Purdue schools see new deans
Four of Purdue University's 11 schools have new leaders.

Purdue School of Agriculture has been operating with only an acting dean since December, and the School of Education also has been without a dean since Sept. 15. nuevos Robert J. Beck and Joseph L. Zedillo, respectively, have been named dean and acting dean. Their selection was recommended to the University Senate Academic and Faculty Affairs Committee.

The School of Consumer and Family Sciences soon will be led by interim Dean Jonna Quigley, who has served as interim dean since last July 1. The school is currently housed in Seabrook Hall but will move in a year when the new Agriculture Teaching Complex is completed.

Former UNR instructor continues fast
Dr. Robert A. Hyder, former University of Nevada, Reno, instructor in psychology, said he will continue his fast until his demands for unconditional world peace are met.

"I have no choice but to continue," he said in a prepared statement. "The system may be used from anywhere in the world, but to me it is not a system at all."

In a story called "The Great Displacement: The Gathering Together," published in the Sept. 15 issue of the New York Times, Hyder said he will end his fast unless the United States and the rest of the nations of the world to join the United Nations in a campaign to dismantle and disable all nuclear warheads safely by 1990. Then, he said, peace would be possible.

Hyder said he was not sure when the search committee hopes to have a replacement named before Crompton actually leaves the university.

Federal funds must continue

By Bruce Japan

Iowa's three-year-old federal funds program is in jeopardy of being terminated if Congress and the president are unable to agree on a permanent funding mechanism. The program, which is designed to help alleviate the burden of college student loans, has been in place since 1985 and is funded by a small cut from the Federal Pell Grant program. However, the program is set to expire in June 1988, and it is unclear whether Congress will extend it beyond that date. The program has been successful in helping to reduce the amount of debt that college students carry, but it has also faced criticism for its lack of transparency and accountability. Iowaachu. It is definitely a good idea for community leaders to discuss cutback alternatives, but it could also be something for federal lawmakers to take advantage of.

IN '84, THERE SEEMED TO BE SOME SUCH A LITTLE CANDIDATE, I DIDN'T WANT TO VOTE... NOW I WANT TO KNOW WHO TO VOTE FOR!

By Mary Boone

The starting line of the presidential race in 1984 was so crowded that there were not enough votes to go around. But as the campaign season wore on, the candidates who had the most votes at the beginning of the race emerged as the favorites. One of those candidates was Ronald Reagan, who went on to win the presidency.

Iowa has unique opportunity

By Mary Boone

Iowa is the first state in the nation to hold the presidential primary elections. This unique opportunity gives Iowa voters a significant role in shaping the course of American politics.

Letters

Contradiction

To the Editor:

The editorial titled "Iowa's unique opportunity" is misleading in its presentation of the facts. Iowa is indeed the first state in the nation to hold the presidential primary elections, but the editorial fails to mention that the state's democratic caucuses are also an important part of the selection process. The caucuses, which are held at the local level, are the first step in the presidential selection process and are open to all registered Democrats.

The editorial also fails to mention that the presidential primaries are not the only way to select a presidential candidate. The caucuses, which are open to all registered Democrats, allow for a more democratic process, as they allow for the direct involvement of the voters in the selection of a candidate. The editorial's claim that the primaries are the only way to select a candidate is therefore misleading and inaccurate.

Dan McWhirter

Long road

To the Editor:

I think it is important to remember that the presidential election process is a long one. In fact, it can take up to 10 weeks to determine the outcome of the election. It is therefore important to monitor the campaign throughout the entire process.

We will be considering a situation where only the very best candidates will have the opportunity to win the nomination. This is an important consideration, as it will allow the voters to choose the candidate who is most likely to succeed in the general election.

Deborah K. Kramer

The survey doesn't reveal anything new.

The candidates mentioned are not the ones who are currently leading in the polls. It is therefore important to consider the candidates who have the most support in the Iowa caucuses and the Iowa presidential nomination.

The survey revealed that there are not enough voters out there who are not politically motivated and who, if they do have support, they would support them for the 1988 presidential nomination.

If we take into account the fact that there are many more voters out there who, if they were to have a choice, would support the candidates who have the most support in the Iowa caucuses and the Iowa presidential nomination, it becomes clear that these candidates are the ones who are likely to win the nomination.

Federal funds must continue

By Bruce Japan

Iowa's community colleges are facing a budget crisis as federal funding for the College Access Program is about to expire. This program, which provides financial aid to low-income students, is set to expire in June 1988, and it is unclear whether Congress will extend it beyond that date. The program has been successful in helping to reduce the amount of debt that college students carry, but it has also faced criticism for its lack of transparency and accountability. Iowa's community colleges are advocating for a permanent funding mechanism to ensure that the program continues to operate.

Local couple plans unique 'Halloweened' celebration

By Chris Demont
Special to The Daily Iowa

Friday night will see Iowa City's annual Halloween celebration. Fire department officials will guide the festivities that will include a parade, trick-or-treating, and a pumpkin carving contest.

Fire Chief Richard Gibson has been working with local officials to ensure the safety of everyone attending the event.

"We want to make sure that everyone enjoys the festivities while remaining safe," Gibson said. "We've increased our safety measures this year, so please follow the rules and guidelines we've put in place."

The United States welcomed the announcement as a step towards restoring diplomatic relations with Colombia. However, Colombia’s government was criticized for its human rights record and for the treatment of political prisoners.

Militants sabotage Puerto Rican bases

The U.S. military on Thursday ordered a search of its bases in Puerto Rico following reports of sabotage. It has been alleged that a group of Puerto Rican militants from the Popular Revolutionary Army (EPA) has carried out a number of attacks on U.S. military installations in the island. The EPA has been operating in the island for the past two years and has carried out a number of attacks on U.S. bases. The government has announced that it will be increasing security measures in the island and that it will be conducting a full investigation into the allegations.
Happy Halloween

Feed your children a good meal before they go out to trick or treat so they won't be tempted to snack on unsupervised treats they get along the way.

Carry a flashlight and put reflective tape on all costumes, light or dark colored.

Inspect all treats before allowing your children to eat them. A torn or torn wrapper may indicate the item has been tampered with and should be discarded. Fruit received as a treat should be washed and sliced into small pieces before eating.

Accompany all small children. Older children, when not chaperoned, should follow a predetermined route and have a set time to return home.

Trick or treat only in familiar neighborhoods and preferably only at homes where you know the residents personally.

Masks can obstruct vision. Painted faces add to the costume and don't block vision.

Accompany all small children. Older children, when not chaperoned, should follow a predetermined route and have a set time to return home.

• Never run between parked cars to cross a street.

Buckner doubled up as goat

Brad Zimaneck

Bucky was a rockstar that had been basically leading for 3 decades. As a member of the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1960, Bucky had a very successful career. Bucky was named after his father, who was a baseball player himself. In 1960, when the Yankees had a couple of精彩 moments in the year, Bucky had two out in the first extra frame. Bucky's future ended on the Boston and Pepperwood Farm fields.

On the average, according to the study or many years in the Sports magazine, what given the study was done in Chicago. The backwards Chicago block terrified in the research field to the number of subjects and the distribution of time and was conducted because of its 16 decades and its cost of $740 per a year. For the death certification survey, those a little more than 100 were chosen randomly from the National Center for Health Statistics data. The study found that the risk of death continues to drop with the length of time. This result was based on the study of the Harvard alumni, which proved that not many of the Harvard alumni were still living or ever climbed.

Buckner doubled up as goat

Butler Hall has a famous baseball player Bill Buckner. Bill Buckner is a two-time World Series Champions. Bill Buckner is named after his dad, who was a baseball player himself. Bill Buckner is known for his extraordinary defense. In the game on Oct. 19, 1986, Bill Buckner had a couple of exciting moments in the year. Bill Buckner doubled up as goat by reaching for the ball in the last out of the fourth inning when the Yankees had a couple of exciting moments in the year. Bill Buckner proved to be a direct hit in the game. This week's games:

The study found that the risk of death continues to drop with the length of time. This result was based on the study of the Harvard alumni, which proved that not many of the Harvard alumni were still living or ever climbed. Bucky, though, isn't alone as his alter ego, the Yankees, are more likely to reach for the ball in the last out of the fourth inning when the Yankees had a couple of exciting moments in the year.

Veteran 'harp' artist to play at Gabe's
By Amy Witting-White

A LL GENRES of music have certain elements that make them unique. In the dynamic elements of the harp, one finds melody, tone, and emotion. In classical music, the harp is often associated with delicate, ethereal tones that evoke a sense of peace and serenity. In jazz, the harp's delicate sound and rhythmic elements can add a unique touch to the music. In rock, the harp's ability to produce a wide range of sounds can add a layer of complexity to the music.

In the film industry, the harp has been used to enhance the emotional impact of scenes. For example, in the movie "The Godfather," the harp played a crucial role in conveying the film's themes of family, honor, and betrayal. In "The Prestige," the harp was used to create a sense of mystery and suspense.

In the music of the Beatles, the harp was used to add a unique touch to their sound. In "Help!," the harp's delicate sound and rhythmic elements were used to create a sense of joy and excitement. In "A Hard Day's Night," the harp's ability to produce a wide range of sounds was used to add a layer of complexity to the music.

In the music of the Rolling Stones, the harp's use of dynamics and emotional expressiveness was highlighted. In "Paint It Black," the harp played a crucial role in conveying the film's themes of danger and rock.

In the music of the Beach Boys, the harp was used to create a sense of harmony and to add a unique touch to their sound. In "Good Vibes," the harp's delicate sound and rhythmic elements were used to create a sense of joy and excitement.

The harp is a versatile instrument that can be used in a variety of genres. Its ability to produce a wide range of sounds and its use of dynamics and emotional expressiveness make it a valuable asset in the musical world.

The New York Times is developing a special honorarium program to replace the UI College of Pharmacy's Student Honorarium Program. UI College of Pharmacy professor and historian James Price announced Wednesday that the program will begin next semester.

"We're very happy to be able to do this," Price said.

The program's objective is to provide an opportunity to students who are in the top 10 percent of their class to receive a scholarship. The goal is to make this a program that will be available to students of any age and any background.

Price also said that the program will provide an opportunity for students to receive scholarships to attend UI College of Pharmacy.
