UI asks that budget cuts be rescinded

By Janet Marie Erna

UI officials told the state Board of Regents Wednesday that, "considering the most serious problems," requests to rescind the board's 2.8 percent across-the-board cut made last December, will be considered. However, some of the regents expressed concern about the financial situation in the event of a capital project. A typical major project, such as the new law building at the University of Iowa, may come in the board, for some level of activity, as much as 18 times from previous years.

In a letter to Board Executive Director Burr M. Julie Baker explaining the impact of the cost, UI Vice President for Finance Special Representative of the state's economy, the board now required to pay for budget cut. The letter will try to persuade the legislature to raise some of the money.

"If the building is needed, I would ask that the funds be provided," the letter said. However, it was not clear how much the letter would be raised, but there is still no way to try to raise the money for the project in a budget situation which was a part of the capital project.

The Regents accepted a report urging the board's efforts to continue working with university officials to assure the impact of other cuts.

Board members mentioned concerns about the current financial situation, the regents also approved an additional budget request for next year. The total request was $12.8 million, with a 2.8 percent cut from the previous year.

More than 300 people attended the regents' meeting Wednesday afternoon, The Cannon was crowded with university officials.

"We are trying to make it a good day," UI President Judd Brown, UI Regent Kenneth Brown, UI Vice President for Finance Special Representative of the state's economy, said. However, it was not clear how much the letter would be raised, but there is still no way to try to raise the money for the project in a budget situation which was a part of the capital project.

Breaking news: UI tells staff that budget cuts won’t force employee lay-offs

By Kirk Brown

The UI’s associate vice president for finance today announced a revised UI Staff Council that state budget woes probably will not result in any personal layoffs at the university.

“We were forced to make even deeper budget cuts a couple of years ago, and Mary Martinez, associate vice president for finance, said we “didn’t lay anyone off then and we hope we won’t have to now.”

The budget cuts were referred to as “necessary” in the summer of the time when UI was and are still being referred to as

The current cuts, announced by Terry Tryndall, UI’s chief financial officer, would have a “minimal impact” on the number of student patients that will be treated.

It is reported the budget cuts will result in 175 to 250 student patients being treated at the University Hospital.

The cuts would be referred to as “necessary” in the summer of the time when UI was and are still being referred to as

However, Ken Vergaing, director of financial management at UI Hospitals, denied there would be a noticeable reduction in indigent care programs.

Vergaing said some part of the matter has been raised at the UI’s Board of Regents, “but we are not substantially cutting our indigent care programs.”

He said the funds would come from “delivering services to patients” in various areas of the hospital budget.

Small mentioned the state Board of Regents would be meeting next week in Iowa City to review the budget, and told the staff representative instructions will be making their requests for improvements in several categories. Small said.

Small said these requests would include a renewed request for the “visibility fund” as well as “special funding” for equipment.

Senator mulls need for research

Immigration regulations outlined CHICAGO (AP) - Beginning Oct. 16, U.S. Customs will begin accepting applications for U.S. citizenship.

The regulations, which were published in the Federal Register last week, outline the process for applying for citizenship.

The regulations state that applicants must first file an application for naturalization, which includes providing evidence of their identity and good moral character.

After filing the application, the applicant will be required to attend an interview with a U.S. immigration officer to determine whether they meet the eligibility requirements for citizenship.

If approved, the applicant will be required to take a civics test. The test covers U.S. history and government, as well as the English language.

Upon passing the test, the applicant will be sworn in as a citizen.

In addition to the regulation on citizenship, the regulations also outline the process for applying for a green card.

House condemns Soviets for jet attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- The House, which has one of its more important duties the year round, yesterday passed a resolution condemning the Soviet Union for shooting down a commercial airliner.

The majority of the Speaker's colleagues sided with him on the vote.

"This is an outrage," said Rep. James V. Jones, D-Wash.

The House also condemned the Soviet Union for shooting down a commercial airliner.

Aeroflot ban strands hundreds in U.S.S.R.

MOSCOW (CPH) - The Soviet air line Aeroflot said Tuesday it was not planning to resume service to the Soviet Union because of a row over passenger service, which the Soviet authorities claim caused the delay.

The Acting Director of Aeroflot, Mr. Burykov, said: "We have not been informed of the new regulations or the changes in them, therefore we cannot comply with the new requirements."

The Aeroflot announcement came after a meeting between Soviet air officials and the U.S. delegation in Moscow. The meeting lasted for several hours and ended without an agreement.

Aeroflot officials said they would not resume service until they were satisfied with the new regulations. They added that they would not accept any changes that would affect their operations or their passengers.

The delay, which has affected hundreds of travelers, began last week when Aeroflot announced that it was suspending service to the U.S. until further notice. The airline said it was doing so because of "technical problems."
Defending the House of Representatives’ decision to add EBC to the list of the House and the Senate, Rep. William H. Boyd, D-Iowa, said: “It is not only for the purposes of education, but it is also for the purposes of education and training. The training of the adolescent is not only for the education of the adolescent, but it is also for the education of the individual. The education of the adolescent is not only for the individual, but it is also for the education of the whole society.”

Boyd’s move to add EBC to the list of the House and the Senate is an important step in the process of improving educational outcomes for young people. By recognizing the need for educational programs that focus on the development of adolescents, the House and the Senate are taking steps toward creating a more equitable and just society. This is something that we all need to work toward, and it is important that we continue to support these efforts in the years to come.

Cable connection

Cable and pay TV, hailed as harbingers of a new age of video, are finding it difficult to live up to their potential as attraction-alternatives to network entertainment.

One of the many factors that are affecting the success of cable and pay TV is the increasing competition from the cable TV industry. There are now more than 10 million subscribers to cable TV, and the number is expected to increase by 20 million by the end of the year.

Another factor that is affecting the success of cable and pay TV is the increasing competition from the internet. The internet is providing consumers with a new way to access and watch television content, and this is threatening the dominance of cable and pay TV.

It is clear that cable and pay TV need to find new ways to attract and retain customers. They need to offer superior content and services, and they need to do so in a way that is accessible and affordable.
Japan, U.S. show strength to Soviets

"TOO MANY" for Japan and the U.S. to show military strength to Soviets, the two nations must build large-scale air and ground forces in an effort to send a clear message to the Soviets, Chairman Zablocki said Wednesday.

"We know the Soviets don't want to show strength," Zablocki said, "so we must build strength that they can't ignore."

Zablocki also said that the U.S. and Japan must work together to show a united front with the Soviets.

The U.S. military officials said Wednesday that the U.S. and Japan are working together to show a united front with the Soviets.

"We must show the Soviets that we are not afraid of them," Zablocki said. "We must show them that we are not going to back down."

State fans mad, vow that Lions will roar again

The State fans are frustrated with their team's recent performances. They are making plans to attend the upcoming game in person and are encouraging their friends and family to join them. The call to “roar” was a rallying cry to show support for the team, despite their struggles.
by Robert Ryan

The Iowa basketball team is going into the first game of the season against Prairie State College (PSC) with a 1-0 record. The team is led by Coach Sandy Stewart, according to Coach Sandy Stewart.

The deciding factor shouldn’t be ignored in the upcoming game, according to Coach Sandy Stewart. Stewart feels that the win over the PSC might be the turning point of the season. "Our offense is really taking off and we’re really improving," Stewart said.

The game will be played tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the new University Coliseum. The university is expecting a crowd of 1,000 fans for the game.

The defense is working well the way it is now, according to Stewart. "Our defense has been really good," Stewart said. "We’re stroking, defending and doing it in practice." Stewart said that the improvement is due to the hard work of the players in the last week, according to Stewart.

"We’re anticipating the ball movement and the players are really getting to the net," Stewart said. "Our game plan has helped." Another element that is entering into the game is the use of the "roadie" scheme.

"I THINK OUR players are in good shape," Stewart said. "But we’ll need to work on our blocking." Stewart said that the team will need to work on their blocking before the game.

The game against PSC was big for the Hawkeyes, according to Stewart. "It’s a really big game for us," Stewart said.

Stewart said that the team is in good shape and ready for the game. "We’re really ready for the game," Stewart said.

If Jeff’s plans to sports stadium’s are any indication, OT Line is right up to date and going strong. And this week’s price - a sight to behold. The price of a ticket for the 4th game of the season is $5.00.

But here’s the catch - Jeff’s also a big fan of the Hawkeyes and wants to see them win. So he decided to give the fans a break and offer a discount. The price of a ticket for the 5th game of the season is now only $4.00.

But here’s the rub - Jeff’s also a big fan of the Iowa State University and wants to see them win. So he decided to give the fans a break and offer a discount. The price of a ticket for the 6th game of the season is now only $3.00.

"We have the best decision to do what we’re doing," Jeff said. "And we’re doing it right." He said that he’s really looking forward to the games and is excited to see the fans.

STEWART SAYS Jeff’s signal against an offensive tactic that has worked very well. "The Iowa Coliseum is the best in the country," Jeff said. He said that he’s really looking forward to the games and is excited to see the fans.

Iowa City, Iowa, had sought its only Manhattan show. If you have a dollar to spend, you can try for a better seat, but it may be a discouragement to the victims of advertisements.

Hepner, 32, believes he has what it takes to make it as a professional comedian, and he'll do the hard way. "I know it takes a lot of rejection," he said. "But there are a few exceptions, like Kim Carnes, who made it that way; why not me?"

"Most recently I have known that their decision was the right one," he said, adding, "I feel that their decision was right."

"I can't allow myself to be turned under fire," he said, "I can't allow myself to be turned under fire."

Slow, glossy ballads fill Ronstadt album

By Steve Novack

Records

LINDA RONSTADT. Linda Ronstadt’s new album, “The Very Best of Linda Ronstadt,” is a collection of her greatest hits. "I never thought I could sing that kind of music," she says. Ronstadt says she recorded the album in a bar called the Bijou. "I always wanted to do a record like this," she adds. "I love the voicings of the songs, and I wanted to do something different."

Ronstadt’s first hit, "He Call’s Me Crazy," was written by her brother, Bob. "I think he liked the idea of the song," she says. "He’s a great songwriter." Ronstadt says she recorded the album with a band that included some of the best musicians in the business. "It was a lot of fun," she says. "I really enjoyed singing with them." Ronstadt says she hopes the album will be successful. "I want to reach a new audience," she says. "I want to do something different." The album will be released in November.

Secrets' pop songs rouse crowd

Night life

Iowa City's Kansas based pop band with British influence, secrets, open out a four-night engagement at the Crow's Nest tonight.

By Kevin Parks

BENT ROAD, local singer-songwriter, guitarist and city-based producer The Secrets, are back in town doing what they do best. They're playing at the Crow's Nest later this evening. The band, led by keyboardist and vocalist Tony Hoad, and featuring guitarist and bassist Norman Dabb, have been causing a buzz in the local music scene with their unique brand of pop music.

The band's sound is a blend of British and American influences, creating a distinctive style that is both refreshing and familiar. With their upbeat and catchy tunes, The Secrets have been able to gain a loyal following in Iowa City and beyond.

Tonight, they will be performing a set of classic pop songs that are sure to get the crowd moving. From timeless hits to more recent releases, the band will be delivering a show that is sure to please.

So if you're looking for a night of fun and music, head on down to the Crow's Nest tonight. The Secrets are sure to provide a great night out.

Bukowski cuts through life; 'Ham on Rye' is nasty book

By Dean Naffas

Special To The Daily Iowan

Ham on Rye by Charles Bukowski, Black Sparrow Press, 1982

THERE IS NFT a new book. Physically, it's unremarkable. It's the same size as a paperback novel, and it's extremely nasty — like those orials on the streets in after-hours bars.

But there is wisdom in its pages and will never pass the impression. Moreover, many books may legally be published in a free society, even if it is to be corrupted by mindless children. Fortunately, Ham on Rye compares favorably with Henry Miller's work, especially compared to the heights and depths of Socrates' son.

Bukowski's Henry Chumsky is the son of a lower-class drunk who makes his way through life with his fists. The name is the name of Tagore. He begins writing stories of his own and even if the occasional bit of the mindless immaturity remains unapologetic, however, as his life is a sad series of encounters with drunks. The one vice he does not encourage is homosexuality — try that with the might of a 21-year-old. His mind, World War II begins and Henry is still a virgin.

I compared this novel with Henry Miller, another opium addict. Henry Miller's writing is that of a two-year-old. Henry Chumsky's leans towards the maturity of a 21-year-old. His writing seems to be attracting, and he is not shy about it. Yet he seems to be a writer. Indeed, he has suffered for his art in college. His first novel, This Year, was published in 1980.

Since I've mentioned class, the one vice he does not encourage, the result is a most honest and interesting person.

The Suburbs will play at the Crew's Nest tonight.

Suburbs: musical giddiness characterizes its I.C. debut

By Jim Hensin

Special To The Daily Iowan

ICRACKED but true. After many years of being evicted from the house of love, the Suburbs have found a new home. Long known as Mount Pleasant Street and now called "The Suburbs," the band will play their kinetic brand of pop to the Crew's Nest tonight. The Suburbs are: frontman only, in support of their new single, "I Love You," with live band.

The release was delayed at least a week, and released their debut EP on Tuesday. After having a label interested in it, the Suburbs turned down the deal.

The group released the single to the crowd to promote their upcoming release of a new album. The Suburbs released their single in 1986.

In its debut, the group released a single collection of short punk-pop songs highlighting the lead vocalist, "John Figes'" power. There was a clear lead on the vocals of this song, but I was still amazed by it.

More than half of the band that appeared, the Suburbs were: frontman only, in support of their new single, "I Love You," with live band.
