. Have a friend help you.

The warranty will be either "full" or "limited." A full warranty will include all repairs or replacements for all situations. A limited warranty will cover only those repairs or replacements that are specified in the warranty terms.

A hotter tip:

If you have a defective product, you can usually return it to the manufacturer for a refund or replacement. Otherwise, you may have to pay for repairs. The warranty is usually not valid if the product has been altered or damaged in any way.

Trialing for Dollars

When the repair costs are so exorbitant that you feel you're just wasting your time trying to get them off the hook, you might want to consider taking them to court. This is especially true if you've tried to resolve the problem with the manufacturer or dealer, but they refuse to accept responsibility for the damage.

A hotter tip:

If you're considering a trial, you should consult with a lawyer who specializes in consumer law. They will be able to help you understand your legal options and prepare your case.

Justice May Be Blind

But you don't have to be what it means to be a lawyer. You can get a lawyer to help you. It's not as hard as you think.

A hotter tip:

If you're considering taking legal action, you should consult with a lawyer who specializes in consumer law. They will be able to help you understand your legal options and prepare your case.

Avoiding Satanic Mechanisms

Our car repair--it is not a service you can expect to get satisfaction. We are not in the business of providing you with the satisfaction you deserve. If you're not satisfied with the service you receive, you should contact the Better Business Bureau (BBB) in your area or the Consumer Information Center in your state. They will be able to help you understand your legal options and prepare your case.
Avoiding Satanic Mechanics

Car repair—a horror none students need bother to expect. But it is not always a big ripoff. For example, if you believe the mechanic that if actual costs exceed the suggested price, you're still not satisfied, you may not be a meaningful basis for a refund or a warranty extension.

"Monopoly's last"/"framed"/"paper prices" may also be deceptive. If some manufacturers cannot legally hold one's products at all, they may be worth less. But as long as a suggested price may not be a meaningful basis for a comparison if one's product is really worth more, it is advisable.

A SIDE BY ANY NAME

Top engineers drawn from the worldwide resources of Ford Motor Company teamed up to create Escort. They pooled their expertise—compared, tested, evaluated, experimented—to come up with better ideas. The result: a high-mileage car built in America to take on the world. Escort will be made in America for American drivers... with other models built and sold overseas.

Escort has higher gas mileage ratings than subcompacts such as VW Rabbit, Honda Accord, Toyota Corolla hatchback (see chart), yet Escort has more room—the room of a compact (based on EPA Volume Index). Escort achieves this high mileage through advanced technology, not by giving you less car.

Escorts fuel efficiency comes from sophisticated and highly efficient new power teams (advanced-design compound valve hemispherical head (CVH) transmissions)... the use of weight-efficient steel—high-strength steel—to cut pounds... high-strength steel... and many other new and better materials for high mileage.

Campus Cash

With one fell swoop, you can make money, cut costs, and perhaps get better grades, too. By getting an on-campus job.

Am security job, especially as a natural and attractive option for a first attempt at earning a wage. Students can get through classes quickly, and the pay rates are higher than those of the work-study program. This is a great way to pay for tuition or other expenses. You can work as little or as much as you like.

Job duties may include anything from answering phones to opening doors, but many students also work part-time in a variety of positions. Some students even work on campus while living off-campus.

One of the benefits of working on campus is that you can still have a full-time job and attend classes. This is a great way to get your foot in the door of a professional field and gain valuable experience. You can also use this time to build relationships with your professors and classmates.

However, it is important to remember that working on campus is not a substitute for internships or other forms of work experience. You should still make sure to stay focused on your studies and develop the skills you need to succeed in your chosen field.

Tapping Out Profits

Brother, can you spare some time?

Problem: You need a job and you have a brother.

Solution: You might consider asking your brother for a part-time job.

Don't underestimate yourself. You may have skills that your brother doesn't. For example, you may be good at fixing things or writing letters.

Don't think you're a bother. Your brother may be glad to have you around.

Check the Yellow Pages and ask if there's a job in demand and what you need to supply. If not one in town offers an extra-earned service, ask one yourself. Or, take a less formal approach. Do you have a car that you could use in exchange for money? If so, your brother may be willing to pay you for the privilege of using his car.

This is not a guarantee that your brother will hire you, but it's a good way to get started.

This month's edition of the campus newsletter features an article on the benefits of working on campus. It highlights the various positions available and offers tips for finding the right one for you. Check it out!
How to Prosper During the Coming College Year...

Campus Cash

Well, here we go: you can make money on your merit, and perhaps even get better grades. Here's how to do it:

First, determine what resources are available to students in your school. There are usually lots of them:

1. Library jobs
2. T-Shirt sales
3. Food service positions
4.绿豆押
5. Library assistant
6. Seminar lab assistant
7. Tutor

Remember, this list is only a starting point. You can find more jobs by asking your friends or visiting the student employment office.

Tapping Out Profits

Brother, can you spare some time?

Problems. Your wallet is bulging with money. You need to get something done. You can't hold a part-time job. But what can you do with all that money?

T-shirt sales: The more you sell, the more you make. Just print out a design on the computer and ask around for students. It's a true dynamo.

Library jobs: You can get paid to read books. But don't forget to do your work. If you don't, your grades will suffer. So make sure you're doing the reading and writing you're supposed to do.

Library assistant: This is a great job if you want to get more involved with the library. You can help with cataloging, checking out books, and other tasks. It's a great way to get your foot in the door of the library.

Seminar lab assistant: This is a great job if you want to get involved with teaching. You can help with grading, giving extra help to students, and other tasks.

Tutor: This is a great job if you want to get involved with teaching. You can help with grading, giving extra help to students, and other tasks.

Amazing, isn't it? Just think of all the things you can do with your money:

1. Buy a new car
2. Go to the movies
3. Travel around the world
4. Buy new clothes
5. Go to the gym

Gah! What am I going to do with all this money?

Get-Ahead Exams

There is money and when you as an individual, it seems to come with a lot of pressure. People are always asking...

"Hey, have you heard about "Get-Ahead Exams?"

"What are they?"

"They're a way to get ahead in college. They're called "Get-Ahead Exams," and they're offered through a variety of programs. Like "CLEP," "AP," "SAT," "GED," and others."

"What do they do?"

"They let you take exams in college courses, and if you pass, you get college credit."

"What's the catch?"

"There's no catch. You just have to study hard and do well on the exams."
Financial Aid: Do You Fit the Bill?

Your family's income—whether high, low, or somewhere in between—is crucial in determining your eligibility for financial aid. Other considerations include family size, student assets, and financial need. By springing your family's financial net against expenses—despite where you live or how the economy is doing—the more realistic your eligibility for financial aid.

Financial Aid:

Of course, the cornerstone of your college financial plan is financial aid. Many students are eligible for financial aid. However, even a student spent annually on student financial aid is often unaffordable.

For example, an average student's expenses include
- Tuition and fees
- Room and board
- Books and supplies
- Transportation
- Personal expenses
- Entertainment
- Financial aid

Financial Aid:

Financial aid is divided into three types:

1. Grants:
   - Federal Direct Loans
   - State and local government loans
   - Private loans

2. Work-Study:
   - Federal Work-Study Program
   - Private Work-Study Programs

3. Scholarships:
   - Federal and state awards
   - Private awards

Financial Aid:

Your family can contribute to your college expenses in several ways:

1. Income:
   - Federal tax credits
   - State tax credits
   - Employer-sponsored retirement plans

2. Savings:
   - 529 college savings plans
   - Roth IRAs

3. Investments:
   - Stocks
   - Bonds
   - Real estate

Financial Aid:

Your own savings and financial aid combined can help you meet the cost of college. However, even a student spent annually on student financial aid is often unaffordable.

Financial Aid:

In this section, we will discuss the various sources of financial aid available to you:

1. Federal Direct Loans
2. State and local government loans
3. Private loans

Financial Aid:

To apply for financial aid, you will need to complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). The FAFSA is a nationwide application that provides information to federal, state, and institutional aid programs.

Financial Aid:

The toll-free hotline of the United States Department of Education is: 1-800-228-1183. It offers information on any of the programs administered by the Department of Education. To apply, you must:

1. Determine your eligibility.
2. Complete the FAFSA.
3. Submit your application.
4. Receive your award letter.
5. Accept your award.

Financial Aid:

Financial Aid:

Oh Jeff...

I never knew over $4 billion in financial aid existed!

But Not Too Hot To Handle

Financial Aid:

Financial aid is available to students who demonstrate financial need. To determine if you are eligible for financial aid, you will need to complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

Financial Aid:

The FAFSA is available online at www.fafsa.gov. You will need to provide information about your family's income, assets, and other sources of aid.

Financial Aid:

The FAFSA is due on February 15th of each year for the following academic year. You will need to submit the FAFSA as soon as possible to ensure that you have enough time to complete the application.

Financial Aid:

If you have any questions about the FAFSA or financial aid in general, you can contact the Financial Aid Office at your college or visit the website of the United States Department of Education.

LIVING ON LESS

Guerrilla Attacks on the Retail Market

When conventional means of saving money are not sufficient, guerrilla tactics may be the only answer. Here are some tips on how to save money by engaging in guerrilla tactics:

1. First, identify your target. This could be a specific store, a type of item, or a particular service. Once you have identified your target, begin to gather information about the products or services offered.

2. Next, research. Use the internet, social media, and other resources to find the best deals and discounts. Look for coupons, sales, and special offers.

3. Shop around. Compare prices at different stores and online retailers. Be sure to read reviews and check the returns policy.

4. Negotiate. Be confident and assertive when negotiating prices. Don't be afraid to ask for a better deal or a refund if you're not satisfied with the product or service.

5. Pay attention to packaging. Sometimes, the packaging of an item can be misleading. Make sure you're getting what you paid for.

6. Take advantage of rewards programs. Many retailers offer rewards programs that can save you money in the long run.

7. Use credit cards wisely. Credit cards can be a convenient way to pay, but be sure to pay off your balance in full each month to avoid interest charges.

8. Avoid impulse buying. Take the time to consider whether you really need an item before making a purchase. This can save you money in the long run.

9. Consider membership cards. Some retailers offer membership cards that can save you money on certain items.

10. Be patient. Sometimes, the best deals come with a little patience. Be willing to wait for a sale or a discount.

Economics of Less

Carrie Henderson, author of The Economics of Less, provides insights into the benefits of living a frugal lifestyle. Here are some key points from her book:

1. Living on less can improve your financial situation. By reducing your expenses, you can free up more money to save and invest for the future.

2. Living on less can improve your mental health. Research has shown that people who live frugally tend to be happier and more satisfied with their lives.

3. Living on less can improve your physical health. People who live frugally tend to eat healthier food and exercise more often.

4. Living on less can improve your environmental impact. By reducing your consumption, you can reduce your carbon footprint and help protect the planet.

5. Living on less can improve your social connections. People who live frugally tend to be more connected to their communities and to each other.

6. Living on less can improve your resilience. By building a financial safety net, you can be better prepared to handle unexpected expenses.

7. Living on less can improve your mental clarity. By reducing stress and eliminating financial worries, you can focus more on what truly matters.

8. Living on less can improve your spiritual connection. By reducing materialistic desires, you can cultivate a deeper sense of purpose and meaning.

9. Living on less can improve your creativity. By focusing on what matters most, you can free up more time and energy to pursue your passions.

10. Living on less can improve your social capital. By building relationships based on mutual support, you can create a stronger community.

Home Free

Now how would you like to live for free? No air-plot in to a garage is going to suit you, thought one of those clothes-five or six years ago, and they had to get a new coat every year. It was then that they set up sleeping in the garage.

The best way to deal with this is to set yourself up as a business. If you have a car, you can offer rides to people for a small fee. You can also offer your services as a personal trainer, or you can offer your services as a personal chef.

Guerrilla Attacks on the Retail Market

When conventional means of shopping aren't enough, consider an alternative - guerrilla shopping. This form of shopping involves looking for specific items that are typically in short supply, such as shoes, clothing, or electronics. By creating demand, guerrilla shoppers can force retailers to lower prices or increase stock levels. This approach is particularly effective when combined with social media and online forums.

Economics of Less

Cartier Henderson, author of "The Economics of Less," argues that by spending less money, individuals can achieve a higher level of happiness and satisfaction. Henderson suggests that spending less can lead to a more meaningful and fulfilling life, as it encourages creativity, resourcefulness, and a more minimalist lifestyle.

Many people make a noise with the rackets, tuxedos, and other things made at a styling salon to get the good stuff. After Christmas and Carnival, the stress is to be prepared for the price just as aggressively as those for the fifth year. Make sure your note from the board includes everything you eat.

Then you won't care what you've done. Travel and cruises or order a free spot and have someone else's vacation. Why pay someone else's flight? For guerrilla tactics, always do your homework. After Christmas and Carnival, when many professors take extended vacations, one is free housing alternative. In exchange for surprising the innkeeper, you can get free housing, a room and board to residents. Being a free housing or housekeeper is one possibility.

For the more imaginative, house hunting, free rent, or roommates can also be a possibility. However, you must also learn how to live off the land and raise money on your own. One possible way to do this is to sell your books and start a small business. This can be a rewarding way to support yourself while doing something you enjoy. It's also important to find a mentor or someone who can provide guidance and support.

BELGIAN student organizations that restrict membership to those who accept the tenets of the Christian Science religion have been granted recognition by the University of Iowa's student senate.

At a senate meeting Thursday, President Bradford J. Farkas announced that the Student Senate had tabled a motion to rescind recognition of the Christian Science group, saying that the group had failed to meet the senate's criteria for recognition.

The Student Senate has the authority to grant or revoke recognition to student groups, and Farkas said that the senate would consider the matter further at its next meeting.

He added that he would work with the activities board to write new regulations for groups that have restrictive membership clauses.

Student Senate executives say that the Iowa Student Coalition has been working on legislation to prohibit groups that restrict membership to those who accept the tenets of specific religions.

In other action, the senate approved an anti-bullying amendment and the German Language Student Organization was granted recognition.

The senate also voted to allocate $100 to the German Language Student Organization.

Other groups recognized were the Women's Forum and the Student Concerns Coalition for Political Activism.

The senate had recently adopted a resolution opposing the activities board's proposed regulations for groups that have restrictive membership clauses.

Supporters suggested that the senate adopt a resolution opposing the activities board's proposed regulations for groups that have restrictive membership clauses.

Several senators, including a member of the activities board, expressed concern about the proposed regulations.

Senators also discussed the issue of student conduct against fraternities and sororities, and agreed to form a committee to investigate the matter.

The committee will be presented by SCARC in consultation with other organizations.
