N.I. Wargears for Fears U.S. Invasion

NAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - Nicaragua deployed tanks and air defense units throughout the capital Tuesday and ordered all members of the military, reserves and militia to return to their posts, President Oscar Arias said.

Arias dated the alert after the U.S. Defense Department said that Nicaragua had received a delivery of advanced combat aircraft, possibly for use in a major invasion.

The threat of an invasion has forced the Nicaraguan government to issue a series of emergency measures, including the recall of all military personnel and the activation of the national territories. The government has also warned its citizens to stay indoors and to keep their homes locked.

The Pentagon has said that the delivery of combat aircraft is a significant development and that it could be used to support an invasion of Nicaragua.

In a statement Tuesday, Arias said that the delivery of the aircraft is a clear indication of Nicaragua's intent to use force.

"This is a clear demonstration of Nicaragua's determination to use force," he said.

"We are prepared to defend ourselves and our country," he added.

The government has also ordered the closure of all borders and the suspension of all non-essential travel.

Nicaraguan children Monday watched Soviet-made tanks taking positions in Nicaragua. The Sandinista government, having used U.S. military assistance, "will not lose an inch of national territory, a state or a city, to the units of the reservists, to those of the Popular Sandinista Militias," Secretary of State George Schultz said.

The United States announced Monday it would provide Nicaragua with $100 million in economic aid and military assistance to help it defend itself against a possible invasion. The aid will include fuel, spare parts and other supplies.

The United States has also increased its military presence in Central America, deploying additional troops to the region.

The predicted impact on the U.S. economy is significant, with the additional military spending adding to the already high inflation rates.

However, Arias said that the deliveries are a clear indication of Nicaragua's determination to use force and that the government is prepared to defend itself.

Alpha Phi Alpha house opens door for other black greek organizations

By Maudey Dokulska

Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity has become the first black greek group to open its house to a given group, and members of the UI greek system say it is a positive trend for the small fraternity and other black groups.

"It's not the first," said Mary McDonald, a sophomore in business administration and a member of Alpha Phi Alpha. "But it's a very positive trend. We encourage other fraternities to open up their homes to black greek organizations.

"It's a great opportunity and it's a great step for the fraternities and other black greek organizations," McDonald added. "It's a great opportunity for the fraternity and other black greek organizations to participate in other greek activities and to work together."

"The fraternity is making a good decision," said Jay Powell, president of the UI Pan-Hellenic Council. "It's a great opportunity for the fraternity and other black greek organizations to participate in other greek activities and to work together."

Members of Panhellenic system say juncture fails to 'socially integrate'

By Mary Brown

When traditionally black and white UI greek organizations began to openly try to integrate, the same governing bodies over a year ago, many believed the change would help "socially integrate" the two types of greek organizations.

"It's a great opportunity," said Michael Ray, a black member of the UI Pan-Hellenic Council. "But it's also a great opportunity for UI greek organizations to work together.

"They're all just human beings," said Ray. "We need to work together to make UI greek organizations better.

Seifert's move causes McDonald's rumors

After 26 years at its present location, Seifert's Market, 1515 S. Clinton St., will relocate this weekend in the Old Capitol Market.

According to Seifert's Manager Thomas Huber, the management of the South Capitol Market decided to move for the last time.

"We've been here since 1974," said Huber. "We've had great customers and a great location. But it's time to move."
Astronauts retrieve satellite via spacewalking acrobatics

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Two spacewalking astronauts retrieved a crippled satellite Sunday, Dec. 5, and brought the satellite into the shuttle cargo bay for an on-board diagnostic test.

"All right, we got her," shouted Joseph Allen, the spacewalking astronaut called Palapa, as he looked up at the telex on his helmet visor.

Allen and David Walker, the other manual spacewalker, had hoped to retrieve the Palapa satellite Monday, but an undetected interference flaw in their communication system caused them to delay for 48 hours.

It was a spectacular example of man's ability to work in harmony with technologically advance equipment to achieve a historic first for the nation's space program.

Allen and Walker, who are the first spacewalkers, were launched in the shuttle Atlantis along with seven other astronauts.

Astronauts use a relay antenna to bring the satellite into the cargo bay for a check. The satellite had a 350-pound "stinger" which glittered in the sunlight. Both satellite and astronauts were traveling at 17,500 mph.

Allen and Walker planned to enter Palapa like a high-kicked right in white armor with a four-foamt long-loom guyline. He marked the dozens, called "Way 1," on the 350-pound stinger in place. Allen radioed her base of the satellite, with Allen radioing her when required.

"Looking perfect; zero," he said. "Be gentle with the satellite up in Palapa." Allen explained. "Yes, we go."

The two astronauts moved around Palapa to hold the stinger in place. The computer-controlled robot arm on the Atlantis space shuttle tried to stabilize the slowly rotating satellite.

"Push Palapa," instructed Allen, "All right. The satellite was retrieved. The satellite was confirmed. The robotic arm had repositioned Allen."

Palapa was the first satellite to be retrieved in the history of the U.S. space program. The satellite was retrieved in 1962, and another manual spacewalker had retrieved the satellite in 1963.

Fiscal advisers review '86 budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ronald Reagan emerged victorious from yesterday's budget negotiations, saying he would seek legislative approval of his tax reform plan.

"I think there's a fair compromise," Reagan said. "I think the tax reform is fair in terms of the cost of living." The president added that he would seek legislative approval of his tax reform plan.

"The working group," of top economic advisers, in the White House budget office, is "very high," the president said. "We have an agreement on the tax reform plan." The president added that he would seek legislative approval of his tax reform plan.

"I think the tax reform is fair in terms of the cost of living," the president said. "I think the tax reform is fair in terms of the cost of living." The president added that he would seek legislative approval of his tax reform plan.

Sniper kills former Olympic runner

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) - A sportswriter who lived in the Marathon Olympic Village was killed by a sniper who was shooting at the Olympic Village.

"Oh, God, he's terrible," former Oregon track star Bill Bowerman, the former coach of the university's track program, said in a statement. "We were all in shock."

The victim was identified as Allen W. Scott, 24, of Eugene, Wash., a former member of the Oregon track team who was training at the university. Scott was killed by a bullet fired from a .22-caliber rifle.

The investigation is continuing, but authorities said they believe the sniper was after the Olympic Village.

Latest version of Hitchcock effort isn’t ‘Too Much’ like earlier work

By Marvina Davis

Art and entertainment

A
American International films have stated that the ‘Too Much’ of the title of their newest film is not an indication that the picture itself is a too much effort. Instead, it is a reference to the bluntness and impatience that is often found in real life. The film is a mix of humor and suspense, with a touch of pathos, that is sure to appeal to a wide audience.

The story centers around a young couple who are on the brink of divorce. The wife is a successful lawyer, but she is often overwhelmed by her job and her personal life. The husband is a struggling writer, but he is determined to make a name for himself. The couple’s relationship becomes strained when they are forced to live together due to a legal matter.

The film is directed by a well-known director, who has a reputation for creating films with a mix of humor and drama. The cast includes several well-known actors, who bring their talent to the screen. The film is produced by a major studio, which has a history of producing successful films.

The film’s musical score is composed by a well-known composer, who has won several awards for his work. The score is a mix of classical and contemporary music, which adds to the film’s overall appeal.

The film is currently screening at several major theaters in the United States, and it is expected to be a box office success. The reviews have been generally positive, with many critics praising the film’s performances and direction.

Television

Television is a good 'out game.' FISHING IS only slightly better, both in quality and quantity. NBC's 'Tonight Show' (10:30) is an instant. ABC's '60 Minutes' (7:30) is excellent. Both offer insights into the world of entertainment. The late-night chat shows are delightful, with their witty banter and celebrity guests. The NFL games on both networks are engaging, with their strategic plays and exciting comebacks. The weather reports provide a good visual display of the day's forecasts. The news programs offer a wide range of topics, from politics to international events. The talk shows are informative, with guests like political figures and celebrities. The children's programs are educational, teaching young viewers about science, history, and the arts. The sports shows are thrilling, with their fast-paced action. The reality shows provide a glimpse into people's lives, with their dramatic storylines and unexpected twists. The documentary shows offer a deep dive into various subjects, from history to science. The variety shows have a little bit of everything, with music, comedy, and dance. The mini-series are immersive, with their complex characters and plotlines. Overall, there is something for everyone on television, making it a great source of entertainment.
M Y RECENT profile of the Print Study Room in the UI Library's Art Center was designed to heighten awareness among the faculty and students about the availability of this valuable resource. The Print Study Room, as I mentioned in my previous column, is an excellent place for students to explore various aspects of printing and typography. The room is also available for use by faculty members, who may schedule individual study time or use the facility for group meetings.

Currently, the Print Study Room is open to all UI students and faculty members. It is located on the main floor of the Art Center and is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Print Study Room is equipped with a variety of printing equipment, including presses, binders, and paper paddles. It also has a comprehensive collection of printing-related books and periodicals, as well as a selection of printmaking supplies.
