The Iowa Daily Iowan ~ Iowa City, Iowa ~ Thursday, November 10, 1984

Briefly

Nigerian ridicles Pentagon

Washington (UPI) — Nigerian President Shehu Shagari ridiculed the United States during his Ottawa address on Wednesday for its recent massacre of Lebanese civilians in Lebanon, charging that Washington is "a monster... a stone-throwing demon." Despite tense relations, Foreign Minister Christian F. Fossum of Norway, who is in the United States for a round of meetings with officials here, told the Associated Press on Wednesday that the U.S. and West European delegations would ease tensions, however.

Added numbers defy strike

LONDON — Nearly 1,800 coal miners began a strike today in an effort to force the British government to increase their wages. After three days without work, thousands of people in London took to the streets, some with flags and others with guns, to support the miners. The miners' strike continues.

Gandhi's claim of victory

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi claimed Wednesday that his Congress Party had won the Indian national election. In his new role as the head of the non-aligned group, Gandhi said the election was a "triumph of democracy and solidarity.

Evans plans Ethiopia visit

WASHINGTON — Rep. Capps Evans, R-Iowa, is planning a trip to Ethiopia on a fact-finding mission next month. Evans, who is a member of the House Middle Eastern Affairs Committee, said he plans to visit the country to assess the situation there.

Gandhi's India claim

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi claimed Wednesday that his Congress Party had won the Indian national election. In his new role as the head of the non-aligned group, Gandhi said the election was a "triumph of democracy and solidarity.

PRESIDENT'S POST OFFICE

By CARY FRIEDMAN

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my disagreement with the recent editorial on the subject of global warming. The editorial suggests that there is enough evidence to warrant immediate action to combat this issue. However, I believe that more research is needed before we can make such a claim.

Sincerely,
Cary Friedman

UI College of Dentistry announces world’s first infant care program

By Miry Bohn.

The need for dental care among children has long been recognized, but until recently, there were no programs specifically designed to address dental health needs in infants. This is where the University of Iowa College of Dentistry’s new Infant Dental Care Program comes into play.

The Program’s Aim

The program’s primary focus is on infants and toddlers, specifically targeting children under the age of 3. It aims to identify and treat early signs of dental decay and promote good oral hygiene practices from an early age.

How It Works

Infants and toddlers are seen at regular intervals to monitor their oral health and receive necessary interventions. Early identification of decay and intervention can prevent the progression of dental decay and reduce the need for future dental treatments.

Benefits of Early Intervention

Early intervention in the dental health of infants and toddlers is crucial. It not only prevents the development of cavities but also helps in the overall development of the child’s oral health. By addressing dental issues early, children are more likely to develop a positive attitude towards oral health care as they grow older.

Impact on the Community

The program is not only beneficial for the children it serves but also has a broader impact on the community. It promotes the concept of preventive care, which can lead to a decrease in the overall cost of dental care and a reduction in the number of dental problems that require more extensive and costly treatments.

Conclusion

The Infant Dental Care Program is a significant advancement in the field of dental health care. It demonstrates the University of Iowa College of Dentistry’s commitment to addressing the oral health needs of all ages, starting from infancy. This program sets an excellent example for others in the dental community to follow, potentially leading to similar programs being established in other parts of the world.

For More Information

Ohio State ombudsman describes grievance-solving issues, problems

By Myronte Haynes

Iowa City Press-Citizen

Donald R. Good, a former university ombudsman at the University of Iowa, said he can recall no incident of student protest ever coming to his office during his tenure. The office is named in honor of Andrew R. Good, a former school principal, university administrator and professor of educational administration.

"An advantage," he said, "is that people are not prejudging the situation. They may be in conflict with their professors, but we just listen to both sides of the story. We don't try to cause the problem. We just try to help the people involved work out their own solutions."

Good said the position of ombudsman has existed at Ohio State University since the 1930s, and the same job was created in the mid-1960s at the University of Iowa. The position is currently associate vice provost for faculty and student affairs.

"I've been doing this for 10 years," he said. "I think the students here are more willing to talk to someone willing to listen than they are to their professors."

According to Good, most students who seek him out are having problems with faculty members or administrators. "I think I've had one or two cases of students against other students," he said. "Most of the time, it's students against faculty members or vice versa."

The ombudsman said he helps students and faculty work together to resolve their problems. Good said he doesn't try to cause problems or even to resolve them. He just listens to both sides of the story and helps the people involved work out their own solutions.

Iowa City, Iowa

The bite last Monday and Tuesday by hundreds of thousands of workers in South Africa is unlike the kind of mass protests that have occurred in many other places. The workers were fighting for higher wages and better working conditions.

KATHY MILLER said the Wednesday's action was a response to the government's crackdown on the Soweto riots.

The workers, who were mostly young, mostly black, and mostly skilled, began their protest by shutting down the factories. They then marched to the government buildings, demanding that their demands be met.

The government's response was brutal. The police used tear gas and water cannons to disperse the protesters. At least 10 people were killed, and hundreds were injured.

The workers' demands were simple and clear: they wanted to be treated with respect, to be paid a living wage, and to have the right to form unions.

The government's response was to crack down even harder. The police used excess force, and the military was called in to quell the unrest.

The workers' response was to continue their strike, calling for international support and condemnation of the government's actions.

The world watched in horror as the South African government's brutal crackdown on the workers continued. The workers' determination and courage were an inspiration to all who believe in the power of the people.

The workers' strike was a turning point in the struggle for justice in South Africa. It showed the world that the workers were not going to be silenced.

The workers' strike also showed the world that the government's policies were wrong. The workers were fighting for their basic rights, and the government was denying them.

The workers' strike was a call to action. It was a wake-up call for the world to stand with the workers of South Africa and to demand justice for all.

The workers' strike was a victory for the workers of South Africa. It was a victory for justice, and it was a victory for all who believe in the power of the people.
Salvadoran troops counter rebel acts

United Press International

Salvadoran army officials Wednesday said government troops killed or injured at least 25 leftist guerrillas and a 5-year-old child in actions Wednesday.

The government reported rebel acts killing four men and injuring 20 in the capital and its northern area, the highest level of violence in as many years.

The government said it had killed the child, Yolanda Sandoval, and 25 guerrillas in two engagements.

The rebels claimed they had killed six government soldiers.

The violence erupted as the 14th anniversary of the 1979-1991 civil war was being celebrated.

The government said Yolanda Sandoval would get an inquest.

The body is to be taken to the town of Santa Tecla Wednesday.

The government said they would play their music and fire into the air as a gesture of respect.

The incendiary return fire is popular with the government.

The rebels' claim was not verified.

Engendering abuse

We spoke earlier this week of the ugliness we had encountered at The Daily Iowan during the just-finished political campaign. Of all the areas we looked at, the得出答案 was the single most worrying. The reason we chose to look at this area was that the anonymous, telephone-based death threats that week in Iowa City and across the state were disturbing. The nature of the threats were disturbing. The nature of the letter...
Astronauts hook second satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Tuesday's unsuccessful salvage crew pulled a second satellite out of a Gordon orbital Wednesday in a sequence of events that included capturing a second satellite Tuesday after an earlier shuttle crew was unable to retrieve it.

The first of two satellites rescued last week was in a location of the shuttle craft's dirty rocket nozzle and then pulled a second satellite out of its parking place but I can't see any relation to us.

The second of two satellites rescued earlier this week in the parking place was called a failure. No other nation has that capability.

Although all shuttle crew members reported that the repairs are still in orbit, even before yesterday's second retrieval of the satellite, Tuesday's retrieval may be the final one of this mission. We're determined to retrieve it.

We're absolutely dedicated to the retrieval of all debris and to the development of technology that can retrieve the debris. We're determined to retrieve it.

As soon as the second attempt is completed, we'll return and retrieve the second. We're determined to retrieve that as soon as we can.

Unlike the second satellite, the second satellite was located in a parked location in the parking place. We're determined to retrieve it.

We're determined to retrieve it. We're determined to retrieve the debris. And we're determined to retrieve the debris.

Amana will sponsor tourney for women beginning in ’85

By Melena Rappaport

Starting in 1985 there will be two Iowa Hawkeye Club $250 dinners for men’s and women’s events now a part of the UI-club program. The money raised will be used to fund a single elimination competition with a round robin tournament to be held in the first round.

[For further details, call 353-9884.]

BIC plans weekend bike excursion

The Bicycle Club of Iowa have scheduled a 30-mile ride for this weekend. The route will begin at the State University dormitory near the Oval and proceed around the South Campus to the Interlake, and return. Applications are currently available in Room E of the Field House and transportation will begin on Wednesday, Nov. 27 with noon meetings. The trip will begin at 8 a.m. on Saturday, Nov. 28, and the ride and return information can be received from store at 40-9941. The bicycle club is now accepting new members.

Olympic boxers will make pro debut

Olympic boxers will make their pro debuts this week in Chicago and Los Angeles. Olympic boxers are free to compete in the professional boxing world immediately upon completion of their amateur careers. Des Moines’ Jay Neal, who won the light-heavyweight class at the Olympics, will fight at the US Olympic Trials in Los Angeles on Thursday. Also bidding for the pro ranks will be Des Moines’ William Jackson, who will compete in New York.

"I don't know why my arms do what they do," said. "But that's how it is. I think they are going fast. I'm trying to make them go fast but they just keep on going.

Despite her success this season, Stevens has no real explanation for why she uses her arms that way. "I'm not too sure why my arms are doing this," she said. "I just want to help the team win."
Flying Funkley Breakfast Club sweeps Turkey Trot

By John Gould

The Flying Funkley Breakfast Club continued its annual tradition of winning all of the divisions of the UI International Services Turkey Trot, almost.

With the one exception of Rich Fuller, who placed second in the 16K race, almost everyone in attendance seemed satisfied with their performance.

The 16K race, which was won by Don Gish, showed the Flying Funkley team's strength in the longer distances.

For winning these divisions, the Flying Funkley Breakfast Club collected four turkeys for their Thanksgiving party that will be held sometime this week before the holiday.

Enrollment was declared the winner of the women's 5K, with a time of 21:32. The race was held on the UI Golf Course and consisted of a 2-loop, 5K race blinds loop around the rolling golf course.

The race was held on the Phalanx Golf Course and consisted of a 3-loop, 5K race around the rolling golf course.

Purdue eyeing bowl bid against winless Indiana

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) - Purdue is eyeing a bowl bid against winless Indiana.

The Boilermakers are currently 6-3 and could clinch a Big Ten Conference tie with a win over the Wolverines.

Any team that finishes the regular season 7-4 will qualify for the Rose Bowl.

Almost all of the divisions of the UI International Services Turkey Trot, almost.

The four Rose Bowl contenders are Michigan, Ohio State, Purdue, and Wisconsin.

Michigan and Michigan State would make Leon Miller's record as the Big Ten record.

Ohio State would be able to go to the Rose Bowl if it wins its last two games.

Purdue is currently 6-3 and could clinch a Big Ten Conference tie with a win over the Wolverines.

Benevolent Performers. Stage through the use of risers. This is maintaining a theatrical effect. The text for the Britten, which was at best a stage with minimalist performance space certainly puts the audience on a level with the actors. The three works to be performed balance are another well. In the fourth century, "Wandering Scholar" of Gustav Holst, featuring the words written "Aldous Huxley" by Douglas Britton and "Wishful Things" to the words by Ethel Wright, will be performed. The performances are staged balancing the audience with the performers balance. In this year, whose ability to support the text musically is advised to start early or carpool due to the performance halls served by the OASIS. Iowa City, Iowa

MUSICAL TOMATOE TO STIR UP FANS

W ith a NEW album on the market and a high profile performance at Gabe's in Indianapolis, made his name known as a local artist at the beginning of the decade. and a seminar titled "Passages: The Print of the decade," Tomate is now coming into his own as a Chicago native now living in the city. He got down . . . brought the bone to the table. I had my desk. I was trying to fancy this piece of meat. I was . Then I didn't want to stop. This is a review of the new album, the latter-day work, "The New Uve Show," however, isn't a complete departure from the current sound of the latter-day Frogs. "We do a touch of all staff to make some new things," Tomatoe stated.

Tomatoe's performance in Indianapolis City follows the release of his fourth album, "Bare Bones," which he calls "for fun." It had been recorded between two sessions in Los Angeles, with the group's sound in a little different from that of the earlier albums. A few groupies, a few more geeks, a few less geeks, which is what the Frogs started out to be.

The NEW LIVE show, however, isn't a complete departure from the current sound of the latter-day Frogs. "We do a touch of all staff to make some new things," Tomatoe stated.

Tomatoe stated, "and if not, well, at least I had a good time making it." Tomatoe's ever getting involved in shows to help promote the record. "I'm my first endeavor in hardrock psych." he joked. The company making the video will be "submitting it to everyone."

The one song in particular, "The Ban­ ner," which Tomate attributed to "a combination of things," Tomatoe said. "We're hoping it will get airplay on certain rock titles," he stated.

But, even as the album does prove "Tomatoe's breakthrough," the album will continue to bring crowds on board. His "Bare Bones" show is a hit or rock n' roll institution, and should, at some time or another, be seen to by all.
Browne's newest poetry influenced by the Midwest

By Julie McLaughlin

Maurice Dennis Browne is a native of England where he has lived for most of his life. He is also a native of the Midwest. All of his books have been published by small presses, and all have been ignored by the mainstream literary world. Browne's newest book, "Winter," is a collection of short stories that were written in England and the Midwest. The stories in "Winter" are influenced by Browne's time in both regions, and they explore themes of love, loss, and the passage of time.

Readings

World's in World - Friday evening at 9PM

Browne will give a reading from his poetry, which will probably parallel some of his own work, thanks to South Dakota universities, and are sponsored by the US International Writing Program.

Browne was born in England, and although there is little of that era in his letters, he favored both the novel and the short story, and in the US is certainly the richer for it.

By far, the easiest book of Browne's to get hold of is "The Best Ever," published in 1965, containing many poems, selected by the University of Iowa Press Committee. This is a collection of poems that Browne has written since his time at the University of Iowa, and it includes his most recent work. "The Best Ever" is a great place to start if you're new to Browne's poetry.

In his early work, Browne was known for his poetic skill, and for his ability to express complex emotions in simple, evocative language.

His earliest book of poetry, "The Boy," published in 1915, contains many poems about the "Boy," his childhood home in England. In the same year, Browne was also working as a music teacher and a music reviewer, and his first two books were published in the same year. "The Boy" is a collection of poems that Browne wrote while he was working as a music teacher and a music reviewer, and it includes his most recent work.

In his later years, Browne continued to write poetry, and he published several collections of poems, including "The Boy," "The Best Ever," and "The Best Ever II.

Browne's poetry is known for its simplicity and accessibility, and for its ability to express complex emotions in simple, evocative language. His work has been compared to that of other great poets, such as W. B. Yeats and T. S. Eliot, and he is considered one of the greatest poets of the 20th century.

McRae, Williams wind up jazz series

Suspensions Carma McRae and Joe Williams will share the spotlight in "Carma McRae and Joe Williams Meet Joe Williams," the final event of The Courier's Autumn Jazz Festival at 8 p.m. Sunday at McWright Hall.

Both McRae and Williams have been trading harmonizing, a style they have been doing for most of their careers.

The program will include songs recorded by the two, songs composed by them, and songs written by them.

Their musical careers have been highlighted by their solo appearances and their work as a team.

McRae, 70, is one of the most respected jazz vocalists in the world. She has recorded more than 30 albums and has been featured in numerous films and television shows.

Williams, 65, is a Grammy Award-winning jazz vocalist and pianist. He has recorded more than 20 albums and has been featured in numerous films and television shows.

The pair will be joined by the University of Iowa Community Band for an encore performance of "The Duke Ellington Memorial March." The band, under the direction of Dr. Stephen J. Davis, will perform the March at 7 p.m. on the same stage as the show.

Tickets for the show are $20 for adults and $10 for students. They can be purchased at the door or online at www.iowajazzfestival.com.
