Chemical leaks contaminate 2 U.S. cities

Toxic cloud sends 95 to Gary hospitals

GARY, Ind. (AP) — A storage tank holding 1,000 gallons of mixed with rain created a toxic mist that sent more than 300 people to area hospitals. The leak caused more than 3,000 people to evacuate a nearby industrial park.

"It's so toxic," a man said, referring to the chemical. "It's unbelievable. It's like a cloud."

The storage tank held a mixture of chemicals, including hydrochloric acid and hydrofluoric acid, officials said. The chemicals were being used in the production of pharmaceuticals.

The leak occurred at approximately 9 a.m. Tuesday at a plant in Gary. The plant is owned by the company that made the chemical.

About 8 a.m., and truck carrying the chemical to a nearby restaurant for use. The truck was traveling on U.S. 31 when the accident occurred. The chemical was released into the air, causing the area to become toxic.

"We were told about 8 a.m., and truck carrying the chemical to a nearby restaurant for use," a worker said. "The chemical was released into the air, causing the area to become toxic."

UI may extend language requirements

By Annette Bush
Staff Writer

Future UI students may spend more time studying a foreign language if the Faculty Assembly approves a recommendation this year. As of now, all students are required to study a foreign language for four years.

A proposal to present by the Faculty Assembly's Curriculum Committee recommends that all foreign language study for four years be continued in all majors instead of only being required for foundations or professions.

According to UI College of Liberal Arts Associate Dean James Lindberg, the proposal originated in the UI Foreign Language Program.

The CURCULI felt that the two-year foreign language requirement would be beneficial to the development and encouragement of foreign language study. Lindberg said it would not have any impact on the number of students who would need to fulfill their foreign language requirement.

The recommendation would require four years of foreign language study for all students. If approved, the recommendation would be up to the faculty of the respective departments and the university.

UI will meet with the respective departments and the university to discuss the recommendation.

A group of University of New Mexico students have written a proposal calling for the University of New Mexico to adopt a more lenient policy for foreign language requirements.

The proposal was written by the UNM chapter of the Student Senate and was sent to the University of New Mexico Board of Regents, which approved it.

The proposal calls for the University of New Mexico to require only two years of foreign language study for all students instead of the current four-year requirement.

The proposal also calls for the University of New Mexico to allow students to count credits from courses taken at other institutions as fulfilling foreign language requirements.

The proposal was written in response to the University of New Mexico's current policy, which requires all students to take four years of foreign language courses.

Crisil critical language program selects 6

Six UI students have been selected to participate in a UI program that would train them to teach Japanese. This program will begin in at least six Iowa schools, including Iowa City.

The four-year program began last summer and is funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation. Each participating school will provide an intensive six-week summer institute in Japanese.

Each school will be assigned to a UI professor and a UI master's student who will work with the school's students and teachers to improve their ability to teach Japanese.

UI Associate Dean of Liberal Arts James Lindberg said the program was initiated because of a need to increase the number of schools that teach Japanese.

"Many students are now studying languages in Iowa," Lindberg said. "However, only a few of these students actually have the ability to teach their languages at the high school level.

"It is important to have a more balanced approach to language education in Iowa," he said.

The policy for reviewing senior term appointments for university faculty members was approved by the UI Faculty Council after a lengthy debate last week.

The council approved the policy by a 32-21 margin because it was too general, members said. The proposal called for all academic administrators to submit the names of academic faculty members to the council at least 10 days prior to their appointments.

The council clarified the resolution, asking the senate deliberative committee of academic administrators — the president, the vice president for academic affairs, and the provost — to develop a resolution to bring to the council at the next meeting.

Remington also referred questions from council members about the resignation of UI President James Damon and UI Law Professor Michael Arif to the senate deliberative committee of academic administrators.

UI Faculty Council member and UI Law Professor Michael Arif was passed over for the UI presidency last month, back to council for refinement if the senate approves it.

Charging of the guard

UT President James O. Freedman announced his resignation Monday. What the community was expecting was not entirely unexpected, for in recent months Freedman appeared to be a candidate for the presidency of several major universities.

Naturally, the university had no choice but to accept the resignation at Dartmouth College was mixed. Most people, in the UT community were expressing their regret at losing an eminent scholar, but there was no gnawing sense of opportunity represented by the Dartmouth post. Such comments, after all, are the polite, safe thing to say at times like this. Others were less circumspect and admitted to feeling betrayed, since Freedman had only recently expressed his commitment to the UT.

But the people of the UT should remember that as they know it will continue in the post-Freedman era. As UI Vice President for Academic Affairs Richard Remington said, "The University of Iowa is not the New President Freedman."

Further, it should be pointed out that Freedman's five years at the UI will not go down as this university's most glorious. Beer, sex, drugs — but not necessarily.

The university's credit, be it against state funding cuts, defended the liberal arts and expanded the UI's international studies programs. But, in other areas, Freedman failed to establish the UI as a leader of moral consciousness. Why was his support of apartheid activists only lukewarm? Why did he testify in favor of the nomination of Supreme Court Chief Justice William Rehnquist despite lingering allegations of Rehnquist's associate's racist right-wing views? Why didn't he address student concerns about CIA recruitment at the UI?

These are important moral questions deserving of a university president's consideration and Freedman's pride, and other social issues.

But it's time to go on and bring his UT tenure to a close. It is only reasonable to wish him the best of luck at Dartmouth. There will be other opportunities. For the UT community, it should be pointed out that this university has significant resources of its own which will attract fine candidates for its presidency.

Justice prevails

Yesterday's announcement that 15-year-old Jack Collins of New York, Iowa, will not be sentenced to stand trial for the death of his classmate, James "Chuckie" Lopes last fall. But after hearing evidence presented last week, a Jasper County judge ruled Monday that Collins should instead be put on probation.

The decision by District Associate Judge Thomas Mott, is encouraging for two reasons. First, it shows that justice is not beyond the ability of the people to make rational decisions. Secondly, it demonstrates that the case received was phenomenal. Two weeks after the scruff, the Des Moines Register printed a series of covers that ran the gamut of what appeared on the front page. These reports, coupled with harsh comments from Collins' family concerning the police investigations of the fight, immediately made the case controversial.

Despite this coverage, Mott was able to set aside emotions and decide that a one-year probation term rather than a three-year probation term — the stiffer sentence proposed by the state — was the right decision.

The decision is also encouraging because it recognizes that, in some instances, the personal feelings of guilt and pain the suﬀerers following such a tragedy can be as positive as a prison term.

"It was just regular seventh-grade stuff," Collins said repeatedly shortly after Collins' death. "I'm sorry that he hit him and I'm sorry that he died," he added with tears in his eyes.

An apology will not bring Collins back nor begin to ease the pain family friends and neighbors felt. But putting a young boy with no previous criminal record on probation and not putting him in jail gains him a year. Probation term does not make sense. The peer alienation, the lack of community support which Collins shared his life of his punishment enough.

"It appears that a reporter from the New York Times called me for a comment last week when the story about the death of James "Chuckie" Lopes last fall. But after hearing evidence presented last week, a Jasper County judge ruled Monday that Collins should instead be put on probation.

As tempting as it is to be tempted by this sensational news story, I'm not sure that it's the right decision. The reporter was persistent, and I'm not sure that he's coming to agree.

"Yes, I guess," I said. "Do you think he's more specific, then?"

I BEGAN TO REALIZE that the reporter already had his story written long before he called you, and I think he'll stick to it. But I'm not going to be the most cooperative interviewee.

"Oh the room," I said. "I'm not sure if you can say anything," I said. The reporter asked, "On the room, the office, the UI, the campus?"

I thought of two major issues here: first, trying to bring him to justice and making sure the UI was protected.

The first, I told him, was too much for me. It's too much to make the student responsible and I'm not sure that we would have enough time to properly defend myself.

But the reporter was persistent, and I'm not sure that he's coming to agree.

Area counties face budget dilemmas

By James Cahey

Johnson County’s budget problems are not unique, as several neighboring counties face the same dilemma of cutting services or raising property taxes.

Johnson County, which has about 58,000 residents, is about to present its 1987-88 budget to the Board of Supervisors, and it is likely that a property tax hike will be on the agenda.

"We were certainly in a very flexible position," Supervisor Oxley said. "A lot of our feeling was that we have to report a lot of problems on human services. Since we are in a predominantly agricultural county, it would be nice to give farmers some relief, but we're running into the property tax issue. Hopefully, we will find some alternative to using our reserve, which we don't want to reduce anymore.

But not all counties were able to keep property taxes down. In Muscatine County, property taxes were reduced by digging into the county’s reserve fund, a move the Muscatine County Board of Supervisors had little choice about, according to Chairman Oxley.

"We wanted to hold the line on taxes and reduce services, but at the same time we wanted to raise taxes," Oxley said. "We want to build up the cash reserves and also to maintain the level of services within the county, as it will be a question of whether to raise property taxes, but how much is the question."

Bill would UNCOVER corporate raiders

DESI MUNSON (UPI)—Corporate raiders attempting to muscle into companies and place directors to keep their plans in secrecy are gaining a foothold.

Under the bill, raiders need to divulge their intentions after a week. The new legislation would permit the raider 30 days to complete a take-over, after which the company could file suit to block the purchase.

Rep. Hugo Schlossberg, D-R.I., said the proposal would protect small investors from being swindled by large corporations, many of which have been involved in takeovers.

"This would not be a serious problem for the large Wall Street firms, but small investors would have no protection," he said.

OPPONENTS said the bill would be a hardship for smaller companies, which would be subjected to stricter scrutiny.

"This bill is an unnecessary burden on small companies," said Rep. Gene Blanshan, D-Iowa. "It would be too costly for a company with a small market capitalization to take the time to go through this process."
Swiss laws may help Secord

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A federal judge said Tuesday that if President Reagan orders a new federal court to hear the case of Robert Lee Secord he will be 'disloyal to the foreign bank' and 'knowing the law.' "Robert Secord, he shall be known as a traitor," said the judge.

The Senate last month cited Secord as a "villain" for refusing to sign a bill that would have permitted him to buy "foreign securities," which are prohibited under U.S. law. The Senate voted 94-1 on the bill, but Secord, who had been convicted of fraud in Canada, had already fled to Switzerland.

"We may have seen bank secrecy laws," the judge said. "But they don't apply here."

Deficit skyrackets; economists gloomy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The first executive trade deficit peaked at $12.2 billion in March, and the final total for February was $12.4 billion, up 10 percent from January, according to Commerce Department figures released today.

"We're seeing a trend toward national accounts," said a spokesman for the department. "This means that people are buying more goods and services from abroad than they're selling here."

The statement was followed by a flurry of activity on Wall Street, as investors scrambled to buy foreign securities and sell American stocks. The dollar fell sharply against the yen, while the Swiss franc strengthened against the dollar.

Cargo plane crashes; 4 die near Kansas City

WASHINGTOn (UPI) - A cargo plane crashed near Kansas City Sunday afternoon, killing four people on board. The plane was heading from Dallas to Chicago with a stopping point in Kansas City.

The pilot of the plane, identified as Mr. Smith, said he was checking his instruments when the plane went down. "I don't know why," he said. "I think I was just having a bad day."
Bomb explodes in Indiana courthouse

KOKOMO, Ind. — A bomb apparently smuggled into the Howard County Courthouse by a drug suspect exploded as two federal agents went to confront him, injuring the deftlatil, a lawyer and four other people, authorities said Tuesday.

Robert Gray, 37, of Marion, Ind., was on free bond and wanted by the Howard County Sheriff's Office on charges of car theft and auto-related larceny. Gray was described by one law enforcement official as "The town's number one escape artist."

"When he ran, he was gone," said the official, who added that officials believe Gray had planted the bomb inside the courthouse.

"He's not a naive person," said John D. Waddell, a sheriff's deputy who is assigned to the building permanently. "He's very experienced in this type of activity."

Waddell said the bomb exploded near the main entrance to the courthouse, injuring the lawyers and a worker as well as two federal agents.

"The place is going to be shut down for quite a while," Waddell said. "This is going to be a major project."

Officials said the courthouse was closed indefinitely until the bomb could be removed. The spread of the explosion, however, was relatively small, and the building was not damaged.

At least 200 federal and local law enforcement officials were working to determine what caused the explosion and to locate Gray. He has been charged with armed car theft, armed bank robbery and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

The office of U.S. District Judge William H. Holmes, who is conducting Gray's case, was not available for comment.

Gray has a history of drug and violent crimes, including a 1992 conviction for armed bank robbery.

Botha downplays criticism of S. Africa's detention policies

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - Foreign Minister FW de Klerk rejected criticism by S. Africa's opposition parties and its policy of detaining without trial political opponents. Botha said foreigners had misinterpreted his good intentions.

"I have referred to these matters today to many people, including American and British diplomats, to assure them that there is nothing new in the position," Botha said.

In his statement, Botha said that 31 diplomats from all over the world received their passports back last week in a 38-hour strike by black transport workers.

PERRINS, the first black South African to be accredited to the United Nations, Monday condemned the South African government's detention without trial of at least 33,000 people.

"This man is not a leader of a political party," he said. "He is a householder, a parent, a citizen."

Botha said Friday's ban on striking platinum miners directed at counteracting any strike was a "directed attempt to prevent black workers from striking." He also said his statement was "part of an ongoing campaign to meet diplomats from all over the world to show that there are no new measures against political opponents."

"We are taking these matters into consideration," Botha said. "The government will not lose 90 percent of its votes in the other African National Congress."

Oldis rolls along as Midwest scout

By Brent Halvor

special to the Daily Iowan

It is a Monday night at 6:05 p.m. in a small college town in Iowa. A young man walks into a room where he is about to meet with major league scouts. He is Bob Oldis, a scout for the Montreal Expos, and he has been in this line of work for many years. Oldis has been scouting players for major league clubs since the mid-1950s, and he is one of the most respected and successful scouts in the game.

"I don't think there's anything like it," Oldis said. "It's the opportunity to see young players develop and watch them become major league players. It's a privilege to be a part of that."

‘Skeletons’ author fails to create original style

By Teresa Hager

HARRIET KETTLETON's first novel, “Family Skeletons,” centers around the lives of the Appleton family, who are struggling to maintain their sense of identity and place in the world.

In the pages of the book, readers are introduced to the various members of the family, each with their own unique quirks and characteristics. The protagonist, a young woman named Appleton, is the driving force behind the story, as she navigates the complexities of her family's history and tries to make sense of the past.

The novel is written in a stream-of-consciousness style, with fragments of the characters' thoughts and memories weaving together to form a cohesive narrative. The language is spare and evocative, creating a vivid sense of time and place.

One of the strengths of the novel is its use of humor to explore serious themes. The characters are often seen engaging in light-hearted banter, even when faced with difficult situations. This helps to humanize them and make their struggles more relatable to the reader.

However, some readers may find the novel's lack of emotional depth and character development to be a weakness. The characters are often one-dimensional and their motivations are not always clear. This can make it difficult for readers to connect with them on a deeper level.

Overall, “Family Skeletons” is a thought-provoking and engaging read for those interested in family drama and themes of identity. The writing is skillfully crafted and the story is well-paced, making it a satisfying read from start to finish.

‘Joshua Tree’ showcases U2’s varied style, talent

By Shawn Manton

U2 (ARGUE) Ireland’s rock band that has taken the world by storm with their unique sound and style.

The band’s latest album, “Achtung Baby,” showcases the group’s range of talents, from their rock and roll roots to their more experimental and electronic sound.

The album opens with the title track “Achtung Baby,” a powerful and driving rock song that sets the tone for the rest of the album. The band’s signature punk rock sound is evident throughout, but they also experiment with different styles, incorporating elements of electronic and pop music.

One of the standout tracks on the album is “Zooropa,” a track that features elements of electronic and pop music. The song’s catchy melody and upbeat tempo make it a crowd favorite, and the band’s use of synthesizers and programmed beats adds a new layer of depth to their sound.

Other tracks on the album include the driving rock song “The Fly,” which highlights Bono’s powerful vocal range, and the more experimental “I Still Haven’t Found What I’m Looking For,” which features the band’s signature electronic sound.

Overall, “Achtung Baby” is a testament to U2’s versatility and talent as a band. The album’s diverse range of sounds and styles makes it a must-listen for any fan of rock music.
