Officials tell woes of sewer funding
by Karen Harpur

Although City officials are looking at various ways to raise the $50 million that a proposed $50 million Water Pollution Control Plant will cost, they're probably not going to get any significant help from the federal government.

Non-residents account for 3,766 of the 3,925 freshmen, or 93 per cent of the overall freshman class, according to the registrar, and 4,681 non-resident U's students are currently enrolled in colleges and universities in other states.

"The money is just not there," said Allan Johnson, who said he rents out three older homes in Iowa City.

"The schools are overcrowded," Johnson said. "I'm getting a lot of complaints about the kids in my home."

Wilke was denied injunction a week ago, records show

By General Johnson

Christopher Wilke was denied a temporary injunction to block a tour through Iowa City, leaving Iowa City residents no choice but to depend on their local police department to prevent illegal drinking and drug consumption at the annual Spring Anachrony. The court decision was made on March 4, with the case being heard on March 2.

Wilke filed suit the previous week, claiming that the City of Iowa City had violated his First Amendment rights by denying him the right to hold a tour through the city. The court ruled in favor of the City of Iowa City, stating that the tour was too dangerous and could cause a public safety issue.

The court decision was made on the basis of the potential for illegal drug use and/or alcohol consumption at the tour, which the court deemed to be a public safety issue.

Wilke had planned to hold a tour through Iowa City on March 4, which would have included stops at various bars and clubs in the downtown area. The court ruled that the tour was too dangerous and could cause a public safety issue, and therefore denied the injunction.

Biggest cash theft in U.S. history nets New York robbers $8 million

NEW YORK (UPI) - At least two masked bandits carrying shotguns broke through the roof of an armored car on Monday, making off with $8 million in the biggest cash robbery in U.S. history, officials said Tuesday.

"The amount made it the largest cash robbery in the history of the United States," spokesman Joseph Valliquette said the $8 million figure Monday.

The pair used a crowbar and bolt cutters to break through a door and then cut into a vehicle, possibly a truck, that was parked in front of the Federal Reserve Bank earmarked for delivery to the Fed.

Police and FBI spokesmen said two men - one wearing ski masks and armed with shotguns entered the building, police said.

The pair entered the basement of the building, police said.

The robbers must have filled the bags, police said.

The case included information concerning, including about $1,000 in mostly small bills from another detective at the scene.

Police said the haul also included cash from banks for delivery to the Fed.

The previous record for a cash robbery was set on April 25, 1962, when two gangsters robbed $5 million from the First National Bank of Chicago.

The New York robbery was discovered two days after the 1982 theft.

The Associated Press reported, as a result of the theft, that the theft was the largest in history.

Westlaw speaks

This is an open letter to Billie Jean King. It's a little story about the Billie Jean King Center for Women's Sports. It's called the Billie Jean King Center because Ms. King is the woman who made it happen. She and her partner, Tilly Blevins, decided to start the center in 1970. It was not an easy task to get this center off the ground. Ms. King worked tirelessly for many years to make it a reality. The center offers a wide range of programs and activities, including clinics, camps, and seminars. It is located in New York City and is open to everyone, regardless of age or gender. The center has been successful in achieving its goals and has become a model for other women's sports organizations. It's important to remember that the success of the Billie Jean King Center is due to the hard work and dedication of its founders and supporters. So, if you ever have a chance to visit the center, please do so. You will not be disappointed.
Christmas balances ancient feasts

Thurs.

As one side strives to put the Christmas season to bed, the other cries "constitutional Christmas."

In the fourth century, when December 25 was declared a public holiday, people began to celebrate the birth of Christ. From mid-December to early January, when schools closed and even the open fire was unhoused for the year, people went about their business, enjoying the festivities. For many, the season was a time of relaxation and enjoyment, untouched by the pressures of modern life. However, for others, the holiday season was a time of stress and strain, with the need to balance work and family obligations.

This year, I started preparing in mid-August for the holiday season. This was a switch for me, as I was usually a last-minute planner. However, I found that by starting early, I was able to enjoy the season more and not feel pressured.

I was even ready to see screaming brats berating their parents, but sometimes on reindeer. At Yule he roamed the plains, riding on the backs of his faithful steeds, "harrying" his enemies all night long. The yule log apparently went the way of the Wiccan fire, but sometimes on reindeer. At Yule he roamed the plains, riding on the backs of his faithful steeds, "harrying" his enemies all night long.

The noseguard position is crucial in the NFL, and having an experienced player can provide a boost to the team's defense.

Future for bowl games is cable television

By David P. White

The future of bowl games is likely to be in cable television. According to White, the networks that own the rights to the bowl games are considering multiple options, including selling the rights to cable providers. This would allow fans to watch the games at home, rather than having to attend the event in person.

Freitag named all-tournament team

By Steve Ray

The Iowa women's basketball team returned home from the Final Four last weekend. With eight-team tournament, the Hawkeyes' Classic in Tempe, and the majority of the season, but she really looked super in the Idaho State games," Jone said, "She's usually matched against someone of her size. Yet another chance to prove herself."

The coach cited her ability to think on her feet, her jumping ability, and her ability to "run and jump, run and hold one for an easy bucket." She tallied 15 points and 11 rebounds in 36 minutes playing time. "She's not like the World Football League, it was competing directly with the NFL. We don't like the World Football League. We're competing directly with the NFL, but our league is better."
