State combats nursing crunch

By Cathy Jackson

Iowa City's new mayor intends to encourage more women to enter nursing and to create more job opportunities for nurses.

The state is facing a nursing shortage which could lead to a decrease in the quality of care provided to patients. The Iowa Department of Public Health reported that the state had a deficit of 32,000 nurses in 2016.

The shortage has led to an increase in salaries for nurses, with some nurses earning more than $100,000 per year.

Nursing schools have been reluctant to increase enrollment due to the high cost of education and the perceived lack of job security.

Mayor Jackson plans to address these issues by providing incentives for nurses to stay in the state and to attract new nurses to the area.

Some of the proposed solutions include increasing the state's nursing education grants, creating more nursing jobs in rural areas, and improving the working conditions for nurses.

Mayor Jackson has also called for the state to increase funding for nursing research and to establish a state nursing board to regulate nursing education and practice.

The mayor's initiatives are expected to take several years to bear fruit, but she believes that the state's nursing shortage can be reversed.

Peacewalkers join Iowa City for Fourth of July festivities

Peacewalkers join Iowa City for Fourth of July festivities

By Nickolas Spain

Iowa City residents of all ages started their way into Iowa on July 4, 1988, with the annual Peacewalk.

The Peacewalk is a community event that celebrates peace and promotes understanding.

Participants walk through the city, holding signs and banners, chanting for peace.

The Peacewalk is organized by the Iowa City Peace & Justice Center.

Joining the Peacewalk is a way to show solidarity with people all over the world who are working for peace.

The Peacewalk is open to all ages and backgrounds.

Why not join in and show your support for peace?

White House plans drug testing for employees

White House plans drug testing for employees

By Alison Green

The White House is planning to implement a drug testing program for employees.

The program will be voluntary and will not affect employees who are not in positions that require a drug-free workplace.

The program will be administered by the Office of Personnel Management.

The White House is committed to ensuring a drug-free workplace and is taking steps to protect its employees and the public.

Drug testing is a controversial issue, and some employees have expressed concerns about the program.

However, the White House believes that drug testing is necessary to ensure a safe and healthy workplace.

The program will be implemented in phases, with employees in high-risk positions being tested first.

The White House is confident that the drug testing program will go smoothly and that it will be an effective tool for maintaining a drug-free workplace.

State, university leaders target minority children

By Stephanie Ross

The Daily Iowan

While agreeing on the need for increased recruitment and retention of minority students, the Iowa Board of Regents and the Iowa State University leadership remain at odds over what steps to take to increase the numbers of African Americans in the two state universities.

The university president has identified recruitment and retention of minority students as one of the seven goals of the Strategic Plan for the University of Iowa.

The board approved a policy change to allow the president to stance on specific diversity goals following a report by the president's Task Force on Minority Recruitment.

New Iowa laws include higher welfare benefits

Des Moines — Iowa lawmakers on Wednesday approved a welfare reform bill that creates a new state agency to assess the impact of the drought and provides an added breather to the drought that has had Iowa and much of the Midwest by its grasp.

Stanley Johnson, director of the Iowa Board of Nursing, said Thursday that analysts said the drought is likely to result in wide swings in prices between now and next year, so farmers might want to sell their crops now before prices drop. The research center at the University of Iowa and South Carolina is in the process of assessing the impact of the drought is unknown, but it is expected that the effects could be disastrous in some areas. The Iowa Board of Nursing said that it would be impossible to say how much the drought could affect the state's welfare reform initiatives.

"I think we're a little bit too early to say," said Gregorash. "The system is too complex and the impact of the drought is too early to say."

The Iowa Board of Nursing is also considering the possibility of a telephone interview from its clients. The system is expected to be up and running within a week. The program is designed to provide an added breather to the drought that has had Iowa and much of the Midwest by its grasp.

‘Madame Butterfly’ breaks into the music video world

By Steve S. Donoghue

During a fairly liquid act Tuesday night over at The Scene, the club scene went into overdrive as fans were treated to a special television screening of the upcoming release of the opera’s music video, "Madame Butterfly." The event was sponsored by the Town Channel featuring an exclusive screening of the 1996 production of Puccini’s opera "Madame Butterfly," starring Michelle Oder.

After more than a year and a half, fans of the original opera will have the opportunity to experience the music video version of "Madame Butterfly." The event was held to promote the upcoming feature film adaptation of the opera, which is set to be released later this year.

The screening was held in the room where the original opera was performed, in front of a large projection screen. The room was filled with fans who eagerly awaited the screening.

The event was held in collaboration with the Town Channel, a local television station that recently purchased the rights to broadcast the opera. The station has been promoting the screening heavily, and fans have been eagerly anticipating the event.

Michelle Oder, who played the role of Madama Butterfly in the original production, was on hand to introduce the music video version of the opera. She discussed the challenges of adapting the opera for the screen, and the unique aspects of the music video format.

The screening was well-received by the fans, who were enthusiastic about the opportunity to experience the opera in a new way. Many fans commented on the quality of the music video, and expressed their excitement for the upcoming release of the feature film.

The event was a success, and the Town Channel plans to continue promoting the opera in the coming months. Fans can expect to see more screenings and events in support of the opera, as well as the upcoming feature film adaptation.

Tyson's ring career finished, he claims

NEW YORK (AP) — On the day Mike Tyson turned 21, several great boxers, including Sugar Ray Leonard and Ken Norton, said the undefeated heavyweight champions should not retire — and didn't think he would.

Tyson, saying he was "hurted" and wanted to devote more time to his family, said this would be his last. His career came to an end with a one-sided loss to Michael Spinks by unanimous decision in 9 minutes, 17 seconds.

Tyson, at the United States, at the United States, took the ring to celebrate, but his victory celebration was marred by the sight of several Promotions, members of the World Boxing Council, there was almost unanimous agreement that Tyson would be back.

"I'm going to go back," Tyson said, and "I'm going to do it better," and "I'm going to be here in the ring."

The manual problems involve Bill Carter, who Tyson is now in an offer to bring the man and prevent the manager from getting his one-third share of a more than $21 million purse from the Spinks fight.

"I'm going to go back," Tyson said. "I'm going to make a name for myself."

"People don't know what student government is — we need to make ourselves more visible," says Student Senate Vice President Pepa Rojas-Cardona.

"We center on issues such as campus safety, minority recruitment and retention and accessibility for handicapped students because all of these issues have a direct bearing on a student's education at the UI," says CAC President Maureen Edwards.

"We have the opportunity to set a new tone for the university and establish a good working relationship with the administration," says CAC Vice President Gordon Fischer.

"One of my biggest goals as vice president is to support the repackaging of student government to make it more people oriented," says CAC Vice President Hunter Edwards. "It's a valuable opportunity to get involved, but it's up to the student to take advantage of it.

"The Student Senate — we are the student government," says CAC President Maureen Edwards.

"I would like to see the Senate develop a leadership council so we can reach out to UI students and find out what their needs are," she says. "I want to implement new strategies to give the students a direct bearing on the government, so we can help other students understand what student government is all about.

"A great deal of the Senate's major efforts for the year will be double the amount of time spent by the Senate to make sure the student viewpoint is heard at every level of the university.

"We need to establish more communication between the branches and agencies of student government," says Student Senate President Melinda Hess. "We need to be more visible and accessible to students at the UI.

"People don't know what student government is — we need to make ourselves more visible," says Student Senate Vice President Pepa Rojas-Cardona.

"We center on issues such as campus safety, minority recruitment and retention and accessibility for handicapped students because all of these issues have a direct bearing on a student's education at the UI," says CAC President Maureen Edwards.

"We have the opportunity to set a new tone for the university and establish a good working relationship with the administration," says CAC Vice President Gordon Fischer.

"One of my biggest goals as vice president is to support the repackaging of student government to make it more people oriented," says CAC Vice President Hunter Edwards. "It's a valuable opportunity to get involved, but it's up to the student to take advantage of it.

"The Student Senate — we are the student government," says CAC President Maureen Edwards.

"I would like to see the Senate develop a leadership council so we can reach out to UI students and find out what their needs are," she says. "I want to implement new strategies to give the students a direct bearing on the government, so we can help other students understand what student government is all about.

Felton extols the joy of nursing

By James Calhy

"You are really rewarded handsomely as a nurse."

"The joy of doing nursing is unbelievable. You can make a very good living out of it, and many of us really enjoy it. You are really rewarded handsomely as a nurse," says Geraldine Felton.

Felton has been a nurse for over 20 years. She graduated from the University of Iowa College of Nursing in 1968 and has worked at the University Hospitals of Iowa City as a nurse in various capacities since then.

Felton was appointed director of Hancher Auditorium in 1980. She served as a nurse in the army, rising to the rank of lieutenant colonel in 1982.

"I never imagined I'd be a nurse," said Felton. "But I just wanted to be a good wife and mom."

 Felton's role at Hancher has allowed her to work with a wide range of artists and performers, including many of her former patients.

"I love being able to see the joy in others' faces," said Felton. "It makes me feel like I'm doing something important."

Felton is one of the few black nurses in a position of power at the UI, but she said she feels her two boys have little to do with where she is today.

"In the profession of nursing, there are many blocks in the way of women in position of responsibility," Felton said. "Nobody pushes themselves on having chosen a path or, after the work is accomplished, says the work is unimportant."

Saying that she feels the UI College of Nursing is one of the finest in the nation, Felton said the college has been helped by having a strong hospital in the UI medical center.

"Most of all, however, Felton praises the faculty of the UI College of Nursing for the important thing that has happened since I have been here, that our faculty has grown into a community of professionals," said Felton. "Our faculty is really like any on the campus or in the nation."

As far as the students, Felton thinks that there has been a decline in interest in the profession in recent years. Many students have perceived problems in nursing in the 1980's, Felton noted.

"The nursing shortage is real, but it's not as bad as it was," said Felton. "We are seeing a rise in student interest in nursing."
UI depends on diverse leadership

By Deborah Ghafe
The Daily Iowan

Ensure the future and reach new heights and make up the UI's administration "open the doors of the buildings they work in," the president said Tuesday during the dedication ceremony of the new Administration building.

The building is the result of the administration's leadership in providing services for the university and its students.

John Cahill, the university's 16th president, said he was proud of the new building and its role as a symbol of the university's commitment to excellence.

"This building is a symbol of all that we do," Cahill said. "It's a symbol of the university's commitment to excellence."

UI boasts renowned alumni

List includes Irving, Gallup, Vonnegut, Branson, Jarreau

By Sara Langenberg

Iowa City

It sounds easy when you're just getting out, but then it's not as easy as many students who have gone in to make names for themselves after graduation.

The mayor of Seattle, Al Ross, has been a business office manager and administrative assistant at the University of Iowa since 1967. That year, Ross attended a seminar on computer science and budgeting at the University of Iowa, where he was named to his current position in 1968.

According to Ross, the seminar taught him how to use a computer. "I was really excited," he said. "I felt like I was part of something big." Ross has been a part of the University of Iowa since 1967 and has worked in a variety of positions since then, including as a computer science instructor and as a budget analyst.

"It was a turning point in my career," he said. "I was able to apply what I learned in the seminar to my work here at the University of Iowa." Ross has been recognized for his contributions to the University of Iowa and has received a number of awards for his work.

"I love my job," he said. "I enjoy working with students and helping them to grow." Ross is looking forward to the future and plans to continue his work at the University of Iowa for many years to come.

Among the other prominent alumni who have attended the University of Iowa are:

- Ross Perot, who received his bachelor's degree in 1963 and his master's degree in 1967. Perot is a well-known businessman and entrepreneur.
- Tom Hanks, who received his bachelor's degree in 1976 and his master's degree in 1977. Hanks is an actor and director who has starred in a number of popular movies.
- George Clooney, who received his bachelor's degree in 1983 and his master's degree in 1985. Clooney is an actor and director who has won numerous awards for his work.
- Edward Norton, who received his bachelor's degree in 1987 and his master's degree in 1989. Norton is an actor and director who has starred in a number of successful movies.

David Sawyer, who received his bachelor's degree in 1987 and his master's degree in 1989. Sawyer is a well-known businessman who has worked for a number of successful companies.

"It was a turning point in my career," he said. "I was able to apply what I learned in the seminar to my work here at the University of Iowa." Sawyer has been recognized for his contributions to the University of Iowa and has received a number of awards for his work.

board of regents writes rules for UI

No group is more influential

By James Calhoun
The Daily Iowan

The university's Board of Regents can't be called an extraordinarily dynamic or colorful group of individuals. The numbers are white males. If its members are more diverse in terms of experience, that is not necessarily visible from the outside. Still, they have the power to make decisions that may have a large impact on the university's operations.

Charges of nepotism make the board a hotly debated topic in the Midwest. The board is a 13-man body that has been elected to serve three-year terms. The board's decisions can have a major impact on the university, especially in areas like tuition and hiring your professors.

By 1986, members do come from a variety of backgrounds. Many have significant experience in the Iowa House or Senate. Some have been elected to a seat on the Iowa City Council or the Des Moines City Council. This experience can be very valuable in advising the administration.

The board currently includes Rep. Minette Doderer, who is a strong advocate of higher education and many rural areas, and Rep. John Greg, who is a member of the Appropriations Subcommittee.

The board is currently divided along party lines. The Republicans have a majority, and the Democrats are in the minority. This division can make it difficult to reach consensus on important issues.

The board has been criticized for its lack of transparency and its failure to adequately address issues like cuts to student aid and increased tuition costs.

The board is currently considering a number of important issues, including the expansion of the University of Iowa's campus, the construction of new buildings, and the ongoing controversy over the university's tuition policy.

The board is also facing pressure from student groups to increase funding for scholarships and other forms of financial aid.

The board's decisions can have a significant impact on the university's ability to attract and retain top students and faculty. It is essential that the board members consider the long-term implications of their actions and act in the best interests of the university and its students.

Keshoals books on success

"Perfect Duck's Breath" is a wrap. In the fall, the Ducks, producers, and a whole bunch of other people are moving on to getting back to that world of hard-core anti-heroes and junkies, Cabbies.

The hapless nomad is now more than just a "nuisance-type rogue." Nowadays, the wrap-up is a real forest, dead pan monster again. That is, according to the IN Weekly, the "acidulous rapid-fire delivery" is still making waves in the new movie, "Perfect Duck's Breath."

The book is "Ian Shoales' Perfect Duck's Breath" and, as ghost-penned by star writer, after-shots and confabulations for Merle Shoales. The book isn't just for the really young. It's for the really young and I'm still laughing. The book is "Ian Shoales' Perfect Duck's Breath" and, as ghost-penned by star writer, after-shots and confabulations for Merle Shoales. "WE'VE BEEN TOGETHER 41/2 years," said Keasler of his relationship with Shoales. "It was all about having the best possible time. I'm still laughing. I'm still laughing."

"I can't take it any longer," said Keasler of his relationship with Shoales. "It was all about having the best possible time. I'm still laughing. I'm still laughing."

The first-person narrator is a roller-coaster of adventures and angst while finding time to avoid an absolutely impossible romance, silly and dangerous events and the occasional bowel movement. TheWriting-from-home status has been lost to unaccounted for high school, between teen-suicides in Raymond Chandler, Dros- sary, New Mexico and Andy Rooney.

KEASLER AND DUCK'S BREATH: TRAVELER TROUBLE: "We've been performing these last two weeks," said Keasler of his relationship with Shoales. "It was all about having the best possible time. I'm still laughing. I'm still laughing."

FOURTEEN PROJECTS FOR Moyle and trink include a movie called "Buddenbrooks," which Kessler described as "a hard-boiled murder-recovery set in a Los Angeles back, with Shoales as a cop and Kessler as a cop and Kessler as a cop.

Iowa sports: Recent success builds tradition

Men's programs close but far from failure; several records fall amid "successful season"

For Iowa's sports this past year, the key phrase is success. It's hard to find a sport where the Hawkeyes were less successful. As the end of the season approached, there were several reasons for the success. The most obvious is the Big Ten Conference, where the Hawkeyes had a string of victories at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The Hawkeyes won by an average of 18.5 points per game in conference play. The Hawkeyes' success in the conference helped them to reach the NCAA Tournament, where they faced a number of top teams and emerged victorious.

The Hawkeyes' success in the conference also helped them to improve their record on the road. In recent years, the Hawkeyes have struggled on the road, but this year they were able to turn things around. They won seven of their nine road games, including victories over Ohio State, Michigan, and Minnesota. The Hawkeyes' success on the road helped them to improve their overall record to 15-6.

Another key to the Hawkeyes' success was the performance of their players. Talented players like Hayden Fry, Tom Davis, Vivian Stringer, and B.J. Armstrong helped to lead the Hawkeyes to victory. The players were able to carry the team through a difficult schedule, and their performance helped to make the season successful.

In cross country, Iowa's newest star, Larrdon Tencer, had a breakout season. Tencer finished the season in fourth place at the NCAA Championships, earning All-American honors. The Hawkeyes also had success in track and field, with several athletes qualifying for the NCAA Championships.

On the women's side, the Hawkeyes had a successful season as well. The women's basketball team reached the NCAA Tournament, where they faced tough competition. The women's volleyball team also had a strong season, finishing the season with a record of 29-9.

A free-your-mind education can really be recorded through classes and activities on campus. There are a

And being in a club gives students a chance to participate in an activities on campus.

The sailing club is the largest

The Field House: UI’s hot spot for recreation

By Marc Rens
The Daily Iowan

"Never-few percent of students will at least use (Field House) facilities during the term," according to Warren Slebos, one of the associate directors of the UI’s main recreation center.

"You’re walking down a hallway, or they have a basketball court right there. You look inside, and you see the basketball players playing on the hardwood, volleyball, basketball on the side, the kids playing in the court, basketball, volleyball, tennis, and all that kind of stuff."

AIA Friday has recognized The Field House as the best place in the state to find a hearty hand, according to Slebos. The building houses facilities that are used by students, faculty, and staff.

The Field House is open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., and on Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. It is located at 1300 SW 15th Street in Iowa City.

The main recreation center provides a place for students and faculty to engage in a variety of recreational activities, including swimming, racquetball, basketball, and weightlifting. The center is open to the public, and guests are welcome to use the facilities.

In addition, many student and faculty members participate in intramural sports, including basketball, volleyball, and racquetball. The center also hosts a variety of special events, such as the annual UI alumni basketball game and the annual UI alumni volleyball game.

The Field House is home to the UI’s men’s and women’s basketball teams, as well as the UI’s women’s volleyball team. The center also hosts a variety of special events, such as the annual UI alumni basketball game and the annual UI alumni volleyball game.

Get your fill of fun and fitness at the Field House. Whether you’re looking for a place to exercise or just want to have fun with friends, the Field House has something for everyone.
An Iowa gridiron success story

Iowa: Where you can have it all.

By Brent Wood

On Aug. 8, 1999, Hayden Fry declared a date. But the Iowa football program, which had struggled through 31st, 32nd, 33rd and 36th in the nation, was about to change.

That day, the new season began.

In the years since, Fry has散文ed 155-36 record, grown more approachable and casual, and most important, has won.

He has won.

Not just Iowa's first two conference titles in 1981 and 1982, but also three Big Ten championships in 1983, 1985 and 1986. In addition, he has won a number of major bowl games.

The blue and gold faithful have always longed to see a championship. And with the nation's fourth-longest active winning streak, Iowa fans can see that Fry has delivered.

And here's the truth: Hayden Fry has been there and he has done that, and...

Iowa's Athletic Director

By Richard Schultz

Iowa head football coach and athletic director, Richard B. "Rich" Schultz, said the Iowa athletic program is "thoroughly" run from the inside, and that "the Iowa spirit of play has been the cornerstones of the Iowa athletic program as well as the cornerstones of the entire university."

"At Iowa, the Iowa spirit of play has been the cornerstones of the entire university. It is the attitude to win at any cost and to win within the rules. That is the Iowa spirit of play," Schultz said.

"At the Iowa athletic program, we maintain 100% compliance by student-athletes with all NCAA rules through proper communications and training of the student-athletes and their parents."

"At Iowa, we do not allow the use of the Field House. We do not allow the use of the Field House because the Iowa athletic program is the cornerstones of the entire university."

"Vivian Stringer is one of the classiest, most gracious people coaching in the ladies game," said Leon Barmore, the former Iowa basketball head coach who has become Stringer's associate head coach.

"She has a winning style that I've never seen before. She's a hard-working, selfless kind of person, and she's just surrounded by a great coaching staff.

"She's a very good teacher, and she's a very good mentor. She's a very good role model. She's a very good person. She's everything you could ever want in a coach. She's a very good person."

Fishing, hunting spots abound in local areas

For those of you who are on the move and are wondering where to go fishing and hunting, here are some suggestions:

- Fishing:
  - Lake Okoboji: Abundant fishing spots, try the north end of the lake for walleyes.
  - Lake(widget name): Popular spot for trout and bass.
  - River/stream name: Good for early in the season.

- Hunting:
  - Grouse hunting: Wheat fields near the town are a good place to start.
  - Deer hunting: Wooded areas of the state are great for deer.
  - Turkey hunting: Best in the fall, check out the public lands.

If you're unsure where to start, you can always ask local outfitters or the DNR for guidance.

The traditional sports of yesterday are still the cornerstone of today's physical education programs. We have families and individuals who are interested in tennis, racquetball, squash, and other traditional sports.

College

The field is yours during the month of October. Practices begin the first week of October. You can practice, but you don't need to be a player.

Non-traditional

Hawk's Nest South will be open until 9 p.m. on opening day. A few hotspots on opening day - relax - and you find your own personal ice fishing spot. A hot spot is located near the dam of the reservoir. The reservoir has been stocked with more than 15,000 acres open for public hunting and fishing.

Serious tradition loses out to fun

By Neil News

Non-traditional sports like frisbee, volleyball and Hacky Sack have become favorites among college students, and convenience and noncompetitiveness are two reasons why.

"One thing for sure is that small circles of friends hunting a Hacky Sack on the unconscious. Nontraditional sports like Hacky Sack are instance, because they require no more than two to four players, and one doesn't need to be a professional to play. It's easy to get started because you can practice by yourself and try it with a friend. I wish Richard Selby said, "This is different from the Hacky Sack sensation, a Hacky Sack is essentially a sponge ball. Selby said the only sign for fun but have friends who play it serenely.

"HOME PEOPLE MAKE up our own style," Neil said. "Frisbee is the only rule that says if you let the frisbee touch another player, it's out and it goes it as it is as far as the rules on our truck, and the Hacky Sack is convenient because you can practice by yourself and enjoy it."

Another reason Hacky Sack is becoming popular, according to UI Director of Recreation Services, said it didn't draw much support because it's a come-and-go sport. It's up to you to decide whether you want to take it seriously or not.

"Andrew Hauser uncorks a pitch during the 11th inning against Iowa State, Saturday, Sept. 20."

The game is played on a set of bleachers or in a large circle about the size of a frisbee. A Hacky Sack is used. Two players start it, and the Hacky Sack is played in a ring-shaped device is simply a ring. By the time one player can't keep the Hacky Sack up, the other player takes it and the Hacky Sack is played in a ring-shaped device is simply a ring."

THE FOUR COURTS available at the Field House require the same hourly fees as a Hacky Sack, and the use of balls are restricted. The Field House also offers courts for volleyball and hacky sack. However, in Hacky Sack, Hacky Sacks were common equipment. At the Field House, there is a player on a basketball court with the net lowered to the ground. Frisbees or Hacky Sacks provide some rules are followed, but a Hacky Sack is used for size and placement of the ball, a Hacky Sack is developed. The hacky sack and Hacky Sack rules are followed, but a Hacky Sack is used for size and placement of the ball.

"The Hacky Sack is the most popular of the new games, beach ball is one that is often seen on Iowa "beachball" this summer. Two players use wooden sticks, and the Hacky Sack is played in a ring-shaped device is simply a ring."

THOUGH HE HASN'T seen more than two or three beach ball sets, Randy Osiris, manager of Sky's Sporting Goods, says the hatstat from the beach. He said the ring-shaped device is simply a ring.

"The only bad thing about them is they don't float," he said. "The company that makes them started printing on the products because the Hacky Sack is filled with a lead ring."

"The Hacky Sack is available for the semi-intermediate player. They can play Hacky Sack, they're the newest thing in beachball. The reason Hacky Sack is popular," said Mark Richardson said, "if you don't need a glove and it doesn't require a half loan."

Two of Iowa's strongest sports teams, wrestling and women's basketball, are no strangers to their respective No. 1 spots. The wrestling team led an NCAA record with nine consecutive national championships, a string that was broken two years ago. However, the Hawkeyes currently have a chance at the Big Ten title.

Coach Dale Shade had four seniors in the starting lineup. Bill Hitchon led the way with a long, strong start, and Shade had a few more solid bases in his game against Wisconsin in the Hawkeye Stadium. McGee rebounded later, setting Big Ten marks with a 2-3 25-8 overall. McGee had been selected.

The Iowa City Parks and Recreation Department held a grand opening for the expanded recreation center, located at 1006 Eighth St., on June 9. The facility houses as indoor pool, two tranquil courts and a full-service ice rink.

"I'm real selective," Moore said. "I try to make sure the workmanship was good." Iowa Artisans' Gallery, 13 S. Linn St., sells the handmade pottery, jewelry, painted glass, woodwork and weaving of local and regional artists.

"Everything is on consignment, according to manager Cris Perry. Perry visits monthly with the store owners to review submitted artwork and select which they will take on consignment. Perry also employs 15 people to handle purchases, unpack and display them at the gallery.

"I'm looking for quality, craftsmanship, ingenuity and real art," Perry said. Pottery is the most popular item, typically selling for about $30, but Perry said the gallery is taking consignment of fine art.

UI minorities express cultural individuality

By Trudy Alder
The Daily Iowan

Once the advantages of attending a large university in the diversity it provides for students of all abilities.

At the UI there are more than 30 minority student groups covering a diverse range of cultures and religions. These groups choose to express their concern politically with others from their own presenting their culture.

Throughout the year these minority groups hold festivals, dinners, lectures and conferences, according to UI Director of Campus Programs Dr. Parsons, who is in charge of the Student Union.

She said minority groups find their role in the community, in part, because they feel they have a natural tie to the larger society.

"They have these titles minority but they identify with the same things everyone else does. Festivals, activities are all things that are common to all people. But they activities are inclusive of all cultures," Parsons said. "We hope to provide intellectual programs that encourage our students to learn about those important in the minority groups.

For example, the UI Student Union African American Organization Black History Month is February. In addition to the month-long series, held workshops and prepared lectures to highlight the contributions of African Americans throughout history.

During this month Alpha Phi Alpha, the black fraternity of Martin Luther King holds a memorial service for the former civil rights leader.

UI Hispanic groups also held numerous events throughout the month of October and "De la Raza," which celebrates the discovery of America. ADELA also has two ethnic dances called Pasos during this month.

"Night of the Volga" is held by the Russian Language House and has been a major function during Russian Month, Parsons said. The event provides opportunity to study the language.

"At the UI there are more than 30 minority student groups covering a diverse range of cultures and religions. These groups choose to express their concern politically with others from their own presenting their culture."

OTHER ACTIVITIES along these same lines are a Mardi Gras celebration hosted by the French society and the "Greek Latin" celebration which the Spanish students.

Minority student groups such as the General Union of Palestinian Students, the Freshwater Asian Coalition and the Southern African-American Student Association choose to share their culture as such as offer a support group and to a place to express concerns of their people.

Finally, for those minority student groups interested in pursuing a career in the field, "Impact," an annual conference entitled "A Day in the Life," is held in April and is scheduled to be held again this year. The conferences brings together students to participate in a day in the life of a minority student at the UI. Parsons emphasized that the groups work well together and often occur at events. But she said that individual organizations to maintain their separate identities.

Iowa City's bookworms find fare in local shops

Q: All of the movies worth going to see will play downtown first, right?

Wong: Such films as In A Room With a View, Blue Velvet, The Hollywood Shuffle, and My Life as a Dog have had their Iowa City premieres at the modern-era theatre in the 350. In addition to the best in new films, the Bijou offers a broad selection of foreign films, music videos, and Hollywood classics. Iowa City has ‘sweet’ history when it comes to ice cream

By Stephen Horan
The Daily Iowan

Anyone who lives near campus should feel right at home in Iowa City. Pearsons drugstore is one of many businesses in Iowa City that appeal to students and locals in Iowa City.

A century ago, according to Iowa City Historical Water, the Waverly Street business district, which today is still the heart of downtown, had a virtual monopoly on the ice cream market. This is why today, many business owners in Iowa City feel that the biggest audience is students because they are the ones who come in to campus.

Heaven in the Iowa City area is open to the public by appointment only, and it is located at 111 South Gilbert Street. The business has been open since 1888, and it is one of the few businesses that have been open for that long.

Friday, July 1, 1988

There are only a handful of places in Iowa City where you can get ice cream. Namur’s Ice Cream on North Linn Street and North Gilbert Street is one of those places. Mike Gould, manager of Namur’s Ice Cream, says that students are the biggest patrons of the business.

Gould said that Namur’s Ice Cream is known for its variety of ice cream, and that they have a large selection of flavors available.

The most popular flavors are the ones that are made with local ingredients. The business is also known for its ice cream shakes, which are made with local ingredients as well.

Namur’s Ice Cream is also known for its service. The staff is friendly and helpful, and they are always willing to help students find what they are looking for.

Many students frequent Namur’s Ice Cream because they know that they will always get a good deal.

“Students are the biggest patrons of the business because they are always looking for a good deal,” Gould said.

In addition to ice cream, Namur’s Ice Cream also serves a variety of other foods, such as sandwiches and pastries.

The business is open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and it is located at 111 South Gilbert Street. They are open every day of the year except for Christmas Day.

If you are looking for a good deal on ice cream, Namur’s Ice Cream is the place to go. They have a large selection of flavors, and they are known for their friendly service.

Local bars make ‘minor’ change

By James Catek

For many UI students, one of the least crucial aspects of being a student is going to bars. The UI in the Iowa City bar scene seems to go in cycles: every few years, students suddenly find that the local drinking age was never really enforced. A few years later, the 21-year-old mark goes to get a job in a new policy, and everyone is back to normal drinking standards.

For many UI students, one of the least crucial aspects of being a student is going to bars. The UI in the Iowa City bar scene seems to go in cycles: every few years, students suddenly find that the local drinking age was never really enforced. A few years later, the 21-year-old mark goes to get a job in a new policy, and everyone is back to normal drinking standards.

The Tycoon JC, 121 E. College St., has made a significant change in its alcohol policy.

"IF TOOK OFF right away," said Bar Manager Mike Clark, "and I believe it was the Bar at some point.

Although the initial enthusiasm toward the changed format has died down, Clark said, "It's a good thing we're starting to see positive reactions from the people on the nights it's been open."

The Tycoon JC basically serves different bars every night in Iowa City and surrounding areas, but there are no restrictions. No censorship. No big deal. It's just alcohol, and the bar is open from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

Two other Iowa City bars have also taken steps recently to make it easier for underage drinkers:

The Boardwalk, 111 E. Market St., has opened its doors to those under 21, but only from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. on weekends.

The Bluebird, 121 E. College St., has stopped serving so-called "no-alcohol" kegs of beer and bottles of liquor to people under 21.

"If you're underage and you feel like drinking, the minimum action we can take is to ask you to leave the bar," said Scott Mundt, who added that his policy is strictly enforced. "We really please with the people who have been here our new policy, and the bar's already made a big difference."

"The Boardwalk does make an exception to the bar, adding the policy is strictly enforced.

Another wave of freshmen is not to show up on the U’s campus at least until the midterm exams. Nevertheless, the Bar scene will host numerous social functions in which students will participate. In this context, two bars in Iowa City serve as examples of typical bars - the City Bar and Tavern.

The City Bar

The City Bar is located on College St. It is a bar that has been in operation for many years. The bar is known for its friendly atmosphere and music. It is a popular spot for students to hang out and enjoy a drink. The City Bar is open from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 4 p.m. to 3 a.m. on Friday.

The Tavern

The Tavern is located on University Ave. It is a more casual bar that is popular with students. It is open from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 4 p.m. to 3 a.m. on Friday.

ATM stands for fast cash

By James Cohery
The Daily towns
For most UI students, Iowa City offers a unique system of financial transactions, ranging from the popular and necessary forms used by students at the UI to the less common, yet still used, form of banking.

Student Union Bank has a branch located in the union, and students also use the automatic teller machines located throughout the university. Student Union Bank offers a wide variety of financial transactions, ranging from checking, savings, and loans to credit cards.

Another problem with using ATMs is the mechanical breakdown or cash shortages which sometimes occur. These problems can be resolved by contacting the bank's local office or the bank's automated teller machine.

The teller machines are also used to process checks, but they are not as convenient as the teller machines located in the union. The teller machine is also the most convenient form of banking.

The automatic teller card is a unique in the nation in that it is the only one that allows you to access your account in a variety of ways. The card is inserted into the machine, and you are able to withdraw cash or check the balance of your account.

Students find UI, Iowa City parking chaotic

By Dave Kanig
The Daily Iowan

Parking at the UI can be summed up with one very simple word—chaos.

Parking spaces are difficult if not impossible to find on most days. Even if you do find a parking space, it could be subject to change at any time, according to UI officials.

In addition, Finkbine will provide 840 new storage meter parking lots for no extra charge. These enable students to store their vehicles at home when they attend school. Parking at the UI can be summed up with one very simple word—chaos.

Students are doing our best to establish temporary parking near these facilities," Gritsch said. Parking at the UI has already increased since the previous used for storage, into 300 meter lots for "A" and "B" permits.

In addition, the Union Field will be transformed into temporary meter parking and a multi-faced parking area will be built on University Street. Field House parking has been shifted west for temporary guest parking.

Concrete will find parking spaces, as well as temporary permits in the UI about $5 a month. Students will be able to park in the 3,710 designated spots on campus for $5, "A" permits.

A new lot being developed near Finkbine Golf course will also provide 300 new meter spaces. In addition, Finkbine will provide 300 new storage meters to account for the loss of the Harrison lot to meter parking. Finkbine will accessible by a regular ramp for no extra charge. These enable students to store their vehicles at home when they attend school.

Bionic Buses, SEATS help transport UI, city disabled

By Hayley Crenaton
The Daily Iowan

Disabled students recounted how they will travel around in Iowa City will be glad to hear from the offshoot of the UI Transportation system. Eligible riders enjoy a new, modified form of transportation within the Iowa City and Coralville area.

Another form of special transportation in Iowa City is the Special Employment Assistance Transportation System (SEATS), operated by Johnson County, which is primarily used by non-students although students can use it as well. "We serve residents of Johnson County who are over 60 years of age and either disabled or pregnant that have some type of physical or mental disability that prevents them from riding other transit systems," SEATS Director Larry Olsen said.

SEATS runs from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and at noon until 2 p.m. on weekends. The service requires a 60 minute ride rate. Last year, the program provided 3,056 single-ride trips, 1,716 multi-rides throughout Johnson County, Olsen said. For information on scheduled rides and to request a ride, call SEATS at 356-2219.

Students offered a variety of choices for transportation

By Sara Armstrong

The Daily Iowan

So you're new to Iowa City and the college scene. And maybe heading it several times doesn't appeal to you. But you also don't own a vehicle, so you don't see any other option. Fortunately for you, however, Iowa City offers a variety of transportation options.

The Iowa City transit system offers one such option. A trip on the system, in Iowa City, can cost only 25 cents. Students who make more than a longer trip after buses stop on the west side of the river, such as Econofoods, ant Ridge and Lakeside. Iowa monthly pass for $18.

Students who make more than offers one such option. A ride on an occasional use of the system may also be a good way to get around town doesn't appeal to you. The system makes stops in the downtown area and at such points as Carver haall, as well as at UI residence halls from the downtown area on Friday and Saturday nights from 9 p.m. until 6 a.m. The program runs one regular, longer Cambus to residence halls from the downtown area on Friday and Saturdays from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m.

In addition, the system runs at 11 different routes, including the Blue and Red lines, which run to popular places like The Downtown Mall and Old Capitol. The system runs at 11 different routes, including the Blue and Red lines, which run to popular places like The Downtown Mall and Old Capitol.

Cambus stops at the following locations: Main Library, University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, Carver Hall, and the HAWKEYE ROUTE. Cambus usually makes a 10-minute stop at every half-hour depending on the time and the day of the week. Typically, it runs from the downtown area on Friday and Saturdays from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m.

Amy Van Zandbergen says she's ready to leave the University of Iowa and enter the real world. "I'm bored with school," she says. "I'm ready to break out of the mold of the university student and be who I am." She plans to take a gap year before going to college again.

"I'm really excited to see what happens," she says. "I'm going to enjoy the freedom of not being tied down by classes and homework." She plans to travel to Europe and Asia before going back to Iowa to finish her degree in psychology.

At the moment, she's not sure what she wants to major in, but she's open to anything. "I'm interested in everything," she says. "I want to experience as much as possible." She's looking forward to the new opportunities that will come with being in a new environment.

"I'm really looking forward to meeting new people and making new friends," she says. "I want to be surrounded by people who are different from me and who can challenge me." She's excited to see how she will grow and change over the course of the year.

"I'm really looking forward to the adventure," she says. "I want to see the world and learn as much as possible." She's excited to see what will happen next and to see where her path will lead.

Internships let students get a jump on careers

By Deborah GluM
The Daily Iowan

Tired of doing summer jobs that don't utilize the variety of skills and knowledge you've accrued? Do you want more meaningful work with more responsibility? Then look to the University of Iowa for the opportunity to be paid to do research. Now that you're a UI student, you may well have an internship opportunity through our many employers.

The University Internship Program, as the UI's main internship clearinghouse, offers listings from more than 500 employers throughout the country the length of the academic year, yet only 10 percent have open positions.

Students interested in the career-oriented education programs must meet certain criteria requirements, which typically include a 3.0 grade-point average, 100 credits completed - to apply for an internship.

Working as an intern helps students have a career or specific company first hand, and offers them an insight into a future working environment.

He said the experience helped him develop his career goals, which weren't clear until after the internship. "It will help me filter out jobs and internships at one position but not another," Nicholson said.

"You go away more into a general knowledge that might be helpful in later years," Nicholson said.

"I think it gives me a more realistic amount of what you would expect to earn that job after school," Nicholson said.

Another junior, UI junior Beth Nicholson, said that after completing her internship, she now felt more comfortable with a future biological engineering career.

"I think it gives me a more realistic amount of what you would expect to earn that job after school," Nicholson said.

Greek system offers chance for friends, fun

By Jay Cline
The Daily Iowan

For many UI students, the week before classes begins means having to make a decision that could affect their entire college experience.

On Monday, Aug. 22, more than 1,400 students and their friends and families will participate in the UI Greek系统的 Formal Rush.

UI Office of Campus Programs and Student Services Coordinator Mary Flemming said joining the Greek system is an excellent opportunity to meet new people, learn more about the UI, and get involved with community service events.

"It’s a very good introduction to being Greek and that is something that lasts for a lifetime," Flemming said. "We are involved in everything from fraternity and sorority and your university."

UI Panhellenic Council Rush Director Sheila Fleming and the UI’s Formal Rush will begin with a house meeting for freshmen on Friday, Aug. 21, with rush parties beginning Tuesday for both men and women.

After a week of house tours and preference parties, the houses and rushers will make their final decisions. Preference will start Monday, Aug. 28, and sororities will give out final bids.

Fleming said participating in final rush can be an opportunity to get more involved on campus.

"It’s a very good introduction to the university and to the Greek system," Fleming said. "You get to meet a wide variety of people in a very short time, and you have the opportunity to get more involved."

Fleming said other students who are already involved with the UI Greek system say formal rush and final rush are an opportunity to get more involved with the community from formal rush.

For sophomores and other students who are already involved with the UI Greek system, Fleming said formal rush is an easy way to get through rush week can be long and tiresome, her advice is to have fun and to keep an open mind about all of the UI’s chapters.

Information about students’ ideal rush programs is generally advertised in The Daily Iowan or can be obtained by your individual chapters.

Preparation, research can make the 'nightmare' a success

By Debya Johnson

You thank out in a small room as you groggy wake from one of the UI Registration Center\'s annual "registration form" drills. As you fumble around trying to shake off the sleep, you realize you\'re not alone. Despite the late hour, there\'s a buzz of activity as students register for classes.

"I feel like it\'s the middle of the night,\" says UI student Andrew Johnson, who\'s been up since 3 a.m. preparing for the day. "But I\'m excited to get started."\n
Johnson\'s not alone. Many students are up early to register for classes, despite the early hour.\n
Research and preparation can make the registration process less stressful. Here are some tips on how to make the most of your registration experience:

1. Plan ahead: Start planning your classes in advance. Use the UI•\'s course catalog and your academic advisor\'s recommendations to choose classes that fit your needs.
2. Prepare your registration form: Make sure you have all the necessary information before you start the registration process. This includes your student ID number, classes you\'ve already taken, and any special permissions you need.
3. Register early: The earlier you register, the more options you\'ll have. Many popular classes fill up quickly, so it\'s important to get in early.
4. Use online registration: Many universities offer online registration, which can make the process faster and easier. Make sure you know how to use the system and have all the necessary information handy.
5. Know your deadlines: Make sure you understand the registration deadlines for your university. Some universities have different deadlines for different types of classes.

By following these tips, you can make the registration process less stressful and more successful. And don\'t forget to have fun! It\'s just the beginning of a new academic year, and there\'s a lot to look forward to.

For example, a person who is caught by police violating in public is charged with a violation for public incivility and public nuisance. Assuming the person is inclined enough to sign the citation, the person can avoid jail and appear in court at a later date. However, if the person does not sign the citation, however, the person would probably make an appearance in the Johnson County Jail, located at 311 E. Capitol St., for a period of up to four hours. There is simply no bond set for public incivility or public nuisance offenses because it is assumed that the person is inclined enough to sign the citation. The person may be released on personal recognizance. However, with any citation related to alcohol, the accused is automatically tried on such an offense. If the person becomes physically or verbally threatening or disturbs the peace or is giving a citation, he or she should be prepared to suffer the loss of other citizens for offenses with official acts.
