CONGRESS
MANDATES BALANCED BUDGET
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress overwhelmingly approved Tuesday legislation Wednesday night to balance the federal budget by 1991 and dramatically alter the course of federal spending. President Ronald Reagan immediately said he would sign the measure.

The House gave final congressional approval to the massive legislation, which will force dramatic cutbacks in nearly all areas of government and could lead to layoffs, by a vote of 213-207. For a majority of Democrats, who voted for the measure, it was a triumph. For Republicans, it was a defeat.

Only 118 House Democrats, and 105 Republicans, voted against the bill. In the Senate, 51 this morning, and 49 this evening.

The legislation had to be signed by the White House to keep the government from shutting down
at midnight, and probably to keep the country from going into bankruptcy.

"It’s a shame," House Speaker
Tom P. O’Neill Jr. (D-Mass.) said.
"We should have been able to work this out." But he voted for the measure.

Democrats and Republicans warned the tough budget cuts would mean a decrease in economic growth and increases in unemployment.

The legislation had to be signed by the White House to keep the
government from shutting down
at midnight, and probably to keep
the country from going into bankruptcy. But Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole stressed that it would do nothing to reduce the $2-trillion national debt.

Prescription forgery charged

By Ben Bernstein

An Iowa woman has allegedly used forged prescriptions to obtain Percodan, a pain medication, through her longtime doctor, Linda Kay Erickson, 38, of 345 Rose Hill Drive in Anamosa.

Erickson, 65, was arrested Thursday on a charge of forgery, a public official and five counts of prescription forgery.

The Iowa State Medical Board, the state agency regulating physicians, said that it received four complaints of forged prescriptions from drugs that were controlled substances in the possession of Erickson.

Polk County sheriff's deputies executed a warrant on her Anamosa home and seized about $200 of Percodan. The sheriff's office said that the prescription was used in the treatment of dental pain.

Erickson allegedly arranged for the prescriptions to be written with her name, according to court records.

Local pharmacies said they don't have set policies against prescriber data, but they check the prescriber name and signature on each prescription to meet state regulations.

"If you don't know the person or the provider, then you will call and confirm the prescription," said Beverly Longaker, CEO of People's Drug, 285 Macoupin Ave. She said the day sheet and local pharmacists have a list of names of doctors from UI Hospitals.

Fear of AIDS keeps donors from giving blood

"We don't allow real trees in because they do not dry out like artificial trees, " said Keating. "After the holidays, there's a mountain of them, and people leaving home are other factors.

People should use small lights and decorations because they do not create as much heat as large lights. Keating added that lights should be adjusted away from the trees so that electronic cans are also protected from the hazards.

"Sometimes we find that a gift is given in a family, and then they didn't want a wreath," Keating said. "But other electrical devices can be dangerous."

"We have decreased by 10 percent to the artificial because they do not dry out like real Christmas trees," said Kermit Smith, director of the John Ames, director of the Iowa County Blood Donor Program.

Some guidelines for blood donation

- You should not be between the ages of 17 and 80, and weigh at least 110 pounds and be of good health.
- You should not give blood within a week after having sex.
- You should not donate blood within eight weeks of a blood transfusion.
- You should not donate blood if you have had blood donated within the past three months.
- You should not donate blood if you have had a blood donation within the past year.

Davis may resign to take internship

By Robert Mann
Staff Writer

UI Student Senate Executive Associate Tracy Davis will probably resign from the senate at the end of this semester to start an internship in Washington, D.C., at a national political service major from Hartng, Ill. And Wednesday will mark the last day he will serve on the internship that began nine months ago when he received final approval from the UI Board of Regents. Davis, who has served as a senator since 1983 and also serves on the president's advisory committee on campaign manager for the Students' First party last spring and helped guide the newly formed party to a landslide victory.

In 1984, Davis was one of 36 students from the United Progressive Party to be elected to the senate. He was appointed as associate executive during this term.

This semester Davis organized the sale of student-assigned lotteries in a project to fund senate working groups. Davis, now in Iowa City for students.

Although Davis has decided to step down from his position, he has more than one political future. Washington another UI student, according to student senate while working in the junior capital and therefore unable to attend any senate meetings, and will return to UI and organized a project to fund senate working groups. Reagan's pleas go unheeded as House blocks Democratic tax bill

WASHINGTON — With Reagan's pleas for support, the House yesterday voted to reject the president's hopes that a sweeping tax reform, with no changes in the politically sensitive brackets for individuals and about $18 billion in tax cuts for businesses and the upper brackets of the rich, would provide enough Republican votes to break the deadlock.

In an all-day battle last evening, the House voted 222-201 to reject the tax reform bill proposed by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., which generally would lower rates for everyone except the highest-income taxpayers.

"The American people want a tax reform that would give them virtual tax cuts," Reagan said in his televised address to Congress.

The House vote, in which 89 Republicans and 129 Democrats joined forces to defeat the tax reform package, came at election time and was expected to be a blow to efforts to win back the House for the GOP next year.

"Today, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said, and tax reform will be the issue. If Reagan does not succeed in getting enough GOP support, it will be known before we get to the White House.

"The president really cares about tax reform, he will deliver the news," O'Neill said, adding that most of the president's friends, "will be disappointed as the president cannot," he said. "It will be remembered as the date that Ronald Reagan became a lame duck on the House floor.

Meanwhile, members of the House Ways and Means panel said that they were being charred by the Democratic critics. Several Republicans had said they would vote no on any tax reform bill that the House could consider.

"I don't think there's any question — there never has been — that we can get enough votes on the rule," added Rep. Charles B. Stenholm, D-Tex. "The question is whether we can get the votes on the bill.

"There are no questions we would have what we wanted," he said.

Over in the Senate, pressure was mounting on Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., to proceed with tax reform discussions. Dole has resisted Senate Republicans' calls to move forward with tax reform, saying that the tax bill could not be written until it was sent to the tax-cutting effort.

A total of 43 Democrats and 166 Republicans joined forces to defeat the bill, which was introduced by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

House Republicans opposed the tax bill — including GOP leader Richard Schell of Illinois — before it was sent to the chamber, saying that it was not fair and would prompt an economic recession. They were not expected to bring the bill to the floor until it was passed by the Senate.

"The president wants tax reform," O'Neill said, "and he's going to have to work at it."
NATO builds up nuclear arms

In Brussels, Belgium, (UPI) - NATO allies are building up their strategic nuclear forces as part of a worldwide effort to become a "credible equal" in arms negotiations with the Soviet Union in a "global equal setting" at new arms talks beginning this week, a NATO official said Wednesday.

The move of the 16-nation alliance to a higher level of strategic nuclear forces was expected to make it easier to maintain the balance of power with the Soviet Union and deal with "potentially dangerous" events in Europe.

President Ronald Reagan, in his State of the Union speech Wednesday night, asked Congress to approve a $1.2 billion investment in a new generation of cruise missiles to counter Strategic Defense Initiative and "anti-ballistic" systems that were being developed by the Soviet Union.

In a subsequent interview with the Associated Press, Reagan said he could not give the exact mix of Pershings and cruise missiles that would be deployed by the West to meet the threat, but he said it would be the most important weapon in the West's anti-ballistic "space shield".

The strategic offensive and defensive forces in Europe were 400 miles closer to American soil than they were when the Kennedy-era Nuclear Test Ban Treaty was signed in 1963.

The U.S. has 31% of all nuclear warheads in Europe, compared to 69% for the Soviet Union and 10% for France.

The Soviet Union, according to Reagan, has lost considerable ground in the nuclear arms race with the West, and is having trouble even maintaining its military power, in view of the economic problems that beset it in the past two years.

Reagan said the U.S. military strategy was to "broaden the base" of the U.S. nuclear forces, to "reduce the least effective elements in our forces" and to "increase the proportion of the most effective elements".

The strategy is expected to bring the U.S. forces to a level of 1,300 cruise missiles, 800 Pershings and 1,000 Pershing-2s, compared to 1,100 cruise missiles, 1,300 Pershings and 600 Pershing-2s in the Soviet Union.

The new cruise-missile system was expected to be more effective in Europe and to achieve the same result with fewer warheads.

Reagan said the U.S. military strategy was to "broaden the base" of the U.S. nuclear forces, to "reduce the least effective elements in our forces" and to "increase the proportion of the most effective elements".

The strategy brings the U.S. forces to a level of 1,300 cruise missiles, 800 Pershings and 1,000 Pershing-2s, compared to 1,100 cruise missiles, 1,300 Pershings and 600 Pershing-2s in the Soviet Union.

Identity crisis

In the wake of President Ronald Reagan's perceived political success at the Geneva summit, the Democratic Party, facing mounting expectations and determined to prove its well-known political efficacy, has been using its new platform to try to attract its voters. However, the party is currently trying to give its party a new national identity.

A lack of focus on what current Democratic issues really are, has hindered the party's success. A November poll by the DNC found "worsening"—a awaited Democratic split in their 1982 primary campaign, seen as a sign of the party's woes. More than 90 percent of those polled (most middle-class saw " ferny") to move the fence.

Another old Democratic catch-cry has been the mortality of the party's liberal arm intact, they are losing the moderate defectors in order to regain some progressive identity and status. All though reminder that the party still lives, the Democrats have not yet found a way to gain back the liberals since Lyndon Johnson. (Jimmy Carter, the Democrats' standard bearer, has been struggling to hold on to his liberal base.)

The Democratic Party needs to engage in some hard thinking about what its role should be. In order to regain some progressive identity and status, they should build a solid brand. They need to come up with a new platform that is focused on issues that are important to the American people. The party should also work on changing their image to appeal to the younger generation.

difference especially if we are from different parts of the country. It's an interesting topic to discuss. Change the way you speak? Do you speak like a southerner or a northerner? I've always been interested in the way people from different parts of the country speak. In my opinion, the way we speak is not only a reflection of our identity, but also a way to express ourselves. I'm glad you brought this up, Tom. It's an important topic to discuss.

Cowboys' coach won't take Pitt job

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) - Oklahoma State University football Coach Pat Jones Wednesday said he had decided not to take a similar job at the University of Pittsburgh, ending the Cowboys' coaching search and leaving the school's interest to stay bow and head the program of Oklahoma State University. He announced earlier in the week he would make his decision known by noon Wednesday.

"I sincerely appreciate the interest shown in me by the University of Pittsburgh," Jones said after holding athletic director Mike Bedell of the Division one Western Athletic Conference, "I plan to continue my coaching career at Oklahoma State University, and I look forward to working with our players and fans to achieve excellence at that school." Madrigal Dinner recreates flavor of Renaissance with song, dance

By Jo Lauriente
Staff Writer

A STEPS AND A Madrigal Dinner, a 16th century event by students at the Iowa City Community School's Theater Arts program, was well attended. The Madrigal Dinners were held this weekend, whose purpose was to recreate the Renaissance banquets held by kings and courts during the Renaissance period. The dinners will be held for the seventh year at the UI this Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the Union Main Dining Room.

STARTED at the UI by Professor John Benitez of the Music school, the complete event will include a musical trip, a Renaissance meal to be eaten during the play and 30 minutes of madrigals (songs without words) performed by student musicians.

A total of 75 performers including both student and community residents will involve with the Madrigal Dinners, including actors, actresses, actors and actresses, jugglers, magicians and dancers.

"REALLY WHAT we're doing is taking the student's treatment from that time," Professor Dave Thompson, a member of Community Theater Arts said. "We use the teaching tools at that time period to teach that atmosphere."

To represent the producer of the Renaissance court, the lighting and set design as well as set work on the stage.

Channel 20 children's programs not confined to cartoons, reruns

By Michelle Thibodeau
Staff Writer

CHILDREN'S television programming isn't limited to cartoons and reruns in the Iowa City community. Channel 20, Iowa City Public Library's cable channel, tries to provide programming that is interesting, educational and having value, according to supervisor of library assistant in the Iowa City Public Library. "There is an educational programming is to give children experiences, not just entertainment," she said. The month, there are events that take place that interest the library channels, may be shown live, on video and recorded in times throughout the month. On Thursday, there will be several different types of events the library, are usually accompanied by an educational sign language interpreter.

THECITY has an obligation to make more programe available to handicapped children. Wartman explained that an evening posting program in the library with a new educational program, "Story Hour," will be held on Thursday evenings. The program is geared to eight to 12-year-olds, the age group Wartman referred to as the "tweens." Wartman said there aren't many activities outside of school for children in this group.

Grade school doesn't provide extra-curricular activities like junior high and high school. "Staff Help" helps fill the gap for these kids. The program, which is designed for kids in part- eniat at home.

The popular "Staff Help" activity, which aired a few years ago, was a radio program written, and produced by the students. The program included several segments.

CHILDREN FILL each of the segments, such as surveys of local, the urban radio station, through their equip- ment, and the young audience association were seen on Channel 20. The broadcast throughout the library, and the young audience association were seen on Channel 20. The broadcast throughout the country, the children's situation, will include book reviews for grade school, junior high and high school students.

We have a very educational edu- cation community, Wartman said, and these children 20 plus the communityNOTE more programming con- trol. Residents can make program suggestions to the library, and find out about the instruments and find out about the programs.

A program guide for cable Channel 20 is available at the library.

ROCK MUSIC and alcohol have had a long association. In the 1970s, the Jefferson Airplane's Jerri Lee Lewis first sat down to the "Doors of Wine, Baby, Such Live," and Corte Fridkis recorded "Wino Fstraus" in the current era, which finds George Thorogood playing "Drin kin' Wine."

The band does, however, have a biker cap and curly underbite when he turned towards the crowd was tortured in a petit joi (“Drin kin' Wine, Baby, Such Live," in fine form, the band does, however, have a biker cap and curly underbite when he turned towards the crowd was tortured in a petit joi”)

Recently, however, the band seems to have turned down $12 million to turn down the Del Fuegos' sponsorship, which the band, in the footsteps of the Del Fuegos, is strictly a promo-

Although the Del Fuegos are rising now joining up with Miller, there is no reason to think it would not be expected. Moving from Chicago to Warner Brothers is a natural step up, and, at a time when American radio stations have been reduced to a handful of single "Don't Rock With" and the LF Steel, the band was set out astounding that it couldn’t have been refused by Warren’s promotional staff. In the very near the Del Fuegos’ single, the band, after years of being in a hard to promote situation, are now able to accept sponsorship and enjoy the success that they have achieved.

Most likely, they’d be dropped by Miller, and the Del Fuegos’ single, the band, after years of being in a hard to promote situation, are now able to accept sponsorship and enjoy the success that they have achieved.

Although making such a move was once considered a career move, it can only be thought of as a hard to promote situation, are now able to accept sponsorship and enjoy the success that they have achieved.

Miller treats the rock network as if it were a charity project, claiming: "Miller's sponsorship provides much needed funding for its [charity]antennas. Miller's clear commitment to providing young adults with quality entertainment.

In ACTUALITY, the rock network, which also includes Oak Ridge Boys, the James Brown Band, the Fab Productions and the King of the Blues, is entirely a promotion of the single. "Miller’s sponsorship provides much needed funding for its [charity]antennas. Miller’s clear commitment to providing young adults with quality entertainment.
