Drug-related night bombings rock Colombian town of Cali

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Three bombs exploded Sunday in the drug-infested city of Cali, killing a security guard, and a newspaper that has crusaded against Colombia's cocaine barons said one of its reporters was slain by thugs.

Meanwhile, a top presidential contender reportedly urged that no more drug traffickers be extradited to the United States.

The bombings in Cali occurred shortly after midnight at two banks and a shopping center, said Col. Roza Julio Navarro, chief of the national police force in Cali.

The city of 1 million people about 185 miles southwest of Bogota is the headquarters for one of Colombia's two cocaine cartels. The other is in the northwest city of Medellin.

Navarro told Colombian radio the bomb at the shopping center killed a guard. He said another bomb was found at a bank and deactivated.

Cali, Bogota, and Medellin have been the sites of frequent shootings and bombings since August 18, when the government went to war with the nation's powerful drug traffickers.

A total of 42 blasts have killed four people and injured 115.

The war began after the assassination of Luis Carlos Galan, a senator who was seeking the presidential nomination of the governing Liberal Party and had pushed for forceful action against drug traffickers.

Under emergency measures imposed since August 18, President Virgilio Barco has resumed extraditions to the United States of suspected drug traffickers.

The Liberal Party's current leading candidate, Alberto Santofimio Botero, reportedly called for an end to the extraditions during a speech Saturday in the town of Ibague.

"I do not support giving up Colombians to be tried under someone else's roof," he was quoted as saying. Excerpts from the speech were published in a dozen Colombian newspapers Sunday.

So far one person has been extradited to the United States, and authorities have said extradition proceedings are under way against two others.

As the violence continues, newspapers have begun calling for the government to negotiate with the drug traffickers.

E. German authorities are seizing refugee passports

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — East German and Czechoslovak authorities have begun seizing passports to stop the flood of refugees fleeing to the West, East German emigrés said Sunday.

Hungary's foreign minister, meanwhile, defended his country's decision to aid the immigrant exodus and said the Warsaw Pact should stick to military defense and not dictate ideology or foreign policy to its members.

In West Germany, officials said they registered 1,400 new East German refugees during the weekend, bringing to more than 16,000 the number of East Germans who have arrived since Hungary threw open its borders to the West one week ago.

East German officials have said they would not crack down on visas for citizens wishing to visit Hungary. But refugees and charity workers at camps in Hungary said travel documents were in fact being seized.

"More and more people are telling us that their visas are being taken from them," said Wolfgang Wagner, head of the West German Maltese Aid Service. "Some have told me that state security had come to their apartments to take the visas."

Others were forced off East German and Czechoslovak trains and returned home, Wagner said in an interview. A growing number were forced to swim the Danube "or find other illegal means of coming here," he said.

Going through Czechoslovakia, between East Germany and Hungary, is the most direct route for East Germans seeking to take advantage of Hungary's open western border.

A 25-year-old man from East Berlin said he and 15 others entered Hungary Saturday on foot after crowding into three cars and crashing through several Czechoslovak border barriers at the Rajka crossing, about 85 miles northwest of Budapest.

He said police in Bratislava took away their travel documents, and at one point they were held at submachine-gun point until they pledged they would not head toward the Hungarian border.

Hungary's role in the refugee affair has been condemned by hard-line Warsaw Pact allies. A senior Communist foreign policy adviser here

Nixon tried to organize 1980 rescue of hostages from Iran

LONDON (AP) — A newspaper reported Sunday that former President Richard Nixon tried to organize a mission to rescue 52 American hostages in Iran in 1980 shortly after President Jimmy Carter's attempt failed.

However, the Sunday Telegraph's report said it was not clear if Nixon intended to launch an independent mission or an official one that would be carried out under the presidency of Ronald Reagan.

In any event, the newspaper said the idea was dropped in October 1980 when Iran announced that the hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran would be released after the inauguration of a new president.

The weekly newspaper said Nixon held secret talks with British helicopter pilots and ex-servicemen only three months after the first attempted rescue in April 1980.

He met the chairman of Bristow Helicopters, Alan Bristow, and several former members of the Special Air Service, according to the newspaper. The SAS is Britain's elite military assault force.

Richard Nixon

"Nixon was absolutely serious," the newspaper quoted Bristow as saying. "We had a long and detailed discussion about the chances of success of a second strike. I told him it could be done, but the strike force would suffer at least 30 percent casualties."

A rescue attempt authorized by Carter ended in disaster April 25, 1980, when a helicopter collided with a tanker aircraft in an Iranian desert, killing eight servicemen.

The Sunday Telegraph quoted unidentified security sources as saying the second mission was conceived by the Republican Party because it feared its presidential candidate, Reagan, might inherit the hostage crisis if he won the election.

The American hostages were freed in January 1981 after 444 days in captivity.

The British account reported a Nixon aide said, "We will neither confirm nor deny this story. We have nothing to say." It did not identify the aide.

The newspaper said Nixon's plan was inspired by the SAS assault on gunmen holding hostages at the Iranian Embassy in London on May 5, 1980. Four of the five gunmen were killed in the operation, which succeeded in freeing the hostages.

Wheelroom tappers will 'flow freely'

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

A shortage of student-employees has prevented Union officials from opening the Wheelroom Bar for the first weeks of the fall semester, but the tappers will stream forth freely when the Wheelroom Bar re-opens today.

The Wheelroom Bar's aluminum rolodex window has been shut and locked through the summer, but the recent hiring of about six employees will allow it to open today, Sondra Smith, Union Food Service assistant manager, said.

The bar — which regularly employs a staff of six and is open from noon to 10:30 p.m. — closes during the summer months when an absence of students means a shortage of business. An employee shortage at the beginning of this semester's classes, however, prevented the bar from reopening in time for the fall semester, Smith said.

"It was closed for the summer just because it was summer," she said. "Now we're getting it ready for the fall semester, and it will open Monday."

Cynthia Seyfer, assistant director of UI Student Employment, said there is rarely a shortage of students for on-campus jobs.

"I've had employers from other places calling to see if there are students available to fill their job openings," she said. "Part of the reason some employers are still looking for employees is because at the start of the fall semester it takes awhile for these positions to get filled."

New Iowa City magazine to make debut this month

Andy Brownstein
The Daily Iowan

Just about anyone in the publishing industry would call the notion of creating a magazine based on the life and culture of an Iowa college town impossible, if not absurd.

Yet, seemingly defying the odds and all media logic, Iowa City Magazine will be hitting area newsstands this Wednesday, boasting an impressive list of local talent and celebrities.

Billed as "the best new magazine in America," the premier issue features an exclusive interview with and cover art by Berke Breathed, of late Bloom County fame; commentary by Duck's Breath Mystery Theatre's Ian Sholes; fiction by novelist Bruce Brooks; restaurant reviews by Mimi Gormezano, founder of the nationally renowned Chez Mimi cooking school; and photography by "A Sense of Place" photographer David Plowden.

Subsequent issues sport features on Tennessee Williams, NBC anchor Tom Brokaw, UI physicist James Van Allen and a new baseball story by "Shoeless Joe" author W.P. Kinsella.

The magazine is the brainchild of Chris Green, who, along with partner and art director Ron McClellen, financed 80 percent of the magazine's production costs.

Though the idea initially faced opposition from skeptics in the industry, the finished product now has big-name advertisers, including Lee Jeans and national hotels and airlines.

That, along with the assemblage of talent and design, makes Green very confident about the magazine's place among the nation's best.

"Right now, everything suggests that there's clear sailing to be the best magazine," Green said. "From our perspective — biased as it is — we're in those ranks. You pull out the best area and regional magazines in the country, and we'd be there too."

Green and McClellen have been studying area and local magazines around the country for the past six years. Through local outlets like Mott's and Prairie Lights bookstore, they have culled out what works with these formats, what doesn't, and avenues yet to be explored.

"Some of the city magazines tend to have a formula for that magazine, and every issue looks pretty much alike," McClellen said. "What we hope to do is essentially custom design each magazine, so that you can expect us to push some of the limits as to what

UI students discuss experiences abroad

Margot Kruppner
The Daily Iowan

Studying abroad means learning to appreciate what it means to be human, according to Steve Arum, UI Office of International Education and Services director.

Fifteen UI students who studied abroad last year met Thursday night at the International Center to share insights from their travels.

The meeting, entitled "Re-entry Reunion," involved a discussion between the students and several OIES staff members.

"You have had an experience which has made you a different person," said discussion leader Gary Althen.

The meeting focused not only on the students' overseas adventures, but on the psychological aspects of returning from an international experience.

The students discussed numerous symptoms of readjusting to American lifestyle, including varying levels of frustration at the lack of interest in their travels as well as differing reactions to American culture.

"I used to think that America was the only way there was," commented one student who had studied in England. "I've realized that America isn't the only way."

Courtney vies for District B council

Tonya Felt
The Daily Iowan

Darrel Courtney, incumbent Iowa City councilor, announced Tuesday he will be vying for the District B council seat in in the November city council elections.

Courtney said many of the economic goals he set in his 1985 council platform have been accomplished, including an expansion of Iowa City's tax base.

"Many of the projects which I thought were desperately overdue have been completed or are well under way," Courtney said. "This tax base expansion will remain a priority the next four years. A larger tax base reduces the percentage increases of the property tax."

In addition to further economic development, Courtney said if he were re-elected, he would encourage an expansion of the education efforts in the schools to increase drug awareness and to halt the growth of illegal drug use in Iowa City.

He said a continued viable transit system in Iowa City as well as continued downtown development would also be his top priorities through the next four years.

Council projects Courtney deemed important during the last four years were: New Iowa City swimming facilities, the sanitary sewer project, a new animal control facility, expansion of the police and fire department facilities, and the public safety-school liaison program started through the police department.

Chinese locomotive steams into Boone

Engine will run in 1990 season

DES MOINES (AP)—The long-awaited Chinese steam locomotive will arrive in Boone, Iowa, next month, but directors of a tourist railroad will probably keep it under wraps until a grand opening run next spring.

"It's going to be very tempting to fire it up," said Mel Hanson, a director for the Boone and Scenic Valley Railroad. "We'll be just like a kid with a new electric train at Christmas."

But he said Saturday the railroad will probably put the huge engine in a shed for the winter, awaiting the arrival of Chinese mechanics to show Boone officials correct operating procedures.

He said the tourist railroad is scheduled to end its regular season October 28 and that it doesn't make sense to introduce the new steamer in the closing weeks.

The Scenic Valley tour takes passengers on a 15-mile round trip west of Boone, with the trademark of the ride being a 150-foot tall bridge over the Des Moines River valley. Some 45,000 to 50,000 passengers will take the ride this year, a 20-percent boost over last year, and Hanson said the new steamer will probably improve attendance by another 20 percent next year.

"I'd like to be a braggart and say it will double, but I tend to be a conservative person," Hanson said.

"Our phone is ringing off the wall: 'When is the locomotive coming? When is the locomotive coming?' We can't help but think this will be one of the biggest attractions in the Midwest," Hanson said.

Hanson, who first approached the Chinese about buying the engine in May 1988, said the tourist railroad has been told that the 104-ton engine will arrive in Los Angeles on October 9.

"They told us it takes 30 to 35 days to get here over the Pacific, so it's got to be on the way," he said. "I imagine it stops at several ports on that side of the ocean and then again over here before it gets to Los Angeles."

He said the engine will be put on a flat car and shipped by rail to the Midwest, perhaps to arrive 10 days after arrival in Los Angeles.

Hanson said the engine, the last to be built at the Datong Locomotive Works in Datong, is not the last one to be produced in China.

"We were led to believe that, but we've had to revise that," he said. Smaller engines are still being made at a different factory, and two of them have been sold to other tourist railroads in the United States, he said.

Hanson said railroad directors have worried that tourists might not want to see an engine built in a country whose leaders slaughtered students in Tiananmen Square last summer.

"We've wondered, 'Are we doing the right thing?'" he said. "We're trying to keep politics out of it, but you can't help but feel for those people. The whole world was looking forward" to a change in China similar to pro-democracy changes in Poland and the Soviet Union, Hanson said.

But he said rail fans and non-rail fans alike have told him they won't take the Boone and Scenic Valley to task for the actions of Chinese leaders.

"I'm excited," Hanson said. "It's like taking an idea from a wild possibility into a dream come true."

The engine cost $355,000, with part of the money coming from a state development loan.

Courts

An Iowa City man driving a Rocky Rocco delivery truck was charged with eluding a pursuing police car, according to the Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Joshua R. Bannow, 18, 76 Forrest View Trailer Court, allegedly led police on a 65-mph chase through residential streets.

He allegedly told police he tried to escape because he was afraid he would lose his driver's license if caught, according to court records.

The police department received several reports of the same vehicle driving recklessly and running stop signs in the area of Washington Street and Mount Vernon Drive, according to court records.

Around midnight, an Iowa City police officer allegedly saw the truck run a stop sign at the corner of Burlington and Governor Streets and then accelerate rapidly, according to court records.

Bannow was apprehended on Lucas Street, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for October 4, according to court records.

• A Des Moines man was charged with carrying a concealed weapon

Thursday after police found a knife in his right sock, according to Johnson County District court records.

The defendant, Hershel J. Sims, 917 51st St., Des Moines, was under arrest for public intoxication when police allegedly found the knife, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for October 4, according to court records.

Good T.A.s eligible for a $1,000 award

Nominations now accepted

Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

With a little effort, UI students can help a teaching assistant who struggles as an especially talented instructor receive a $1,000 award.

Nominations are now being accepted for the third annual award for teaching assistants. Fifty-five awards of $1,000 each will be distributed to teaching assistants who have demonstrated outstanding ability at the UI during the spring, fall, or summer semesters of 1989.

"The awards represent a concern that in the past teaching assistants and teachers were not being recognized for teaching as readily as they ought to be." — Frederick Woodard, UI associate dean of academic affairs

"The awards represent a concern that, in the past, teaching assistants and teachers were not being recognized for teaching as readily as they ought to be," said Frederick Woodard, UI associate dean of academic affairs.

The Iowa State Legislature renewed the teaching allocation for the third consecutive year, he added. The Council of Teaching will announce the winners by November and forward the names to the state Legislature and state Board of Regents.

"I think this is another fine example of how the state of Iowa considers teaching to be a profession that needs recognition," Woodard said.

Last year outstanding teaching award winners were recognized at a reception, and their names and pictures were unveiled as part of a display in the UI Main Library.

Similar plans are under way to recognize the new teaching assistant award winners, perhaps this spring.

"We certainly want to provide the teaching assistants as much recognition as we can," Woodard said.

Nomination forms and criteria are available from the Council of Teaching, 114 Jessup Hall or Health Center Information and Communication, 283 Med Labs. Completed proposals are due Monday, October 16.

Nominations may be initiated by faculty, students or colleagues, departmental officers, or deans. The nomination must also include a statement of support from the candidate's faculty supervisor and the departmental executive officer and statements of support from students.

Teaching assistants from all academic units may be suggested for these awards. Teaching assistants must have had teaching contact during the 1989 academic year to be considered for an award.

The renewed, $55,000 award came as a pleasant, if not unexpected, surprise, said Robert Woolson, chair of the UI Council on Teaching.

Woolson served on the outstanding teaching assistant selection subcommittee last year.

"We had so many people who were nominated last year or who would call and say how happy they were teaching assistants were being recognized, because they really do so much for the UI," Woolson said.

Smoke at Old Capitol caused by bird's nest

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

An emergency fire call to the Iowa City Fire Department Friday afternoon prompted a two-hour search for the source of smoke — a bird's nest.

About 2:30 p.m. Friday, four fire department vehicles surrounded the Pentacrest, temporarily redirecting both student and automobile traffic from around the scene.

Wayne Fjelstad, Iowa City Fire Department battalion chief, said firemen "smelled smoke of sort, but couldn't pinpoint its origin."

The arrival of the the fire department's two vehicles on the lawn of the Pentacrest momentarily distracted onlookers and passers-by, but traffic resumed its previous course and the firefighters settled in for a two-hour search of the building.

After a floor-to-floor search, firefighters discovered the source of the smoke — a smoldering bird's nest under the eave of the building. The nest had been built inside a light fixture outside the building's parapet and had ignited from the heat of a 300-watt light bulb, Fjelstad said.

An air-return vent in the attic had apparently drawn the smoke inside the Old Capitol building, causing a light haze.

Larry Donner, Iowa City Fire Department chief, said the department's main concern when investigating potential fires is to inspect all possible sources, but the Old Capitol's historic significance demanded meticulous precaution.

Three other nests were removed from under light fixtures during the search, firefighter Leslie Schaapveld said.

"You don't take any chances with a building of that size," Schaapveld said. "They (the nests) could have turned into a problem."

UI Parents' Weekend: 'great time'

Jennifer Glynn
The Daily Iowan

Last weekend's Parents' Weekend 1989 brought parents and students together for a time and helped parents understand college experiences, said Barb Standish, UI Alumni Association assistant director.

"It was a good experience for them, and all their efforts paid off," she said.

The UI Student Alumni Association planned the event.

One UI freshman said her parents visited the UI campus for the first time last weekend.

"My parents had never been to Iowa City before this parents' weekend, and they had a great time," she said. "They really felt welcome."

Both students and parents had a good time at a hypnotist show in the Union Saturday evening. The hypnotist made about ten students and parents act like rock star Jon Bon Jovi, Standish said.

"It provided a nice alternative to the bar scene, and it was absolutely hysterical," Standish said.

Over 1,000 people showed up Saturday for the tailgater with Herky the Hawk, the UI cheerleaders, the UI pep band and 1989's Mom and Dad of the year.

Other activities were arranged for parents who weren't football fans, said Neal Brower, a UI Student Alumni Association member who helped plan this parents' weekend.

Parents could take expeditions to the Hoover Presidential Library in West Branch, to Kalona, and to the Amana Colonies.

"We began planning Parents' Weekend 1989 last fall, almost immediately after coordinating our first-ever Parents' Weekend," Melissa Riach, two-time parents' weekend co-chairperson, said.

More than 15 events were planned for parents and students throughout the three-day event.

Prevention Measures Against Sexual Assault

It's the beginning of a new semester, a new academic year. Many of us are in a new environment, experiencing new freedoms, meeting new people, and holding new responsibilities. Over the years, the RAPE VICTIM ADVOCACY PROGRAM has been able to foresee certain times of the year when Iowa City faces a "high risk" season for sexual assault incidents. The fall months are considered to be one of these particularly dangerous times for women. Because we want all women to be able to fully enjoy this time of the year, the following questions can help you consider your own personal safety:

*How vulnerable are you to sexual assault? Are you aware that 50% of all reported rapes occur in the victim's home or in some type of residence?

*Are you aware that it has been estimated that 70% of attackers are known to their victims?

*Are you aware that attackers do use a selection process and are more apt to choose women as their victims whom they perceive to be vulnerable and/or unable to defend themselves?

*Are you aware that not all rapes can be prevented, and that submitting to the assault to get out alive is a viable form of self-defense?

*Are you aware that there are many things that you can do to protect yourself?

DAILY THROUGHOUT THIS WEEK THERE WILL BE A LIST OF SELF-PROTECTION MEASURES AGAINST SEXUAL ASSAULT. Clip and save them for your own information.

"I use the Macintosh computer for graphic design and class projects. It not only makes the mechanical work go a lot faster, but the endless graphics possibilities trigger fresh, new ideas. The creative opportunities are unlimited. I definitely think the Macintosh is a great investment for any design department."

The Macintosh is like an efficiency tool that you can use for any subject. I've used the Macintosh for about one year. With a few simple explanations it was easy to pick up. The Macintosh is very friendly and you can become very comfortable using it. The Macintosh features make it almost self-explanatory!"

Bingo, 'graybeard gambling', gaining popularity in Iowa

DES MOINES (AP) — Lotteries offer breathtaking prizes and dog and horse tracks have plenty of action, but bingo — the graybeard of legal gambling in Iowa — keeps rolling along.

"Bingo has longstanding acceptability," said Joe Hrabka, an Iowa State University sociologist who has made a study of gambling in Iowa.

"It's a social thing. People do it for more than winning money. If I were to play bingo, I would be there because other people are there chatting and there are other things that go on."

Amid the chatting and other distractions, Iowa bingo players wagered a record $45.2 million dollars in the fiscal year that ended June 30. The previous record was $42.1 million two years earlier. The amount does not include the two high-stakes games operated by Indians who do not have to follow state rules or report their finances.

Don Mendenhall, gaming manager for the Department of Inspections and Appeals, said the game has developed an unshakable following.

"Some people really get into it like some people get totally into horse racing and dog racing," he said.

Although traditionally a game for the older set, bingo games are now drawing a younger clientele, according to Susan Rood, who directs the Emerald Knights Drum and Bugle Corps bingo parlor in Cedar Rapids.

"We are seeing younger people, and we think it may be because it's relatively inexpensive to play," she said.

"It's usually not an expensive night out when compared to going out to have dinner and having drinks," Hrabka said.

There are 1,300 state bingo licenses but only about 600 are active. Many are held by church and civic groups.

Iowa government seems adrift

Bush's 'The Vision Thing' runs short, leaving leaders at a loss

DES MOINES (AP) — It's easy to detect a sense of drift around Iowa state government and politics these days.

For a variety of reasons, what President George Bush once called "the vision thing" seems to be in short supply. Collectively, Iowa's political leaders don't seem to know where they are headed.

There's an endless supply of committees, commissions, panels, task forces and study groups all working on "futures agendas" to chart a new course.

So far they've rehearsed a bunch of issues that have been debated before. State government grinds along on its own.

Part of the reason is where we are on Iowa's political calendar, and part has to do with the headless condition of many of Iowa's political institutions.

Almost all of the leadership posts in the Legislature are either vacant, about to change hands or are in question. There are no firm hands at the tiller among either Republicans or Democrats.

To a remarkable extent, direction in the Legislature has been in the hands of Republican Gov. Terry Branstad and Democratic House Speaker Don Avenson. With Avenson focusing on his ambition to be governor and looking forward to his last session, it is not clear what group or groups will take charge.

In the Senate, Majority Leader Bill Hutchins won his job by a single vote and has struggled to hold together a coalition. Challenges already are in the works.

The Legislature itself will undergo significant changes after next year's reapportionment, and there is little stomach for new initiatives.

There's a changing of the guard at the Iowa Democratic Party, and a relatively new team in place at the Iowa Republican Party. No one is sure where the parties are headed. One suspects they are looking for some direction.

Political campaigns ordinarily define policy. But this is the wrong phase of the moon for that to happen.

Branstad is deep into polling and focus groups and issue definition for his re-election bid next year. Until he settles on a strategy, he will take modest half steps along the same path he's already trod.

The Democratic candidates for governor are watching each other, trying to raise money for the primary and testing the political waters across the state. They aren't ready to provide a cohesive vision about where they would like to take the state.

The other major election is the

For a variety of reasons, what George Bush once called "the vision thing" seems to be in short supply. Collectively, Iowa's political leaders don't seem to know where they are headed.

fight between incumbent Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin and Republican challenger Rep. Tom Tauke. That election will be more about national Republican and Democratic congressional election strategies than about Iowa's future.

Once again, Iowa will become something of a political laboratory for the nation.

Taken independently, there's nothing unusual about the situations. A leadership squabble in the Senate certainly isn't unusual, for instance.

Collectively the leadership gaps have temporarily frozen the state in its tracks. Political leaders are pausing to take a deep breath and figure out their next move.

It would be easy to figure out where the state is headed if the changes are generational or philosophical. But they aren't.

The root cause of most of the uncertainty can be traced back to voters.

If a demand for change exists among the electorate, Iowa's political leaders have been unable to sense what that would be or how they should respond.

Indeed, voters have shuffled the deck in state government in a most bewildering fashion and seem quite content with the results. They have given the governor's office to the GOP and appear prepared to leave it there. They've routinely allowed Democrats to dominate the Legislature and split their ballots among the other statewide offices.

Despite the rhetoric from both sides there are really very few indications of major change.

That's not a mix likely to spur bold new directions. Maybe that's precisely the message that was intended.

Candidates who offer a significant challenge to the status quo might find themselves out of luck this year. New ideas can wait until the political picture clears.

3 weekend traffic fatalities reported

At least three people died on Iowa roadways over the weekend, including a Keystone man who survived a one-car wreck only to be struck by another car after he crawled back to the road.

Benton County sheriff's deputies said Jamie Curtis Blanchard, 19, of Keystone, was a passenger in a car driven by Jeffrey Gray, 17, also of Keystone, when Gray lost control of his car on a county road near Keystone early Saturday morning.

In another accident, a 64-year-old Waterloo woman died after she ran into the path of a car on Interstate 380 near Center Point Saturday night. Linn County authorities said Marion Byrd was dead at the scene when she was struck by a car driven by Ethan M. Hanna, 18, of Palmyra, Ind.

And in a third wreck, a Muscatine man died and his passenger was seriously injured when a pickup truck went out of control and smashed into a tree and house in Atalissa early Sunday. Muscatine County sheriff's authorities said Norman Hahn, 43, died at the scene.

'Lone Tree' reveals murder actions

The Associated Press

Dale Burr, the Lone Tree farmer who went on a killing spree and drew national attention to the farm crisis four years ago, thought that losing his farm was a far greater crime than murder, according to a book on the slayings.

The book also reveals that Burr's bank had threatened to foreclose his farm. After the shootings, bank officials said they had no plans to foreclose.

"If Dale were alive, he undoubtedly would have been interested to hear that the Hills Bank had planned to continue financing him," said Bruce Brown in his book, "Lone Tree — A True Story of Murder in America's Heartland."

The book, published by Crown Publishers Inc. this month, declares that Burr felt pushed to the edge by financial problems, specifically a series of warnings from the bank that it would foreclose on a farm he had inherited.

"In Dale's mind, there was no excuse for failing this fundamental responsibility," Brown wrote. "It was a shame that made murder pale by comparison."

On the morning of Dec. 9, 1985, Burr killed his wife, Emily, with a shotgun at the couple's rural Lone Tree farm. He then went to Hills, where he killed John Hughes, president of Hills Bank and Trust Co. From there, Burr drove to a Lone Tree area farm operated by Richard Goody, a rival in a land dispute, and killed Goody. He then drove to a spot along side a gravel road and killed himself.

Brown, a resident of Washington state, has written one other book, "Mountain in the Clouds," an ecological study of Pacific running salmon. But he said he felt a kinship to the victims in the Iowa case.

"Early on, anyway, I had this feeling about the people, the victims of this tragedy: Dale Burr, Emily Burr, John Hughes and Richard Goody. They were all, in their own ways, good people. They were the kind of people who made their community stronger, a better place," the author said.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF Awards for Teaching Assistants

SEPTEMBER 1989

The University of Iowa Council on Teaching announces the third annual award for teaching assistants, The Outstanding Teaching Assistant Award, and invites nominations for 1989. This fall the Council will administer 55 awards of $1000 each, along with a certificate, to Teaching Assistants who have demonstrated outstanding ability as teachers at The University of Iowa.

Teaching Assistants from all academic units may be nominated for these awards. Because of the wide diversity of teaching activities in which the Teaching Assistants engage across the University, nominees need certify only that nominees have formal student contact during the 1989 calendar (Spring, Summer, Fall semesters 1989) year as part of their duties. Recipients of the 1988-89 award may not be nominated this year, however, recipients from 1987-88 may be nominated.

Nominations may be initiated by students, faculty, colleagues, departmental executive officers, or deans. The nomination must include a statement of support from the candidate's faculty supervisor and the departmental executive officer as well as statements of support from students.

Nomination forms and criteria are available from the Council on Teaching (114 Jessup Hall) and must be received in that office by Monday, October 16, at 5:00 p.m. Nomination forms are also available from Health Center Information and Communication, 283 Med Labs. Awards will be announced by November 17. Please contact Belinda Marner (335-0048) or any member of the Council on Teaching for further information.

country's leading daily, El Tiempo, suggested Saturday the government should use extradition as a bargaining chip in negotiations and warned that the war could become "a little Vietnam."

In another Bogota daily, La Republica, columnist Francisco Morales Casas wrote, "We should not continue with this war and should turn to dialogue."

Perhaps the most important Colombian favoring negotiation with the drug traffickers is Juan Gomez Martinez, mayor of Medellin and one of the owners of Medellin's leading daily, El Colombiano. He favors negotiations.

El Espectador, however, has remained firmly opposed to such moves despite the murder of its editor, Guillermo Cano, three years ago.

The newspaper reported Sunday that its reporter in Buenaventura, Guillermo Gomez Murillo, was shot to death by three men who barged into his house Saturday night. It said there was no way of telling if the murder was the work of drug traffickers.

El Espectador's editor was slain by drug traffickers in 1986, and the newspaper was heavily damaged September 2 in a car bomb attack.

Refugees

spoke of Soviet anxiety.

"It's a fact that there is noticeable worry on the part of the Soviet Union," Gula Thuermer was quoted as saying in the Vasarnapi Hinek newspaper. "They are worried that Hungarian events will become incalculable, and they are also disturbed that there are open disagreements among their allies."

The Soviets have criticized West Germany but have refrained from directly accusing Hungary of wrongdoing. But Czechoslovakia and Romania, distrustful of Hungary's plans to hold free elections in June and other reforms, have joined East Germany in condemning Hungary.

Hungary, however, is seeking stronger economic ties with the West and has embraced social and political reform.

Gyula Horn, Hungarian Foreign Minister, said the Warsaw Pact should stop debating Communist ideology and concentrate on the East bloc's defense.

He was quoted by the Yugoslav daily Politika as saying the Warsaw Pact "cannot determine what foreign policy steps its individual members should take."

"The Warsaw Pact should... not deal with ideological issues, or with how the political situation in individual member countries is developing," he was quoted as saying.

Magazine

people are used to."

Green calls most area and local publications "information guides" or "advertising sheets," saying most of them lack character and editorial substance. They do not devote the time to investigative reporting, fiction, poetry and design that Iowa City Magazine does, he said.

Another major problem Green pointed to is that most other regional publications target a certain age group or city audience and neglect interests outside their own field of vision.

"What we're going to do is take topics of a national interest and present them from a local perspective," he said.

Far from being an outlet only for stars and acknowledged celebrities, Green said the magazine will also provide a forum for talented unknowns.

A good deal of this talent will come from the UI Writers' Workshop. Both of the magazine's creators said they look forward to providing a launching ground for new writers and artists along with the features on more well-known personalities.

"As art director, I'm maybe most pleased about the fact that we can have Berke Breathed, a nationally known top-seller on college campuses, in the same issue with an unknown New York illustrator from Iowa City, Chip Wass," McClellan said.

McClellan also said the magazine will be on the cutting edge of national design. People who usually look to New York, Chicago or Los Angeles for the best design work will now be forced to give Iowa City a look, he said.

McClellan designed and laid out the entire magazine — with the exception of color photographs — on a Macintosh computer.

Other unique entries in the magazine will be a local media watch, a studio section exhibiting the work of local artists and "Three AM," the issue's last page which will show a photograph of Iowa City life after hours.

But will the idea fly outside of Iowa?

Green thinks so.

"There is a large group of people out there who identify with Iowa City, in terms of this is what I want out of my life," he said. "There are things going on here that they'd love to take advantage of that they can't. And that's what the magazine's for."

The premier September 20 issue of the Iowa City Magazine will arrive at every household in Iowa City and Coralville, and 15,000 copies will be placed in area hotel rooms. Bi-monthly issues will be sold at Prairie Lights bookstore and Waldenbooks in Iowa City. The cover price is $2.

Students arriving at the UI for the first time do not know how or where to secure employment, and therefore take some time to figure out how to find jobs available on-campus and in the Iowa City area, Seyfer said.

"I think it takes new students a little time to adjust to the job scene," she said. "As far as the Union is concerned, they're not alone when it comes to finding people to work."

Abroad

Last year, 275 UI students studied in 31 countries for either one semester or one year, Phil Carls, OIES study abroad adviser said. He listed various reasons for travel, such as language mastery, field research, or simply the experience of living in another culture.

"These students learn what it is to be an American," Arum said. "A fish doesn't know what water is until it's out of water."

Sarah Tuetkin and Lisa Brinkman are two UI seniors who shared the value of their overseas experience. Tuetkin, a Spanish major who spent seven months last year in Spain both as a student and teaching English in a summer camp, said she would like to return to work in Spain.

Brinkman, who studied last year at the International Christian University near Tokyo, Japan, plans to teach Japanese in a high school next year as part of her scholarship arrangement.

Potter's 'rat court' deals in cats, trash

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — It may not be the crime of the century when your neighbor fails to corral his 45 cats or stocks his yard with junked cars, but it's the kind of crime Judge Larry Potter understands.

Potter runs one of at least 12 local courts around the country that focus exclusively on "environmental" cases: violations of sanitation, building or fire codes.

"It's been called the 'rat court,' and a large number of our cases do involve rat infestations," Potter said.

He started his one-day-a-week environmental court in 1982 and spends a good bit of his time now telling other cities how to set up similar operations.

Potter, a city judge, uses his court to force reluctant landlords to maintain their property, make would-be trash dumpers shy away from vacant lots and even force lazy homeowners to mow their lawns.

It takes a bit of creative judicial work since municipal courts like Potter's have limited powers. He can put people in jail only in extreme cases and for short periods of time, and the fines he can impose for a single violation are small.

"Then you really do get their attention," he said.

Police kill 11 in factional fighting

MADRAS, India — Police killed 11 people Sunday during fighting between members of rival Hindu castes in the southern state of Tamil Nadu, authorities reported.

They said those deaths raised to 20 the number of people killed in two days of violence between the two groups.

Police fired at mobs in three places in Madurai district of Tamil Nadu, killing nine people, a police spokesman said.

Two people were crushed to death under a police jeep that drove into an attacking mob, said the spokesman, who was not identified under police regulations.

Madurai district is 250 miles south of Madras, the state capital. Nine people were killed Saturday in armed fights in the district between Brahmins and Harijans, two Hindu castes. Under the caste system, Brahmins consider themselves superior to Harijans.

Police said the clashes broke out when a Harijan leader made speeches that Brahmins viewed as provocative. The leader, John Pandiyan, has been arrested and charged with inciting communal violence, the police said.

100 years ago trial ended infamous feud

MATEWAN, W.Va. — The Hatfields and McCoy's don't fight anymore, and many of them would just as soon forget their ancestors' feud. But some in the community are trying to find a way to commemorate the bloodshed.

"There are a lot of grandsons of Devil Anse (Hatfield) and his brothers around here," said Paul McAllister, director of the new Matewan Development Center. "Most of them are in their 60s, and they're a little bit bitter about the reputations they had to grow up with and live with."

The Matewan Development Center, located in the only three-story building in the town of 800, features a photo display on the massacre and other incidents in the town's history. It draws a few people a week. McAllister is hoping the National Park Service will help turn Matewan into a tourist attraction. He envisions a museum, for instance, within 10 years.

It's been 100 years this month since a jury sentenced eight Hatfield clan members to life in prison and ordered a ninth hanged for the slaying of five McCoy's, ending the bloodshed in which 10 to 20 people died.

Marchers protest shuttle's nuclear cargo

TITUSVILLE, Fla. — About 40 peace activists carrying banners and beating drums began a 200-mile march Sunday to protest the use of nuclear power in the U.S. space program and by the military.

The three-week march began at Cape Canaveral, where the Navy's nuclear-armed Trident 2 missile system is tested, and will take demonstrators to Kings Bay, Ga., where the missiles are to be deployed aboard submarines.

Members of the Florida Coalition for Peace and Justice plan to join hundreds of other activists in a rally October 8 outside the gates of the Georgia submarine base.

Coalition spokesman Bruce Gagnon said the activists will average 10 miles per day, stopping to distribute literature along the way.

They are protesting both the Navy's Trident 2 program and NASA's plans to launch a nuclear-powered spacecraft aboard the next space shuttle.

Soviet emigration to U.S. surges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now that the doors of the Soviet Union have opened after 20 years of American knocking, the United States is faced with the dilemma of handling an unprecedented surge of Soviet emigres.

Critics charge the administration's response, as presented this week on Capitol Hill after seven months of deliberations, is inadequate and unimaginative and risks missing a historic opportunity.

Some say the U.S. government could learn a thing or two from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's open-door policy.

The administration argues it is doing its best in the face of shrinking budgets and the problem of dealing with 14 million refugees worldwide, many of whom would like to move to the United States.

Of the 125,000 refugee slots allocated for fiscal 1990 — that starts October 1 — 50,000 will be reserved for Soviet applicants, most of whom are Jews.

The administration predicts as many as 150,000 Soviet Jews will apply for refugee status in fiscal 1990. Jewish groups say as many as 500,000 Jews may seek to come here in the coming years if the doors remain open, especially in light of rising anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union.

An internal State Department report used by Immigration and Naturalization officers in Moscow concluded that glasnost, with its liberalized rights to free speech and press, has spawned discrimination against Jews throughout the Soviet Union.

Religious groups and many on Capitol Hill also argue that Gorbachev's reforms and his political future are by no means assured success, and their failure could strand thousands of persecuted people wishing to leave.

"Soviet history has painfully demonstrated that lulls in government repression are usually followed by harsh oppression," said a letter to Congress from World

Relief, which represents Evangelical Christians.

Members of Congress say if tight budgets are the problem keeping more Soviets from coming to the United States, "creative financing" should be considered.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum (D-Ohio) suggested the government help additional refugees by lending them money for their relocation, which would be paid back once they're settled.

"When the faucets start opening . . . the United States finds itself totally incapable of dealing with the very policy it is demanding," said Rep. Howard Berman (D-Calif.)

Stayner, subject of TV movie, killed in crash

MERCED, Calif. (AP) — Steven Stayner, kidnapped at the age of seven and forced to live as the sexually-abused foster son of his abductor until he escaped seven years later, has been killed in a hit-and-run traffic accident.

"He sure led a rough life," California Highway Patrol Sgt. Bill Balestra said of Stayner, who was returned to his parents less than 10 years ago and was the subject of an NBC miniseries in May, titled "I Know My First Name Is Steven."

Balestra said Stayner, 24, married and the father of two children, was killed Saturday when a car pulled into the path of his motorcycle on a highway between Merced and Atwater, some 70 miles east of San Francisco.

Balestra said officers believe they knew the identity of the driver of the car, who abandoned his car two miles away, jumped into another car and fled. He said felony hit-run charges were planned.

The officer said the car had pulled out of a private driveway and crossed in front of Stayner, who then ran into it.

Balestra said Stayner, who the CHP reported had been riding without a helmet, "suffered massive head injuries" and was pronounced dead on arrival at Merced Community Medical Center.

In 1972, when he was seven, Stayner was grabbed off a street in Merced while walking home from school. Seven years later, his abductor snatched another boy, 5-year-old Timmy White; 16 days later, on March 1, 1980, Stayner walked into a Ukiah police station with Timmy, saying he didn't want the younger boy subjected to the same abuse he experienced.

Rabin to discuss peace plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin will visit Egypt to discuss President Hosni Mubarak's plan for ending the Palestinian uprising in the occupied territories, officials said Sunday.

Arab reports said Israeli soldiers shot and wounded 36 Palestinians during clashes Sunday with stone-throwing protesters in six villages and refugee camps. The army said it was checking the reports.

During the 21-month-old uprising in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, 572 Palestinians have been killed by soldiers or Israeli civilians, and 114 have been slain by fellow Arabs who suspected them of collaborating with Israel. Forty Israelis have been killed.

Rabin's trip Monday comes before an expected flurry of Middle East diplomacy at the U.N. General Assembly during which Israeli, Egyptian and U.S. officials are to discuss Mubarak's peace proposals.

Elias Freij, the Palestinian Mayor of Bethlehem in the occupied West Bank, returned Sunday from a trip

Freij is the first Palestinian leader in the West Bank to publicly announce a meeting with Arafat, in defiance of an Israeli law that bans meetings with leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization, Israel Television reported.

U.S. State Department officials have said Mubarak's 10-point peace plan, recently presented to Israeli officials, could be useful in reviving Israel's proposal for Palestinian elections in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Ukrainians ask for restoration of legal status

MOSCOW (AP) — Tens of thousands of Ukrainian Catholics on Sunday joined in their church's biggest service since World War II to demand that Mikhail Gorbachev's government restore their legal status and end decades of repression.

The two-hour outdoor Mass in the Ukrainian city of Lvov came on the 50th anniversary of dictator Josef Stalin's annexation of the western Ukraine from Poland. Western witnesses said the Mass drew up to 100,000 participants. A Ukrainian activist said 200,000 people gathered at a later prayer session.

At dusk, about 30,000 Ukrainians carrying candles ringed a central square at Lvov's opera theater and observed a half-hour of silence to commemorate victims of the 1939 Soviet takeover and the purges that followed.

Candles of mourning also twinkled in some apartment windows of the city of 650,000 people.

The action was designed to mirror August 23 demonstrations in the three Baltic republics in which more than 1 million Estonians, Lithuanians and Latvians joined hands to protest the annexation of their lands.

The Baltics and the Western Ukraine both fell into the Soviet orbit as a result of a secret pact between Stalin and Nazi German Dictator Adolf Hitler.

Hugo rips at Caribbean's Guadeloupe

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Hurricane Hugo lashed the resort islands of the northeastern Caribbean with 140-mph winds Sunday, tearing off roofs, knocking out communications and leaving three people dead.

At least 80 people were injured on the island of Guadeloupe, and 3,000 people fled their homes, officials and news reports said.

The region's most powerful storm in a decade then swept toward the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico. Both governments mobilized the National Guard, and residents rushed for last-minute supplies and taped and boarded windows.

At 3 p.m. EDT, Hugo's center was located near latitude 17 degrees north and longitude 63.6 west, about 185 miles east-southeast of San Juan, said the National Weather Service in Florida.

The storm was moving at 12 mph and was expected to hit the Virgin Islands Sunday night and Puerto Rico Monday morning, the National Weather Service said. The Virgin Islands' population is 106,000 and Puerto Rico has 3.3 million people.

The storm caused widespread damage early Sunday as it passed near Guadeloupe. Damage also was reported on the islands of Martinique, Antigua and Dominica.

Gabrielle Carabin, mayor of the village of Le Moule on the northwestern coast of Guadeloupe, said in an interview on the French island's Radio Caraibe Internationale that two village residents were killed. She gave no further details.

In the central Puerto Rican town of Utuado, a man was electrocuted when he touched a power line while removing a television antenna from his roof to prepare for the storm, police said. He was identified as Antonio Alago Gonzalez, 51.

House hopes to save F-14D

WASHINGTON (AP) George Bush's decision earlier this year to cancel the Navy's F-14D jet fighter that achieved fame in the movie "Top Gun" touched off a major campaign in Congress to save the carrier aircraft.

The lobbying paid off last month when the House approved a bill that restored $1 billion for 24 planes over the next two years.

The Senate, in its defense bill, had endorsed the president's plan to kill the Tomcat fighter. As members of the House and Senate get down to fashioning a final version of the defense bill during the coming week, congressional backers of the F-14D are taking heart in the woes of another aircraft — the Advanced Tactical Fighter.

The two prototypes of the plane — one for the Navy and one for the Air Force — will not share a common design, forcing the Defense Department to pay for two separate fighter-plane programs, according to recent reports.

Sen. Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said at a hearing earlier this month that development of the next-generation aircraft, which is intended to succeed the Air Force's F-15 and the Navy's F-14D, has slipped six months.

The problems prompted the House, in its appropriations bill, to eliminate the $1.1 billion for the Air Force's fighter and $65 million for the Navy's version in the fiscal 1990 budget.

"The (House Appropriations) committee is not convinced ... that the ATF program as currently structured will meet the requirement with a mission and cost effective solution," the panel said in its report accompanying the spending bill.

Specifically, the committee complained that the Air Force predicts the ATF will be built at a rate of 72 per year, yet it has been unable "to achieve such a sustained rate for the F-15, which by any measure is a much cheaper aircraft."

Dole wants capital gains tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Dole, Senate minority leader, said Sunday that while expanding individual retirement account benefits would be more politically popular, cutting the top capital gains tax rate would be of greater benefit overall.

Dole said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that President George Bush is "on the right course" pressing for a cut in taxes on profits from the sale of stocks, real estate and other investments. The House Ways and Means Committee last week approved the reduction.

"Let's create some jobs. Let's make the cost of capital cheaper," which would make the country more competitive on the world market,

Dole said. He conceded, though, that "I assume the IRA politically is more popular."

The Kansas Republican said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's proposal to restore partial tax deductions on contributions to IRAs is "a great idea," but he said the proposal would cost $12 billion or more over a five-year period.

Ducks dump Iowa in season opener

44-6 loss is worst 1st game defeat in Hawkeyes' history

Michael Trilk
The Daily Iowan

Iowa football coach Hayden Fry said he didn't know what to expect from his football team in its season opener with Oregon last Saturday, but he sure wasn't expecting the bashing that the Ducks handed the Hawkeyes.

Oregon, 2-0, handed 24th-ranked Iowa its worst opening defeat ever, a 44-6 rout, before a sellout crowd at Kinnick Stadium.

"It was really kind of a nightmare," Fry said. "We knew that it would be tough, but we never dreamed that it would be that bad. They completely dominated the Hawkeyes in every phase of the game. It was much worse than we anticipated."

"We felt it would be a very close football game," Oregon coach Rich Brooks said. "We are surprised by the score. We didn't feel we would be able to do that to Iowa."

But they did, nearly from start to finish.

Oregon stuffed Iowa on its first possession, stopping the Hawkeyes for losses on the first two plays from scrimmage.

"Our first running play was a busted play," Fry said. "We let a guy come right in on the weak side. Nick Bell didn't even have a chance to run with the ball... first play of the game... just incredible."

Oregon shut Iowa down all afternoon.

The Hawkeyes rushed 28 times for 26 total yards. Iowa running back Nick Bell rushed 12 times for a total of three yards.

Football

"We got whipped up front," Fry said. "(Oregon) was in our backfield all day. Our running backs and full backs didn't even have a chance to run the football."

Iowa's passing game was equally as bad Saturday.

Tom Poholsky was 8-for-19 with two interceptions and underthrew several receivers. Poholsky even drew a chorus of boos from the unruly Kinnick crowd and was eventually replaced by sophomore Matt Rodgers midway through the third quarter.

"Our offense only had one respectable drive the entire day," Fry said. "We had some people wide open at times, but Tommy had a very difficult time. He read the coverages correctly most of the time, but when he tried to get the ball to them the ball was falling short."

"His arm wasn't hurt. He told me I'm throwin' the ball as hard as I can. I don't know what's wrong coach. It was just an extremely sad game for us."

Poholsky made no excuses for his performance.

"I just had an off day throwing," Poholsky said. "I really couldn't zip the ball like I can."

"I was confident about what I was doing. Everything we saw we expected. I just had an off day. It was one of those days when everything went bad, not just for me, but everybody."

Iowa running back Tony Stewart, above, is swarmed in the offensive backfield by a host of Oregon defenders in the second half Saturday at Kinnick Stadium. The Ducks held Iowa to 26 yards rushing on the day.

Iowa linebacker Melvin Foster, below, gives an indication of the kind of day the Hawkeyes had. The Ducks rolled, 44-6, giving the Hawkeyes their worst opening-game defeat in school history.

Fry says he won't publicize changes

IOWA CITY (AP) — As he spoke to reporters Sunday, Iowa coach Hayden Fry wasn't ready to make any wholesale lineup changes following the Hawkeyes' worst season-opening loss at home in their 100-year football history.

And even if Fry does make some changes, few people will hear about it right away.

"We haven't had an opportunity to analyze our films yet," he said. "We don't do that until we have our team meeting (on Sunday night). And if I knew I wouldn't tell you until I have an opportunity to tell the players."

Fry spoke during his weekly teleconference a day after the 24th-ranked Hawkeyes lost to Oregon 44-6.

While Oregon's Bill Musgrave had a field day, completing 20 of 27 passes for 263 yards and three touchdowns in less than three quarters of play, Iowa quarterback Tom Poholsky struggled.

The fifth-year senior frequently underthrew receivers and was eight of 19 for 70 yards and two interceptions before being replaced by sophomore Matt Rodgers after the Ducks had taken a 38-0 lead in the third quarter.

Rodgers played the rest of the way, completing 12 of 20 passes for 167 yards and capping Iowa's lone

Rodgers could get start at Iowa State

Erica Welland
The Daily Iowan

Iowa quarterback Matt Rodgers has aspirations of being No. 1.

"It means everything," the 6-foot-4, 205 pound sophomore said. "That's why I'm here; that's why I want to play; and that's what I practice for."

Ironically, Rodgers may have moved closer to the top position Saturday even though the Hawkeyes lost 44-6 to Oregon.

Senior Tom Poholsky started for Iowa, but after completing only eight of 19 attempted passes for 70 yards, he was replaced by Rodgers.

"Tom had an off day, that's all," Rodgers said. "He was reading the right receivers to throw to, but just didn't get it there. That's not characteristic of Tom Poholsky at all. He's a winner. I don't think that will ever happen again."

In the first four minutes of Rodgers' playing time, he was 4-for-7 for 80 yards. Overall, Rodgers went 12-for-20 for 167 yards.

"I got the opportunity, and it felt great to get in there again. I had an all right day; I got the ball off and found some receivers open. I did a lot of bad things and a lot of good things," Rodgers said.

One of those good things was making the Hawkeyes' only touchdown.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, Rodgers scored on a bootleg from the six-yard line. It was Iowa's only score of the day.

"That was a great feeling," Rodgers said. "Probably the best feeling I've had here. Coach Fry made that call, and I'm sure he anticipated what happened. It was a great call."

But even though Rodgers found more success than Poholsky on the field, he was quick to give his teammate credit.

"Tommy had some rough times at the start, but (Oregon) played real well on defense," Rodgers said. "It's good to have fans supporting me, but they have to realize the situation Tommy was in, too. They were really throwing a lot of defense at him, some tough

Hawkeyes knock off Top 20 team at Long Beach tourney

Nelson eyes national ranking

Erica Welland
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa volleyball team may not have won all its matches at the Long Beach State Tournament last weekend, but it returned to Iowa City pleased with its performances.

Although the Hawkeyes lost their first two games in the opening match against Santa Barbara Friday, they refused to be beaten.

They pulled out the stops in the final three games to win 9-15, 12-15, 15-8, 15-5 and 15-12.

"We hung in when it was tough," sophomore middle-hitter Trista Shoenbeck, who hit .429, said. "When we lost the first two games, we didn't lose our composure. We had confidence knowing that we could be doing better."

Senior outside hitter Kari Hamel joined Shoenbeck in leading the team by hitting .306, and notching 20 kills, 11 digs and six blocks.

Iowa coach Ruth Nelson is hoping that the win over Santa Barbara will lead to a national ranking for the Hawkeyes.

Santa Barbara was ranked 16th by Volleyball Monthly in the preseason.

"After that win," Nelson said, "we should be ranked in the top 20."

Iowa continued their success in their next match of the tournament, defeating Kansas State 15-9, 15-7 and 15-6.

The Hawkeyes clearly dominated the Wildcats, with Janet Moylan, Hamel and Schoenbeck all hitting at least .500.

Saturday night, however, Iowa met their match.

It took only three games for the Long Beach State 49ers, who are ranked first in Volleyball Monthly and fourth in the NCAA preseason poll, to defeat the Hawkeyes 15-6, 15-8, 15-10.

"We went in with the attitude of just trying our best," junior Barb Willis, who had 12 kills and two blocks, said. "But they were the better team."

Moylan was a key player for the Hawkeyes, hitting .429 with two service aces and nine digs.

Doak-Davis wins run in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mostafa Nechchadi battled for the men's championship and Nan Doak-Davis easily captured the women's title in the half-marathon Philadelphia Distance Run on Sunday.

Each winner received $4,000.

Nechchadi was among four runners who controlled the 13-mile race from the 8-mile mark. With just less than a mile to go, he took the lead from runner-up Steve Moneghetti to finish in 1 hour, 2 minutes, 1 second.

Moneghetti finished 2 seconds later, followed by Joe Nzau at 1:02.19, defending champion Steve Jones in 1:02.49 and Rex Wilson in 1:03.02.

Doak-Davis, a former University of Iowa runner, led the women's field by as much as 80 meters. She finished in 1:11.24. Australian Olympian Anne Audain finished 7 seconds later, followed by U.S. Olympic marathoner Margaret Groos in 1:12.02.

Hawks take sixth place at Lady Tar Heel invite

Rita Heimes
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's golf team played a solid second-round to finish in a tie for sixth place at the Lady Tar Heel Invitational in North Carolina this weekend.

The Hawkeyes shot a three-round score of 319-306-311-936 at the tournament, good enough to share the slot with Wake Forest.

Kentucky was the winner of the 16-team field, taking first place with a 919, after narrowly defeating Duke and Alabama in a sudden-death playoff.

Iowa coach Diane Thomason was happy with her team's performance, and gave credit to all her players for doing well.

Iowa's top individual finisher was senior Kelley Brooke (80-74-74-228), who tied for fifth in the three day tournament. Brooke said she felt good about her improved play this weekend.

"I played much better than last weekend (at the Hawkeye Invitational)," Brooke said. "I'm improving really fast, much faster than I expected. After last weekend I meant to slowly work my way back. Instead, I jumped right to (shooting) low scores."

The Hawkeyes were in 11th place after the first 18 holes, but improved to a sixth-place finish due mostly to an excellent second round.

"We had four people score in the seventies," Thomason said of her team's performance on Saturday. "Kris Heatherly played a good round, and Becky Fuglestad had a great round. Shirley (Trier) made some great rounds under pressure and played really well."

Trier (77-79-77-233) finished in a tie for 20th place, Fuglestad (86-77-82-245) was tied at 61st, and Heatherly (92-80-85-257) ended 77th out of 88 golfers.

Stacey Arnold, who took first place in last weekend's Hawkeye Invitational tournament, was the second-best scorer for Iowa, finishing with a score of 76-76-78-230 and in a tie for 10th place.

Birdie binge paces McCallister

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Blaine McCallister broke out of a six-way tie with birdies on the last two holes Sunday for a one-stroke victory in the Bank of Boston Classic.

Beaten by Gene Sauers in a three-hole playoff in this tournament in 1986, McCallister shot a final round 5-under par 66 for a 72-hole total of 13-under-par 271 at the Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Local favorite Brad Faxon had a chance to tie, but missed a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole, giving McCallister his second victory of the year and third in six years on the PGA Tour.

Faxon, a former New England amateur champion, fell one stroke short in a bid for his first PGA victory. Faxon, tied with Don Pooley for the lead after 54 holes, had to settle for second place after shooting a 69 and finishing at 272.

Defending champion Mark Calcavecchia surrendered a one-stroke lead when he bogeyed the 13th hole, then bogeyed the 16th. Calcavecchia, the British Open champion who was tuning up this week's Ryder Cup matches, birdied on the last hole, finishing with 69.

Everybody on the Iowa side maybe.

Oregon quarterback Bill Musgrave lived up to his lofty expectations, going 20-for-27 for 263 yards and three touchdowns.

Musgrave kept several Oregon drives going with key third down conversions.

Musgrave put Oregon in the endzone on the Ducks first possession, directing a 54-yard drive in six plays, capped by a 22-yard scoring pass to Tony Hargain.

"Musgrave is an outstanding quarterback," Brooks said. "He makes great decisions. He is an outstanding player and he deserves all the credit that has been getting."

As well as Musgrave played it was the Ducks' overall speed that caused Iowa's problems.

"They were so much quicker and faster than it wasn't even close," Fry said. "We felt like we were ready to play. It just goes to show that you can't simulate speed in practice."

"Oregon did an excellent job of disguising their defensive coverages. When you have all that speed in the secondary you can play any kind of coverage you want."

"We didn't let (Iowa) establish the running game. That was my biggest fear," Brooks said. "The biggest thing we had was quickness on the line . . . our movement up front on defense and our quickness up front."

"We held up well on their powerful fullback. The penetration of our line was very effective. We certainly eliminated the running game."

Musgrave engineered Oregon's second scoring drive early in the second quarter. After taking over on Iowa's 48-yard line, with 13:31 left in the first half, Musgrave put the Ducks in the endzone when Latin Berry carried from a yard out, six plays later, at the 11:37 mark. Musgrave hit Terry Obee with 29-yard pass on the drive.

Oregon scored on its next possession and added a field goal just before half to take a 24-0 lead at intermission.

The Ducks opened the second half scoring the first two times they had the ball, jumping to a 38-0 lead.

Iowa's only score came early in the fourth quarter after Rodgers had replaced Poholsky. Rodgers took Iowa 85 yards in eight plays and scored when he faked a dive up the middle and snuck around the end for the score.

A two-point conversion attempt failed.

Oregon added two field goals late in the game to round out the scoring.

"We just got our tail kicked real good today," Fry said. "I can imagine every one on our schedule is licking their chops when they look at the film or hear the score. We've done a number on a lot of people through the years and this is their chance for payback."

Iowa State will get its chance for payback next Saturday. The Hawkeyes won 10-7 last year in Iowa City. Iowa-Iowa State kickoff is scheduled for 12:10 p.m. defense. When I got in there, there was a lead and they softened up on defense. So it made me look like I did a lot better."

If it sounds like Rodgers is humble about his performance, it's because he is.

That, he said, is a lesson he received from his dad, Boston Celtics' head coach, Jimmy Rodgers.

"Of course he taught me that," Rodgers said. "He's a coach. He's a dad, but he's a coach as well. And he gives me a lot of valuable advice."

But Rodgers said that because the competition between the quarterbacks is close, he doesn't know if this game will give him an edge in starting against Iowa State next weekend.

"Tommy established (his place) about a week and a half ago," Rodgers said. "Coach Fry made a great decision on that, because you have to go with the experienced man. And Tommy had it. He's been throwing great at practice for the whole month. That's why he's number one. He just had a rough game."

While this loss could hurt the morale of the team, Rodgers said, they need to learn from their mistakes and prepare for the Cyclones.

"It was a pretty stunning loss," Rodgers said. "But we have to learn from our mistakes, and stick one to Iowa State. We have to basically go out and study really hard and work on our mistakes. We'll learn from the bad things and keep going from there."

Rodgers illustrated his point by mentioning the situation two years ago when the Hawkeyes lost their first game to Tennessee and wound up 10-3 for the season.

"It's all up to us," he said. "We can let (the loss) hurt us, or we can overcome it, learn from our mistakes, and go on and have a great season. It's all up to the team, and I think we'll overcome it."

Fry

scoring drive with a 6-yard bootleg around right end seconds into the fourth quarter. However, he also lost a fumble and threw an interception.

Fry said he and his staff would review the game films and hold their regular team meeting Sunday night. Any lineup changes would be made then, he said.

"I don't have any lineup changes at this point," Fry said. "I certainly wasn't down on Tommy at all," Fry said. "Obviously, he's going to help us win some ballgames this year."

"He did a good job of reading the coverages overall. He did a good job in selection of his receivers most of the time. The thing that was disappointing was his arm strength."

Fry said Rodgers played an "exceptional" game.

"He showed a lot of poise. He showed a lot of arm strength," the Iowa coach said. "Obviously, he got the team rolling."

Another player who received a good grade was junior running back Tony Stewart, who is trying to come back from a serious knee injury suffered late last year.

Stewart, the first sophomore to rush for more than 1,000 yards at Iowa, played a reserve role behind Nick Bell.

Bell carried the ball 12 times for just 3 yards as Oregon's linemen used their quickness to beat Iowa's front five. Stewart gained 7 yards on five carries as Iowa runners netted only 26 yards for the day.

"I think Tony passed the medical test," Fry said. "He's ready to make a real challenge for the No. 1 position."

But in defending Bell, Fry said the 250-pounder didn't have a chance to show what he could do.

"The blocking wasn't there," he said. "You can be the biggest guy in the world and the fastest guy, but if you don't get the blocking up front, you're not going to get out of your own backfield."

Fry said Oregon was the fastest team the Hawkeyes would face all year.

"We're not a slow football team by Big Ten standards. We're just slow to the Pac-10 people," he said. "We look like we're running in mud compared to 'em."

The Ducks, who amassed 435 yards on offense, had starters back at nearly every position. Meanwhile, Iowa used 26 players who appeared in their first college game, Fry said.

"If we had been playing Iwo Jima junior college it would have been a whole lot easier," he said. "They could've made some of the mistakes they made and we could have won the ballgame."

Fry said he could even understand the booing that echoed around Kinnick Stadium.

"I think all coaches and players would rather play without the booing. But as I told my players in the locker room afterward, we deserved whatever the crowd wanted to do," he said.

Despite all the bad things that happened to Iowa — 12 first downs compared with Oregon's 22; the paltry rushing, four lost fumbles, three interceptions and inconsistent punting — Fry said all is not lost.

One perfect ballot in first week of OTL

Piles of On The Line ballots found the dumpster after failing to make the cut. Only three entries of the top 11 finishers picked the Hawkeyes to win.

Drum roll please. Out of over 450 ballots received, only one can claim perfection. G. Sanders put everyone to shame. For good measure, Sanders nailed the tie breaker as well.

We don't know if Sanders is male or female, but we do have ideas about what could have led to the mysterious lack of a first name on the winning ballot.

Evasion of taxes, bank on it. Sanders did haul in quite a booty for the prognostication. We promised a gift certificate worth $25. We lied. It's happened before and probably will happen again.

Body Dimensions graciously forked out a one-month membership valued at $45. Pretty cool, huh. All the winner has to do is bring some logical form of identification, no movie rental cards, and come to the D.I. business office at 111 Communications Center and pick up the loot.

This week's prize is a $25 catch, unless we decide to change our minds — which is entirely up to us. A gift certificate from Ewers Men's Store is waiting. Go buy a tie.

For those of you that got pounded this week, brush yourself off and get back on the horse. This week's ballot is on page 5B.

The following nine finishers, along with Sanders, get an On The Line T-shirt:

Bill Wasson, Todd Uptegraph, Kevin Cano, Lonnie Yoder, Tim Meyer, Steve Dawson, Brad

ON THE LINE....

Rekit, Charles Wieland and Dave Paustian. All went 9-1, except for Paustian, who at 8-2 hit the Arkansas-Tulsa score on the button.

As an interesting sidenote, another finisher went 9-1. Signed only as "The Cotton Picker," we are left totally in the dark. A phone number on the ballot was unanswered, but we won't keep the "Picker" and his/her shirt apart.

In fact, we think it will be fun for the person to try and convince the business office that you won. Good luck.

After one week, D.I. Managing Editor Joe Levy is on top at 8-2. Sports Editor Michael Trilk and Asst. Sports Editor Bryce Miller are tied at 6-4. The peasantry, reporter Erica Weiland, proved worthy of her social caste, going 5-5.

Trilk, after running away with the title a year ago, used a stolen Holiday Inn towel (surely from the downtown location in case Iowa City's finest want to know) to wipe the egg off his face.

"I will win," he said when Levy was out of the room. "I've won before and I'll win again. Levy stinks. He couldn't pick his way out of..."

Enough, enough. Quit living in the past.

Oregon Lottery Director Jim Davey was a highly respectable 7-3, but begged for clues on most of his picks.

Iowa runners stumble at Minnesota

Pat Axmear
The Daily iowan

A new attitude was not enough for the Iowa men's cross country team which was beaten Saturday by Stanford and Minnesota.

Stanford beat Iowa 18-42 while Minnesota slipped by the Hawkeyes 27-32 in a double dual meet at Minneapolis.

"I'm happy with parts of the meet, our change in attitude is really positive," Iowa coach Larry Wieczorek said. "We couldn't beat Stanford but we did challenge them. I'm happy with the overall effort but we should have beat Minnesota."

Eric Mastalir of Stanford was the individual champion with a time of 25:32 in the 8,000 course.

Iowa's freshman Kevin Herd finished 4th making him the Hawkeyes' top finisher.

"It was a grilling race," Herd said. "It was hard to hold on to the position I had. I'm glad I had the mental tenacity which helped me to hold on."

Larry Wieczorek

Iowa's other top placers were junior Dave Brown who finished 7th, and seniors Tim Slingsby and Rod Chambers who placed 11th and 18th respectively.

"Our guys were out to win and ran much more aggressively," said Wieczorek. "Our first three people were in the top 11 and we were very competitive with the top five Stanford runners. We only lost to Minnesota by five points. If one more guy would have placed higher we would have beat (Minnesota)."

Iowa ran as a pack for about the first 3,000 meters breaking up Stanford.

Richards gives Hawkeyes offensive punch on roadtrip

The Daily iowan

Erica Richards exploded for seven goals in three games as the Iowa field hockey team rolled through a weekend series at Berkeley, Cal., moving to 7-0-1 on the season.

Richards scored three times Sunday over host Cal-Berkeley in the Hawkeyes' 6-0 win. Freshman Kristy Gleason, and seniors Melissa Sanders and Erin Walsh finished the scoring.

Iowa got past Stanford 4-1 Friday and dominated Cal-State Chico 4-0 Saturday. In the Chico game, all the scoring came in the first half.

Iowa coach Beth Beglin put in substitutes the entirety of the second half.

"Chico barely got the ball over midfield all game," Beglin said.

The Hawkeyes will host two of three home games in 1989 Friday against Michigan State at 3 p.m. and Sunday with Michigan at 11 a.m.

Both matchups will be at the new field-hockey facility.

Sports

Chicago Bears wide receiver Ron Morris is unable to haul in a pass Sunday in the first quarter of the Bears-Vikings game at Soldier Field in Chicago.

Minnesota's Darrell Fullington, left, and Carl Lee were defending. The Bears won the NFC Central Division showdown 38-7.

Cunningham rallies Eagles

Philadelphia scored two touchdowns in the final 1:48 — the game-winner after a 77-yard run with a lateral fumble recovery — and Randall Cunningham threw five touchdown passes as the Eagles rallied for a 42-37 victory over the Washington Redskins on Sunday.

The winning touchdown came with 52 seconds left on Cunningham's third touchdown pass to Keith Jackson, a 4-yarder. The touchdown was set up when safety Wes Hopkins ran 77 yards with a lateral from linebacker Al Harris, who had recovered a fumble by Gerald Riggs as Washington was running out the clock.

In the rest of the NFL, it was the Los Angeles Rams 31, Indianapolis 17; San Francisco 20, Tampa Bay 16; Chicago 38, Minnesota 7; New York Giants 24, Detroit 14; Cincinnati 41, Pittsburgh 10; Atlanta 27, Dallas 21; Miami 24, New England 10; Green Bay 35, New Orleans 34; Kansas City 24, Los Angeles Raiders 38; Cleveland 38, New York Jets 24; Phoenix 34, Seattle 24; and Houston 34, San Diego 27.

In Monday night's game, Denver is at Buffalo.

Bears 38, Vikings 7
Neal Anderson scored three touchdowns, one on a 24-yard pass from Mike Tomczak and two others on runs of two and 13 yards as the Bears beat the Vikings for the first time since 1987.
Rams 31, Colts 17

Jim Everett and Henry Ellard combined on a record-setting pass-catch show, upstaging Eric Dickerson's homecoming for Indianapolis.

49ers 20, Buccaneers 14
Joe Montana faked a handoff and ran around right end, scoring from four yards out with 40 seconds left and ending a frustrating day for the 49ers in victory over Tampa Bay.

Giants 24, Lions 14
Phil Simms completed 12 of 14 passes in the second half, setting up three touchdowns and waking up the Giants sleeping offense as New York came back from an 11-point deficit to beat Detroit.
Bengals 41, Steelers 10
Cincinnati extended its home-field winning streak to 11 games, building a 20-3 halftime lead and handing the Steelers their second straight rout. Eddie Brown, who just ended a contract holdout, ignited the big offensive day for Cincinnati by scoring on his first catch of the day.

Falcons 27, Cowboys 21
Atlanta came back from an 11-point deficit behind the passing of Chris Miller, giving the Cowboys their first 0-2 start since 1963. Miller completed 21 of 29 passes for 255 yards.

Dolphins 24, Patriots 10
Dan Marino threw for three first-half touchdowns, leading Miami (1-1) over the Patriots (1-1). The Dolphins capitalized on bungled punts on the Patriots' first two possessions.

Packers 35, Saints 34
Don Majkowski's 3-yard touchdown pass to Sterling Sharpe with 1:26 left rallied Green Bay (1-1) over New Orleans (1-1), which led 24-7 at halftime.

Chiefs 24, Raiders 19
Kansas City came back from a 19-17 deficit on Christian Okoye's 1-yard TD run with 7:51 to play. The touchdown ended an 87-yard drive aided by 50 yards in pass interference penalties against Raiders cornerback Terry McDaniel.

Browns 38, Jets 24
Bernie Kosar threw for three touchdown passes, and Thane Gash returned an interception 36 yards for another as the Browns (2-0) intercepted Ken O'Brien a career-high four times. Cleveland now has 12 takeaways in its first two games.

Cardinals 34, Seahawks 24
Gary Hogeboom, who came to Phoenix as a Class B free agent in the offseason, passed for four touchdowns, three to 11-year veteran Roy Green, as the Cardinals spoiled the Seahawks' home opener.

Oilers 34, Chargers 27
Warren Moon threw two touchdown passes and ran for another, and Houston forced five turnovers.

Big Ten remains at sub-500

Big Ten football teams ran into the ranked and got rattled and rolled.

In the big battle Saturday between the country's top rated teams, No. 2 Michigan lost 24-19 to No. 1 Notre Dame.

Elsewhere, Purdue bowed to No. 15 Washington 38-9 and 10th-ranked Illinois was stunned by No. 8 Colorado 38-7.

In other games, No. 24 Iowa got whipped by Oregon 44-6, Indiana rolled to a 24-7 over Missouri and Michigan State blanked Miami of Ohio 49-0. Minnesota posted a 30-20 victory over Iowa State, Ohio State battered Oklahoma State 37-13, Northwestern was shot down 48-31 by Air Force and Wisconsin beat Toledo 23-10.

After two weeks of non-conference games, the Big Ten is 7-8 against the opposition. They were 11-19-1 in non-conference last year.

At Ann Arbor, Mich., Raghib Ismail returned two kickoffs for touchdowns in the second half.

Ismail, the nation's leading kick returner last season, ran back the opening kickoff of the second half 88 yards and added a 92-yard return with 12:46 left.

"He's faster than the speed of sound," Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan said. "He may be the best I've ever seen. We couldn't tackle him."

In Boulder, Colo., the Buffaloes sacked Illini quarterback Jeff George four times for 54 yards in losses, intercepted two of his passes, limited him to 99 yards passing and sent him to the bench. He has his slightly injured left knee wrapped and braced.

"We talked about their pass rush all week, and they lived up to it," Illinois coach John Mackovic said.

Turnovers hurt Sooners in 6-3 loss

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Fumbles are always a disappointment, but probably never more so than for first-year Oklahoma coach Gary Gibbs.

The sixth-ranked Sooners fumbled three times and were held to three points or less for only the third time since 1983 in a 6-3 loss to Arizona Saturday.

"Miscues were a disappointment," Gibbs said following the loss to the unranked Wildcats at Tucson, Ariz. "They gave life to Arizona. We squandered too many opportunities."

In other Big Eight games, No. 8 Colorado blitzed Illinois 38-7, fourth-ranked Nebraska turned back Utah 42-30, Missouri dropped a 24-7 decision to Indiana, Oklahoma State was beaten 37-13 by Ohio State, Minnesota beat Iowa State 30-20, Kansas held off Kent State 28-21 and Kansas State fell to Northern Iowa 10-8 to stretch its winless streak to 29 games.

Doug Pfaff hit a 40-yard field goal with two seconds to play to beat Oklahoma (2-1).

"I knew I didn't hit it in the sweet spot, but thank God, it just blew over," Pfaff said.

The Sooners gained just 222 yards rushing, about half their usual total. It was the fewest points for Oklahoma since last year's 7-3 loss to Nebraska and a shut out by Missouri in 1983.

Nebraska fell behind Utah, but just had too much offense for the Utes in Lincoln.

Ken Clark ran for 130 yards and one score, Bryan Carpenter had 107 yards and another score and quarterback Gerry Gdowski scored three times while rushing for 98 yards.

Why is everyone watching Cable?
More and more people are watching Cable than ever before. Why? Because Cable has the best of everything. Newsworthy news from around the world on CNN, right when you want it. More original movies than any other channel on USA Network. Quality family viewing on The CBN Family Channel to help your children grow. The arts, dramas and documentaries to open your eyes. Cable's right for everyone, and it's right at home with you. So with all these great reasons to get Cable, shouldn't you be watching it too?
"Well, I don't know why everybody is. I only know why I am and it's mainly because I get to watch a lot of different things any time I want to."

Top-three contenders lose in NL East

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Doug Drabek defeated Chicago for the third time in four decisions and the Pittsburgh Pirates, continuing to play tough against the National League East contenders, beat the Cubs 2-0 Sunday.

Pittsburgh beat the division-leading Cubs for the second straight day and have won seven of eight against the Cubs, St. Louis and New York. Chicago lost for the second time in eight games.

Drabek, 13-11, won for the third time in 13 decisions in which the Pirates score two runs or less. He allowed eight hits, struck out seven and walked none to beat former Pirates teammate Mike Bielecki, 16-7, who lost for the second time in 10 decisions since July 14.

It was Drabek's fourth shutout of the season, and extended his scoreless streak to 14 innings, including five innings in Wednesday's 0-0 tie with St. Louis. He struck out Andre Dawson to end the games with runners on first and second.

NL Roundup

Phillies 2, Cardinals 0

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kris Carpenter allowed five hits in 7 1-3 innings and drove in a run Sunday as the St. Louis Cardinals beat Philadelphia 2-0 for a double-header split with the Phillies.

In the first game, John Kruk's grand slam in the 12th gave Philadelphia a 9-5 victory.

In the second game, Carpenter, 4-4, struck out five and walked none.

St. Louis took the lead in the fifth on Milt Thompson's RBI single off Ken Howell, 11-12. Carpenter's run-scoring single in the seventh made it 2-0.

Von Hayes was ejected after arguing a third strike in the seventh.

Giants 5, Padres 3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kevin Mitchell homered twice and increased his major-league leading total to 45 as the San Francisco Giants beat the San Diego Padres 5-3 in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader.

San Francisco boosted its National League West lead to six games over the Padres with 13 games remaining. Scott Garrelts won his eighth consecutive decision for the Giants.

Mitchell homered off Mark Grant leading off the fourth inning and hit a two-out homer off Pat Clements in the seventh. It was his sixth multiple-homer game of the season and gave him 120 RBIs.

Expos 1, Mets 0

MONTREAL (AP) — Mark Langston pitched a three-hitter to win for the second time in seven starts and the Montreal Expos beat the Mets 1-0 Sunday, continuing New York's fall from the National League East race.

Langston, 12-7, struck out nine and walked five in his fourth National League shutout and sixth complete game.

St. Louis runner Tony Pena literally goes head-first into second base Sunday during the Cardinals' game with the Phillies in Philadelphia. Second baseman Dickie Thon applies the late tag, but the Phillies won 9-5.

Toronto 3-game sweep pads lead in AL East

TORONTO (AP) — Fred McGriff took advantage of an open left field, lofting a run-scoring single in the 10th inning as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Cleveland Indians 2-1 Sunday for a three-game sweep.

The Blue Jays increased their American League East lead to 2½ games over Baltimore. Toronto beat Cleveland 3-2 in 11 innings Saturday night on shortstop Luis Aguayo's bases-loaded error, and used another miscue to win again.

Glenallen Hill reached on shortstop Felix Fermin's error to start the 10th and moved to second on Mookie Wilson's third hit of the game. Scott Bailes, 4-9, retired Tom Lawless on a foul pop, but reliever Rich Yett gave up an infield single to George Bell that loaded the bases.

Royals 7, Orioles 0

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bret Saberhagen became the American League's first 20-game winner this season, pitching one-hit ball for seven innings Sunday as the Kansas City Royals beat the Orioles 7-0.

George Brett drove in four runs with three hits as the Royals ended a three-game losing streak and pulled to within 2½ games of Oakland in the American League West. The Orioles began the day 1½ games behind Toronto in the AL East.

Saberhagen, 20-6, equalled his win total of his Cy Young Award-winning season in 1985 with his 11th victory in 12 starts. He is 18-3 since May 4 and has allowed one earned run in his last 48 innings. Saberhagen is tied with Houston's Mike Scott for the major league lead.

AL Roundup

The only hit Saberhagen allowed came in the third inning when Randy Milligan singled with two outs. He struck out six without walking a batter, although he did through three pitches to the backstop.

Angels 6, White Sox 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Witt won for just the second time in eight decisions and the California Angels beat the Chicago White Sox 6-3 Sunday for their seventh victory in nine games.

The Angels moved to within 2½ games of first-place Oakland in the American League West.

Witt, 9-13, gave up two runs on seven hits in five innings. Bryan Harvey, the fourth California pitcher, went 1 2-3 innings for his 23rd save.

Eric King, 8-10, allowed three runs on seven hits in 3 2-3 innings. It was the first time in his last six starts that he did not pitch into the seventh inning.

Rangers 4, Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Pinch hitter Pete Incaviglia's three-run homer in the eighth inning Sunday rallied the Texas Rangers past the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2.

Bobby Witt, 11-13, gave up six hits in eight innings and Kenny Rogers got his second save. Chris Bosio, 15-10, struck out 10 in seven-plus innings.

Pinch hitter Rick Leach hit a leadoff single and Cecil Espy followed with a walk, finishing Bosio in the eighth. Pinch hitter Fred Manrique sacrificed against Tony Fossas, and Incaviglia met Chuck Crim with his 18th home run this season and first-ever as a pinch hitter.

McCallister breaks from pack in final day of Boston Classic

SUN, Mass. (AP) — Blaine McCallister broke out of a six-way tie with birdies on the last two holes Sunday for a one-stroke victory in the Bank of Boston Classic.

Beaten by Gene Sauers in a three-hole playoff in this tournament in 1986, McCallister shot a final round 5-under par 66 for a 72-hole total of 13-under-par 271 at the Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Local favorite Brad Faxon had a chance to tie, but missed a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole, giving McCallister his second victory of the year and third in six years on the PGA Tour.

Faxon, a former New England amateur champion, fell one stroke short in a bid for his first PGA victory. Faxon, tied with Don Pooley for the lead after 54 holes, had to settle for second place after shooting a 69 and finishing at 272.

Defending champion Mark Calcavecchia surrendered a one-stroke lead when he bogeyed the 13th hole, then bogeyed the 16th. Calcavecchia, the British Open champion who was tuning up this week's Ryder Cup matches, birdied on the last hole, finishing with 69.

'Strike the Rock' meets standards set by hoopla

Jim Bernard
The Daily Iowan

When the Vusisizwe players brought their production of "You Strike the Rock" to Hancher on Friday night, they had an advantage not shared by every traveling show that tramps through Iowa City.

Unlike many political plays, this one promised to be easy: A story of three women that sums up the first person experiences of the oppression of apartheid. The audience would be eager to stand up and applaud the fight against the horrible repressions of women and blacks in South Africa, so there would be little conflict between the quality of the theater and the message.

The spheres of art and politics were merged further on Friday night, since the play had been underwritten by Hancher and several local Iowa City businesses so that the box office sales could be used for scholarships for the UI's minority recruitment program, Opportunity at Iowa. One hundred black high school students were in attendance, after spending a day on campus. And right before the performance, Hunter Rawlings addressed the audience, promising that the UI would "renew its commitment to minority recruitment every day."

So when the house lights came down it seemed that there had already been a performance of types. The play which was to be the centerpiece of the evening had been promoted, advertised, and built up to the extent that good or bad the audience would react positively.

But the play that followed the hoopla not only met the expectations it defied them. In a whirlwind hour-and-a-half race, three amazing actresses, Poppy Tsira, Thobeka Maqutanya and Nomvula Qosha, captured the complete attention of the audience with their characters' stories. The smooth transitions of the rapid-fire variety of experiences created a collage of humanness colored with dance, song and shouts of joy and pain.

It wasn't an easy play to swallow, either. The portrayal of each woman's pain and suffering was further complicated by the relentless presence of apartheid — not the apartheid of politics, but of human existence. Questions like "How can I worry about politics when I'm doing everything I can to feed my children?" and "How can we change the system without concerning ourselves with politics?" bounced off each other all night with no easy answers.

This focus on the daily lives of blacks in South Africa wasn't served with the usual news angle that filters most of the information about apartheid that reaches the American public; the play could not simply end by cutting back to the anchorman in New York. The human side of the struggle in South Africa isn't resolved or understood in one newspaper article or one documentary or even one play. This play was strong enough to realize how deep the struggle is without claiming to fully understand it.

While it's easy to isolate "You Strike the Rock" to the struggle of the South African blacks and South African women the performance demands more. It must be evaluated on two levels — that of apartheid and that of our own culture. The play made a very visible effort on Friday night to work on some of the play's issues, particularly the need for education. The moving performance affirmed and praised these endeavors, but necessitated that we continue to struggle against the racism and sexism that's everywhere in our world.

Exhibit by 'misinformed idiot' a bigoted, dangerous display

Last week there was a display in the Art Building's Checkered Space that deserved a different kind of attention than it got.

Maybe you saw it. An artist named Darrin Jackson hung, on four walls, collages of gay male erotica clipped from magazines, and on the floor in the center of the Space he placed a tombstone littered with lilies and condoms and tiny plastic penises.

Even in a creative environment as soupy as Iowa City, there seldom comes along an art exhibit of any kind quite as dangerous as this one was.

It was dangerous not only because it ended this past weekend, but also because most of the exhibit was stolen even before its time was up. Seems someone wasn't too happy about most of the raunchy stuff being up during the inspection by the Museum's ten-year review team. Only some of the tamer stuff was left up, and even that's now gone, its time over in the Checkered Space.

If you saw the exhibit before its expurgation, you probably found it vaguely revolting. And if you didn't, you should have.

Let's make one point perfectly clear right at the onset: It's the tone of the display that I find revolting and dangerous, not the subject matter. It makes absolutely no difference to me that Darrin is gay, or that his 'work' depicted gay men in various states of excitement. No, my objection isn't that simple, although doubtless Darrin would think so, since, in his manifesto, he alludes to the Biblical axiom, "let he who is without sin cast the first stone." True to form, Darrin badly misunderstands the story and refers to his critics as people throwing stones — and to himself as, you guessed it, he who is without sin.

Regardless, the point is Darrin's flawed and fraudulent 'artistic' sense, not his sexual preferences. Make no mistake: the idea itself was inspired — minus the tombstone, that is. It put before the viewer's eye the naked face — so to speak — of a subculture at the center of the decade's most controversial catastrophe, the AIDS epidemic. In so doing, the display showed viewers the interior of a different world, and anything that can do that is worth seeing.

But that was only the idea. Unfortunately, the idea was executed — literally and figuratively — by an idiot. Worse: a misinformed idiot.

Tacked up alongside the display was a long, rambling, unpunctuated artist's manifesto, written by Darrin, "explaining" his work. As anyone familiar with such artists' manifestoes can probably guess, it was a disaster. Typically, it's in this space that the artist inadvertently displays the mental problems that he overcame in order to produce what it is he is explaining, and Darrin was no exception.

P.O.V.
an arts editorial

Steve Donoghue

Even in a creative environment as soupy as Iowa City, there seldom comes along an art exhibit quite so dangerous as this one was.

"If you look past the shock," Darrin explains in his manifesto, "look past your disgust, maybe you'll open your mind to a rather ingenious (sic) (if I do say so myself) way of drawing your attention to the Aides (sic) issue, the porn issue, the 'what is art?' issue."

But as outrageously self-important as this snippet is, the manifesto gets worse. Amidst grammatical and spelling blunders aplenty, Darrin fashions himself as a kind artistic crusader for his "people" (presumably — although insanely — gay people, although this point is unclear), braying that he'll "turn heaven into hell if I have to, but I will be heard!"

The central kernel of his display — the part that probably prompted its premature dismantling — was a collage of men in skintight leather and chains, clipped from the raunchy equivalents of Playboy and Hustler. This segment was draped with a whip and black mask — nobody, at any time, even for a moment, accused Darrin of subtlety — and, according to Darrin's manifesto, it was something along the lines of the "key" to the whole bawling, exhibitionist mess.

"If you draw a diagonal from the 'leather' collage to the tombstone, all our problems are resolved," he writes, but wait! There's more! "That lifestyle will destroy you — physically and emotionally." Did everybody get that? You draw a straight line from gay S&M to a tombstone, which kinda symbolizes, like, death. Wow. Heavy.

The obscenity of this display wasn't its pictorial content. The obscene thing about it was the tone with which Darrin presented the excrement of his creative urges. This tone was dramatized by all the quotes from Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Evita," which were interspersed between displays (along with the lyrics to "Talk, Talk" by 10,000 Maniacs — which Darrin uses without attribution. But hey — don't call it "plagiarism," or you're just another fag-basher!). Clearly, Darrin sees himself as an Evita, crusading for the welfare of his "people." How else to explain this: "It was guts, courage that got Evita Peron where she was." You mean, aside from an efficient secret police, Darrin?

The danger of this display wasn't in the stuff up on the walls. The danger was in Darrin's abusive assumption that because he himself is gay, he's de facto better informed, more conscientious and more justified to crusade than, say, a heterosexual. Any heterosexual. This tone runs the danger of convincing the mentally unprepared that Darrin is somebody making some kind of important statement, rather than an idiot airing his silly fantasies to shock people.

The theft of most of Darrin's exhibit is inexcusable, of course. As loathsome and dangerous as his work is, the banning of his work from public display is even more loathsome. His display deserved a far different fate than the one it got. Rather than premature emasculation, the exhibit should have been allowed to run its course unmolested and universally mocked for what it was: as simpleminded and bigoted an opinion about gay men and AIDS as anything ever seen in the Campus Review.

'Wind' as ambiguous as its script

Steve Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

Raymond Briggs' modern-day dark fairy tale "When the Wind Blows" is a tricky play. In some ways, it's as tricky to successfully survive as the situation it portrays.

Fallout struck Riverside Theatre several times on Saturday night.

The story of the play is simple: James and Hilda Boggs are a retired English couple not unlike your grandparents — a little doddering, a little dotty, but immensely likeable. Their idyllic little world is upturned when they hear on the radio that a nuclear strike is imminent; James builds a fallout shelter and Hilda stocks it with two weeks' worth of supplies, and they face the post-strike world with the same dogged cheeriness with which they faced WW II.

Briggs takes this simple concept and invests it with layer upon layer of ambiguity, confusion, irony and double entendre. And that's the tricky part. If the actors let any of their own awareness of the ironies creep into their characters, all is lost. The whole point of the play is that the Boggs are oblivious to their plight.

All was not lost on Saturday night, but the play created by Ron Clark and Jody Hovland — along with director Michael Sokoloff — was far less moving and powerful than it could have been.

Most of the blame for this must fall on the actors. From their first instant on stage, Clark and Hovland played their characters' ultra-stereotypical British bonhomie to the hilt — far too much, in fact, to allow anybody to actually identify with them. The Boggs should be people we all know, not cut-out caricatures that are so wrongly easy to disdain. And the lack of flesh and blood on these parts is doubly difficult to understand: The very trick of ironic — but believable — understatement Clark seemed so reluctant to do Saturday night he did marvelously in last semester's "Waiting for Godot." And Hovland, too, has previously displayed — most notably in "Talking With . . ." the kind of sensitive ear that seemed deaf in "When the Wind Blows."

Still, Sokoloff's directing was crisply paced, and Clark and Hovland are two of Iowa City's most talented performers — and "When the Wind Blows" had its moments. Some of Briggs' double entendres are absolutely guaranteed to work, such as when James Boggs, breezily commenting on different kinds of funerals, says, "Give me cremation every time."

On the balance of the evening, Hovland was more consistently believable than Clark. Her fussy, housework-compulsive Hilda delivers fewer of the really penetrating ironies, but by the same token, she seems to live more of them, and Hovland sometimes conveys this well. Clark is best when James' bright-and-breezy exterior gives way to panic or urgency.

"When the Wind Blows" is terrifying theater, the kind that generates only timid, vaguely reluctant applause even when superbly done. This was certainly true Saturday night; the audience fled out in total, almost fearful silence.
