Voters excitedly scurry to polls as Ray era comes to a close

By Jeff Buck

There was some doubt among voters Tuesday that an era in Iowa history was coming to an end.

Voters excited to their polling places since no matter who wins the presidential election, the Iowa electorate would have a new governor next year.

Many Iowans would not want to remember any longer the era of former Gov. Robert Ray, who was defeated in the 1982 gubernatorial campaign.

For 44 years, that era has grown up with hope or optimism. Now that they vote, and for no longer a candidate in the primary elections or in any other election.

THE PEOPLE, in the title column of Bob Ray's victory, said Iowa Democrats of Iowa City, Iowa, voted overwhelmingly for the choice of the Iowa Secretary of State, Iowa's gubernatorial candidate.

Housing inspections worry firefighters

By ElizabethMcKeeby

City officials, working to stretch the city's budget, expressed some concern to include housing inspections, but said that the budget-cutting program is being implemented with the intent of being able to save money.

In January, the firefighters began checking apartment buildings for fire and safety codes.

As of May 17, the firefighters had performed 84 inspections without the use of a housing inspector.

But the city's fire chief, David Thompson, MIA's vice president of inspection, said that the situation is not as bad as it seems.

JOHNSON COUNTY Democrats are expressing confidence about their chances, according to a source at the headquarters, a sentiment echoed by many of the party's candidates.

In the 1982 election, the Democrats are predicted to have a strong showing in Johnson County, with the party expected to win several races. The source predicts that the party will make significant gains in the county, with several candidates expected to win.

The source notes that the party's strength in Johnson County is due to a combination of factors, including a strong ground game, effective messaging, and a committed base of voters.

The party is also expected to benefit from a strong performance by Governor Tom Vilsack, who is expected to win reelection with ease.

The source predicts that the party will make significant gains in the county, with several candidates expected to win.

Varn

For the job he said

Varn has been a strong advocate for education, saying that the district needs more resources to support its students.

The district has struggled with declining enrollment, and Varn has said that the school district needs to consider options for the future, including potential consolidations with surrounding districts.

Veterans Donnelly, Langenberg get nod

By Susan Fisher

The Democratic candidates for the Iowa Senate and House of Representatives were named Monday, with both candidates receiving the party's support.

In the Senate race, Donnelly was named the party's nominee, while in the House race, Langenberg was selected as the party's candidate.

Voters in the district have been interested in the race, with both candidates receiving significant support from the party.

Langenberg

Only peanuts in the district

In the House race, Langenberg was named the party's nominee, with several candidates selected as the party's candidates in other districts.

The party has been active in the district, with several candidates selected as the party's nominees, including in the 1st, 4th, and 5th Districts.

Unopposed runners not forgotten for long

While the environment of the primary race remains intense, those leaving the race are not forgotten. Several candidates who did not make the cut have been interviewed for possible roles in the Democratic Party.

One candidate, who did not make the cut, has been interviewed for a position with the Johnson County Democrats, while another candidate has been interviewed for a position with the party's statewide organization.

The party is working to ensure that all candidates, regardless of their performance in the primary, are not forgotten. The party has been active in efforts to mobilize the party's base, with several candidates selected as the party's nominees, including in the 1st, 4th, and 5th Districts.

As the party works to ensure that all candidates, regardless of their performance in the primary, are not forgotten, it is working to ensure that the party's base is mobilized for the upcoming general election.
Hawk merchandising

When the Hawkeyes football team takes the field in future, they may be welcomed by "a sea of black and gold" waving over the student seats. That is the anticipated result of a new plan UI athletic officials, who have vowed to seek a way to sell official Hawkeye merchandise.

Some other schools, like professional sports clubs, already have merchandising programs, and Iowa hopes to follow. Today's official tack is the mighty profits made by merchandiser at the end of last year, and not last fall but four months on a small camera license. It makes sense to cash in on successful athletic programs — gives that someone will always make a fast buck from a winning team, it might as well be the UI. But the plan's associates is a trend that many people find discouraging.

Iowa is like other schools, it is still not in an academic institution, hoping to attract students and faculty with its athletic programs, and the more successful, the more prominent it becomes, inevitably padding expenses in the background. Athletic Director Bump Elliott said that the main goal of the new merchandising plan is to make the university and the athletic department more attractive to potential students.

``The purpose of the program is to develop a revenue stream that can be used to support our athletic programs,"" Elliott said. ""Our goal is to have the merchandise program become a self-sustaining operation, generating revenue without increasing our overall expenditures.""

``In view of such serious misgivings, unless they are justified, the commission is approving Bell's request. Yet after a decision is reached, it will be based on an insufficient study of the problem. It is not the resources adequately to judge if the utility is acting in the public interest.""

``The commission must decide by July 2 if the increase is justified. The Iowa Public Utilities Commission has 90 days to act on the request, and the utility is allowed to collect the proposed rates during that time. Without a decision, the utility could be forced to reduce the rates.""

``The UI, like other Big Ten schools, is becoming a business in itself, generating its own sources of revenue. The more successful the athletic program, the more it can contribute to the general budget of the institution, hoping to attract students and faculty with its athletic reputation and possibly even to follow the UI Hawk merchandising program.""

``In the past decade, the UI has invested heavily in athletic programs, and the school has seen a trend that many people find disturbing. Given that someone will always make a fast buck from a winning team, it might as well be the UI. But the plan's associates is a trend that many people find discouraging.""

``I would like to thank the editor for his final semester of college. I am now working for the political science department, and may help to recruit new students. No doubt more students will be interested in participating in the political clubs of UI, where discussion and passion for political democracy is an everyday occurrence.""

``I expect ballistic missile buildup by adding cruise missiles and new nuclear capabilities, believing the existing systems to be inferior. It is not the resources adequately to judge if the utility is acting in the public interest.""

Kirkpatrick sweeps by Long and Dilley

By Jeff Benet

The Kirkpatrick sweep and Biggar Long and Joe Brown in the GOP primary in the 2nd House District.

Kirkpatrick, of Williamsburg, captured 1,220 votes, compared to 994 for Long and 1,006 for Dilley.

He will face Democratic incumbent Joe Brown in the November election, which includes all of Polk and Pottawattamie counties and the townships of Tama, Menomonee, Muscatine, Rockwell, Pleasantville, Oxbow, Southwell and Tipton.

Kirkpatrick is the Republican Chairman of the Republican Central Committee chairmanship and was active in the successful 1980 re-election campaign of Joe Long, Iowa.

18% voter turnout "moderate to good"

By Matt Leopard

Johnson County voters turned out to moderate good numbers despite the rain and the fact that it was an off-year and the election of Tom Barnett.

Although the rains came after 8 p.m. - a time at which Buckett said 80 per cent of the people vote - the final total was still a fairly good one.

"We're going to assume a maximum of 30 per cent of the county residents turned out for the election," Buckett said.

"The figures compared favorably with the previous general election vote, where the 80 per cent mark was reached," said the 18-year-old Buckett.

"Johnson County - comparing today's vote with the 1980 registration rates, at 2 per cent of their registered population."

The 10,000 registered voter figures, Buckett said, "were found to be slightly lower because there were more voters who cast their ballots that day than ever before.

"We have a good turnout today compared with the 1980 election," Buckett said.

"I do not think, however, that the rain was a factor in the election," Buckett said. His 200 votes, Johnson County voters opposed to the sense of the county. It looks like the voters responded very strongly to the campaign that Kirkpatrick could.

Israel tightens grip in day of fighting

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An economist who testifies for the NCAA described the NCAA as a monopoly with the power to prevent competitors from entering the market.

James Hard, a professor of economics at Oklahoma State University, testified that the NCAA's practices of prohibiting athletes from competing for television rights and regulating the transfer of athletes could be considered a monopoly.

The NCAA's argument was that it was promoting the best interests of athletes by ensuring a competitive market for college sports. However, Hard argued that the NCAA's practices actually created a market that was not competitive.
