Reagan: Tokyo was U.S. victory

Early academics may harm, not help

While local educators and parents say children benefit from early learning, some experts say early academic instruction can be detrimental to a child's development.

According to Richard Elardo, professor in the UI College of Education and a former preschool director, "something new is not necessarily good for preschool children." Elardo said, "Preschool children need time to play to develop their thinking skills." Early academics can "dilute their social interaction skills," Elardo said.

"Children should have time to express their feelings before they can be taught academic skills," Elardo said.

"We should not try to teach our children in a child-centered environment," Elardo added.

Elardo recognized that preschools should be "a protected environment for children's creativity and exploration." He said, "Preschool education should be a "hands-on" experience." Elardo added, "Children should have time to develop their social skills before they can be taught academic skills." Early academics can "dilute their social interaction skills," Elardo said.

Israel, U.S. join forces on Star Wars program

United Press International

The United States and Israel signed an agreement Tuesday for joint research work on the Star Wars anti-missile project - the third U.S. ally to join the costly and complex program. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Israeli Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin signed the memorandum of understanding and an attached letter in a Pentagon ceremony that a U.S. official and revealed six weeks of formal negotiations.

The agreement, which was long-awaited, does not guarantee that Israeli firms will be awarded contracts for participation in the SDI since December, an Israeli official said, speaking on condition he not be identified.

Israel's defense industry has balked at signing onto the billion dollar attempt launched by President Ronald Reagan three years ago to stop nuclear missiles being part of the nuclear arms race.

Frank-duffy, a deeply hostile public relations agent, in a letter to the editor, claimed that the research into non-explosive weapons that destroy their warheads on impact will demand a lot more than expected. This will dovetail with the Jewish state's defensive needs.

U.S. and Israeli sources have said Israel will concentrate on research into non-explosive weapons that destroy their warheads on impact and countering short range missiles.

Such research would fit Israel's needs since it must counter a future Iranian threat and long range missiles into northern Israel during the 1973 October war.

Room blues

The Editor-

Sally Helle and I were one of the few students who received the room assignments we picked, because we both asked for the same building and room. Sally got room 211, but I didn’t even get anyone to say “hi” to, which I think was a little strange. I was just one of the many kids in the room, after all. I came home from the dorm and found that all the kids had gotten together and made a huge mess out of the room. I was not happy about that at all, but the room was too big to clean quickly, so I decided to make the best of the situation. I knew that if I asked the other kids to help, they would all be happy to do it. I just need to come up with a solution that would make the cleaning process go faster.

I want to say a huge thank you to my mom. She has always been there for me, to help me with everything I need, from school work to personal problems. She is always there to listen, and to give me advice when I need it. I am so grateful to have such a wonderful mom.

Disappointed

To the Editor-

I am very disappointed by the recent news reports about the results of the presidential election. The candidates were both terrible choices, and I feel that my vote didn’t mean anything.

Sincerely,

John Smith
Senate OKs Fletcher for NASA head post

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate approved James Fletcher by a 92-0 vote Thursday to head the nation's space agency, riding charges that he is a "mythical" man who was part of the problem.

The vote cleared the way for Fletcher, 63, to serve again as administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, a post he held in the 1970s.

Fletcher replaces James Wygant, who was forced to resign last year during an investigation of his alleged role in the firing of a high-ranking official accused of fracturing the government. William Graham has been serving as acting administrator.

Designated Fletcher's choice was "the best man for the job."

NCAA adopts drug-testing rule

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) - The NCAA has adopted a drug-testing rule that could drop collegians from 30 tournaments should players fail to pass urine exams.

NCAA President Jack Duvall said Tuesday the grouping adopted a list of banned drugs similar to the U.S. Olympic Committee's. Blood doping, which is on the list, is illegal, the NCAA will allow and control local sanctions.

The action followed the executive committee's affirming the vote of the NCAA in convention in January.

"Student-athletes who test positive on a random test, will be declared ineligible immediately, even though it might be in the middle of a tournament," Duvall said.

The drug-testing rule, which provides for a blood test costing $30 and a urine test costing $9, was approved in 1983 but could not be enacted during tournaments because the organization said it expected to conclude the tests during regional competition.

Spell cast on all ages by 'Sleeping Beauty'

By Teresa Yager
Assistant Entertainment Editor

The Magic of Walt Disney is that his stories are able to entertain everyone. Adults are intrigued by the vivid characters, the high production values, and the magical fantasy world that they can enter. Children are captivated by the enchanting images, the adventure, and the appealing heroes and heroines. Both groups are enchanted by the world of imagination that Walt Disney creates.

Walt Disney's 'Sleeping Beauty,' one of his most loved films, is now being shown at the Town Hall Theatre in a special engagement. This film, released in 1959, is a classic and a delight for all ages.

The film is based on the fairy tale 'Cinderella,' with Sleeping Beauty taking the place of Cinderella. The story begins with the birth of Princess Aurora, the daughter of King and Queen. The evil养女 Maleficent, a fairy with a malevolent heart, is jealous of the princess and tries to curse her. However, the three good fairies, Flora, Fauna, and Meriwether, protect the princess and ensure her safety.

As she grows up, Aurora is betrothed to Prince Philip, the son of King Stefan. However, Maleficent, who has been watching over the princess, tries to prevent the wedding. She uses her black magic to curse Aurora, putting her in a deep sleep from which she will only wake when true love's kiss is given.

The film is rich with music, adventure, and romance. It is filled with beautiful scenes, such as the dancing in the forest, the singing of the birds, and the Bradford Dancers performing on stage. The film also features the famous 'Cinderella' pumpkin carriage, which is a classic image that is still popular today.

The film is a testament to the power of imagination and the magic of storytelling. It is a film that has stood the test of time and continues to charm and captivate audiences of all ages.
