Minority-rights lawyer acts as role model for Latino students

By Rose Grunze
Special To The Daily Iowan

When a group of Latino students flew out to the National Council of La Raza conference in Iowa City several weeks ago, they were seeking a role model. They found her in Norma Cantu, a 27-year-old lawyer from San Antonio.

"I tell my students that if they don't see someone who looks like them, who is a Latina, it's hard to believe that they can do it," Cantu said.

Cantu, who teaches at the University of Minnesota, was invited to give a keynote speech at this year's conference in Iowa City. It is one of several keynote opportunities Cantu has received this year, which she attributes to the "dialogue of a situation."

"As much as it is very important to share personal experiences with the Latino community, I think it's equally important to share our experiences with the larger American society," Cantu said.

"So that when someone comes up to me and says, 'Ms. Cantu, how did you get into the minority-rights field?' I can say, 'You can follow my path, but you can also go another way,'" Cantu said.

"The most important thing is that they can come up with their own paths," she said.

Cantu was awarded the 1994 Minority Rights Lawyer of the Year by MALDEF, the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund. She is also a member of the National Council of La Raza.

"We're always looking to the younger generation for inspiration," Cantu said. "I think there's a lot of potential there."
Indian conference examines culture

By Susan Shepleton

The Daily Iowan

Iowans are working hard today with the culmination of their work set for Saturday when the University of Iowa hosts the 21st Interdependence Conference in Macbride Auditorium.

"The American Indians have never sought anything as long as they have been here," said LeAnne Howe, spokeswoman and speaker for the event.

"Indian students want universities to have a more socially and historically conscious curriculum and an environment that appreciates, not simply tolerates them."

American Indian Student Association

Evaluating the public about American Indian art, medicine, local and national, the American Indian Student Association sponsors an American Indian conference at the University of Iowa.

"Think tanks across the nation are examining their own directions," according to the American Indian Student Association.

All lectures are free and open to the public.

The American Indian Education Committee is sponsored by the American Indian Student Association, Office of Native Affairs, the Council on International Students Affairs, the American Indian Student Association, Department of American Indian Studies, the Student Union, American Indian Education Committee, Union Field, 1008 Conduit and the University of Iowa, Cedar Falls, IA 50614.

"Foreign debt is the biggest problem facing Third World countries, but it's a problem few of us will ever have to face," said Lucas-Dodge, international trade specialist.

"The conference will include lectures by nationally recognized American Indian scholars and the faculty from a diverse background of disciplines."

Indian students have asked the University of Iowa to blend in at college, but go to college for what?«

"It is a question that must be asked..." said Lucas-Dodge.

"Only 9.5 billion of government money is given to Third World countries - this is only 10 percent of the foreign aid budget."

"However," he added, "the '80s were a year of progress and change.

The conference, sponsored by the Iowa City Chapter of the Service Employees International Union, will bring several panels together.

The conference will also include three keynotes.

"This conference can and should be an exciting and important event for all individuals and Third World life. There are some key obstacles, but I personally think they can be overcome."

"This conference is sponsored by the Iowa City Chapter of the Service Employees International Union, the International Trade Specialist, the University of Iowa, and the Third World Conference.

There were several panels with international trade specialists, from Egypt, Nigeria, Peru and Sri Lanka.

Exuding the help of a 13-line poem, Jonathan Clemmer, a gay man and his partner, Orleens Agama, have hosted seminars for bisexual men the correct way to spread the disease.

By 1986, he and his partner, Orleens Agama, brought the message that "gay and safer" practices can still be safe."

"No one could be safe," Schmitt said. "We've talked about sex with death."

problems arise. The bottom outfall - which is when the Russian student arrives - does not always work. Often the students are not ready on time, and meanwhile some hardware is sitting around. A tracking program would speed things up. The tracking program is currently in use as well, and it is being improved. The Russian exchange program is in its early stages of development. A lot is being learned in the process.

Last year's group was pleased with their host families, which cured some handicaps, they say.

Mayeroff used to be a spe­ talist in assessing whether or not a student could speak Russian. He believes that the Russian exchange program is a good idea. However, he does not know if he would send his children to Russia. He feels that a student should be able to read and write Russian before coming to the United States.

The program is still in its early stages of development. The students are learning about the American culture and the American language. However, they are also learning about the Russian culture and the Russian language. The program is a promising one in the future.

Did that eliminate problems?

The program is constantly in contact with the students at the FLH. It is a very successful program for students. They are very successful in their studies and in their host families. The program is very successful for both the students and for the host families.

Some American students were dissatisfied that the Russian students are not always in a group. They feel that they should be in a group, but they are not. The program is in its early stages of development. It is in the process of being improved.

The program is very successful for both the students and for the host families. The program is very successful for the American culture and the American language. The program is very successful for language. The program is a promising one in Saturday's launch marked the end of seven months of frustration for the NASA's Shuttle Program, which has been delayed due to problems with the November.

The 535 million European space­ program is expected to arrive at Jupiter in February 1982. The giant program will provide a gravity assist in Ulysses, clearing it out of the earth's orbit. It will be the first discovery so much sooner.

Sunday's five experiment "was selected from the beginning because of the improvement in the design" according to
C. Rogers, the project's supervisor.

Buckeyes' boss loses lady luck

Ohio State lost a last-minute victory Wednesday night at home to Purdue. If not for lady luck, it could have been a disaster for the Buckeyes. Instead, it just made Purdue look weak.

Ohio State quarterback Brian Foster from sophomore Jeff Olejniczak. Foster entered the game after starter Nick Poloskey's pitcb was not a lateral, but we wanted to prove defense that's what we do in the Buckeyes' defense.

The referees, concerned about the time left, stopped the clock 14 yards. As Foster rushed out of the pocket for a pass, Foster referred to the play as a "little wrinkle," added to the real Nick Bell put the game back 14 yards.

"It was either Mike Wells or the Hawkeyes were on the same field, said Foster, a big left or high school," the offensive coordinator. And he had a chance to win the game. Foster wasn't the only one who didn't want the game to continue. But the Hawkeyes swept three Iowa-Buckeyes. They believed they would have put a stop to the game.

"I'm not so sure but we wanted it to be called, Foster said. They're building a 12-7 win. It's 1-0 and we were down 14 points, with junior George Foster a 12-7 win.

Football

Michigan State took over the half following a 7-0 lead at the end of the first quarter. The Spartans controlled the ball for most of the game, limiting Iowa to just 147 total yards.

In the second half, Michigan State's defense held Iowa to just 35 total yards, forcing the Hawkeyes to punt on their first four possessions.

Iowa's season was marked by a series of turnovers, totaling 27 for the season, including five in the loss to Michigan State.

Volleyball

Michigan State's four-set victory over Iowa on October 1st marked a significant turnaround for the team after several tough losses earlier in the year.

Iowa Coach Beth Vlasek said about the team's 4-1 win, "Our defense was probably the biggest key tonight. We put a lot of pressure on Iowa and they couldn't get anything going."

Polishek

Iowa's loss to Michigan State ended its season and eliminated its hopes for a trip to the NCAA tournament.

Iowa Coach Ruth Johnson said, "We had a chance to win tonight, but we didn't take advantage of it. We didn't play our best game and that's what cost us."
Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton is named by Dave Ollier, a favorite of the Daily News and Rich Froning in the first quarter of the Lions 24-7 victory over the Lions on Sunday.

Judas Priest remains on track

By Annette Van Rotterdam

NEW YORK — Members of the hard-rock band Judas Priest have agreed to continue touring well into 1988, according to sources close to the band. "Priest's new hard-driving album, 'Smoke on the Water,' laid on the past 16 years. It's going to be a great record," said one source.

The decision to continue touring follows a series of successful concerts in the United States and Europe. The band recently completed its North American tour, which included stops in Los Angeles, Chicago, and New York City. "We're looking forward to playing more shows in the spring," said another source.

Priest's next album is currently in the recording stages in London, according to the sources. The album is being produced by Bob Ezrin, who has worked with bands such as Kiss and Alice Cooper. "Bob's a great producer," said one insider. "We're really excited about working with him again."
