Couple files negligence suit against local hotel owners

By Suzanne Johnson

An Iowa City couple filed a lawsuit Friday asking the City of Iowa City for $60,000 in damages from the Central City Inn, 104 First Ave., in Iowa City.

The couple, James and June Colton, are seeking $60,000 in damages from the City of Iowa City for negligence.

The couple, who have lived in Iowa City for 10 years, said they were injured in a car accident that occurred April 11.

Press's endorsement of candidates may have little persuasion power

By Jeff Bach

The press may be mightier than the sword, but a newspaper may try to sway an election to quite another master, according to political observers.

"Endorsements may not always be influential," said Daniel P. Jarrett, an associate professor of political science at the University of Iowa. "But they may reflect how people know what way they will vote by the time they go to the polls." Jarrett said his experience with endorsements was limited to his own newspaper, the Iowa City Press-Citizen.

"ENDORSEMENTS are nice to have, but I'm just skeptical," he said.

Some studies would suggest otherwise, according to Julie Brimer, a political analyst and organizer.

Bittner strives to undo socialist mythes

by Ken Leonard

The Iowa City Press-Citizen

Mayor Bob Bittner is a leader in the Democratic party and a candidate for the Iowa Senate in District 28.

Bittner's campaign includes a number of key issues, including tax reform, education, and economic development.

Tax reform is a top priority for Bittner and his team. They believe that Iowa's current tax structure is far too complex and inefficient, and that it is time to modernize the tax code.

Education is another area of focus for Bittner. He has always believed in the importance of providing high-quality education to all students, regardless of their background or socioeconomic status.

Economic development is also a key priority for Bittner. He knows that Iowa needs to continue to grow and thrive, and that this requires a commitment to investing in infrastructure and creating a business-friendly climate.

Bittner is running against incumbent Republican Senator Dan Rahn in District 28. The race is expected to be competitive, with both candidates vying for the support of voters across the state.

In conclusion, Bittner's campaign is focused on creating a better future for all Iowans. He believes that Iowa needs to work together to tackle the challenges that face our state, and he is committed to fighting for a brighter tomorrow.
Expatriate candidates can pick the rates they want to pay, but it is either one per hour, two rates that can be pre-arranged by any advertiser willing to buy the time, including the opposing candidate for the same office.

When that happens, said the spokesperson who asked not to be named, "we'll call up our news manager. We'll review it and then we'll make the decision." He added that the station will "not consider a building block" for candidates running in the same election.

At the highest rate, radio commercials are $4,000 for one minute and $2,000 for half a minute. The station also offers its "best deal," which is a 30-second spot for $1,500.

"It's a true building block," the spokesperson said. "We're not going to make a half-minute spot for $2,000." The station will not do day or night rates.

A spokesperson for the station said that the station would give "a little bit more" to the candidates who pay for the commercials, but that the station will not "engage in a game of who can pay the most." The station will not "hold back" any information.

"No, we're not going to give them any more," the spokesperson said. "We're not going to do that." The station will not "hold back" any information.

Is socialism a better alternative?

When I was a senior in high school, I had a colonel who was very different from most teachers. He was a very big man, very stern-looking, but he had a very gentle heart. One day, he was talking about the French Revolution and he asked us, "What is socialism?" And we all thought about it for a while, and then we said, "It's a system of government where the community owns the means of production." And he said, "But that's not the whole story. What about the people who work for the government? They don't own anything." And we all chuckled, but he was right. Socialism is more than just a system of government. It's a way of life, a way of thinking.

But despite its flaws, socialism has its merits. It's a system that values equality, where everyone has a fair share of the wealth. In a socialist society, the government owns the means of production and distributes them to the people according to need, not according to ability. It's a system that values community over individualism, and it's a system that values the well-being of all people, not just the rich and powerful.

As for the critics who say socialists are communists, I would argue that's a mischaracterization. Communism is a system where the state owns all the means of production, and the state controls all the means of production. Socialism is different. It's a system where the state owns the means of production, but the state distributes them to the people according to need, not according to ability. It's a system where the state controls the economy, but it's a system that values the well-being of all people, not just the rich and powerful.

In conclusion, socialism is a better alternative to capitalism. It values equality, community, and the well-being of all people. It's a system that values the future, not just the present. It's a system that values the environment, not just economic growth. Socialism is a system that values the people, not just the profit of the few. And that's why I believe socialism is a better alternative.

Phillips stars in key win over Illini

By Steve Baskerville

Ansman North Editor

Senior tailback Tim Phillips has been electrifying the nation ever since he took over for injured starter Tony Eason, and the nation has not been disappointed. Phillips has scored 10 touchdowns and gained 750 yards in seven games, but he has not been the only hero in Iowa's 14-13 victory over Illinois. Defensive tackle David Conklin, for example, had two sacks and accounted for two of the Hawkeyes' five sacks.

"I'd rather have Phillips than any running back in the nation," said Iowa Coach Hayden Fry. "He's a great tailback, but he's also a great runner. His speed and agility make him a threat to every defense in the nation."

Phillips' heroics were not enough to prevent Illinois from scoring the winning touchdown with 1:9 left in the game. But the Hawkeyes' defense held the Illini to only one touchdown, and that was all they needed.

"We've been playing well defensively all season," said Fry. "And tonight we were able to come up big when we needed to."

Illinois, on the other hand, was unable to score on its last two possessions. The Illini had the ball at their 45-yard line with 1:9 left in the game, but Iowa's defense held them to a field goal attempt. Then, with 40 seconds left, Illinois had the ball at its own 24-yard line. But Iowa's defense held them to another field goal attempt.

"We've been playing well defensively all season," said Fry. "And tonight we were able to come up big when we needed to."

Phillips, who had 121 yards on 16 carries, was named the most valuable player of the game.

"I'm just glad we won," said Phillips. "I wanted to win this game, and I was able to do it."

Hawkeyes stop Illini, Eason in a ‘shocker’

Illinois is a team that was surprising everyone. But tonight, they were the ones who were surprised. The Illini lost to Iowa, 14-13, in a game that was expected to be a rout.

"We were prepared for a tough game," said Illinois Coach Stan Parrish. "But we weren't prepared for the Hawkeyes to play so well."

Old Dominion dashes Iowa hopes of perfect season

Senior tailback Tim Phillips has been electrifying the nation ever since he took over for injured starter Tony Eason, and the nation has not been disappointed. Phillips has scored 10 touchdowns and gained 750 yards in seven games, but he has not been the only hero in Iowa's 14-13 victory over Illinois. Defensive tackle David Conklin, for example, had two sacks and accounted for two of the Hawkeyes' five sacks.

"I'd rather have Phillips than any running back in the nation," said Iowa Coach Hayden Fry. "He's a great tailback, but he's also a great runner. His speed and agility make him a threat to every defense in the nation."

"The loss may have been good for us because it was the start of the pressure of being a No. 1 team," says Iowa Coach Stan Parrish. "It's better to lose one now than in the tournament."
First dual loss comes as shock to Iowa netters

By Matt Saffold

Although Iowa didn't win Saturday night's collegiate match against nationally ranked Northwestern, the Hawkeyes continued to prove their worth in early season performances. The loss was a regular day on the court for the Wildcats with a 5-set, 3-2 win for the Big Ten match at the University of Iowa's Recreation Building.

The Hawkeyes, led by seniors Kyra Jones and Darcy Cohen, showed determined effort against the in-state opponent. The two teams battled in the first set, but Jones and Cohen, along with several other Hawkeyes, couldn't overcome the stronger Wildcats in this match. Northwestern went on to win the final three sets, clinching the win with a 3-2 score.

The loss was the first for the Hawkeyes this season, and it comes as a shock to many fans who expected more from the team. However, the Hawkeyes have shown resilience in past seasons and are likely to bounce back with a strong effort in the upcoming matches.

Computers aid after-game analysis; possible future on the sidelines

New York City, Nov. 11

For those few football critics who dispute the game of people and patriotism, this week's NFLPA proposal may seem like another type of game.

But the players and their management and the critics who dismiss the league as just another business are both being typecast in situations, according to Tim Klein, 19, a member of the Rand league.

"You'll see better preparation but not necessarily a game of people," he said. "Computers will only give you the best-possible play for the game you're in. Sometimes the player has to be a game of people and situations."

Klein, who compiled an NFL record of 2-6-1 as quarterback of the University of Idaho, said the league is similar to a cross-section of a business computer industry.

"I believe the computer boom is here to stay, especially in the NFL," he added. "It's more vivid and practical to have computers when I coached the team."

The league has stated only two of the 12 days of fruitless negotiations have produced any gains, which the players have characterized as being "at a standstill."

"We're asking the NFL to hand over more of the decision-making power and authority to the players, but the NFLPA is only asking for money.

"The problem is not how money will be distributed to the teams, but how money will be distributed to the players. There is a very close agreement between the NFL and the NFLPA on this subject."

"The NFLPA has been equally adamant in its key demand, the so-called 60/40 compromise, of which $1 billion has been agreed to."

your offensive line. I mean, I thought we could do it by plugging holes and when I turned to watch them at the line of scrimmage, the line of scrimmage had the ball. I mean, it was a pretty good angle, but that's not an excuse.

Ira Phillips had wanted a planned play that is unsteady. But they never got steady, and the ball was still rolling through the Hawkeyes' defense when it counted.

Rockford clones abound in fall series

By Jeffrey Milton

Hollywood's Roger Kastel of Bear Lake is the Waltham Palmier in an image of a gangster clone who's the most dependable and the least predictable of his breed. In the first of three, the second is the most enjoyable of the three," says Kastel, who's been in the movies for more than two decades and is known for his hard work and dedication.

Kastel's role in Rockford is one of two roles he's played in recent years. The other is that of a cartoonist in a comic strip.

"I love playing the cartoonist because he's a real character," says Kastel. "He's a real personality, a real human being."

Kastel's latest role is that of a cartoonist in a comic strip. He says it's a role he's been looking forward to playing for some time.

"I've always been interested in doing a role like this," says Kastel. "It's a role that I think is really interesting and challenging."

'Tarnished Angels' director finds true emotional balance

By Kathryn Helene

The phrase 'imaginative within constraint' provides an apt description of the nature of director Douglas Sirk.

Sirk came to Hollywood in 1939 and began his career there with low-budget melodramas that he had written and worked for the big screen, a privately owned German films company called Producers Distributing.

Sirk's themes, which are often similar to those of the movies and television shows of the time, include the portrayal of the lives of women in the 1930s and 1940s and their struggle for love and happiness. He is known for his use of color and lighting, as well as his use of music and sound effects.

The original material for the film came from a novel by Jane Smiley, but it was adapted for the screen by Sirk at the last minute.

Sirk's films are often characterized by their use of music, with songs and dances being central to the plot. They are also known for their use of close-ups and slow motion, as well as their use of visual effects such as dissolves and fades.

The film 'Tarnished Angels' was released in 1958. It stars John Saxon and Mariette Hartley, and it is considered one of Sirk's best films. It was nominated for four Academy Awards, including Best Picture, Best Director, and Best Original Screenplay.
