Census proclaims Iowa City 'smartest'

By Pat Deninger
Staff Writer
and United Press International

Great athletes may come and great athletes may go, but great scholars stick around.

A recent U.S. Census Bureau survey lists Iowa City as the nation's most educated city.

The ranking, offered by the State and Metropolitan Area Data Book, 1986, says Iowa City has the highest percentage of residents with four or more years of college education.

Thirty eight percent of Iowa City's population has attended college for at least four years. Lawrence, Kan., home of Kansas University, ranked second with 35.1 percent.

College and university towns dominated the list of 75. Iowa City was the only Iowa community on the list.

Mayor William Ambrisco said he is not surprised Iowa City is atop the list. UI graduates realize the quality of the area and want to stay after graduation, he said.

THE BEST AND THE BRIGHTEST stay because of the healthy economic climate of the city, he said.

The First Capital Development Corp., a recent joint venture among the city, county and the UI, is one of the reasons the economy stays healthy, he said.

The 2-year-old corporation is "for attracting progressive, compatible industries to the region," Ambrisco said.

The corporation helped bring in the Coralville Rockwell/Collins plant, which employs 130 people. The development corporation also had a part in bringing Stauffer Seeds and Millard Warehouse to the area, he said.

All these firms have an abundance of white-collar positions, Ambrisco said, and the UI helps meet that need.

First Capitol Vice President Pat Grady said Iowa City has a tremendous labor pool of college graduates, but he said the area must be careful in fostering such an image.

"THERE IS A difference between degreed people and productive people," Grady said. There must be a pool of blue collar workers on hand as well, and they cannot be taken for granted, he added.

UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Remington said such is generally not the case when UI graduate students want to be employed at the UI.

The UI counsels doctoral students to seek employment elsewhere for fear of "inbreeding."

Overly similar philosophies throughout a department can stifle creativity, he said.

'Still' partying

Daniloff relates experience of 14-day Soviet detention

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.S. reporter Nicholas Daniloff, appearing before Western reporters in a news conference Sunday at the U.S. Embassy, described his 14 days in a Moscow jail on espionage charges as "mental torture."

"Frankly, I feel like a sneaker that's been through a wringer," said Daniloff, who appeared thinner than before his detention.

Daniloff, 51, a reporter for U.S. News & World Report magazine, said his two weeks in prison left him with "benevolent disdain" for his KGB captors.

"I hope there would not be a trial and I will be able to leave here with some measure of my integrity intact," said Daniloff, who was arrested on Aug. 30 after being handed documents marked "top secret."

THE SOVIET UNION presented new charges against Daniloff Saturday, saying there was irrefutable evidence he had "acted on instructions" from an American diplomat, Murat Natriboff, who ended his assignment in Moscow during the summer. Daniloff denied the charges Sunday.

Daniloff said he hoped he would not be traded for Genadi Zakharov, a Soviet employee at the United Nations arrested Aug. 23 after he allegedly purchased secret documents from a New York subway platform.

The two men were released simultaneously Friday to the custody of their respective embassies but still face charges.

Daniloff gave a calm but moving account of his days in the 8-by-10-foot cell he shared with a Soviet prisoner. He grew angry, however, when he spoke of his emotional state while in captivity.

"I was not cold, hungry or physically abused," Daniloff said. "But the mere fact of being transferred into a prison cell, being isolated from your family, from your friends, not being allowed under the Soviet system to have legal counsel, being interrogated four hours a day for two weeks is a very, very hard burden. ... I have to say it's mental torture," he said.

Daniloff said he hoped he would be released before the scheduled meeting between U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze Sept. 19. The talks in Washington are to lay groundwork for a second summit between President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Americans drafted for drug battle

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ronald Reagan and Nancy Reagan, warning there is "no moral middle ground," exhorted Americans in a prime-time television address Sunday to declare all-out war on drugs and the pushers "who are killing America and terrorizing it."

"In this crusade, let us not forget who we are," Ronald Reagan told a nationwide television audience. "Drug abuse is a repudiation of everything America is. The destructiveness and human wreckage mock our heritage."

"We Americans have never been morally neutral against any form of tyranny," he said. "Tonight, we are asking no more than that we honor what we have been and that we are by standing together."

SPEAKING IN URGENT TONES "as fellow parents and grandparents and as concerned neighbors," the Reagans asked Americans to take a pledge against drugs and the criminals who profit from them.

Their 19-minute talk, delivered from the White House living quarters, marked an unprecedented bid to use their stature and communicative skills as former actors to move the battle against drugs to the top of the national agenda.

It also reflected the president's deepened involvement in an issue championed for the past five years by his wife, Nancy, who traveled more than 100,000 miles to 28 states and six foreign countries urging children to "Just Say No."

"There is no moral middle ground," Nancy Reagan declared. "Indifference is not an option. We want you to help us create an outspoken intolerance for drug use. For the sake of our children, I implore each of you to be unyielding and inflexible in your opposition to drugs."

THE TV APPEARANCE set the stage for presentation today of a detailed administration anti-drug program combining punitive measures against users and pushers with expanded prevention and treatment efforts.

In offering a brief preview of that program, the president did not mention perhaps its most controversial element: widespread mandatory drug testing of federal workers in yet-to-be-defined "sensitive" jobs.

The Reagans steered clear of controversy and focused instead on the tragic consequences and high personal and

Reagan outlines his goals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ronald Reagan, saying drug abuse endangers all Americans and costs the nation at least $60 billion a year, established six goals Sunday for a new national crusade toward a drug-free America.

In a televised address delivered with his wife, Nancy, the president said, "Drug abuse is not a so-called victimless crime."

"Everyone's safety is at stake when drugs and excessive alcohol are used by people on the highways or by those transporting our citizens or operating industrial equipment."

"Drug abuse costs you and your fellow Americans at least $60 billion a year," he said.

A White House fact sheet summarized Reagan's goals as:

- Drug-free workplaces for all Americans.
- Drug-free schools from elementary to university level.
- Expanded treatment and research into the health dangers posed by drugs.
- Improved international cooperation to defeat global drug trafficking.
- Strengthened drug law enforcement and new initiatives that "will hit drug traffickers with renewed force."
- Increased public awareness and prevention to encourage all citizens to "get involved in fighting the drug menace."

Reagan said he would present an anti-drug program Monday to get his new crusade under way.

financial costs of drug abuse — at least $60 billion a year — in an appeal delivered on the biggest television night of the week.

They encouraged drug users to seek help, admonished young people to avoid temptation and bluntly warned pushers their days are numbered — if Americans respond to their call to arms.

Nancy Reagan closed by urging a nationwide commitment "not to tolerate drugs anywhere, any time, any place."

Offices move to new county building

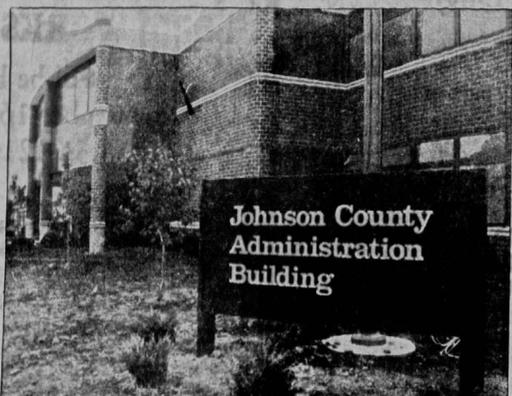

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

After nearly two years of planning, development and construction, the new $2.3 million Johnson County Administration Building will receive its first occupants this week.

This Thursday, the Johnson County Auditor's office and the Data Processing division will relocate to the new facility, 913 S. Dubuque St. They will be followed by the other county employees, including members of the Board of Supervisors, who will make the move Oct. 3-4.

What did the county get for its $2.3 million? Dwight Dobberstien, the project architect, said the building will enable the county to consolidate its offices.

"There is a lot more space in the building," Dobberstien

The new Johnson County Administration Building will open Thursday.

said. "You'll have the motor vehicle department, county treasurer, county auditor, county assessor and the Board

Auditor Tom Slockett said he has mixed emotions about moving from the Johnson County Courthouse to the new facility.

"I have mixed feelings because I love that old courthouse, and I don't think they'll ever build a building like it again," he said. "At the same time, we desperately need the extra space the new office has. We're packed like sardines into our current office."

Jean Schultz, head of the Johnson County Data Processing division, said she also dislikes leaving her courthouse office.

"I'll miss the building," she said. "I thought the location was great, being so close to the university."

But she also said she sees advantages in the move.

"ONE THING IS that there is a lot more space in the new building," Schultz said. "That's going to mean our staff has a lot more privacy and will be able to be a lot more productive."

"Right now, we're so crowded that when one person comes into the office to ask a question, it distracts everybody," she added.

Dobberstien said once the courthouse is vacated by the offices designated to relocate, all court-related offices will move into the building — including the Johnson County Attorney's office. Plans are also made to expand courtroom space.

Supervisor Betty Ockenfels said the move will ultimately save the county money.

"We don't have to pay rent on any of the property. The Board of Supervisors currently pays $40,000 to rent the office in the federal building," she said.

'Portrait of Iowa City' items sought

The publishers of an upcoming book of photographs of Iowa City places and people are soliciting writers, photographers and "idea people" to help with their project, Portrait of Iowa City.

The book, a joint venture by Iowa photographer John Zielinski and Iowa City journalist Marlene Perrin, is designed to capture the image of Iowa City in a manner similar to Portrait of Iowa, which is now available in local bookstores.

Zielinski said about 250 photos will be used in the book, which is scheduled to be published in the fall of 1987.

Photo suggestions and submissions can be sent to Zielinski at the Iowa Heritage Gallery/Publications, P.O. Box 2660, Iowa City, Iowa 52244.

Asian writers to be honored Wednesday

The UI Center for Asian and Pacific Studies has issued an invitation to the general public to attend a reception honoring Asian writers in the UI International Writing Program.

Thirteen poets, playwrights, journalists and fiction writers from China, Korea, India and other Asian nations will be the guests of honor.

The reception will be held Wednesday in the Union Triangle Lounge from 4 to 6 p.m.

Hoover Library group plans trip to China

The Herbert Hoover Presidential Library Association is sponsoring a 15-day trip to China next spring.

A 35-member tour group is now being organized to visit areas of northern China where Herbert and Lou Henry Hoover lived between 1899 and 1901, including Peking. The group will leave Chicago on April 23, 1987 and will return May 7.

The cost of the tour, including airfare, hotel accommodations and most meals, is $3,000 per person.

"This excursion has been designed not only to allow the group to visit the People's Republic of China and Hong Kong, but to help those who make the trip better understand and appreciate the historical era in which Herbert Hoover worked as a mining consultant for the Chinese government," said Tom Walsh, the association's assistant director and the tour group's leader.

Annual research conference scheduled

"Women in Research," a two-day annual conference focusing on the professional development of women in academic life, will be held Sept. 24 to Sept. 25 at the Holiday Inn in downtown Iowa City.

The conference is for men and women interested in the concerns and issues of women researchers in all fields.

A registration fee of $35 for UI faculty and staff and $50 for members of the general public includes dinner and refreshments. Graduates students may register for $20, which does not include meals.

The gathering will open with a dinner on Sept. 24 at which participants will be welcomed by Emmett J. Vaughan, UI dean of Continuing Education, and Peg Anderson, a member of the state Board of Regents.

Keynote speaker will be Maryanna P. Henkart, director of the cellular physiology program at the National Science Foundation in Washington, D.C.

For registration information contact the UI Center for Conferences and Institutes at the Union or call 353-5505.

Senior Center to celebrate anniversary

The Iowa City/Johnson County Senior Center will celebrate its fifth anniversary on Sept. 28 and Sept. 29. A variety of activities are scheduled to take place, some of which include:

- A dinner sponsored by Congregate Meals. The meal will be served 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sept. 28, followed by an ice cream social in the center's lobby. Contributions are requested for the ice cream social.

- A program from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. on Sept. 28, titled "If the Post Office Could Talk," by Irving Weber, Iowa City historian.

- A program titled "Aging: Its Problems and Pleasures" on Sept. 29 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The program will feature a series of films donated by the UI Aging Studies Program.

- A discussion titled "Investment Strategies for Retired Persons" by Vincent Maurer, senior vice president and trust officer, First National Bank. The discussion will be held on Sept. 29 from 1 to 2 p.m.

- A recognition of five-year Senior Center volunteers, sponsored by the Council of Elders, at 3 p.m. on Sept. 29. For more information, contact Bette Meisel at 356-5225.

Bouncers' bachelor party ends in riot

By Ann Szemplinski and Tom Hunter Staff Writers

Five men were arrested late Thursday after a fight, which required the assistance of about 25 law enforcement officers, broke out in a downtown night spot.

Harry Ambrose, owner of the College St. Club, 121 E. College St., said the men arrested were bouncers from a Cedar Rapids bar and were attending a bachelor party at the College St. Club when the brawl took place.

"It's too bad that people that are hired to stop fights can go to another town and start a fight," Ambrose said. Twelve men, all employed by Bulicek's Bridge Villa in Cedar Rapids, attended the bachelor party.

College St. Club manager Rick Sondag placed an emergency call to the Iowa City police about 11:30 p.m. to stop the fight, which began inside the bar and moved to the outside pedestrian mall.

THE FIGHT reportedly broke out when a bouncer was removing James P. Coleman, Coggon, Iowa, who was attending the bachelor party. Coleman, who Ambrose said is 6 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 320 pounds, allegedly hit the bouncer over the back with a bar stool.

"Officers then attempting to arrest Coleman were confronted by a large crowd as well as persons involved in the original altercations," according to a press release issued by Iowa City police. Sondag then made another emergency call to police.

"The next thing I knew, we had cops from every county," he said.

Iowa City police were assisted by Johnson County Sheriff's deputies, Iowa State Patrol troopers, Coralville police, UI Campus Security officers and Holiday Inn security personnel. At least three officers received minor injuries in the incident, including one who received neck injuries after being choked and pulled to the ground.

IOWA CITY POLICE officer Matt Johnson, reportedly the first officer at the scene, sustained cuts and bruises during the altercation. Johnson was struck with a bar stool and punched in the face by Coleman, according to documents filed in Johnson County District Court.

Sondag said Coleman told Johnson, "I'm gonna kill you. Come take me on."

Those arrested and charged in connection with the fight include:

- Robert C. Benion, 27, Cedar Rapids. Benion was charged with rioting, assault, interference with official acts and disorderly conduct. He allegedly grabbed an officer around the throat and pulled him to the ground outside the bar.

- Jeffrey S. Bulicek, 22, Cedar Rapids. Bulicek, the manager of Bulicek's Bridge Villa, was charged with rioting, interference with official acts and disorderly conduct.

- Coleman, 22, was charged with rioting, disorderly conduct and assault. Coleman was allegedly involved in altercations both inside and outside the bar.

- David P. Schmitt, 27, Cedar Rapids. Schmitt was charged with rioting and interference with official acts. Outside the bar, Schmitt allegedly yelled and tried to push past officers who were holding back the crowd.

- Eric W. Van Buskirk, 24, Hiawatha, Iowa. Van Buskirk was charged with rioting and interference with official acts. According to court records, Van Buskirk was pulling at officers who were arresting other people involved.

The five were held overnight in the Johnson County Jail and made initial appearances in Johnson County District Court Friday. All were released on their own recognizance, except for Bulicek, who posted $1,200 bond Friday.

Preliminary hearings for the five are scheduled for Sept. 30.

A woman charged with having indecent contact with a child was sentenced Friday to two years probation under the Johnson County Department of Correctional Services.

Kathy Jean Stoner, 26, a former Iowa City resident who now lives in North Liberty, Iowa, was sentenced in Johnson County District Court for touching the groin area of a child in her care during September, 1985.

According to court records, the incident occurred at Stoner's former residence, 2650 Roberts Road. Charges were filed after statements were made by the child and following Stoner's admission.

Edward Allen Walters, 33, of 620 E. Bowers St., was sentenced to 120 days in the Johnson County Jail and two years probation under the Department of Correctional Services in connection with indecent exposure charges.

Walters was arrested March 25 for allegedly manipulating his genitals in front of a 5-year-old boy. According to court records, charges were filed after the child told his parents about the incident.

Records state the manipulation was done to arouse or satisfy Walter's sexual desires and he knew or "should have known that this would be offensive to a 5-year-old boy."

Iowa City police received two burglary reports and three theft reports from local residents.

- The residence of Don Michael, 1825 Glendale Road, was burglarized Saturday night, according to Iowa City police reports. Michael told police $15 to $20 was stolen in the incident.

- Melissa Frantz, 1906 Broadway St., told Iowa City police her home was broken into Thursday night. A $15 merchandise voucher and a box of clothing were reportedly stolen. Entry may have been gained through a kitchen window, according to the report.

- A book bag containing books worth $56 and a pair of prescription sunglasses worth $180 were stolen Saturday morning from a vehicle belonging to Michelle DeBrie, 3120 Raven Court, Iowa City police reports stated.

The vehicle was reportedly unlocked at the time of the theft.

- A bicycle owned by Roger Richardson, 321 Melrose Court, was stolen Saturday morning from 619 Iowa Ave., according to Iowa City police reports. The bike is valued at $200.

- Jim Wilkey, N-8 Hillcrest Residence Hall, told Iowa City police Friday night that a power booster, valued at $100, was stolen from his room.

Policy crack-down leaves tailgaters dry

By Dan McClain
Staff Writer

Tailgating Hawkeye fans tested the UI's recently announced hard-line approach to alcohol on UI-owned parking lots Saturday as they celebrated the start of another football season.

Although the use of kegs and large amounts of alcohol on UI parking lots has always been prohibited, last month the UI announced it would be enforcing that policy more vigorously this season than it has in the past in an effort to encourage fans to moderate their drinking before and after Iowa football games.

Last Saturday worked out pretty well for both security officials and fans who wanted to have kegs at tailgaters held on UI property. A number of kegs were being emptied by thirsty fans on UI lots, but those parties were under control as fans took measures to avoid being spotted by patrolling security personnel.

UI Campus Security Director William Fuhrmeister said the 125-officer security force working Saturday's game against Iowa State issued three warnings to revelers but did not confiscate any kegs or liquor.

"THE FANS ALL cooperated," he said. "I really have to commend the fans and students."

The kegs that did appear at tailgaters on UI lots seemed to be limited almost exclusively to the parking lot next to the Field House, which was being used mostly by groups of students. Fans in the lot were fairly cautious about drinking from their kegs at first, but the policy violations became progressively more flagrant as game time approached.

UI junior Marty Graff, who was part of a tailgater featuring two 16-gallon kegs in the lot next to the Field House, kept his kegs out of the hands of security officers by concealing them in a van and drinking from empty pop and beer cans rather than the plastic cups usually seen at kegers.

"WE'RE BREAKING the law. There's always going to be a way to get around it, though," he said.

Dave Cappelli, social chairman for Delta Chi fraternity, said security guards were not bothering his group's two-keg party in the Field House lot although the kegs were in plain view in the back seat of a car, people were openly drinking from plastic keg cups and one enthusiastic partier was waving a banner while he danced on the roof of another car.

"It's a tradition with us," Cappelli said. "We always get a keg so we didn't even think twice about it."

Don Meyer, 35, of Marshalltown, Iowa, who spent the morning tailgating in the grass field near the Iowa Baseball Diamond, said he did not think the tougher policy enforcement would have much of an impact on older fans.

"It doesn't matter to me at all," he said. "We've never brought a keg and I've never seen any of the problems they're supposedly having."

Admirable honesty

Integrity is the word for what UI Volleyball Coach Sandy Stewart lends this university.

In the wake of the volleyball program's recent violation of NCAA rules, Stewart has taken complete responsibility for the infraction. Instead of hiding, denying or ignoring the violation, Stewart said it was totally her fault and that she felt bad about blemishing the volleyball program's record.

The violation was a minor one — Stewart transported three team members to observe prospects from their former high schools. Upon discovering this was an infraction of NCAA rules, Stewart and the university reported the incident.

Stewart's honest attitude in dealing with the event deserves recognition. At a Big Ten university where sports programs are very highly regarded, and at a time when universities are apt to ignore blatant NCAA violations in order to retain that winning coach or athlete, it's about time someone stood up and took the heat for such violations, whether major or minor, intentional or inadvertent.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions, it seems, agrees. In a report released July 29, the committee simply reprimanded Stewart for the incident they called "isolated and inadvertent in nature." Other members of the UI women's coaching staff will be given educational seminars on NCAA rules.

Stewart's personal integrity, however, extends beyond NCAA regulations. In working for a truly clean program, Stewart has put her Hawkeye volleyballers on a sugar and alcohol-free diet for the entire regular season. That sets a great example for the rest of the UI's sports teams and students.

The UI sports programs, their staffs and athletes, have a responsibility to this university, and Stewart is definitely living up to her end of the bargain.

A woman's place

Analysts observed last week that women running for office are "having their best year in politics since they got the vote in 1920."

It's true. Women have won nominations for offices ranging from governor to county sheriff. At least eight races will match woman against woman, including races for the House, Senate, governor, lieutenant governor and secretary of state.

Iowa will most likely elect its first female lieutenant governor as Republican Joan Lipsky battles Democrat JoAnn Zimmerman for the state's No. 2 position.

For now, the thought of women running for top political offices is novel. But it shouldn't be.

Nearly half of all students attending U.S. colleges and universities are women. Sixty percent of all women work.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, 36 percent of the nation's lawyers are female. Women also hold 40 percent of the positions the bureau defines as "managerial and professional."

Women are making great strides in nearly all walks of life — except politics.

Only seven women are seeking seats in the Senate; only 13 women are running for the House. Three women have been nominated in gubernatorial races.

Progress has been made, women are running in record numbers, but it's still not enough.

Women can be fine public servants. They simply must not let a stubborn public with a turn-of-the-century attitude govern their political futures.

More give aways?

The Reagan administration, in its mindless infatuation with Star Wars, has come up with an idea more worthy of a space cadet than a space researcher. It has asked Japan to participate in the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) research.

Many Japanese are, of course, thrilled with the idea. As Hiroshi Kawabe, a computer scientist said, "It has taken us decades to catch up with the United States and if we don't participate in SDI, the United States will leap ahead another decade or two and our American competitor will have an edge once again."

Not to fear, the Americans would like nothing better than to give away whatever new technology does come from SDI. Our paranoia about the Soviet military blinds the administration to the threat posed by the failure of America to compete economically.

The administration, which seems determined to drive the American economy into the ground under the triple burdens of high military spending, budget deficits and balance of trade deficits, must believe that faster failure is needed if it plans to share SDI with Japan.

It would be better to take the SDI funding and direct it toward basic research and development that would channel American money, time and talent into civilian research. Research that would provide cleaner, safer energy, new medicines — in other words, things that would make life better, that would work, and would enable the United States to compete successfully abroad and give its unemployed citizens jobs with a future.

Drug plan hides true issues

By Dan McMillan

In America, we romanticize the fight against oppressive powers — everyone from the colonial farmer who took up his pitchfork to do battle with the British redcoats to the Baptist minister who marched through Southern cities denouncing racial discrimination is an American hero of sorts.

Of course, it's never easy to fight prevailing powers, where ever they occur. Ask anyone who's ever protested against governmental injustice or other social wrongs — they'll tell you about the beating they've taken.

If waging battle against powers seeking to control individual action is difficult, fighting forces which try to dictate our thought is even more challenging. And, at risk of sounding like yet another Orwellian alarmist, the challenge of overcoming thought control must be a top priority in today's America.

MIND CONTROL HAS always been the "make or break" ingredient in any campaign — in wars we call it "winning the hearts and minds" of the people, in peacetime it's better known as public relations. The goal in either setting is to get people thinking the "right" way.

Today, we are witnessing a wonderful example of such a thought control campaign in the Reagan administration's anti-drug initiatives. President Ronald Reagan set his public relations machine in motion earlier this summer and the results have been amazing — not so much in terms of substantive gains against drug abuse, but more in terms of getting people to think a certain way.

By declaring "war on drugs" and vowing to reverse the "epidemic" of drug abuse, Reagan and his wife, Nancy, have tapped into a highly emotional vein. The American people — like people everywhere, presumably — react negatively to things which have a harmful effect on their lives.

ONLY, IT SEEMS, the Reagans are using their campaign to announce their personal distaste for addictive drugs, truly important matters go unnoticed. While multi-billion dollar anti-drug programs are passing both houses of Congress, funding for education and welfare are feeling the bite of Gramm-Rudman.

The Reagans have talked often of the oppression of drug use, but rarely have they mentioned the oppression of deceit. Their anti-drug programs are nothing more than well-planned ventures to occupy the minds of Americans and cover-up the failings of the administration in an election year.

to divert the attention of the American public from even more pressing issues such as the federal budget deficit and a controversial U.S. foreign policy.

Furthermore, recently released statistics from the National Institute on Drug Abuse indicate that the drug problem the Reagans are talking so much about is not quite as bad as they would have us believe. While drug use in 1986 certainly has been dramatic — with the death of such public figures as basketball star Len Bias — the Institute reports that overall drug use in the United States has been slipping since 1979.

Phone system offers safer UI

By Margaret Gridley and Michael Reck

IT IS ESTIMATED that one of every 10 rapes that occurs is reported. If we accept this figure, then we can estimate that over 600 rapes occurred in the Johnson County area during the 1986 fiscal year. The Rape Victim Advocacy Program at the UI reports that, during 1986, 87 rapes took place in Iowa City.

Rapes have taken place on the lawn of Quadrangle Dormitory and rapes have taken place near the Iowa Memorial Union. The problem is frightening and the figures are staggering, but they fail to convey the true nature of the problem due to the many assaults that go unreported.

How many parents realize that they are sending their children away from home to a university where they will find themselves afraid to walk home alone at night? The UI has an obligation to provide students with an uninhibited environment in which to pursue their studies.

THE QUESTION WHICH the safety problem poses is, of course, what can be done. It was with this question in mind that the University Environment Committee of the Collegiate Associations Council started its project of finding programs to lessen the existing threat to student safety.

Guest Opinion

We have chosen to propose that the university install an emergency phone system which would provide students with instant contact with campus security in areas that pose a significant safety threat. Emergency phone systems allow for campus security to be at the site of a disturbance within a maximum of three minutes from the victim or potential victim's initial contact with the phone. Surely, this would contribute not only to a feeling of security but could actually save potential victims from violence. At the University of Oregon they have had an emergency phone system for over ten years and Caitlin Cameron, the chairperson of their Student Safety Committee said simply, "If your university does not have an emergency phone system, you must get one."

ANYONE WHO HAS walked on the UI campus late at night knows how frightening it can be. The existence of a shining, blue light phone just a short distance away would not only add to the security of students but should contribute greatly to their peace of mind. Many of the individuals with whom we spoke expressed their feeling that the biggest advantage provided by the phones, aside from providing quick access to campus security, was that the phones provide a valuable deterrent to criminals.

Any system has potential drawbacks. Pranks could pose a serious problem. In response to this concern, we would like to cite the statistics compiled by the Department of Public Safety at Cornell University in Ithaca, New York. Cornell has had an emergency phone system since August 1, 1976. They have experienced 13 prank calls during the period.

THIS NUMBER CAN be contrasted with the 297 calls which came in for medical emergencies or the 318 police calls. The total number of calls which came in was 1,078 for the following categories: medical emergency or assistance, police calls, motorist assists, fires, leaks, spills and persons stuck in elevators. We hope that the inconvenience posed by the 13 prank calls would not outweigh the benefits of receiving so many real calls, allowing for a quick response by campus security.

The final concern which might be expressed is that the cost would be prohibitive. We must ask ourselves what price can be placed on providing as safe a university environment as possible? What is the price we are willing to pay to prevent rape or assault? The UI can afford to pursue this project. Can we afford not to pursue it?

IT IS POSSIBLE TO proceed with this project immediately. The installation of our new phone system and the required laying of the new phone cable provides us with an excellent opportunity to begin this process today. We can improve our campus safety immediately. If we act soon and it saves even one person from being raped, we have provided an immeasurable service to the students on this campus.

Other problems will undoubtedly be suggested. However, we are confident that after studying the benefits offered by such a system, it will be found that they far outweigh the potential problems. It is our hope that emergency phones will be given the chance to sell themselves. If this happens, we are sure that we will see a system installed on the UI campus. We hope that the problem which we face and the potential benefits of an emergency phone system are sufficiently persuasive to warrant the UI pursuing this project with great vigor.

Margaret Gridley is the chairperson of the Collegiate Associations Council's University Environment Committee. Michael Reck is the president of the Collegiate Associations Council.

Sex education

To the Editor:

Phil Thomas' article about "safe sex" (The Daily Iowan Sept. 10) was appropriate, but only told part of the importance for "safe sex." "Safe sex" education should be one of the highest priorities at the UI.

If institutions such as the UI's Infectious Disease Committee, Health Iowa and UI Student Health Services would make it a priority to make inexpensive information openly available, the UI community would go a long way toward saving millions of dollars in medical and social costs accrued by AIDS victims.

When AIDS hit the gay community in epidemic proportions, larger cities instituted massive safe sex education programs which have helped reduce AIDS. The general population must also institute such programs because the number of "straight" people with AIDS is rising rapidly. The university has the opportunity to create a preventative health education program. For all of our lives, lets hope they take the same initiative with this disease that they did when a measles epidemic threatened the health of the UI campus.

Pure sex

To the Editor:

Whereas students' opinions vary concerning premarital sex, God's standard has not changed: Premarital sex is sin! (In contrast to "dangerous," "justified," and "plain fun," The Daily Iowan, Sept. 9). Consider this verse, "But if they cannot control themselves, they should marry, for it is better to marry than to burn with passion" (1 Corinthians 7:9).

While many would say, "That preacher is out of his mind," allow me to relate a recent experience. One day in Burge, a student, after discovering I am a minister, asked me, "What do you think about all the premarital sex that goes on around here?" I answered his question with one of my own: "For the one who has sexual relations before marriage, what is the difference before the honeymoon and the honeymoon itself?" His response, "a motel bill." Those who wait to have sex until after marriage will find their honeymoon a beautiful reminder that, rather than defrauding each other, they have kept themselves pure for each other.

Hansen urges input on education act

By Lewis Wayne Greene
University Editor

The federal government's higher education policy for the next 20 years is quietly being formed in Washington. Too quietly, a UI student leader said Sunday.

Bills to reauthorize the higher education act have already been moved by the U.S. Senate to the House of Representatives, and a compromise bill is very near completion in a conference committee.

A spokesman for Iowa Rep. Tom Tauke, R-2nd District, a member of the conference committee, said Sunday the bill should be out of committee sometime this week and could be on President Ronald Reagan's desk by the second week in October.

But UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen said Sunday that student government and university administrators across the nation have dropped the ball by not fighting for a stronger bill.

"We are, in many cases, setting policy for post-secondary education for the next 20 years," Hansen said. "This is absolutely critical."

THE HOUSE BILL is preferable to the Senate measure, Hansen said. He said students should let Tauke know they are aware of how the law would effect them.

The most dangerous provisions of the Senate bill focus on limiting the availability of Pell grants, Hansen said.

"Clearly the people who are

"We are, in many cases, setting policy for post-secondary education for the next 20 years," says UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen of the higher education act. "This is absolutely critical."

going to be hurt are the middle-class," Hansen said. "We are seriously threatening the availability of post-secondary education to the middle class if some of these things go through."

Last week the student senate passed a resolution backing many provisions in the House's bill including:

- A provision including Pell Grant eligibility for students who attend school less than half time,

• new non-traditional student, teacher training and child care programs.

• a three-year Guaranteed Student Loan and National Direct Student Loan deferment for students who plan to teach and

• an increase in the Guaranteed Student Loan interest rate from 8 percent to 10 percent in the fifth year of repayment. The Senate bill raises the interest rate to 10 percent throughout the pay-back period.

RANDY BENGFORT, Tauke's press secretary, agreed the bill has generated little publicity. While Tauke has kept in touch with student leaders and college and university administrators, concern for the bill has been lackluster.

Despite the low level of interest, Bengfort said a good bill would result from the discussions.

"It seemed like right from the beginning that the commitment to the student would remain," Bengfort said. "It actually was a matter of how much to increase programs."

Water safe but 'doesn't taste too good'

By Joseph Levy
Staff Writer

Drinking glasses by the sinks in many UI residence hall rooms will remain dry this fall as students learn to tolerate the high amount of chlorine that makes Iowa City water safe.

UI Civil and Environmental Engineering Professor Don McDonald said the amount of chlorine in Iowa City drinking water isn't dangerous. "It's safe to drink," he said. "But it doesn't taste too good."

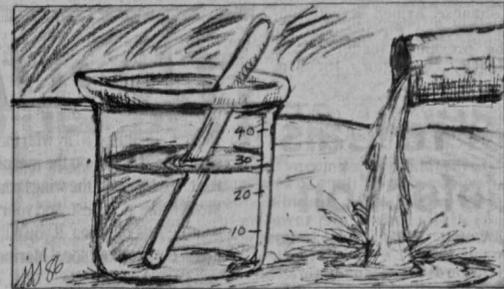

Water treatment officials say early fall is when water from the Iowa River is at its best and it usually gets much worse in the spring.

"You're in for a treat," McDonald said. In the spring "it smells like it came out of a Clorox bottle."

One needs only to look at the river's brown hue to understand why the treatment plant must add the amount of chlorine it does.

"WE HAVE MINIMAL industrial use of the river. The vast majority of the pollution on the river comes from agricultural activities on the basin," McDonald said.

"Ninety percent of the Iowa

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

River drainage basin is used for agricultural purposes. Obviously, whenever we get a rainfall or run-off from the basin onto the river, we get the impact from the substances on the water quality. Instead of coming out the end of a pipe, it comes out a drainage basin," he said.

McDonald said these substances include fertilizers, pesticides and other farm chemicals.

"Nitrates (an ingredient in many fertilizers) in high concentrations are not a hazard to adults, but it can be to infants," McDonald said.

Ed Brinton, director of the Iowa City water treatment plant, explained that nothing can be done to alleviate a nitrate problem. "We can't do anything with that. We do not have, nor does anyone have, an economical process to remove nitrate nitrogen."

BRINTON SAID the nitrogen level in Iowa City water has never violated safety standards.

According to McDonald, impurities in the river are high in the spring because melting snow brings them into the river rapidly from the basin. Additional chlorine must be added to the water, and that accounts for the taste difference.

Polish celebrate release of prisoners

GDANSK, Poland — Solidarity founder Lech Walesa said Sunday the release of 225 political prisoners under an amnesty program created a "new situation" in Poland and a chance for talks with the government.

Thousands of Poles in the seaport where Solidarity was born cheered leaders of the outlawed union who were freed under the amnesty that took effect July 23.

Last week, Solidarity sources speculated the amnesty was intended to improve Poland's relations with the United States in a bid to prod Washington into lifting the economic sanctions imposed on Poland after the declaration of martial law.

China grants Nicaragua non-military aid

PEKING — Expressing satisfaction with his first visit to China, Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega said Sunday Peking confirmed its "solidarity" with Managua and granted his country $20 million in immediate aid.

Ortega said Nicaragua and China signed an accord on economic, commercial and cultural cooperation, including more than $20 million in immediate interest-free credit from Peking.

Concluding his first visit to China since Nicaraguan relations were restored in 1985, Ortega said the aid would include foodstuffs, consumer items and tools. He said there was no repayment date on the loan.

He declined to reveal whether the package would include arms, but Western observers said it was unlikely that Peking would send military aid to Central America.

Pakistani official killed in car explosion

KARACHI, Pakistan — A bomb planted under a car seat exploded and killed Iraq's vice consul in Karachi as he drove from his home Sunday, authorities said.

No group immediately claimed responsibility for the explosion that killed Iraqi Vice Consul Mehtar Abdus Salam and critically injured his driver.

Authorities said the bomb apparently was linked to a timer or remote control. They had no suspects.

Two killed in Northern Ireland violence

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Two gunmen fatally shot a Protestant man and another man was killed during a gun battle with security forces Sunday, police said.

Two hooded gunmen burst into a house in north Belfast and shot a 33-year-old Protestant man to death at close range, police said.

The dead man was identified as John Bingham, who had once worked as an election agent for a hard-line Protestant politician, George Seawright.

Later, a foot patrol of police and troops came under sniper fire. No one was hurt in the initial shootings but a man was shot in a follow-up sweep by security forces and was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital.

Voyager test, record attempt, canceled

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — The final test flight of the experimental plane Voyager, whose pilots hope to set a new global distance record, was canceled Sunday because of "minor but critical problems," a spokesman said.

The Voyager, piloted by Dick Rutan and Jeana Yeager, was scheduled to leave Edwards Air Force Base on a two-day test flight as a prelude to a record-setting 12-day flight around the world without refueling.

Instead, the craft was returned to the Mojave Civilian Test Flight Center for problems encountered during its seven-hour flight to Edwards Saturday, said Dan Card, a spokesman for the project.

Card did not specify the nature of the problems, but characterized them as "glitches."

The trial flight will be rescheduled.

Prison cost underestimated, study says

DES MOINES — The daily cost of housing a person in an Iowa prison is nearly 30 percent more than the figures reported by the state, according to a new study by a prison reform group.

The Rev. Gordon Lundberg, president of MICA Corp., said the discrepancy occurs because operating, indirect operating and construction costs are not included in figures for an inmate's daily housing cost.

MICA said the state should concentrate on less costly community punishments. The research also indicated a general policy of jailings does not reduce crime and it is better to use non-institutional sanctions for non-violent offenders.

Quoted . . .

There is no moral middle ground. Indifference is not an option. We want you to help us create an outspoken intolerance for drug use. For the sake of our children, I implore each of you to be unyielding and inflexible in your opposition to drugs.

Terrorist bomb kills French policeman

PARIS (UPI) — A bomb hidden in a bouquet of flowers in a crowded restaurant exploded Sunday after it was carried to an underground garage, killing a police officer and seriously injuring two other people, police said.

The fourth terrorist incident in Paris in 10 days occurred on the tourist-packed Avenue des Champs-Elysees. The bomb exploded less than an hour before Prime Minister Jacques Chirac announced strict new measures to control the number of foreigners, particularly Arabs, entering the country.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, but police suspected an Arab group that announced Sept. 1 it would renew a bombing campaign with "tougher and tougher attacks" to pressure the government to free their jailed guerrilla leader and two other terrorists.

A WAITRESS found an abandoned bouquet of flowers under a table in the Pub Renault, a restaurant in the showroom for Renault cars, police said. She alerted the head waiter, who carried it to the second-floor underground parking lot, alerting two police officers on the way.

Once in the parking lot, the bomb exploded. Officer Jean-Louis Breteau, 24, died later of his wounds, and the two other men suffered serious burns to their faces and hands. French television said they were in comas.

Ex-CIA officer reveals reason for defection

MOSCOW (UPI) — Edward Lee Howard, the former CIA officer accused of betraying the U.S. intelligence operation in Moscow, said in an interview broadcast Sunday that he defected to the Soviet Union because he feared arrest.

In his first public appearance in the Soviet Union since his defection, Howard, the first CIA agent known to have defected to Moscow, said he went to the Soviet Union for protection. He said he fled the United States because he became disillusioned with the "militaristic" attitude of the CIA and the Reagan administration.

"I love my country and my people," he said. "I have never done anything that would harm Americans or put the security of my country at risk . . . I might be unfaithful to the Police said the bomb, estimated to contain 4.4 pounds of explosives, damaged nearby cars and blew a gaping hole in the concrete floor that opened to the floor below.

Chirac said the government "has decided to establish mandatory visas for all foreigners, from wherever they come, coming to France with the exception of countries of the European Economic Community and Switzerland."

HE SAID THE measure, part of an effort to fight terrorism, would take effect Monday and last at least six months. Commentators said it was aimed particularly at controlling the number of Arabs entering the country.

The bombing campaign began Sept. 4, when a plastic explosive was found smoking on a subway train. The bomb failed to go off. On Sept. 8, a bomb blew up in the Paris city hall post office, decapitating a woman and injuring 18 other people. A bomb at the Casino cafeteria in a suburb west of Paris blew up Friday, injuring 41 people, two of them seriously.

Police believe the Committee of Solidarity with Arab and Middle Eastern Political Prisoners and the Partisans of Right and Liberty are working together on behalf of the Lebanese Armed Revolutionary Faction for freedom for the presumed leader of the LARF, Georges Ibrahim Abdallah.

5 killed in S. Korean bombing

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — An explosion Sunday ripped through Seoul's Kimpo International Airport, killing at least five people and wounding 19 others. South Korea immediately blamed North Korea for the blast.

National Police Chief Kang Min-chang said the five people were killed and 19 others injured, 13 of them seriously, by an explosive device of unknown origin. He said the device was planted in a trash can outside the first-floor glass wall of the three-story terminal.

Kang said the five dead were Koreans, but did not say if any foreigners were injured.

An airport official, contacted by telephone, said the explosion erupted about 30 minutes after the arrival of Japan Airlines Flight 961 from Osaka, Japan.

KANG TOLD a news conference the explosion was intended to disrupt the 10th Asian Games, set to open in Seoul on Saturday with 5,300 athletes and officials from 29 countries taking part. The games run through Oct. 5.

"We consider that it was an act of North Korea or impure elements instigated by the northern communists," Kang told a press conference.

"There is no doubt the explosion was carried out in an impure and barbarous scheme to disrupt the success of the sports event," he said.

The injured included an airport electrician and two women who were at the airport to meet relatives arriving from Japan, officials said.

UI parking problems prompt strategies for future spaces

By Dan McClain
Staff Writer

Increasing demand for the campus parking spaces that are rapidly being wiped out by construction has officials taking a hard look at the UI's parking future.

UI Parking and Transportation Director David Ricketts said his department has seen increases in usage rates for the fifth straight year, but the number of available spaces is declining in the face of expanding UI facilities.

"There's just been a real jump in demand to park," he said. "We get nickel and dined. We lose 10 spaces here and five spaces there and that starts to add up."

RICKETTS POINTED to the destruction of 18 spaces behind the UI Chemistry-Botany Building to make room for the new UI Telecommunications Center and the loss of 17 spaces in the lot behind the UI Communications Center to accommodate an electrical substation as examples of UI construction projects encroaching on parking areas.

"We're short everywhere. I don't think there's a (parking) category that we're not short in. And the demand just continues to increase on us," he said.

Recent UI attempts to combat the growing parking problems include plans for the construction of a 400-space parking ramp on top of the Chilled Water Facility north of Kinick Stadium, plans for the expansion of the lot behind South Quadrangle Residence Hall and a space down-sizing campaign.

The space down-sizing program has been carried out on most of the major campus lots during the past four years because it creates additional spaces without expanding the actual lot size, he said. When a lot is down-sized, the width of each space is reduced from 9 feet to 8.5 feet.

ALTHOUGH THESE efforts, and particularly the ramp, will help the parking situation, Ricketts said the UI is beginning to consider its parking strategy for the future.

That strategy may include building parking ramps in the main campus area and the establishment of lots in outlying regions that would be serviced by shuttle buses, he said. Both options would require major capital investments, he said.

UI Facilities and Planning Director Richard Gibson said the lack of unused land on campus figures heavily into the shape future UI parking will take.

"We don't have any more land just sitting around that we can see for parking and that's fact number one," Gibson said.

FUTURE PARKING could come in the form of structure parking being incorporated into new buildings, he said. The UI has also given some thought to building a ramp somewhere south of Burlington Street in the vicinity of the UI Physical Plant, he said.

But Gibson stressed that idea has not been given serious consideration. "It's a general concept and that's all it is," he said.

Until additional projects get approval, Ricketts said his department will continue to make spaces where it can.

"We are really looking at alleviating some of the parking problems," he said. "We've done a lot of expanding in the last years, but it's small stuff. We're doing what we can."

Council to discuss bus woes

By Darin E. Baker
Staff Writer

The Iowa City Council will discuss the findings tonight of an ad hoc committee designed to help solve the financial problems of the city's transit system.

The committee was formed in May by the Johnson County Council of Governments to study the Iowa City Transit System in an effort to reduce a $508,000 deficit.

During the investigation, the committee discovered relationships between the city's system and the operation of the UI Cambus service and the Coralville Transit System, as well.

"Each of the systems is extremely successful," John Lundell, Iowa City Transit manager, said. The reason the system is facing financial difficulty is because of the quality of service, Lundell said.

During their several weeks of discussion, committee members considered issues related to transit system operations. Some of those included: areas of transit service duplication or route over-lap; consolidation of the three local systems — UI Cambus, Coralville transit and Iowa City transit — into one transit authority; marketing and advertising; the community's transit responsibility to disabled persons; and bus fare policies and service reductions.

The committee found the only area of duplication is on North Dubuque Street near Mayflower Residence Hall. A recommendation was made to extend Cambus' Mayflower service to include a small residential area north of the residence hall.

Committee members also determined that consolidating the three systems would be inappropriate.

Improvements in the existing bus and shop program were endorsed. The program allows shoppers to receive a stamp valued at 30 cents for each $10 purchase. The stamps are used to pay bus fare, which is 50 cents per ride. All merchants in the downtown area will be encouraged to participate.

Elevators aren't 'uplifting' for residence hall dwellers

By Joseph Levy
Staff Writer
and Lewis Wayne Greene
University Editor

Riding "the vator" can be less than an uplifting experience, students living in UI residence halls say.

Problems ranging from stuck elevators to slow service seem to be a fact of life in the halls.

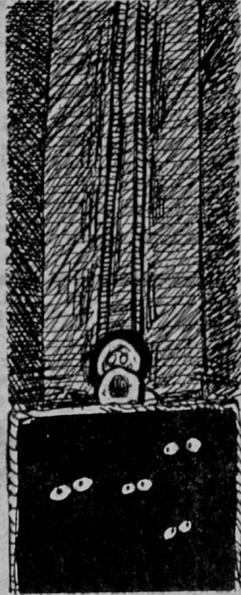

"The majority of weekends here the elevators are not running," Rienow Hall resident Fredrick Weber said. "When they designed Rienow and Slater, they should have had three elevators rather than two."

Weber has lived on the 11th floor of Rienow for two years and said he occasionally must resort to climbing the stairs.

Some students, however, choose to ignore the stairways and accept the long wait.

"IT TAKES FOREVER," Rienow resident Stacey Gibson said and recalled one incident when she was late to a class because of the slow elevator. "It's broken all of the time."

UI Assistant Residence Services Director Wayne Graeve said the company contracted to keep the residence hall elevators on the rise strives to keep the lifts working but often finds students working against them.

The Daily Iowan/Jeffrey Sedam

"I think a lot of problems that are student-related stem from elevators that are too full," Graeve said.

"Elevator stuffing parties," jumping up and down to trigger elevator safety mechanisms and other forms of vandalism also keep elevator service calls coming into residence services, he said.

Waiting for the elevator isn't the only problem residents face.

"IT JUST STOPPED on the floor, and it wouldn't open," said 10th floor resident Kim Westbrook. She estimated that at least one of Rienow's two elevators is broken each week.

UI Associated Residence Halls President Larry Pearlman said elevator problems can cause tension between residence hall students.

Those who violate the "unwritten law" that residents of lower floors should take to the stairs instead of filling elevator space are subject to icy stares and ridicule, Pearlman said.

ARH hasn't addressed elevator problems as an issue, but Pearlman agreed there have been problems. Many Reinow residents preferred taking stairs last weekend because the one working elevator had vomit in it, he said.

Graeve said until residents start treating elevators with respect and stop vandalizing the equipment, things may not get any better.

University Theatres to offer free tickets to season opener

When UI students get their 1986-87 University Theatres season brochures this week they should be on the lookout for a special offer.

Instead of ordering series tickets that they have to pay for, they can opt for a free ticket to the season's opening play.

"Everyone likes something free. We hope students will be intrigued enough to open the brochure and see what we have to offer," University Theatres Marketing Director Chuck Calmer said of the promotion.

Free tickets to the Oct. 22 production of the Renaissance comedy The Alchemist by Ben Jonson will be sent to students who put their name and address on the theater's order form and check the "no" box. Only 450 free tickets are available and they will be given out on a first-come, first-served basis.

"Our plan is to attract as many people into University Theatres as possible," he added.

Attendance at University Theatres has been "the envy of other theater programs in the Big Ten," Calmer said. "But we still think we should be reaching more people."

"We hope students who are afraid to invest in a series subscription of five plays will try us when the seat is free," he said.

The theater has a bit of a publicity problem with students, Calmer said.

"I wonder how many of the 2,500 students in the eastside residence halls stare out their windows and realize they're looking at the Theatre Building across the river," he said. "How many know where we are? Or have been afraid to see a play? You don't have to dress up. And you may even see people you know."

Hawks cruise past Iowa State, 43-7

By Brad Zimaneck
Sports Editor

The game Iowa State Coach Jim Criner had envisioned never materialized when the Iowa football team took an early lead and cruised to a 43-7 victory Saturday in front of a Kinnick Stadium record crowd of 67,700 fans.

The victory made Iowa Coach Hayden Fry the winningest coach in Hawkeye football history. Fry's eight year record at Iowa now stands at 53-30-1.

"I'm glad that thing is over with. I'm really uptight about the first game," Fry said. "I'm extremely proud of our football team. I thought they overcame a lot of mistakes but we obviously executed pretty well on defense and offensively we got some points on the board." The Hawkeyes managed 580 yards total offense while allowing Iowa State only 125, including a total of -11 yards rushing.

"The game obviously is a real disappointment to us because of the way we played," Criner said. "Iowa's defensive line dominated us and really controlled the game."

Criner was not the only one surprised by the play of the Cyclones.

"OTHER THAN THIS game I hope they win them all but obviously after watching them today (Saturday) that's going to be very difficult to do," Fry said. "But at least it's a nice thought."

Fry later added, "We were truly concerned about Iowa State but we had our guys ready and we did it in such a manner that we had to establish confidence. I'm real happy the score wasn't worse. I hate to see them score but on the other hand I'm happy they scored because I don't want all the air let out of Iowa State's inner tube right off the bat."

The Hawkeyes on their first drive from scrimmage marched 59 yards to set up the first score of the contest, a 32-yard field goal from Iowa kicker Rob Houghtlin.

After an Iowa State punt four plays later Iowa again marched down the field to set up another Houghtlin field goal, this time from 46 yards out giving the Hawkeyes a 6-0

On the next set of downs Iowa State had a chance to get on the scoreboard as they moved down to the Iowa 36-yard line but Cyclone kicker Rick Frank was short on a 53-yard field goal attempt. That was the last scoring attempt Iowa State would have until late in the third quarter and the only points they would eventually score came with 1:09 remaining in the game.

"The outcome of the game today really surprised me," Iowa quarterback Mark Vlasic said. "We came out and we didn't even score touchdowns, we had to settle for field goals and they still didn't come in there. It just didn't happen."

Iowa, though, was not yet finished scoring in the first half.

WITH :34 SECONDS remaining in the first quarter Iowa quarterback Mark Vlasic hit split end Jim Mauro, who was replacing an injured Quinn Early, for a 27-yard touchdown pass.

Early in the second quarter, fullback David Hudson scored from one yard out giving the Hawkeyes a 19-0 advantage.

Iowa's scoring outburst for the first 30 minutes was still not quite over. A Fry "specialty" with 1:40 remaining provided the Hawkeyes with a 26-0 half-time advantage.

On a second-and-six situation from the Cyclones' 17-yard line Vlasic handed off to Rick Bayless, who started to run around the left end.

Bayless proceeded to hand off to flanker Robert Smith who was coming back across the

Mauro shines in Iowa's debut

By Dan Millea
Assistant Sports Editor

One of the major questions heading into Saturday's Iowa-Iowa State game was could Jim Mauro fill in for injured split end Quinn Early. One of the major questions after the game was will Quinn Early ever get his job back.

Mauro, a former walk-on, had a dream day in Kinnick Stadium, grabbing five passes for 149 yards and a record tying three touchdowns in the Hawkeyes 43-7 romp over Iowa State.

His performance was reminiscent of last season, when Bill Happel and Scott Helverson were the sticky fingered recipients of Chuck Long's aeriels.

Early and Robert Smith were expected to fill in at the receiver spots this season, but with Early out for three to four weeks due to a shoulder injury, Mauro owns the split end position, at least for now.

"As long as Quinn is out I see myself as number one," Mauro said. "But once Quinn comes back we're going to have three very talented receivers, and what happens from there is up to the coaches."

DESPITE THE FACT that Mauro and Early are competitors for the same job, they're friends, and Mauro said he dedicated Saturday's game to Early.

"I was really nervous at first," he said. "I knew stepping into Quinn's shoes wasn't going to be easy because he's an exceptional receiver. I dedicated this game to him — I told him that this morning (Saturday). He was talking to me, really trying to get me fired up. He was very confident, very reassuring."

Two of Mauro's three touchdowns came from quarterback Mark Vlasic, who said there was no question in his mind that Mauro could be counted on Saturday.

"He's a fine receiver," Vlasic said of Mauro. "This week people were asking 'what about Quinn being out?' Of course we miss Quinn. He's tough to replace, but I knew Jimmy would be able to get the job done."

Cyclones run by Hawkeyes

By Laura Palmer
Staff Writer

The Iowa Open Saturday looked more like an Iowa-Iowa State clash than a five-team cross country meet, with the Cyclones ending up on top, by one point.

"Iowa State is a very potent team," Iowa women's cross-country Coach Jerry Hassard said. "I'm very proud of our team. This was one of the best races I've seen in the 11 years I've been here. There was a challenge before us and they met that challenge."

The Cyclones finished the meet with 28 points, Iowa was next (29), Wisconsin-LaCrosse was third (102), Drake was fourth (111) and Northeast Missouri State finished last (120).

"Iowa State may very well be a national contender this year, therefore, I'm very optimistic of the upcoming season," Hassard said. "When our own team can run with the best there is, I think we're off to a strong start."

IOWA'S RENEE Doyle led the pack, and with 1,000 meters left in the 5,000-meter race broke away from three Cyclones to win with a time of 17:10.

"Right now I have a lot of goals, one is to go to nationals and to get our team to nationals so I have to get on that level," Doyle said.

"It was a big victory for Renee who beat three Cyclone all-Americans," Hassard said.

Bonnie Sons placed second, with a time of 17:18 and teammate Susan Youngberg Iowa's Renee Doyle won the 5,000-meter with a time of 17:10 in the Iowa Open Saturday. Iowa finished second in the five-team meet.

was third in 17:25. Iowa's Kristen Waters placed fourth, recording a time of 17:43.

Cyclones Dawn Lentsch, who according to Hassard is a national caliber runner, and all-American Jill Slettedahl came across the finish line just ahead of Iowa's Janeth Salazar. Salazar ran the course in 17:57.

IOWA TEAMMATES Sherri Suppelsa, who is the team captain and only senior on the team and sophomore Michelle Giampapa recorded times of 18:01 and 18:02 respectively.

"They all ran a good season opener," Hassard said. "We had three other runners that were a little further back in the individual standings — Wendy Bare, Tricia Kiraly and Rachelle Roberts, but they should help us next week."

49ers' Montana out for year

United Press International

The loss of two starting quarterbacks for the season overshadowed an NFL Sunday when Buddy Ryan made a memorable return to Chicago and the Raiders dropped to 0-2 for the first time in 22 years.

The San Francisco 49ers announced after a 16-13 loss to the Rams that quarterback Joe Montana will miss the rest of the season with a ruptured disc and may never play again.

The 49ers said Montana, a five-time Pro Bowl performer and twice the winning quarterback in the Super Bowl, will undergo surgery Monday.

"We'll have to wait and see about whether he'll ever play again," said Robert Gamburd, a team physician. "It'll (the prospect of playing) be due to strengthening and conditioning and also mental preparation."

MONTANA PLAYED in San Francisco's opening game, a 31-7 triumph last week over Tampa Bay. Gamburd said Montana's injury came in the fourth quarter of that contest. He said the injury was in the fifth lumbar region and is similar to the one that forced Tampa Bay defensive lineman Lee Roy Selmon into retirement.

At Miami, Indianapolis quarterback Gary Hogeboom suffered a separated right shoulder in a 30-10 loss to Miami and will miss the remainder of the season.

Hogeboom was injured when he was tackled by Miami safety Lyle Blackwood after running 50 yards with a fumble recovery. Blackwood rode Hogeboom down on his right shoulder on the right sideline.

Hogeboom, a seven-year veteran, will undergo surgery Monday, team officials said.

"IT WAS A GOOD, clean hit," Hogeboom, a former Dallas Cowboy, said. "I was trying to get into the end zone and he just wanted to catch me. It's just one of the breaks of the game. I still want to be part of this team and I'll be working with (Jack) Trudeau to see that he gets as much help as I can give him."

At Chicago, Kevin Butler, who had missed four field goals, converted a 23-yard try with 9:04 left in overtime to give Chicago a 13-10 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles and Ryan, the former Bears defensive coordinator.

"It was a victory over a close friend," Bears middle linebacker Mike Singletary, who embraced Ryan after the game, said.

At Washington, Jay Schroeder passed 60 yards to Clint Didier to set up the game's lone touchdown, a 3-yard run by George Rogers with 7:27 remaining, to help the Washington Redskins to a 10-6 victory over the Raiders.

THE RAIDERS fell to 0-2, losing the first two games for the first time since 1964, when they lost their first five en route to a 5-7-2 record.

"We really have put ourselves in a tough position," Raiders running back Marcus Allen said. "We're too good to be 0-2."

Elsewhere, Cincinnati edged Buffalo 36-33 in overtime, Cleveland defeated Houston 23-20, Dallas routed Detroit 31-7, New Orleans downed Green Bay 24-10, Atlanta dumped St. Louis 33-13, the Giants stopped San Diego 20-7, Miami ripped Indianapolis 30-10, Seattle bested Kansas City 23-17, Minnesota knocked off Tampa Bay 23-10 and the Rams eclipsed San Francisco 16-13.

At Cincinnati, linebacker Carl Zander intercepted a Jim Kelly pass to set up Jim Breech's 20-yard field 56 seconds into overtime and help the Bengals send Buffalo to its 18th straight road loss.

AT HOUSTON, in the final 2:10, Bernie Kosar threw a 55-yard touchdown pass to Reggie Langhorne and Earnest Byner scored on a 1-yard run to rally Cleveland.

At Pontiac, Mich., Tony Dorsett, playing on a tender ankle, rambled for one touchdown and positioned another en route to 117 yards rushing to lift Dallas. Dorsett, who carried 23 times, rushed 5 yards for a touchdown and motored 33 yards to set up a 1-yard plunge by quarterback Danny White.

At New Orleans, James Haynes returned an interception 17 yards for a touchdown and the Saints picked off a team-record seven passes in giving first-year coach Jim Mora his first victory.

Sauers nails putt to win Boston Classic

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Gene Sauers sank a 15-foot putt on the third sudden-death hole to defeat Blaine McCallister Sunday and capture the $450,000 Bank of Boston Classic for his first career PGA Tour victory.

Sauers, 24, of Savannah, Ga., collected the $81,000 first prize after competing in only the second sudden-death playoff in the 22-year history of the Pleasant Valley Country Club event. Wayne Levi, who tied for fourth this year, won a 4-hole playoff in 1980.

"My number one goal at the beginning of the year was to win a tournament," said Sauers, who shot 2-under 69 to finish regulation at 10-under 274.

Rodriguez sets record in seniors victory

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Chi Chi Rodriguez shot a tournament-record 6-under-par 66 Sunday for a three-stroke victory over Don January in the $300,000 United Virginia Bank Seniors Tournament.

Rodriguez carded a 14-under 202 for the three-day event at the Hermitage Copuntry Club. He won $45,000 and maintained his hold as the top money winner on the PGA Seniors Tour with $318,000.

"This was the best putting round I've ever had in my life," said Rodriguez, a Puerto Rican who lives in Florida during the Seniors tour.

On The Line

Our first contest of the 1986 football season is now complete, and apparently we gave you an easy lineup of games. 12 people submitted perfect ballots.

That, of course, sent us into the intricate world of the tie-breaker. On tiebreaker criteria No. 1 — correct score — we narrowed the field to just two, Gary Grout and Dan LaBrush.

The score of the Chico State-Cal Poly game was 26-18 in favor of Cal Poly. Grout picked 25-17 and LaBrush guessed 27-17, both off by two points.

But on the second criteria, total points accuracy, LaBrush was declared the winner as he hit 44 points on the nose.

For his efforts LaBrush is now the happy owner of an eight gallon bouncing baby keg, compliments of Tycoons, the first 1986 sponsor.

Among the DI pickers Sports Editor Brad Zimanek claimed an early season lead by correctly predicting all but one outcome. Assistant Sports Editor Dan Millea missed two games, and Staff Writer Steve Williams was typically average, missing three games.

With that out of the way we can move on to this week's contest which also features a delicious barrel of beer as the prize.

Freshmen key Hawks in field hockey victory

By Julie Deardorff
Staff Writer

Iowa's youngest field hockey members made their presence felt Saturday by scoring both goals in the Hawkeyes' 2-0 triumph over Ball State at Dekalb, Ill.

Freshman Frederique Kock put the first goal into the net with 27:10 left in the first half.

"It wasn't off a direct corner kick but we had a penalty corner," Iowa Coach Judith Davidson said. "It rebounded off the goalie's pads and Fred put it in."

That goal broke the ice and seven minutes later another freshman, Melanie Sanders, scored again on a corner. Kock stopped the ball and hit it to Liz Tehou. Tehou passed it back to Sanders, who shot it past the goalie.

"It was a very pretty play," Davidson said. "We know a lot of penalty corner options and we tried to do a lot of them today. Some things aren't as smooth as I'd like, but everything is coming along good."

BALL STATE played with almost their entire defense in the striking circle, which forced Iowa to readjust their offense. "It makes it difficult to get the ball through with all those people," Davidson said. "It usually just hits their legs, and it's almost impossible to score. We were forced to score off corners, which we did."

Iowa had 21 shots on goal while the Cardinals could only muster eight. Goalie Karen Napolitano had three saves and, despite playing with a cast, recorded her third shut-out in four games.

"The best thing about the game is we played extremely well," Davidson said. "I was very, very pleased with everyone. We had strong passing, it was accurate, crisp, and well-controlled. It reminded me of a basketball game. Our positioning was also very good."

Patti Wanner, RosAnna Salcido, Erica Richards and Deb Robertson also turned in good games for the Hawkeyes.

"Wanner had a beautiful shot that unfortunately didn't count because the ball wasn't stopped," Davidson said. "It was something we've been working on for about three years; it was off a corner. At right back Sanders was very smooth and initiated a penalty corner."

"The ball was hit very hard to RosAnna all day, but she stopped it every time," she continued. "She had another very good game. Erica is starting to relax and she played well, and Deb had another fine game defensively."

The win was Iowa's fourth straight and they remain undefeated with a 4-0 record.

Big Ten hit by key defeats in three West Coast tests

United Press International
The Big Ten record for Saturday was a respectable 6-3 against non-conference opponents, but the three losses indicates something about the strength of the conference.

Michigan State, Illinois and Ohio State lost to outside agitators Saturday, the first full day of non-conference play for the Big Ten. Michigan, Indiana, Purdue, Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin all won, while Northwestern took the weekend off.

In Seattle, the 12th-ranked Ohio State Buckeyes, who lost their season opener to Alabama, dropped an embarrassing 40-7 decision to the 13th-ranked Washington Huskies.

It was the worst defeat for Ohio State since a 41-6 loss to Purdue in 1967 and marked the first time Ohio State has gone 0-2 since 1894.

"They kicked us hard and they played us good," Ohio State Coach Earle Bruce said. "I can't remember the last time we were beaten this badly. This was a total blow out."

OHIO STATE was held to 11 first downs and 186 yards in total offense. The Buckeyes fumbled the ball five times and turned it over three of those times.

Another embarrassing loss occurred further down the West Coast, where USC trounced Illinois 31-16. The Illini also had difficulty moving the ball, gaining just 127 yards on the ground and 148 passing.

Illinois had a 6-0 lead on two of three field goals by Chris Siambekos but lost the lead on a 3-yard touchdown run by Aaron Emanuel.

It was 14-9 at halftime in favor of the Trojans and they built the lead to 21-9 on one of two touchdown catches by wide receiver Ken Henry.

ILLINOIS CUT the USC advantage to 21-16 only to give up a couple of decisive plays leading to a 32-yard touchdown run goal that lifted the Irish past the Wolverines.

Carney missed the 45-yarder and Michigan had its season-opening victory.

"I knew he was going to miss," Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said. "This was my turn."

IN THE OTHER Big Ten games, Purdue defeated Ball State 20-3, Indiana topped Louisville 21-0, Iowa whipped Iowa State 43-7, Wisconsin outlasted Northern Illinois 35-20, Minnesota topped Bowling Green 31-7.

Freshman Jeff George made his debut as quarterback for the Boilermakers, completed 23 of 40 passes for 225 yards and one touchdown. He also was intercepted three times.

"I was a little nervous," George, the most highly recruited player out of high school last year, said. "I wanted to do well, but I made some mistakes. I don't think I played too well."

Hayden Fry became the winningest coach in Iowa history, gaining his 53rd career victory at Iowa City with the decision over the intrastate rival Cyclones.

JIM MAURO caught three touchdown passes for Iowa, ranked 20th in the country.

Indiana could not score in the first half against hapless Louisville, but got three second half touchdowns to start its season with a win. Louisville was also shutout last week by Illinois.

Minnesota freshman running back Darrell Thompson rushed for 205 yards and three touchdowns.

Wisconsin bounced back from its opening loss to Hawaii to trounce new independent Northern Illinois to give Coach Jim Hillis his first victory.

Quarterback Mike Howard threw four touchdown passes, two each to Reggie Tompkins and Fred Bobo.

Big Ten Roundup

by quarterback Rodney Peete.

"Every time we were close to taking the upper hand, we didn't get it done," Illinois Coach Mike White, whose club fell 1-1, said.

Michigan State lost to Arizona State 20-17 late Saturday night in its season opener.

Arizona State's Kent Bostrom kicked a 34-yard field goal with 9:15 left in the game and Darren Willis blocked a 34-yard field goal attempt with 12 seconds remaining.

SPARTAN RUNNING back Lorenzo White, considered one of the preseason favorites for the Heisman Trophy, was held to just 61 yards on 24 carries by the Sun Devil defense.

Now for the good news. Third-ranked Michigan held on through an emotional game at Notre Dame to beat the Irish 24-23. Notre Dame kicker John Carney tried to relive the moment in 1980 when Harry Oliver kicked a 51-yard field goal that lifted the Irish past the Wolverines.

Big Eight trounced by foes

United Press International
At least Woody Widenhofer can smile.

The second-year Missouri coach finally won a home game, guiding his opportunistic Tigers to a 24-10 victory over Utah State. The rest of the Big Eight wasn't as lucky.

With top-rated Oklahoma and No. 6 Nebraska idle, the "others" in the conference played Saturday and posted a 15 record. It was the worst week for the Big Eight since 1982, when Kansas State and Iowa State were the only winners in a 2-5-1 weekend.

This year, Kansas State was blanked 17-0 by Division I-AA Northern Iowa, Kansas was shutout 20-0 by North Carolina, Iowa State was thumped by cross-state rival No. 20 Iowa 43-7, Oklahoma State was dropped 27-23 by Tulsa and Colorado dropped a 32-30 decision to Oregon.

The Missouri victory was more than your usual big-school-over-little-school season opener. The Tigers went 1-10 in 1985 in Widenhofer's first season with the lone win coming at Iowa State by a single point.

IT'S GOOD to get a win under our belt — good, poor.

Big Eight Roundup

bad, ugly, pretty, whatever," Widenhofer said. "We got a little tired and didn't destroy them like we should have, but a win still feels great. We're still undefeated."

While the winning was new, the Tigers did get a familiar effort from running back Darrell Wallace, who gained 138 yards on 22 carries. He also scored two touchdowns.

"I was jittery out there," Missouri quarterback Ronnie Cameron, who was starting his first game, said. "It's nice to have Darrell out there to give the ball to because he can gain yards."

Cameron, one of three new quarterbacks in the conference this season, went 4-of-9, passing for 23 yards and a touchdown. Steve Taylor of Nebraska was impressive in his opener last week. The third new face wasn't as fortunate: Kansas' Mike Orth went 29-of-50 for 299 yards but failed to get the ball in the end zone.

Conlon takes 'gold' at Ames

By Scott Reifert
Staff Writer

Michele Conlon led the Iowa women's tennis team this weekend by winning the gold bracket of the Iowa Invitational in Ames on Sunday.

The invitational was broken up into two tournaments, with the top four players from Drake, Iowa, Iowa State, and UNI going into the gold bracket, and the bottom four players from each of the four teams going into the cardinal bracket.

Senior Michele Conlon beat teammate Robin Gerstein 6-3, 6-4 in the semi-finals of the Gold tournament Sunday before beating Rachel McClelland of Drake 6-4, 6-3 to win the championship match.

McClelland had reached the finals by beating Iowa's Pennie Wohlford 6-3, 5-7, 7-6 (7-5) in the other semi-final.

In gold consolation play Sunday, Liz Canzoneri first beat Susan Brennan 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, and then beat Sara Berres of Iowa State 6-3, 6-2 to win the consolation championship.

IOWA'S Pat Leary beat teammate Patty DeSimone 6-3, 6-0 in one semi-final of the cardinal bracket. Leary then lost to Giselle Baudouin of Drake 6-2, 6-2 in the championship match.

Colleen Nichols won her semi-final match in Sunday's cardinal consolation bracket before losing in the championship match.

In Sunday's doubles play the Iowa team of Conlon-Wohlford lost in the semi-finals, and the Iowa team of Canzoneri-Evans also lost to Berres-Stottler of Iowa State 6-3, 7-6 (10-8).

"We really had a good day,"

Iowa Coach Charley Darley said Sunday. "Everybody played great."

In Saturday's gold tournament action, Michele Conlon, Robin Gerstein, and Penny Wohlford all won two matches to advance into Sunday's semi-finals.

Freshman Patty DeSimone and sophomore Pat Leary each won two matches and advanced to the semi-finals of the Cardinal tournament.

"I WAS really pleased with the way we played," Coach Darley said. "We were a little rough around the edges, but that's to be expected."

The two-day tournament included host team Iowa State, Iowa, Drake and Northern Iowa. No team scores were kept and Coach Darley said he is using the tournament as a chance to see his players in game conditions.

"It has been pretty informative," Darley said. "I had a chance to see the gaps in our game. We need to be mentally tougher for the competition, but I was really pleased with our fire, determination and talent."

On Saturday Conlon beat UNI's Joni Eaton 6-1, 6-2, and Drake's Kori Bauer 6-2, 6-2, to reach the semi-final match against Gerstein. Gerstein had beaten Iowa State's Sara Berres 6-3, 6-4, and Jean Lettner of Drake 3-6, 6-0, 6-1, to set up Sunday's match with Conlon.

IOWA'S Penny Wohlford beat Susan Brennan from Drake 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, and ISU's Suna Byrakal 6-2, 6-2, before the semi-final loss to McClelland.

Liz Canzoneri lost her first-round match, but came back to beat Iowa State's Tammy Williams 7-5, 6-0 in consolation play.

In the cardinal tournament Colleen Nichols lost her first-round game, but came back in consolation play to beat UNI's Jeanna Becker 6-2, 6-3.

Freshman Ann-Christine Johnston won her first-round match, beating Jean Becker of UNI 6-0, 6-1. Johnston then lost in the second round, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Iowa's Susan Evans beat Drake's Jennifer Pasley 6-2, 6-1 before losing in the second round to Tammy Pollard 6-4, 7-5. Patty DeSimone won twice Saturday to advance into the semi-finals.

Ventura leads Hawkeyes in triangular

By Brad Zimaneck
Sports Editor

The Iowa men's cross country team, on the strength of a strong performance by transfer Scott Ventura, tied for second out of three teams Saturday in Rock Island, Ill.

Division III school Augustana placed first with a score of 32 points while Drake and Iowa tied with 41 points apiece.

"We ran some decent times but you are never happy when you lose," Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler said. "I thought we were capable of winning but I thought everybody did the best they could on this particular day."

Wheeler added, "Augustana is a Division III school and Drake and Iowa are Division I schools and they certainly should not have beat us."

Jim Sterling of Drake won the three mile race with a time of 14 minutes and 49 seconds and Ventura finished in second place overall four seconds behind Sterling.

"I WAS REALLY happy the way I ran," Ventura said.

"Near the end I felt I wasn't going to let anybody beat me."

Other runners who scored for the Hawkeyes include: Chris Novak who placed seventh overall in 15:10, Dave Brown who finished eighth in 15:14, Sean Corrigan who placed tenth in 15:21 and Louis English who was in 19th place in 16:10.

"Scott ran a very competitive race," Wheeler said. "For the work we have done Scott, Chris Novak, Dave Brown did outstanding. They lost the race in the last 300 yards against Sterling, who is an outstanding runner, they did extremely well."

This Saturday Iowa will move onto Minneapolis to compete against the Minnesota Gophers in a dual meet.

"I can't run the races and in view of our performances now we would have to consider ourselves a longshot against Minnesota," Wheeler said. "It's going to take us another three weeks when we go up to Northern Iowa before I feel we have a team that is fairly sound and ready to take charge in a meet."

field. Smith took the handoff and then threw the first touchdown pass of his collegiate career as he hit a wide open Mauro in the right corner of the end zone.

"I read the cornerback and I was just watching his eyes and I knew as soon as I had seen Robert come around that he was going to go flying up,"

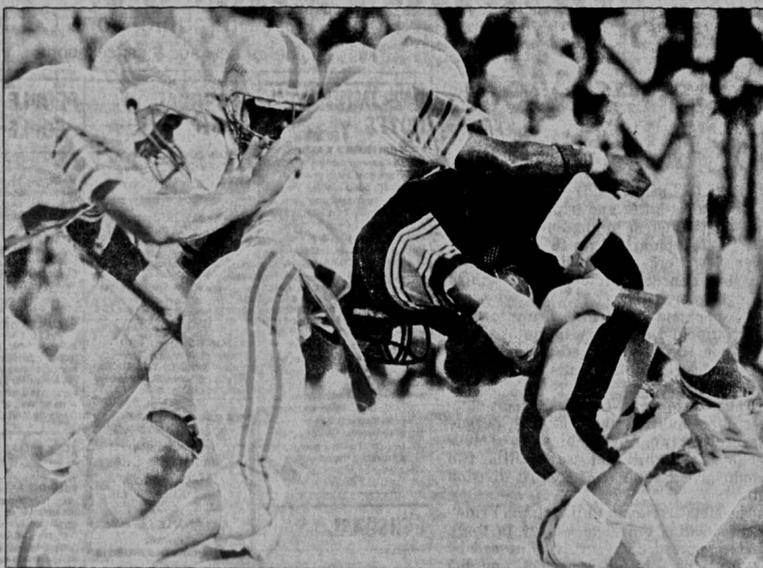

Mauro said. "We worked on it all week and it was a great time to put in. It was a great call."

Mauro later in the game caught his third touchdown pass, on a 47-yard reception, tying an Iowa school record held by four other Hawkeye performers.

Vlasic ended up the contest with 286 yards passing on 15 completions in 25 attempts even though he only played three quarters of the contest.

Hudson was also a statistical leader for Iowa as he rushed for 120 yards on 20 carries. Hudson had 119 yards at half-time and carried the ball only three more times before he was taken out of the ball game.

Iowa running back Rick Bayless is pulled down by a host of Iowa State defenders late in the fourth quarter of Iowa's opening football game against intrastate rival Iowa State. The Hawkeyes won 43-7.

a big way, tying the Iowa record for touchdown catches in a game, which he now shares with Irwin Prasse, Emlen Tunnell, Smith and Happel, the man who Mauro credited with his success at Iowa.

"Bill Happel is a very outstanding receiver," Mauro said. "I learned a lot from him. I credit him with a lot of my moves. It's an honor to be in a class with those other receivers."

Another important contributor to Mauro's success Saturday was Smith, who spent most of the afternoon fighting two Cyclone defensive backs.

"THEY HAVE to respect (Smith's) speed," Mauro pointed out. "Most of the time they're going to double cover him because of his speed. They think they can handle me one-on-one, which I don't think they can."

That kind of self-confidence was instrumental for Mauro in reaching his goals Saturday, as well as getting him on the team in the first place.

"I wanted the chance to play

(at Iowa), but they told me I wasn't big enough and I wasn't fast enough" he said. "I spent a year down in Missouri and I really thought I could (play for Iowa). I just figured it was a one in a million shot, I might as well give it a go."

Mauro's longshot paid off Saturday, when he completed the conversion from obscure walk-on to star.

"I go to church and I pray to God that I do the best I can do," Mauro said. "He definitely answered my prayers today."

Hawks sweep Cyclones with tough net play

By Steve Williams
Staff Writer

It just wasn't a good weekend for the Iowa State athletic program.

The Cyclone women's volleyball team set the tone for this weekend's activities by taking a 15-8, 15-8, 15-11 thumping at the hands of the Iowa Hawkeyes in Carver-Hawkeye Arena Friday night.

The Hawkeyes dominated the match from the outset, using power from the serving position and strong net play to run up early leads and hold them for relatively easy wins.

"We were really out of control tonight (Friday)," Iowa Coach Sandy Stewart said. "I think we may have been overly excited, especially after getting beat by them on television last year."

Even though Iowa dominated the Friday night outing, Iowa State proved that they are a quality team, giving the Hawkeyes some tough points before finally being subdued.

"THEY (Iowa State) have some real strong outside hitters in Sue Nosal and Linda Evans," Stewart said. "However, they have an inexperienced setter and they had a hit the ball as hard as we can and concentrate on the ace."

The Hawkeyes then got some added support from Stephanie Smith, one of several freshmen on this year's squad.

Following a comeback of sorts by the Cyclones, Smith came in to score four straight points from the service line and extend Iowa's lead to 13-6.

"SHE DID great," Mullarkey said of Smith's performance. "She was really nervous, because her hands were ice cold, but she just went out and did a fantastic job when we needed it."

"Stephanie did a good job for us," Stewart said. "She's a player with a lot of potential and I think she'll be a great player for us."

Following Smith's work from the service line, Iowa State forged another minor comeback, running off five straight points, but the Hawkeyes regrouped and finished off their opponents with a block by co-captain Kathy Griesheim to sweep the match in three short games.

"Iowa State pushed us, but I never felt like we were threatened," Stewart said. "We just played a great match."

difficult time in the transition part of their offense."

The Hawkeyes took advantage of Iowa State's weakness at the beginning, using quickness at the net and a couple of Lana Kuiper service aces to jump out to a 9-4 lead. After giving a couple of points back, co-captain Ellen Mullarkey chimed in with an ace of her own, and Iowa took the next five points and the first game.

"We had a vendetta that we had to get them last year," sophomore striker Toni Zehr said. "We seemed to intimidate them from the beginning and continued throughout the match."

Zehr continued the onslaught in the second game with an ace of her own, and the Hawkeyes jumped out to a 6-1 lead. Linda Evans helped bring the Cyclones back with an ace, cutting the lead to 8-5, but they could get no closer. Iowa ripped off four straight points to take a 14-8 advantage and Zehr sealed it with a roaring kill that netted Game 2.

THEN, the Ellen Mullarkey show took over. After a side out that gave Iowa the ball, the 5-foot, 10-inch junior smashed off four aces in the first five points for an early 5-0 lead.

"I never expected to do something like that," Mullarkey said. "I just got on a role and hoped I could keep it up."

"Coach Stewart has been working on our serving technique, and she tells us to just

Division crown escapes Mets for third time

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Kevin Gross pitched a six-hitter and tripled home two runs in the fourth inning Sunday, pacing the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-0 victory over New York and denying the Mets a division clinching victory for the third straight game.

Mike Schmidt drove in two runs to raise his National League-leading total to 112 and Von Hayes completed a spectacular weekend series with two hits and two runs to support Gross.

The decision left New York's magic number for capturing the National League East title at two. Any combination of Mets' victories and Phillies' losses totalling two would give New York its third division title.

The Mets arrived in Philadelphia Friday night needing only one victory in three games. Instead, in a series witnessed by 128,830, the Phillies won 6-3 and 6-5 before routing the division leaders on Sunday.

Gross, 10-11, worked behind hitters early in the game and survived a bases-loaded jam in the fifth by striking out Len Dykstra. He struck out nine and walked four en route to his second shutout and seventh complete game. Sid Fernandez, 15-5, went four innings and took the loss. The Mets, who have lost five of their last six games, are scheduled to play in St. Louis tonight.

Philadelphia scored four times in the fourth to break an 0-0 tie. Hayes doubled to left and scored on Schmidt's single to right. The game-winning RBI was Schmidt's 12th. Ron Roenicke walked and Steve Jeltz singled home Schmidt. Gross then lined a shot over left fielder Danny Heep's head for a triple.

New York again failed to capitalize in the seventh. With two out and runners on second and third, pinch hitter Stanley Jefferson fouled out to the catcher.

St. Louis 10, Montreal 2
At St. Louis, Willie McGee had four hits, including a home run, Sunday to spark the St. Louis Cardinals to a 10-2 victory over the Montreal Expos behind the six-hit pitching of Danny Cox.

The defending National League champion Cardinals, who were eliminated from the pennant race Friday night, scored five unearned runs off loser Bob Sebra, 4-4, in the first inning and coasted behind Cox, 10-12, who walked three and struck out three in going the distance for the sixth time.

Vince Coleman reached on an error by shortstop Tom Foley and went to second on a balk. Second baseman Casey Candaele booted McGee's grounder, allowing Coleman to score. Mike Laga then blasted a two-run homer over the right-field wall for a 3-0 lead.

Yankees drop Red Sox, 11-5

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Easler hit a two-run homer and Rickey Henderson and Dan Pasqua added solo shots Sunday to power the New York Yankees to an 11-5 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

With the victory, the Yankees moved to within nine games of first-place Boston in the American League East. The Yankees and Red Sox have 19 games remaining and New York is at Boston starting on Oct. 2 for a four-game series, which ends the season for both teams.

Boston got a three-run homer from Jim Rice and solo shots by Bill Buckner and Pat Dodson.

Winner Ron Guidry pitched six innings, allowing eight hits and four runs, while striking out four and walking four. Dave Righetti pitched 1 1/2 innings for his 39th save. He has saved 14 of the last 15 Yankee victories. Boston grabbed a three-run first inning lead against Guidry. Wade Boggs led off with a double and Marty Barrett walked. After Buckner grounded out, Rice hit his 20th homer of the season.

A.L. Roundup

In the bottom of the first, Easler hit a two-run homer off Red Sox starter Al Nipper, 9-10, after Pasqua walked. The Yankees went ahead in the second inning when they scored three runs on four hits. Wayne Tolleson led off with a single and scored on Joel Skinner's double to left field.

Chicago 3, California 1
At Chicago, Joe Cowley fired a six-hitter and the Chicago White Sox scored two of their runs on wild pitches Sunday to defeat the California Angels, 3-1.

Cowley, 10-9, walked two and struck out four in posting his second straight victory. The loss snapped California starter Kirk McCaskill's personal four-game winning streak. McCaskill, 16-8, fanned nine in 6 1/2 innings before Terry Forster took over.

Despite the loss, California's magic number for winning the American League West was reduced to 12 by virtue of Texas' loss at Minnesota.

Stage make-up plays a part in the drama of the theater

By Robin Lynn Buss
Special to The Daily Iowan

THE ACTOR'S face is the voice of the dramatic theater. Every curved line, every crease and every shadow is an expression and a thought. The images that bring characters to life for the audience are in the brush strokes of the stage make-up artist.

Lisa Locurto, a stage make-up teaching assistant in the UI Theatre Arts Department, said the creative and unique skills of stage make-up are an actor's craft.

"Make-up is as expressive as acting. That's why it's an actor's art. It's very personal," Locurto said.

Many actors believe that putting on their own make-up will help them get into their character.

Locurto said the idea behind make-up is to color the skin, not to make a mask. Facial expressions and features should be brought out, not covered up.

LOCURTO, A COSTUME designer, said she teaches the stage make-up class because she loves to work with actors.

"I love the way make-up completes the look of a costume and enhances the style of a production. Hair design is also very important to a make-up artist," Locurto said.

Locurto encourages her students to expand and modify on techniques of basic make-up application. She doesn't use the word teach but prefers to "give hints" and let the students go with their own talents.

The make-up crews at University Theatres are students from the stage make-up class. An advisor, usually the costume designer or course supervisor, is always present.

The number of crew members needed for a production varies. Last year's Peter Pan had a make-up crew of six for a cast of 30. Make-up application time also varies with each production. Straight, or basic, make-up may take 10 minutes, whereas more complex make-up may take two to four hours to apply.

COMPLEX MAKE-UP changes a person's whole look. For example, Hal Holbrook used it to portray the elderly Mark Twain for his Hancher Auditorium appearance last year.

According to Locurto, the most basic form of stage make-up is cake make-up, commonly known as pancake. This type is simply powdered pigment, usually applied with a silk sponge. Although a synthetic sponge will work, make-up distributes more evenly with a silk sponge.

Cake make-up is like water-color paints. Too much water makes it too weak; not enough makes it sticky.

Cream cake make-up, a pre-mixed pigment, is also popular for the stage. It is dotted on then blended with a sponge, a brush or fingertips. Cream make-up comes in stick, tube, cake or crayon form. A drawback of cream make-up is that it melts, runs or smudges under the heat of stage lights.

OTHER FORMS of stage make-up include traditional grease paint and liquid make-up. Locurto said grease paint is difficult to work with, but is the best form for covering blemishes. Liquid make-up is best as body make-up, because it can be applied quickly and easily to large areas, but it is expensive.

Locurto explained that in order to last through an evening's performance, an actor's make-up must be set with an adhesive spray much like hairspray, or at least a final dusting of translucent powder.

The different forms of make-up create endless possibilities for stage make-up artists. According to Locurto, the art of applying stage make-up is scientific and mathematical, yet intimate and personal.

A good artist can turn a young, beautiful actress into a withered old woman or create scenes of bloody violence. The excitement and the reality of live theater begin backstage with the illusions created by stage make-up artists.

Feghali captivates crowd

By B. Gordon
Staff Writer

THERE ARE rare moments when concertgoers can hear, to rephrase Shakespeare, the future in the instant.

Those who heard young pianist Jose Feghali's recital Friday night at Hancher Auditorium shared such a moment.

Feghali's program opened with a sonata by Mozart in D Major. The audience was captivated immediately by his fluid technique and muscular first movement. Generally, Feghali's tone is ringing, but occasionally he bangs in the attempt to punch up the classics.

The highlight of the evening was Debussy's Suite Bergamasque, especially the dreamy Clair de Lune. Feghali made the complicated Impressionistic rhythms seem inevitable, his tone almost overwhelmingly rich. The crowd held its breath as if they had never heard the piece before.

THE INTENSITY of Feghali's presence is possibly the most extraordinary thing about this performer. Concertgoers are used to the coughing and shifting of weight in the audience between movements, but Feghali held everyone spellbound.

Two short pieces by Chopin, an Andante espianato and Grand Polonaise, were less than thrilling although Feghali lavished technique on the massive octaves and keyboard-stretching scales of the polonaise. Due to either unsuitable temperament or a need for more musical development in the romantic spirit, Feghali's performance lacked the folk-song feel of Chopin's music.

For an encore, Feghali played a piece by Brazilian composer Hector Villa-Lobos, the prelude to Bachianas Brasileras. Again, his stage presence was magnetic: He finished the piece, withdrew his hands from the keyboard, leaned back, relaxed and leaned forward, and then — finally — the audience recovered and began to clap warmly.

Jose Feghali

Music

AFTERWARDS, Feghali talked about his fledgling career.

"I consider myself fortunate to be young," he said. "I need to develop everywhere."

Feghali will be playing at least 85 concerts this season, sometimes in several different cities in one week.

"This is one of the best halls in the country," he added.

A number of admirers stood by to inform him that they thought they could play Clair de Lune — with an emphasis on the "thought."

He smiled. "There is no such thing as perfection in music," he said, "but there are special moments."

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ernst Haas, whose innovative use of color earned him the title of "the father of color photography," is dead at age 65, The New York Times said Sunday.

Haas died of a stroke in New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center on Friday. Funeral services were scheduled for Monday morning in Manhattan.

Throughout his 40-year career Haas had his works published in numerous magazines including Life, Look, Time and National Geographic.

Haas was born and educated in Vienna, and it was there that he had his first major success in the world of photography.

In 1949, while still in Vienna, Haas gained renown for a series of photographs he had taken of prisoners from World War II as they returned from compounds in the Soviet Union to their homes in Austria.

FOLLOWING HIS early success, Haas joined with Robert Capa and others to form the Magnum photo agency.

It was in New York that Haas began to do most of his experimental work with color. The photographs consisted of reflections taken from puddles and buildings that looked more like impressionist art than pictorial representations.

In 1962 he became the first photographer to have a one-man exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art.

In 1975 he published in America, followed by Germany in 1976 and Himalaya Pilgrimage in 1978.

Entertainment Today

At the Bijou

Kerouac (1985). Director John Antonelli focuses on the life and times of Jack Kerouac and the Beat Generation. The documentary features interviews with such '50s icons as William Burroughs, Michael McClure and Allen Ginsberg. At 7 p.m.

Sunrise (1927). An unfaithful husband (George O'Brien) plans to kill his wife (Janet Gaynor). Directed by F. W. Murnau, this film is considered one of the best to grow out of America's silent cinema. Silent, with musical score. At 8:30 p.m.

Television

On the networks: "Bob Hope Lamppoons the New T.V. Scene" (NBC at 7 p.m.) with such spoofs as "The Golden Boys" and attacks on Bobby Ewing's impending resurrection. "L.A. Law" (NBC at 8 p.m.), starring Richard Dysart and Michele Greene, is a two-hour movie pilot for a new series, produced — as its promoters say — in the style of "Hill Street Blues." Oh boy, there's nothing like originality. Cagney and Lacey (Tune Daily, Sharon Gless) track a cop killer on "Cagney and Lacey" (CBS at 9 p.m.). The bat-eater himself, Ozzy Osbourne, is scheduled to appear on

"Late Night with David Letterman" (NBC at 11:30 p.m.)

On cable: The Ghost of Flight 401 (TBS-15 at 7:05 p.m.) is supposed to be a fact-based tale of supernatural happenings that occurred after the crash of a jetliner. Spooky, spooky. The Rage of Paris (NIK-34 at 10 p.m.) stars Danielle Darrieux as a French model trying to make the big time in New York while evading various would-be lovers.
