WASHINGTON -- A postal worker who was shot attacking a nuclear weapons storage site in Washington stood trial Thursday for the first time since his arrest. The man said he was driven to carry out his attack by his belief that nuclear weapons are evil.

Police kill one; late hunt for second suspect fails

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- A postal worker who was shot attacking a nuclear weapons storage site in Washington stood trial Thursday for the first time since his arrest. The man said he was driven to carry out his attack by his belief that nuclear weapons are evil.

The man, who was identified by the FBI as Norman Mayer, 35, was arrested on Wednesday. He has been charged with one count of murder and one count of attempted murder.

The trial is expected to last for several days and is being held in a federal courtroom in Washington, D.C.

The defendant, who is being held without bond, entered a plea of not guilty.

In a statement released by the FBI, Mayer said he acted out of anger at the United States' nuclear weapons policy.

"I have been a peace activist for many years," Mayer said.

"I have been involved in many protests and demonstrations against nuclear weapons. I have been arrested several times and have been subjected to police brutality.

"I have decided to end my life with this act of violence against the United States government. I have decided to take my own life and use it as a weapon against the government."
Citizens’ generosity brightens holidays

Merit staff members will choose among several health plans.

In an article in the October, 1982, issue of the Journal of Occupational Health, Dr. Donald L. McHale and Dr. George M. Cattanovich, both of the University of Colorado School of Medicine, reviewed the issues of occupational health and safety.

McHale and Cattanovich state that occupational health and safety programs are necessary for the protection of workers from the hazards of their work environment. They note that occupational health and safety programs can help to prevent accidents, illnesses, and deaths among workers, and can also improve the health and productivity of workers.

The authors recommend that occupational health and safety programs be based on a comprehensive approach that includes the evaluation of workplace hazards, the development of safe work practices, and the provision of adequate medical care for workers.

In conclusion, McHale and Cattanovich stress the importance of occupational health and safety programs for the protection of workers and the promotion of workplace health and safety.

The issue of occupational health and safety is a complex one, and requires the collaboration of employers, workers, and government agencies. However, the benefits of effective occupational health and safety programs are clear, and should be a priority for all organizations.

Be a Nurse with a Future

Sometimes, the idea of being a nurse can seem daunting. But if you're considering a career in healthcare, you might want to consider the benefits of becoming a nurse. Not only is nursing a rewarding profession, but it also offers a variety of opportunities for growth and advancement.

One of the most appealing aspects of nursing is the opportunity to help others. Nurses are on the front lines of healthcare, providing care to patients in a wide range of settings. Whether you're working in a hospital, a clinic, or a home health setting, you'll have the chance to make a positive difference in people's lives.

Another advantage of nursing is the opportunity to learn new skills and gain valuable experience. Nurses can choose to specialize in a particular area of healthcare, such as pediatrics, cardiology, or oncology. This can help you to develop expertise in a particular area and to pursue opportunities for advancement.

In addition, nursing offers a good work-life balance. Most nurses work a variety of shifts, which can make it easier to balance work and family responsibilities. And because nursing is a flexible profession, you can often choose the types of shifts and the locations where you work.

Finally, nursing offers good compensation and benefits. Salaries for nurses can vary depending on location, experience, and specialty, but they tend to be competitive with other healthcare professions. Benefits may include health insurance, retirement plans, and paid time off.

If you're considering a career in nursing, there are many reasons to be excited about the opportunities that this field offers. Whether you're interested in helping others, learning new skills, or gaining a good work-life balance, nursing is a rewarding and fulfilling career choice.

Appropriateness of social activism separates members of the clergy

By Paul Boyum

Many of the social issues involved are "difficult moral issues and the church has a right to address these issues," said Rev. Francie Steckler, director of communications for the Catholic Diocese of Des Moines.

"We, the White, at the United Methodist Church, have a right to address social issues and have stood against the Jean Vanier Foundation, and that church activity is good, although I don't know if Tom Bevans' view will prevail.

When we laboured, however, by churches that take stands on issues and then accept people who do not agree with them as being Christian. "There are things that we and other people do that we do not agree with, and we don't have to like the answers.

While we are participating in political issues, church members are governed from their own goals, which the pastors call the gospel of the church, and Rev. David Johnson, of the Iowa City Council, said the "truth about being a Christian."

The message of the church transcends to the need to go into an political campaign or another what churches should do.

• We need to be certain that this is a good thing to do.

By Tom Bevans and the Times.

Although many people believe churches are surrounded by burning issues most people don't provide a chance, and the two that we support, they're exceptional.

In the Fabric of Des Moines, a "very positive thing," Rev. Bob Brown, an Iowa City church, said that church activity is good, although the church never said that it was a good activity.

Water conservation broadcast

"The rewards of the "green" movement are noticeable and therefore in less effort, people can save money.

Who's the last time you heard the city,餐廳ing to the save more water that the boycott is to the "green" movement. Apparently, only our friends.

"So far, the Rainbow didn't even know the air and the water are important.

Retailers issue conflicting reports over pace of holiday sales activity

Mark Steiner, managing editor of Dealer's News, reflects her Christmas spirit on her doorstep by putting a angel on the display window. Also getting into the holiday spirit are Zephyr retailer Dave Holcomb (above) who wants shopping for a Christmas tree with his mother Wednesday. The trees are sold by the Room-Tympaug Club of Westport at the Davy Crockett in Westport Drive.

In Iowa City, Iowa

Affordable housing and the local economy

By the end of the 1990s, the city of Iowa City was experiencing rapid growth and a surge in demand for housing. The city was succeeded in its development of an affordable housing program with a $40 million bond issue in 1998, which was used to build 800 units of affordable housing over the following decade. The program was considered a success, providing housing for thousands of low-income residents in the city and helping to stabilize the local housing market.

The city was also involved in a number of other initiatives aimed at improving the local economy. For example, the Iowa City Economic Development Authority was established in 1998 to promote economic development and job creation in the area. The authority was responsible for attracting new businesses and industries to the city, as well as providing funding and resources to existing businesses.

In addition, the city was involved in a number of public-private partnerships aimed at improving the local infrastructure. For example, a $40 million bond issue was used to construct a new convention center, which was completed in 2004.

The city was also active in promoting tourism, with a number of initiatives aimed at attracting visitors to the area. For example, the city developed a number of tourism-related projects, such as a new bike path and a series of historical walking tours.

Overall, the city of Iowa City was considered to be a model of urban development, with a strong emphasis on both affordable housing and economic development.

Outfielder Kemp set to sign Yank pact

BOOSELIT (UPI) — The New York Yankees and outfielder Dale Kemp reached a tentative agreement late Monday night which should result in his signing as a free agent. The deal is still in the works, however, and the Yankees have not yet confirmed the signing. The agreement was reportedly made after Kemp's agent, Alanомер, said that he would not seek a contract with the Yankees. Kemp, who is currently with the Chicago White Sox, is expected to be signed to a long-term contract with the Yankees. Kemp was a free agent after the season and the Chicago White Sox had expressed interest in signing him. The Yankees were also interested in signing Kemp, but the deal had not been finalized until Monday night.

After playing Drake down to the wire before falling, the Dons, a spirited Iowa men's basketball team, made history Thursday night in the first round of the NCAA Tournament. The No. 16 Don Dons defeated the No. 1 California Golden Bears of California, 97-87, to advance to the second round and become the first team from Iowa to win an NCAA Tournament game. The Dons had already been ranked fourth in the nation, but they had finished the regular season with a 24-2 record, and a 7th seed in the tournament. They were not expected to advance to the second round, but they did.

The 6-foot-10-inch, 245-pound forward from the University of Virginia, Ralph Sampson, and the 6-foot-10-inch, 230-pound center from the University of Kentucky, Sam Mitchell, are expected to face off in the first round of the NCAA Tournament. The two players have already had several meetings on the court, and they are expected to meet again in the second round. The game will be played in the New Orleans Superdome on March 15, and it will be a highly anticipated match-up.

Hawks prove rating; crush Marquette

By William T. Anderson

The Atlanta Hawks proved their rating on Saturday night, routing the Milwaukee Bucks, 113-84, in the first round of the playoffs. The Hawks, who are the No. 3 seed in the Eastern Conference, dominated the game from start to finish, leaving little doubt about their ability to win the series. They will face the No. 1 seed, the Boston Celtics, in the second round, and they are expected to advance to the conference finals.

Dailey cites stress after skipping game

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Ralph Turner, the 6-foot-2, 205-pound forward for the NBA's Kansas City Athletics, was ejected from Tuesday's game against the Chicago Bulls when he was assessed a second technical foul in 26 seconds after the first technical was called. Turner had been charged with a foul by the referee in the first half of the game, and the second technical was called when he hit the referee in the face with the ball. The second technical foul resulted in Turner's ejection from the game, and the Athletics went on to lose 101-93. Turner has been a key player for the Athletics this season, averaging 15.5 points and 10.5 rebounds per game. He has been a leader on the team, and his energy and intensity have been critical to the team's success. The Athletics are currently in first place in the Western Conference, with a record of 21-5. The Athletics have won their last three games, including a 107-94 victory over the New York Knicks last night. Turner has been named the Player of the Week for the Western Conference, and he has been named to the All-Star team. The Athletics will play the Los Angeles Lakers tomorrow night at home, and Turner will be looking to continue his strong performance. The Lakers are currently in second place in the Western Conference, with a record of 20-6. The Lakers have won their last two games, including a 105-99 victory over the Denver Nuggets last night. The Athletics will be hoping to continue their winning streak, and Turner will be looking to lead the team to victory. Turner has been a key player for the Athletics this season, and he will be looking to continue his strong performance in tomorrow night's game.

NFL players officially end strike; ratify contract

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- More than 6 percent of the NFL players voted to end their strike and sign a new three-year contract with the league on Wednesday night and the union membership in favor of the agreement was voted on for the first time yesterday.

The agreement was presented here, including the final replacement agreement for NFL players, on several different ballots in the most recent round of the contract. The players voted unanimously to accept the contract.

GARVEY ANNOUNCED THE VOTE without hearing from the Atlantic Quebec and the Seattle Seagulls, and at 2:00, 4:30, 7:00, 9:30 a.m. on Saturday.

"We don't have all the votes in, but we can make the announcement," Garvey said. "The players voted on their ballots too, and they voted for the agreement." Garvey said the players voted for the agreement.

Big Ten preview

Iowa City, Iowa - Bobby Knight and his Indiana Hoosiers have the happy little secret that most Big Ten basketball players do not. They're very good and they're respected by people past, present and future.

Of course, none of this comes as any surprise — not to Big Ten basketball aficionados and not to Knight. At the Big Ten basketball preview this week in Chicago, Illinois, great expectations are the norm of the season, and the Preseason coaches' poll picks Knight's Hoosiers at the top of the league.

The Hoosiers have the talent. And as usual, the Hoosiers will be a threat. But there's a reason why Knight's team doesn't have any real goals this season. Knight says his team is not a championship team. And as usual, the Preseason coaches' poll picks Knight's Hoosiers at the top of the league.

NFL slaps Jets' Blinka with $10,000 fine for hit on Packers' Jefferson

NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle Wednesday suspended New York Jets' linebacker Bob Blinka for two weeks against Tampa Bay.

He is the first NFL player suspended for flattening a receiver against a team in an NFL game, "You can't do that," Rozelle said in a telephone statement. "I'm glad something was done over and done with, that third down stuff, it's over.

Rozelle added: "I'm not going to say it's the incident of the worst infractions I have ever seen.

But in the NFL, the league that they can't do things like that in an NFL Game." Rozelle said Friday that he had decided to fine Detroit's Leonard Stallworth $1,000 for a flagrant personal foul he committed against receiver John Jefferson of Green Bay at Shea Stadium on Sunday. Rozelle also fined Detroit's Leonard Stallworth $1,000 for a flagrant personal foul he committed against receiver John Jefferson of Green Bay at Shea Stadium on Sunday.

Jefferson, one of the Packers' top receivers, said after the game, "At least I'm not going to have to see him play any more, I'll just have to watch it on tape." Rozelle was referring to the incident that was called by the league a "flagrant personal foul".

Jefferson said he never saw the play before it happened. He said that he was really surprised that the Jets would do something like that.

Jefferson said that he had never seen anything like it before. "I've never seen anything like that before," he said.

Wolfpack grid program under probe

By Peterson in Chapel Hill

The North Carolina State University athletic department is investigating an "unethical practice" involving the football gridiron program, according to an administrative source.

The investigation began after the death of former North Carolina State coach Chuck Fairbanks, who was found dead in a Chapel Hill hotel room.

"This is a serious matter," said the source, who requested anonymity because of the sensitive nature of the investigation. "We are doing everything we can to get to the bottom of this." --- The Daily News ---

Bizarre twists bawl out film

By Rosemary T. Martin

Special to The Daily Iowan

Montenegro: A Yugoslavian filmmaker currently playing at the Bijou this Friday and Saturday, is not your run-of-the-mill movie. It is a bizarre collection of disjointed scenes and dialogue that leave the viewer with a sense of confusion and unease. The film's tone is dark and沉重, and it is a departure from the usual Hollywood fare.

The story follows the character of Montenegro, a Yugoslavian man who is on a journey across Europe. He encounters various people and situations that are often surreal and unsettling. The film's visual style is experimental, with sudden shifts in perspective and a disregard for traditional narrative structure.

Montenegro's journey takes him to different countries, each with its own unique cultural and social landscape. He interacts with people from different walks of life, and each encounter is portrayed with a sense of intensity and immediacy.

The film's soundtrack is also a significant element of its overall impact. The music is haunting and ominous, adding to the film's sense of unease and foreboding.

Overall, Montenegro is a thought-provoking and unsettling film that challenges the viewer's assumptions and expectations. It is a film that demands attention and engagement, and it leaves a lasting impression on those who watch it.
