In stark contrast with more sporadic listings in other towns, local landlords may be discovering their tenants aren't all they're cracked up to be. But who cares? They are making more money in filling vacancies.

"We haven't been home yet," said Tom Sullivan, a member of the Iowa Hawkeye football coaching staff. "We found a couple of people who we think are anxious to help out."

There are various reasons landlords are finding themselves short of tenants. Some are finding that their rent is too high, while others are finding that their崂se has been too low. Still others are finding that their tenants have been too lazy, despite the promise of regular payments.

"I've been here for a few weeks," said Sullivan, "and I'm not sure I've seen anyone who has been willing to pay the rent."

Sullivan said that he has been able to find a few tenants who have been willing to pay the rent, but he is not sure how long they will stay.

"I think that some people are willing to pay the rent," said Sullivan, "but I'm not sure how long they will stay."

Comics relief

Annotated Residence Halls has over stepped its bounds — and that's just a pretty mask.

A resolution passed Monday night by ASUI goes so far as to make suggestions for system changes in The Daily Iowan.

They want the B4 to print "Blazon County," a cartoon strip by former Iowa City resident Berke Breathed. The strip is a good goal for students to present.

The problem is with publication. An agreement reached with the Washington Post Syndicate gives residence halls the right to print a student cartoon strip of their choice. The problem is that they are not a student cartoon strip.

Although Breathed has found that long before the benefits seem obvious, his series has been hung in most important comic books and does not seem to be usable, the cartoonist is going to work on the problem.

With this message: "Why do we [names of students] do it?"

From a student's point of view, the question is "Why do we do it?". To the administration, tuition increases are a difficult juggling act. To the student body, the problem is "Why do we do it?"

The Daily Iowan, the voice of the student population, is a place where a student can present a justified case. The regents, the people who have been chosen to operate a public university. The regents were recently chosen to present a justified case to the people of the state of Iowa, because that is what the regents are supposed to do.

Water woes

Water, water, everywhere and not a drop to drink. The chemical industry and environmental groups have gotten together on a postcard reform package, but no one seems to care that the postcard ground water chemicals don't go far enough.

Deborah and John Hughes of the Environmental Defense Fund have found that long before the benefits seem obvious, their series has been hung in most important comic books and does not seem to be usable, the cartoonist is going to work on the problem.

Tuition hikes hit enrollment

Tuition increases only make higher education inaccessible

I am a new resident of Iowa, and I must say that a tuition increase only makes higher education inaccessible.

These are hardly examples of the "never-ending" Middle East. But with this message: "Why do we do it?"

Ex-con evades police search

WOODETO, Mo. (UPI) — More than 50 law enforcement officers, including FBI agents and sheriff's deputies, poured into a Missouri town Wednesday night in hopes of capturing ex-convict Wayne Jackson, who police believe may be a suspect in a recent abduction.

Jackson, 41, has a long record of violent criminal acts and a history of mental illness and was last reported to be boiling with hate, ribs, and a sister described prepared to hang with this as a battle.

Police said Jackson was last seen Saturday after leaving a stolen Cadillac, with the driver's side, went house to house in the area.

Although Jackson, who was reported to have been seen with a silver paint, has not been seen since, the search continued through the night, while helicopters with spotlight continued the search.

With a killer believed to be on the loose in their normally quiet farming community, darkness and roadblocks were set up to keep residents in their homes. School attendance was halted and businesses closed early.

Public school students were closed early.

Kidnappings attributed to pro-Iranian group

REBUKT, Lebanon (AP) - A pro-Iranian, underground group claimed responsibility Wednesday for the kidnaping of a New York University student and a Frenchman in retaliation for the detention of Lebanese nationals in Israel.

Even accompanied by police, photographs presented to the American University faculty immediately after the kidnaping were not released, a New York University official said. The photographs are "the personal property of the victims," that official said. A New York University student was wounded in Lebanon.

Bikes, cars share road rules

By Joseph Levy

An Iowa City resident says traffic rules for bicyclists are needed because he sees too many drunk drivers on the road. "I just feel that his Republican opponent, Garth Gordon, said he would do something about drunk driving, but I don't see a policy that substantiates that," he said.

Gordon said Iowa City is one city in a state that has no policies about drunk driving, and that he, unlike his opponent, would work on the problem with "public information and education." He also said that while drunk biking is illegal, "it is not as serious as violations of traffic laws."

The high level of traffic laws makes bicyclists the low priority, he said. "As long as they are worried about a seat. Democratic candidate Steve Nagle said Tuesday that his proposal to implement two systems of traffic laws for bike riders.

Police temper violence in Iowa

ROCHELLE, Ill. (UPI) — Strikers who have been picketing outside the FDL plant in Rochelle to protest a new contract, was arrested when 17 arrests were made. Police arrested demonstrators who had tried to break into the plant and were made outside the plant Wednesday morning.

TUESDAY was the first day of the company's strike, as replacement workers were in place at both the FDL plants in Rochelle, and Aurora. The strikers were protesting by marching between the two cities to reach demonstrations.

More than 1,700 members of the United Steelworkers of America Local 3719 and other steelworkers have been on strike since Sept. 1 when negotiations broke down. The lockout lasted more than 12 years.

The police were there to keep the peace.

Iowa officials support speed limit hike

IOWA CITY, Ia. — Iowa officials Wednesday said they support a measure allowing states to raise speed limits above the national 55 mph limit for the first time in 17 years.

Iowa Department of Transportation director John Horn announced last Tuesday that Iowa would be among the first states to raise the speed limit. The increase would allow drivers to travel at 65 mph on a 4-lane highway, 55 mph on a 2-lane highway.

"I think it was the right thing to do," Horn told reporters. "It makes sense to the public. It makes sense to the drivers. It makes sense to the law enforcement personnel."

Iowa lawmakers are considering a bill that would allow the state to raise the speed limit. The bill would give the state the power to raise the limit to 70 mph on some stretches of highway.

Horn said the increase would help reduce traffic congestion and improve safety on the state's highways.

"It's going to make a difference," he said. "It's going to make a difference in terms of safety. It's going to make a difference in terms of efficiency."

The bill is expected to be voted on in the state House and Senate in the next few weeks.
Caution advised in use of aid services

By Lisa Legan

The Daily Iowan

It's not often that an advertisement in USA Today offers unique and special opportunities for student financial aid.

However, the Money Wizard, a computerized questionnaire that can pinpoint financial aid opportunities, is doing just that.

The Money Wizard is a relatively new program offered in an effort to help the typical college student find aid they may not be aware of.

The Wizard asks the student to answer the questionnaire, which takes approximately five minutes to complete.

The questionnaire asks for personal information such as financial need, area of study and academic performance.
House approves $15 billion deficit-reduction measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House approved a $15 billion deficit-reduction bill Wednesday, to comply with the Gramm-Rudman law and avoid harsher cuts, despite criticism it was a "smoke and mirrors" and paper exercise.

The bill approved 280-89, easily for the rule of Council, because of increased revenue through the IRS enforcement and tax breaks for government services.

The bill didn't break the $15 billion deficit-bridging bill — it was no more than a second or third tier — and Rep. William Gray, D-Pa., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said it dealt with the deficit would not hold the long-term deficit problem.

"This is Washington at its worst — 8 years from now, I get mine and the kid gets his. Or so said John Forbes, D-SC.

Without exception of the thousands of people who speak the measure, a $9 billion deficit would have to be enacted through the Medicare defender program.

This House bill matches the $15 billion measure moved last week in the Senate. There are significant differences, including a $24 billion across-the-board spending reduction, but some on behalf of the defense program.

Hawkeyes crush Minnesota to start Big Ten with win

The Iowa Hawkeyes took a commanding 28-7 halftime lead and never looked back, soaring to an impressive 28-7 win over the Minnesota Golden Gophers.

The Hawkeyes, led by quarterback Kurt Warner, started the game off with a bang, scoring a touchdown on the first drive. Minnesota fought back in the second quarter, but the Hawkeyes rallied and scored two more touchdowns to secure the victory.

Hawkeyes' head coach, Hayden Fry, spoke about the significance of the win: "This is a big win for us. It takes a lot of hard work and dedication to come out on top. We're looking forward to the rest of the season and hope to continue our winning ways."

Bad weather moves Hawkeyes indoors

The terrible weather during Wednesday over the weekend caused practice scrubs, according to Coach Hany Pry.

"It's been unseasonable, it's wet, and rain is outside and when the horribleness hit, it was about time something in our favor," said Pry.

"And we had a good practice basically because we had to come indoors for something this week with the skies and 90 degree," said Pry.

"Fortunately in the leaving behind the Hawkeyes, PRY, we're in a position where we've been hit hard in awhile," said Pry.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, the NCAA is a regulatory agency that oversees college sports. Under the guidance of its president, the NCAA is committed to maintaining fair and equitable competition in collegiate athletics.

The NCAA's primary responsibilities include enforcing rules and regulations related to college athletes, ensuring compliance with those rules, and upholding the integrity of college sports.

However, the NCAA has also been criticized for its ability to effectively address and resolve corruption within college athletics, particularly in cases involving violations of its rules and ethical standards.

In conclusion, the NCAA's regulations and enforcement mechanisms are designed to uphold the fairness and equity in college sports. Nevertheless, it is essential to continue monitoring and addressing issues that undermine this goal, ensuring that college athletics remain a powerful and positive influence on society.

Remember, a strong foundation in ethics and integrity will always be critical in achieving success in college sports.

In a huge canvas Gans is adding more and more color to her painting. The base color used is the white wood of the wall. The base color is what the wall will be seen in. Gans is working on Gans' theme, "The Living." The painting is called "Hamburger Day." The painting is about a hamburger day.

On another wall there is a large piece of a girl. The girl is a symbol of the artist's themes. The piece is called "Hamburger Day." The painting is about a hamburger day.

The "Hamburger Day" piece is an example of LeBree's painting style. Her work is characterized by a multidimensional approach to painting. She uses a variety of techniques, including pastels, crayons, and ink to create a rich and complex work of art. Her paintings often feature scenes of daily life, such as hamburgers, and are characterized by a sense of humor and playfulness.

Viewers play active role in 'Puzzles at an Exhibition'

by Thomas Templin
Special to The Daily Iowan

MAKING A COLLABORATIVE COLLABORATION possible with puzzles, slides, paintings, and performance art, an exhibition, created by Mary Andrews and Michael Boyd, will open at the University of Iowa Art Building at 4 p.m. on Friday and will run through Nov. 16.

The exhibition, titled "Puzzles at an Exhibition," is a collaborative effort between the artists, who have worked together on various projects in the past.

Andrews and Boyd have created a series of interactive puzzles that encourage viewers to participate in the creation of the artwork. The puzzles feature a variety of elements, including images, colors, and symbols, which are arranged in a way that encourages viewers to think and create their own interpretations.

The exhibition is open to the public and is free of charge. It will be on display in the Gallery of the Arts Center through Nov. 16.

No living director has received more critical acclaim than D.W. Griffith in the early 20th century. From the silent films of the very silent era, his career was one that defined cinema for over a half century. He was a master of visual storytelling, with a passion for exploring the human condition through the lens of his camera.

Griffith was known for his innovative use of editing techniques, such as crosscutting and montage, which allowed him to tell complex stories with a fluidity and depth that was unprecedented at the time. His films were not just about the plot, but about the emotions and experiences of the characters. He was a pioneer in the use of color and special effects, and his films were often praised for their technical excellence.

Griffith's influence on the industry was immense. He was one of the first directors to form his own production company, and he was instrumental in the development of the studio system. He was also a key figure in the transition from silent to sound films, and his work with Vitaphone in the 1920s helped pave the way for the arrival of talkies.

Although Griffith's career was marked by many controversies and challenges, his films remain a testament to his enduring talent and vision. His legacy continues to inspire and influence filmmakers to this day.

Artist mixes science, images

Cord is an artist who has combined art and science in his images of stars, planets, and life forms that exist somewhere in the vastness of the universe. Cord's method involves taking photographs and manipulating them to create these images. His work, Cord said, is an attempt to explore the boundaries of art and science.

"Rings of Saturn," which is one of Cord's most famous works, was created using a photograph of Saturn and manipulating it to create the rings. The resulting image is a stunning blend of art and science, and it is a testament to Cord's unique approach to art.

Cord's method is not limited to celestial objects. He has also created images of life forms that exist on other planets. His work has been featured in science magazines and has even been used in the development of new scientific theories.

"I think it's important to explore the boundaries of art and science," Cord said. "Art and science are both ways of understanding the world, and they have a lot in common."
