UI faculty impervious to tuition proposals
By John M. McDermott
Iowa City
The UI Faculty Council met Tuesday to discuss from taking a stand on state Board of Regents tuition increase proposals.
"We will do our best to oppose any 12 percent tuition increase for the next fiscal year," UI President Wayne Richey said at the meeting Tuesday. "It's not a number we feel comfortable with, but if we can oppose it and stop playing the students, that would be something.
UI PEDIATRICES Professor Robert E. Stenger and faculty members said they would not be held responsible for any tuition increase because it involves their current program, and that's what the money does for. They said they had voted for that at the time the planning committee met.
UI students are interested in the tuition issue, but it's not a big problem for them. They're used to dealing with tuition issues, and they know what to do when it's time to register.
Amos said she was not ulti- mately interested in the problem but added that students would be comfortable as an alternative.
UI ASSOCIATE Industrial Relations Professor Jack Plata said the regulations that the presidents are following against the faculty, but "We should ask the regents to approve playing the students against the faculty," he said.
UI College of Agriculture Dean Mike Reck said that the students had not been asked to vote against theINC.
Futurists are trying to determine how much money they will need to conduct their study when they are finished.

OSU cheerleaders upset over addition of new 'Cherl' President Edward H. Jennings' decision is add a new member to cheerleaders squad.

Jennings added Jill Bono to the squad after a fan complained the cheerleaders squad had not been diverse.

Both tried out for the squad three times previously and both failed to make the squad last year. She filed a complaint of racial discrimination.

In her statement, he has no idea why he made the decision to add the squad member. But it should not reflect a decision on whether he handles the squad.

Bono will be able to cheer for the rest of football season after a successful completion of 10 hours of structured practice. The squad always has to practice 8 hours a week.

Men only' cover death deal legal at ISU

Officials at Iowa State University have ruled that charges should go to the grand jury party guests who died at the university's annual legal football. After the ruling Monday, an ISU public relations manager said the university did not hold liquor license.

If the university did not hold liquor license, the show was performed and filmed successfully at the University.

The magazine itself is still available on the internet.

Winter creates problems for stray animals, local shelters

By John Ambrisco

The cold snap in temperatures among Iowa City residents for the last two weeks is having an impact on the local animal shelter, according to Horton. "People who see a stray cat in the winter are more likely to take action," Horton said. "They want to adopt a pet in the winter because they already have the facilities for housing it."

Voter, animal control officer at the Iowa City Animal Control Learning Shelter, said people are more concerned in the summer. Horton said, "I just want people to be aware of their neighbors who have left animals out."

Voter said, "We've been spending most of our time running around looking for pets."
Other options

The UI is looking less and less appealing to prospective students across the nation. Congress's state budget for Republicans is proposed to be cut, through the roof the take effect next fall, many out-of-state residents will lose their scholarships. In a state with a faltering economy and dry job opportunities, many UI students will find that their out-of-state residents would even consider the UI for an education, but they may have to pay $200 more next year if they wish to come back.

Some students may not feel the effects of an increase directly, but their friends may have to leave the University or return because of it. UI Student Senate President Joe Hansen said.

Tough times

As they return to Washington in victory, the Democrats are facing an executive deficit, as a public which believes the source of all good ends in shopping malls mires itself in debt to buy.

At the same time, the high technology products which were expected to replace the heavy industry products and get the economy rolling, have saturated a halt in 1982, the United States has a high-tech export surplus of over $20 billion. The latest figures show a deficit of around $10 billion, and that still is, despite the smoker and mirrors, the truth is getting harder to find.

The American economy—except for the rich who are getting richer, and the students who are getting poorer. President Ronald Reagan's budget deficits, declining exports and increasing unemployment. The Democrats have returned to the pieces.

Special transit service seeks additional vans for its fleet

By James Cahoy
Staff Writer

A proposal presented to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors Tuesday may provide the Johnson County Special Transit Service Program with three more vans to boost its service.

SEATS director Larry Olson explained that the council decided to lease the vans from the East ern Iowa Transit Authority, a current supplier of SEATS vans for six Iowa counties.

"We would be using these mainly as replacement vans," Olson said. "If we have other vans with heavy mileage or those that could stand to be replaced. These vans are those that were supposed to be leased by other counties but after the abolished revenue sharing they Couldn't afford them," Olson said.

SEATS, A SERVICE that supplies transportation for the county's elderly and handicap-ned, requested that the county advised the supervisors to lease 15 vans to the other counties.

"We have a fairly modern fleet up our fleet, and this is the way we do it."

False assassination report blamed on S. Korean Cabinet

The statement came more accurately than a year and a half.

The leaflets claiming responsibility for the killing were signed "Direct Action, Comrades Pierre Carton". The group told the leftist As-Safir newspaper that Carton would be killed Feb. 28, 1972, during a demonstration at Bankrut on the outskirts of Paris. The security guard who killed Dinner, according to police, reported to the crime was later on the border of the Dark and desperate place.

The government can in no way responsibly for the killings and creating confusion for the people.

"The government announced that the two women, who had been staying a distance away of the person of a pistol in her hand. She told me in French slang, 'you can't get a complete's answer as in January 1985, as the two women were seen to the head and chest fired, and the two women replied only, 'Yes, it's certain', the witness said."

"We DEMAND that the entire Cabinet step down and leave us to the dark and desperate place."

"The death announcement was made."

Boilermakers are among nation's best

By Steve Williams

NEW YORK (UPI) -- Roger Clemens, who also stole a win as well, has won the American League's Cy Young Award, the Boston Red Sox pitcher announced Tuesday night. Clemens beat out strikeout leader Randy Johnson of the Houston Astros and the New York Yankees' David Wells for the honor.

Clemens, who was a first-ballot winner for the award in 1992 and 1993, is the first Red Sox pitcher to win the honor since Jim Rice was named the league's top hurler in 1978.

Cy Young Award

The 33-year-old right-hander was the unanimous choice of the 28 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America who cast the ballots. Clemens received 28 first-place votes and 24 points from the voters to become the first starting pitcher since Wells in 1995 to win the award.

ROSEMONT, Ill. -- For the first time in a long while there is hope for the Northwestern basketball program. The Wildcats, who only have had one winning season since 1986, will enter the 1995-96 season as the Big Ten favorite with the addition of Coach Gene Keady.

Keady was named the Big Ten Coach of the Year last season, and the Wildcats have been picked to finish in the top two in the league by the league's head coaches.

Lions rice to No. 2 sets up showdown

NEW YORK (UPI) - Pittsburgh and East Carolina, a pair of top teams with only seven victories between them, prepare for a showdown showdown between, Miami and State.

State, Pitts., 1\%, hopes to stay ahead of the Panthers, 6\%. Saturday in its final regular-season game, the Panthers are the only team that could stop them.

"They're a good team," said State's quarterback, "but we're not going to lose to them. We're going to win and go to the championship game.

"We just need to keep things in perspective in the early going and make sure we get our goals with every game."
Bitter cold sends cyclists to showers

Mark Parman

A blizzard of active air and snow is sending the cyclists running indoors. For the second straight week, it has been too cold and wet outside to ride.

The weather, which has been so mild this winter, is now sending cyclists indoors. Many are using the time to rest and recover from the long season of riding.

Mark Parman, a local cyclist, said, "It's a bit difficult to adjust to the cold after such a mild winter. But it's necessary to stay in shape and maintain fitness during this time of year."

The deep freeze has also impacted road cyclists, who have been forced to ride indoors. This has led to a rise in the popularity of indoor cycling classes and equipment.

Despite the challenges, many cyclists are finding creative ways to stay active and connected with the outdoors.

"We're using this time to work on our strength and endurance," said Parman. "It's important to stay motivated and continue pushing ourselves, even when the weather is not cooperating."

As the cold weather continues, it is important for cyclists to stay warm and dry while indoors. Many are using specialized equipment, such as fans and heaters, to create a comfortable environment for their rides.

"It's all about maintaining a routine and staying consistent," said Parman. "Even when it's cold and muddy outside, there are plenty of ways to stay active and healthy as a cyclist."

The Gestapo with Joan Collins and the Hidden Fortress opens tonight in Cinematheque.

Two government pamphlets were scattered about a small table in front of the Gestapo's headquarters. One contained the latest edition of their educational material, which emphasized the importance of cooperation with the Gestapo. The other was a list of suspects who were being watched closely. It seemed that the Gestapo were on the verge of a breakthrough.

Toby should do much to strengthen Kurosawa's position as one of the leading directors of action pictures. Japanese cinema has always been the most exciting in the world, partly because of the films of Akira Kurosawa. His grand vision has always appealed to me, but his American approach makes me wonder if he can make a film that truly represents his essence.

Kurosawa's best-known natural film, The Seven Samurai, was made in 1954 at a time when the Japanese film industry was in a state of crisis. The film was a financial disaster, but it proved to be the beginning of a new era for Japanese cinema. Kurosawa's next film, Fortresses, opens tonight at 8 in Clapp Recital Hall.

Jazz Band II, Ill to perform

At 8 tonight in the Clapp Recital Hall.

The two bands, whose members were chosen by auditions, will present a variety of jazz pieces. The music will range from the classic to the experimental.

The first band features music by John Coltrane, including "A Love Supreme." The second band performs a composition by Jazz Band III member, Alex Band. The piece is called "The Wall." It is a powerful statement about the divisions that exist in society.

The performances are free and open to the public.
