Tax cut expected to have minimal effect locally

By Mark Leonard

An economic analysis of the proposed 10 percent tax cut by President Reagan during his State of the Union address indicates it most likely would not have a significant economic impact on the local area.

George Samuel, an associate in the PricewaterhouseCoopers accounting firm in Des Moines, said the local area is not large enough to have a large enough tax base to see an economic impact on the economy.

Samuel said that generally, the tax cut would go to the consumer, not to the local area, and would not have a significant economic impact on the local area.

“An economic analysis of the proposed tax cut by President Reagan during his State of the Union address indicates it most likely would not have a significant economic impact on the local area,” Samuel said.

The tax cut that President Reagan proposed during his State of the Union address is expected to provide a tax cut of approximately $100 billion to the local area.

However, Samuel said that the tax cut would not have a significant economic impact on the local area because it is not large enough to have a large enough tax base.

Conlins' joint assets exceed $2.2 million

DES MOINES (UPI) - Des Moines Register and Tribune correspondent Roxanne Conlin said she and her husband spent "paper rats" in the same federal district court in which they reside that "we've owed for a long time," she said, adding that their failure to pay the restitution had not been reported by the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Conlin’s decision to challenge the court’s order has sparked controversy among legal experts, who say it could lead to a broader debate about the fairness of the court’s decision. The court had previously ruled that Conlin and her husband, both U.S. citizens, were liable for the restitution because they had been charged with fraud.

Conlin and her husband, both U.S. citizens, are being sued by the U.S. Attorney's Office for $2.2 million in unpaid restitution.

Birkenstocks, a 1970s icon of the counterculture, have made a comeback in recent years, with many fashion designers incorporating the classic clogs into their collections.

The return of Birkenstocks is largely attributed to the popularity of the classic clog among fashionistas and celebrities, who have been seen wearing the shoes on the red carpet and in high-profile fashion shows.

The comeback of Birkenstocks is also being credited to the rise of the "athleisure" trend, which has led to a surge in demand for comfortable, casual footwear.

The success of Birkenstocks is further fueled by the brand's emphasis on sustainability. The shoes are made from recycled materials and are often marketed as a more environmentally friendly alternative to traditional leather shoes.

Birkenstocks are currently available in a variety of styles, including the classic "Arizona" and "Cork.Factory" models, as well as more modern iterations that feature colorful toe and heel designs.

Iowa recalls anti-nuke rally

By David Wondriska

We are marching on Monday of Labor Day weekend, 800 Iowa students and 25,000 people from across the state will converge on Des Moines. The Labor Day march, sponsored by the Iowa Farm Bureau, will be one of the largest anti-nuclear protest marches this year. The march is expected to draw over 10,000 people.

Final solution?

One way to address the nuclear proliferation problem is through the Nuclear Weapons Las Vegas convention. This convention is a decisive step in the process of eliminating nuclear weapons. The convention has the potential to be a turning point in the anti-nuclear movement. The Nuclear Weapons Las Vegas convention is scheduled for November 10-14.

There is a class war

But class war comes to Iowa! Governor Robert Ray and Republican Senator Chuck Grassley are at odds over the state's budget. Governor Ray is proposing a $2 billion budget that includes cuts to social programs, while Senator Grassley is calling for a tax hike to fund education and health care.

Michael Humes

It isn’t over yet, and it isn’t over soon. The anti-nuclear movement is growing stronger. On October 12, the International Day of Action for Nuclear Disarmament, we must continue to pressure our leaders to take action.

Efficiency or else

Iowa City officials have been instructed by the Iowa Department of Transportation to improve efficiency in its public transit system. The move comes as the state's budget crisis forces the city to reduce costs. The city has also been experiencing increased ridership, and it has been necessary to improve efficiency to meet the demand.

SWIMMING WITH SHARKS (50th day, Monday, November 10, 1985) is a landmark for the country. This anti-nuclear film, produced by the International Campaign to Abolish Nuclear Weapons, has been shown around the world and has received widespread acclaim. The film's message is clear: We must act now to prevent nuclear war.

Coal

High-quality coal is in short supply, and the price is sky-high. As we approach the deadline for the next round of negotiations between the coal miners and the coal companies, it is clear that the solution is to increase production and reduce waste.

Branstad

Iowa Governor Terry Branstad recently announced his plan to develop a new strategy for dealing with the state's budget crisis. The plan includes reducing spending and increasing revenues through a combination of tax increases and cuts to social programs.

Officials caution fireworks safety

By J.J. Negel

The Iowa City Press-Citizen

What may appear to be harmless fun could explode in your face and cause serious injury to both you and your fellow spectators if you fail to consider the potential dangers of illegal fireworks, according to the Iowa City Fire Department. Several injuries and deaths have been reported in other parts of the country as a result of fireworks mishaps.

During the Fourth of July weekend, the Fire Department will be派 out additional firefighters to help the regular line up of personnel. The city is celebrating its 150th birthday and is having a lot of fun with fireworks, said Fire Chief Bill Hickox. However, despite the fun, safety should be a priority.

“The only legal fireworks sold in Iowa are sparklers and Roman candles. Anything that is not sparklers or Roman candles is illegal,” Hickox said. “The law is very clear: fireworks are illegal.”

Hickox said that even sparklers and Roman candles are dangerous and should be used with caution.

“Sparklers can ignite grass, and Roman candles can start fires in the fireplace,” Hickox said. “We don’t recommend using them.”

Hickox also said that illegal fireworks can be dangerous because they are not regulated and can explode unexpectedly.

“ Illegal fireworks can be dangerous because they are not regulated and can explode unexpectedly,” Hickox said. “We don’t recommend using them.”

Hickox said that the most dangerous illegal fireworks are firecrackers and bottle rockets. These items can cause serious injury or death if they explode in the wrong place.

“Firecrackers and bottle rockets are the most dangerous illegal fireworks because they can cause serious injury or death,” Hickox said. “We don’t recommend using them.”

Hickox said that the best way to protect yourself is to avoid illegal fireworks altogether.

“I recommend that people avoid using illegal fireworks altogether,” Hickox said. “We don’t recommend using them.”

Now that contemporary music is being played at the Iowa City Foster Auditorium, the orchestra is no longer constrained by the requirement that all music be of a more serious nature. This is a welcome change, and one that is much appreciated by the audience. The concerts are well attended and the music is always of high quality. The orchestra is conducted by Zubin Mehta, who has a reputation for being a great conductor. This year, the orchestra is performing a variety of works, including Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, which is a masterpiece of orchestral music. The performance was well received by the audience, and the conductor was praised for his interpretation of the music. The symphony is performing at the Iowa City Auditorium on Saturday night. The concerts are open to the public and are free of charge. It is recommended that you attend these concerts to enjoy the music and the atmosphere. The Iowa City Symphony Orchestra is a wonderful addition to the cultural life of the city. The orchestra is under the direction of the talented conductor, and the musicians are a dedicated group of performers. The orchestra is a true testament to the spirit of music and the love of the performing arts. The orchestra is a true treasure of the Iowa City community, and it is a joy to see them perform.
Edmondson serves defeat to Gerulaitis

It was the first time in eight meetings dating back to 1979 that Edmondson had beaten Gerulaitis, and he received the privilege of facing No. 5 seeded Jimmy Connors, another player he has never been able to equalize with, in the quarterfinals.

Connors, who had been defeated by Edmondson in the first round at Forest Hills in 1982, was confident he would be able to avenge the loss. After surviving three 10-deuce games, he finally claimed the first set, 6-4. But Edmondson gained the second, 6-2. He then held serve at 3-0 and broke Connors again at 5-1. Edmondson, a 28-year-old right-hander, improved his career record to 23-15.

The 23-year-old Edmondson, who had reached the quarterfinals at Forest Hills, had won his first match of the year, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3, over Swedish Mats Wilander.

By making the quarterfinals, Edmondson, who won the Australian title last month, earned $30,000. He also finished at No. 13 in the year-end rankings.

Toronto was the fourth of five stops for the Canadian Open. Twenty-two of the top 25 money winners on the tour are scheduled to compete in the $80,000 tournament.

Sixth-leading money winner Hollis used a 32-foot putt to win the $80,000 Canadian Open on the first playoff hole after he had come from behind to earn a share of third place with Militello. He is a 21-year-old right-hander from Washington, D.C.

Hollis, who was 19 under par, was three strokes behind Militello midway through the final round. He turned in a 32 and shot a 71 to finish at 17-under par and tie Militello for third.

Militello, who carded a 32 on the back nine of the 7,413-yard layout, shot a 74 to finish at 14-under par and share third with Hollis. They added $16,000 each to their purses.

John Reid, a 22-year-old right-hander from Delafield, Wis., who turned in his best-ever 69, dominated the field of 112 finishing at par or better.

The field of 112 ranked 19th in earnings at $2,168,567.

I'd think I'd be there if I didn't have a搭on last year, a 1-under par 215. I haven't been hitting the ball well this year, but I've been hitting it well there. I have a thing about needing to keep it in the air if I want to score. I didn't have the putting touch last year. I worked on it this winter and am hitting the ball better.
