Richey considering plan to further increase tuition

The Daily Iowan

Vol. 103, No. 11

WASHINGTON (CQ) — The Reagan administration has canceled a scheduled Monday meeting with West Berlin but when the talks will take place and how it will be carried out has not been determined, White House sources said.

Two U.S. aircr ait carrier battle groups were in the Mediterranean Thursday warning an invisible force that President Ronald Reagan was en route to Libya.

These officials also said the carrier battle groups had been sent to the Mediterranean in response to a request from the United States for a show of force.

But other sources involved in the investigation said sufficient evidence exists to link the Oklahoma City bombing to an international terrorist bombing.

RICHARD L. WILKINS, 23, a native of Okla­homa, was arrested in Chi­cago last month.

Richey, who has recommended no such increase, vowed to fight any tuition surcharge.

Report of woman's assault prompts warning by police

By John Ely

Iowa City police detectives are investigating the assault of a woman who said she was attacked by a man she described as a "dark-skinned, dreadlocks-wearing" on Friday night at the Iowa City Public Building.

The woman, who was就是要 said she was attacked by a man she described as a "dark-skinned, dreadlocks-wearing," told police she was walking on the sidewalk in front of the building when the man approached her and began to follow her.

The suspect, who was wearing a black hoodie and blue jeans, then approached the woman from behind and pushed her to the ground. The woman attempted to kick the suspect, but he continued to attack her, and the suspect then fled the scene.

Iowa City police are currently searching for the suspect and have released a description of the man as a white male, 5 feet 10 inches tall, with dark brown hair and blue eyes. Anyone with information is encouraged to contact the Iowa City Police Department at 351-2631.

In related news, the Iowa City Public Building recently implemented new security measures, including increased lighting and the addition of security cameras, to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future.

Correction

The Daily Iowan regrets the error in the article "The dinner is part of a larger plan to recruit qualified candidates for the county's legislature." The correction should read: "The dinner is part of a larger plan to recruit qualified candidates for the county's legislature." The error occurred due to a miscommunication between the reporter and the source.

As spring arrives, students' fingers don't turn to books

Many hands now, computers and 50 students are gathering in the library in a full house. The sun streams in the windows, the room is quiet. The students are reading, studying, working, as usual. The library is a haven for students, a quiet place to escape from the outside world.

Many of the students are reading popular books, such as the Harry Potter series, or studying for exams. Some are using the computers to research assignments or complete homework. The library is a place where students can work in peace and quiet, away from the distractions of everyday life.

The library is open from 8 am to 9 pm, Monday to Friday, and from 10 am to 6 pm on weekends. It is a valuable resource for students, and a must-visit for anyone in need of a quiet study space.

In a petition presented to the board last week, the workers said they wanted to merge into a new unit with clerical staff from a number of different departments. The petitioners would like to include the courthouse's office, data processing, the county attorney's office and the auditor's office. The petition states: "This new unit would be unique in Johnson County because it would be the first to have merged employees working under defined official duties. "

Russians angered by nuclear testing

LAVRAGA, NJ - The Soviets, ignoring warnings in October that their underground nuclear test site was creating a radiation plume, exploded their 12th nuclear blast Thursday, opening a Soviet response that could continue testing for another six months.

The nuclear blast erupted all day Thursday, sending shock waves through the desert floor at Rainier Mesa, a nuclear test site in Nevada owned by the American and British governments.

The explosion was the first of three planned tests in the next six months.

The tests were designed to study the effects of underground nuclear explosions on the environment, according to Robert L. Thompson, director of the United States Department of Energy.

The first test, scheduled for April 13, was postponed by the commission. Also on hand were several congressmen and members of Congress, who said the blast would be designed to test the effectiveness of an X-ray beam being developed by the National Science Foundation.

The commission said that the explosion would be conducted under strict monitoring, including a network of geophysical sensors, to ensure that it was as safe as possible.

The blast was the first in a series of underground tests planned by the American and British governments, according to Thompson.

The blasts are part of a comprehensive study being conducted by the United States Department of Energy, the National Science Foundation, and the United States Department of Defense.

The study will assess the long-term effects of underground nuclear explosions on the environment, including the impact on the environment and the health of people living nearby.

Iowa City may house peace institute

By David Mason

Iowa City appears set to become the site of a state peace institute that eventually will attract the newly created national institute.

On April 21 President James G. Fongemie and four other university officials will meet with the presidents of four other Iowa universities as well as local business leaders to discuss concrete plans for an Iowa Peace Institute.

The U.S. offered temporary office space to the institute on its Oakdale campus. The April meeting was organized by the U.S. Institute of Peace in Washington, a nonprofit educational organization that promotes the study of peace.

"Iowa has strong educational programs with an international flavor and its location in the center of the country is a big plus," says Jean Lloyd-Jones.

"Iowa has strong educational programs with an international flavor and its location in the center of the country is a big plus," says Jean Lloyd-Jones.

the purpose of the institute was "to try to focus attention on the need to achieve peace and reduce conflict," she said.

Iowa City has the opportunity to make its commitment to peace known to the nation by establishing a peace institute, she said.

FREEDMAN WELCOMED THE IDEA

This plan was later endorsed by the Iowa chapter of the American Peace Society.

"Iowa City, said Freedman, "is the only state to make a commitment to the national peace institute."

Although several universities, including the University of Iowa, have offered to make a peace institute, this plan was later endorsed by the institute's leaders.

"There is a strong enthusiasm among the national peace institute for this very site to make a credible effort," Freedman said.

The U.S. Institute of Peace has offered to bring the institute's leaders from a broad spectrum of peace groups.

Although some universities, including the University of Iowa, have offered to make a peace institute, this plan was later endorsed by the institute's leaders.

"We're not just going to sit here and do nothing," said Freedman.

"If the Reagan administration is determined to destroy the institute, the people of Iowa have the right to try to protect it," he said.

"Perhaps the writer and the university administration will not protect the institute," said Freedman.

Choosing words

Free expression is a great thing, of course, but like a real gift it comes wrapped in annoying paper. A recent prediction of vehement political exchanges suggests that we may be seeing more than meets the eye.

A recent prediction of vehement political exchanges suggests that we may be seeing more than meets the eye.

Speaking of free expression, the people of the United States are making a great deal of noise these days. We are being told that we are being censored, that our freedom of speech is being threatened. But is this really so? Is there any evidence to support these allegations?

I believe that the answer to these questions is no. Freedom of speech is a fundamental right of all citizens in a democratic society, and it is protected by law. There are certain limitations on this right, but they do not amount to censorship.

For example, the government can restrict speech that is likely to incite violence or create a clear and present danger. But this is a narrow exception to the general rule that speech is protected.

Moreover, courts have consistently ruled that the government cannot require people to speak or not to speak. This is true even when the speech in question is unpopular or offensive.

The United States is a nation of diverse opinions. We have a rich tradition of free expression, and we are justifiably proud of it. But we must also remember that this right comes with responsibilities. We must use our freedom of speech to express ideas and opinions, but we must also respect the rights of others to express their own views.

In short, I believe that the people of the United States are being unnecessarily alarmed by the supposed threats to their freedom of speech. We must be vigilant in protecting this important right, but we must also be mindful of the responsibilities that come with it.
Most local farmers receive loans to plant spring crops

By Denise Nowak

While congressional leaders continue to negotiate over the future of the MAGIC farm bill passed late last year, most rural areas of Iowan-Iowa City region have not yet finalized their loan arrangements. Growers in this area have had the same worry: if they don’t get financial assistance to plant their spring crops, said Dennis Shires, Agricultural Credit Bank Manager in Iowa City, "It’s a tough situation. We’re getting higher interest rates, and just as a grower, you know, it’s not worth going into a situation that’s not going to be profitable to you."

BARD said several farmers would be affected by the situation. Shires said, "It’s a tough situation. We’re getting higher interest rates, and just as a grower, you know, it’s not worth going into a situation that’s not going to be profitable to you."

Libya

In Europe, said in Atlanta last Wednesday that "the Libyan government has indisputable evidence" that Khadafy was responsible for the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103.

"On November 21, 1985, the American Democratic Party sent the message that it was time to get its house in order, that it was time to get its affairs in order, that it was time to get its leaders in order," said Varn. "And we're sick and tired of being treated like kids.

State Sen. Lincoln Chafee (R-R.I.) said that the House should have a say in the creation of the new embassy.

"It's a tough situation. We’re getting higher interest rates, and just as a grower, you know, it’s not worth going into a situation that’s not going to be profitable to you."

Rugby club to host 'Big Six'

By John Dworken

The 38th annual Rugby Big Tex Tournament will be more appropriately called "The Big Six" this year because the team will not be compet­ing ting for a national title.

Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Oklahoma State, Washington State, and Utah State have all declined to attend the competition, which will be held in Iowa City over the weekend.

"We've been playing Big Six for five years now and last year was the first time that we didn't go," said Justin Murphy.

The tournament's leaders in the past have been to Iowa City to atend to financial problems. "The claim is that the money for their financing and there is no way that can be done," said Iowa rugby player Brian Weidler. "We've been playing by making sure that we don't lose out on the entry fees that would pay for referees, the cost of indoor facilities so they can have the players' pocket.

"I can't say that this is making a difference, because we didn't have this track and now we have the best team we've ever had," Wheter said. "These people came by their own volition to Iowa. They're here because they believe in the University of Humor distracts in 'Seagull'

By Hugh Olsen

The BEST PLAYS are generally most noticeable in productions where the characters are not only real but also interesting. Characters who are not only real but also interesting can be dramatically types, methods that are otherwise rendered as black versus white. This is a clear example of how the point. Polish director Jan Skotnicki directed the play in a production by the University of Iowa's Theatre and Dance Department. A visiting artist to the University Theatre's Plays (Michael Lawson) has a definite view on the play: Treplyov, obsessed with finding new romantic attractions: the first performance at the University Theatre in Iowa City.

There are benefits to making certain characters, Trigorin, the successful writer, views his infatuation with Nina; his fate is definitive production, but it is not a simple matter of life to be considered simple, in fact. The Seagull, in its innovative style, was performed on a naturalistic set where it was originally presented, as a benefit to the University Theatre's Plays (Michael Lawson) has a definite view on the play: Treplyov, obsessed with finding new romantic attractions: the first performance at the University Theatre in Iowa City.

Films offer new world viewpoints
By Teresa Vogt

HOLLYWOOD seems to hold the ma jority of moviegoers. All American viewers are waiting for some new, star-filled release from California, films in other parts of the world are interesting, too.

However, the French Film Week and the Chinese Film Festival will offer movie fans a unique opportunity to watch top-notch movies with fresh cultural and aesthetic perspectives.

Six French films (not approved in the United States) will be shown in the Com munity Studies Building Room 211 this weekend as part of the French Film Week. Founded in 1967, the program is organized by the French Embassy in New York, in cooperation with the French Ministry of External Rela tions. Twice a year a program of films is presented free of charge, accompanied by one of the universities and cultural cen ters in the United States, also accompanied by one of the American directors or actors.

FILMS FEATURED

The films contain parts in all with English subtitles and will be presented free of charge. They include:

1. Anne of the Avant (La Avant), directed by Jean Daniel. Polit
cal, with an interesting story of a Russian school girl named Leon. In her free time, however, she becomes a Russian spy, and is pursued by the KGB, tells the bittersweet tale of youth and love.

2. David, Thomas et Les Autres (David, Thomas and the Others), directed by Jacques Doillon. The story of a group of kids at their Christmas holiday, being driven by the bus driver who decides to take his "babies" on a "trip." The film is set in post-World War II France, and shows, through the use of flashbacks, the problems of a dissatisfied woman, who ultimately gives her life for a "heart of truth."

3. Mouchette (Mouchette), directed by Claude Chabrol. Based on a novel by Dorothee Letessier and shows through the use of flashbacks, the problems of a dissatisfied woman, who ultimately gives her life for a "heart of truth."

4. The Michelin Tyre Company (Michelin), directed by Jacques Doillon. Based on a novel by Dorothee Letessier and shows through the use of flashbacks, the problems of a dissatisfied woman, who ultimately gives her life for a "heart of truth."

5. The Missionaries (Les Missions), directed by Jacques Doillon. Based on a novel by Dorothee Letessier and shows through the use of flashbacks, the problems of a dissatisfied woman, who ultimately gives her life for a "heart of truth."

6. The Path of the Kung-Fu Bridge and name it "away from nature." The action revolves around a retiring school bus driver who decides to take his "babies" on a "trip."

TWO FILMS ON SATURDAY

A double feature on Saturday at 7 p.m. in Chemistry-Botany Build ning Room 225.

About the Missionaries tells the story of a man driven by guilt when his soundtrack to a love story. Saturday at 3 p.m. in Chemistry-Botany Building Room 225.

The Michelin Tyre Company tells the story of a retiring school bus driver who decides to take his "babies" on a "trip." Friday at 7 p.m. and Saturday at 3 p.m. in Chemistry-Botany Building Room 225.
