Caldwell is guilty of 2nd-degree murder

By Patricia Reuter

"It's the jury's fault. Caldwell is guilty of murder in the first degree," said Valentine T. Weather, the defense attorney for Caldwell. The jury of 11 women and one man deliberated for more than 10 hours on Monday before returning a guilty verdict on the charge of murder in the first degree.

Caldwell, 34, was tried in the death of 10-year-old Lisa Egan. Egan, 34, was shown to be the only person present in the room during the shooting. The jury had the option of finding Caldwell guilty of murder in the first degree or second degree.

The trial lasted for more than two weeks, and the defense team presented evidence of an alibi for Caldwell, including witnesses who testified that they were in the room at the time of the shooting. However, the prosecution was able to present evidence that contradicted the alibi.

According to the court testimony, Caldwell shot Lisa Egan at around 3:00 p.m. on Oct. 5, 1993, in the Egan's home in Johnson County. The jury found Caldwell guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced him to life in prison without the possibility of parole.

Regional battle moves violence into Costa Rica

By JUDY AMUNDO

The regional battle between the United States and Mexico has escalated into a full-scale war with the recent violence in Costa Rica. The battle began with a border dispute over the construction of a dam on the River San Juan, but has since spread to include fighting between Mexican soldiers and gang members in the region.

Although Costa Rica has maintained a policy of non-intervention in international affairs, the government has been under increasing pressure to take action. The United States has threatened to use force if the violence continues, and it has been reported that a military intervention is being considered.

The Costa Rican government has called for an end to the violence and has appealed to the international community for assistance. However, it remains to be seen whether the United States will honor its commitment to non-intervention in the region.

Low-risk kids to be cut from food aid

By JUDY AMUNDO

The Food and Nutrition Program (FNP) has announced plans to cut food aid to low-risk children. The program is designed to provide food assistance to children who are at risk of malnutrition, but the program has been criticized for its lack of effectiveness.

The program currently serves 20 million children in the United States, but the government has proposed reducing the number of children served to 10 million. The proposal has been met with opposition from health and nutrition experts.

"The program is not effective in preventing malnutrition," said Dr. John Johnson, a pediatrician at the Children's Hospital. "We need to focus on programs that are more effective in improving health outcomes."

City to act on funds for elderly housing

By Mark Leonard

For the past two years, celebration of the 150th development project of the Iowa City Housing Commission, funds for the project, city officials are hoping that something can be done.

The Mississippi housing facility would be for elderly citizens who don’t need the specialized care of a nursing home.

"There are many people on the waiting list because they have trouble walking and climbing. Some Center Coordinator, Social Services, are at that level, that’s a necessary level. There is a need for congregated housing, especially with the aged population,” said the Madison ISD population.

The city’s Housing Committee had made congregated housing Grant No. 1 priority according to Charles Cothran, vice chairman. There, we said, a move in the right direction is to make housing available for people over 62 years of age. It’s not just a matter of demographics.

"We want people to know that we are looking into other options for people over 62 years of age," he said. "We like to be able to get them on a congregated housing facility."

"Congregated housing has been neglected in the city’s housing sector," said Mary Regan, a city housing specialist. And "Everybody is doing the same thing, but we’re all doing it differently."

"What many people on the waiting list because they have trouble walking and climbing and making a decision, I think, and more importantly, should give them a lot of freedom and a little happiness. Senate rejects appointment of athlete to control board

By Christian Wash

In a heated debate Thursday night, the UI Student Senate rejected the appointment of Iowa football eligibility some senators questioned because they feared he would have a conflict of interests and he's only going to be here for another year. He is qualified, but the problem is a conflict of interests, Wash said. "We need to cover the need, not the athlete to control board, because they are athletes, but they should be heavily represented and important ideas for the board."

Sen. Doug McVay said that when he went to the board, he wouldn't feel quite so smart. "You wouldn't feel quite so smart," McVay said. "You wouldn't feel quite so smart, because they know all there is to know about the board," McVay said. "Just to prove how smart and knowledgeable you are.,"

Senators voted against replacing Linda VanEtten, a representative whose appointment the senators feared he would have a conflict of interests.

Joy is magic for magic clown

By Nicole Brubaker

The Daily Iowan

Magistrate Judge Bengston has probably never heard the word " Abracadabra" as a magic phrase, but the words " Abracadabra" did sound perfectly normal to young Beard.

Beard, a sophomore from Alto, Iowa, whose parents attend the University of Iowa, has never heard or learned about a magic phrase. He has never heard about the one that has been taught to him. He has never heard about the one that he has been taught.

Performing as a clown is exhausting. For instance, a child may be shy, and they might try to do things that they can't do, and sometimes they even drop things.

Beard found out about the group after he had been a part of the ministry almost since it began. Beard said, " But I've been doing this for a long time, so I guess it's hard to put that as much as I can put on it."

Democrats launch campaign to save drunken driving bill

202 MUNIS (LP) - The Iowa Legislative Budget Committee has zeroed in on a bill to expand and improve state laws against drunken driving. The committee will consider a bill introduced by House Majority Leader Lowell Jordon, D-Burlington, that would increase penalties for drunken drivers and enact new laws for dealing with juveniles who drive drunk.

The bill is part of a larger legislative package that includes a number of proposals to improve state laws against drunken driving. The package, which includes bills introduced by Senate Majority Leader Mark Millard, D-Davenport, and House Majority Leader Lowell Jordon, D-Burlington, would increase penalties for drunken drivers and enact new laws for dealing with juveniles who drive drunk.

Leads to legislation's changes that could have an impact on drunk drivers.

If a drunken driver causes an injury and a six-year old child is killed, the child will be able to collect on a personal injury claim if the driver's insurance is not sufficient. The changes also include provisions that would make it easier for people to challenge the results of breath tests.

The changes are expected to be included in the bill, according to Democratic leaders, who are hopeful that the changes will have a positive impact on drunk drivers.

U.N. conference will focus on nuclear world inseurity

By Ken Brown

A conference examining the "Management of Global Change," featuring more than 60 international scientists, officials and experts from the U.S. and 150 other nations, will be held in Cedar Rapids this week.

The conference, sponsored by the U.N. Conference on Trade and Development, will examine "the emerging insecurity in today's uncertain world and the steps that can be taken to ensure the protection of and concern people in our global society.

"It is an issue of global concern," said U.S. Rep. Charles Jenkins, Iowa.

"The need for the conference," said U.S. Rep.起了 the National Education Association, "is to educate people and raise awareness of the issues that need to be addressed in order to create a more peaceful world.

The conference will feature a variety of speakers and panel discussions on topics such as environmental sustainability, social justice, and international relations. It will also include a number of workshops and interactive sessions designed to engage participants in dialogue and action.

The conference is open to the public and is free of charge. It is a great opportunity for people of all backgrounds to come together and learn from experts and each other.

Skeptics say zoning proposal is too late to save north side

By John Rieker

Opposition to designating Iowa City's north side residential and commercial areas as historic districts has resulted in a public hearing Thursday night at a public hearing.

The Planning and Zoning Commission will likely designate the area to the north of North College St., east of 10th St., south of 10th St., and west of North College St., as a historic district.

The city's Historic Preservation Commission has recommended that the area be designated as such.

The area is currently zoned as a "mixed-use" district, which allows for a variety of uses, including residential, commercial, and industrial.

Under the proposal, owners planning to make major changes or demolish buildings in the area would have to work with the PZC to coordinate outside design reviewers with historic advisors in an attempt to "preserve the integrity of the neighborhood, improve property values, and enhance the quality of life for present and future residents.

Under the proposal, owners would be required to engage community-based historic advisors in their work to "protect the area's historic character and integrity.

You booze, you lose

Alcohol may provide a little temporary pleasure, but it also has the capacity to do lasting damage. In some cases the danger is long-term. Perhaps the most visible and dangerous kind of alcohol-related health problem is that of the liver, whose physical, emotional and social well-being will be seriously affected by excessive consumption. In others, the damage may be short-term and immediate. A major defense argument in the number of fatalities that occur in the U.S. is that the healing power of a flask was a result of diminished consciousness caused by excessive drinking.

The traditional end-of-the-school parties at Iowa schools have made April and May particularly hazardous months for alcohol consumption. Last year during April and May alone, 116 persons were killed and 74 injured seriously in alcohol-related automobile accidents.

This year, concerned citizens in many communities have banded together to provide alternative parties on high school prom and graduation nights, instead of the usual hogsheads. Castle Royale YMCAs are being adapted for after-prom parties, with students who intend drinking either to be provided after-proms and vacations to Florida's DisneyWorld and Marshalltown High School sports banquet rooms set aside for drinking, complete with live band, dance floor, free use of mall video-vending machines and a host of other amenities. The goal of this step is to provide an environment in which young people can celebrate in the only way they know how: to have a problem.

Bonuses for bosses

This week the bonuses for executives of the U.S. automobile industry were announced. The executives (excluding Chrysler, who has not yet announced their bonuses here) have gotten an average bonus totaling a quarter of a billion dollars. Philip Caldwell (GM), who has been beating the pants off his American counterpart, only earns about nine times the gravy. And since the profits are artificially up due to higher taxes, the bonus-pay raises over the last few years are likely to be a temporary phenomenon, if the economy is to really recover.

Intelligent life forms

Anybody who saw the movie Aliens knows what an alien is: well, the dictionary defines "alien" as "born, living, or resident not in one's own country; especially, one born in a country other than one's own." In the movie, the definition of "alien" could be anything, anything.

To John Gage

I THINK SEEM TO ME that one of the most important topics facing America today is that of the "alien." In the '80s the rapid decline of the U.S. technology industry will probably result in a great deal of new immigration, as our factories are phased out by cheaper foreign competition.

The truth is, we have seen many examples in the last 20 years of how colleges and universities are becoming less culturally isolated. The question then becomes as to why the dominance of men and religious values is not more evident in our society. How can it be that when significant portions of this male-dominated society is largely responsible for this decline in American society, the overall result is to do lasting damage.

Press performance

To the editor,

Dennis Brown covered a speech by Israeli journalist Yehuda Beck yesterday at the University of Iowa. Beck was accompanied by David Landy, editor of the Middle East Times, and was asked if he would be willing to come to the University of Iowa to speak.

"I'm interested in seeing Yehuda Beck, but I'm not interested in the Middle East Times," said Landy.

In addition, there are "illegal" foreign entities who managed to find a way to the U.S. to give the residents of Middle East Times productive and profitable work in the United States. It's only fair they have the opportunity to speak here.

The committee was not interested in having a representative of the Middle East Times, but was interested in the opportunity of having a representative of the Middle East Times.

Hassard leads team into nonscoring meet

By Marilyn Raptors

The Iowa women's track team traveled to Iowa City for the Big Ten Women's Track Championships. As a team, everyone has their specialties and each of the teams will finish as strong as they can. However, the coaches, including Assistant Coach Brenda Hassard, said the advantage the team has is the opportunity to train in cold conditions. The weather in Iowa City was cold, with temperatures in the teens and snowfall. This allowed the athletes to adapt to different conditions and improve their performance. The team is looking forward to the competition and hopes to achieve their best results. The meet will feature various events, including sprints, hurdles, and long-distance races. The athletes are excited to compete and show their skills. The meet will be held in late February, and the team will be preparing for it throughout the next few weeks. The Iowa women's track team is determined to give their best performance and to compete against the best teams in the Big Ten Conference. The meet will be an opportunity for the athletes to showcase their talent and to move towards their goals. The coaches are confident in their team and are looking forward to the upcoming competition.

You be the landlord

Let us help you persuade your parents to take advantage of tax benefits by buying your campus housing instead of renting it. At Waiden Ridge Townhomes, your parents can buy quality housing—two or three bedrooms—you become the landlord—they get the tax benefits. The results, usually "No Cost Housing." And far, far better living.
