Budget Plans Compared

Iowa Senate leaders are bracing for a battle over the state's next year's biennial budget as the legislatures in Washington and on Capitol Hill brace for a potential government shutdown.

Senator Roywold, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the Iowa Senate would meet Monday night to consider the state's budget for fiscal 1991, which begins July 1.

The state's fiscal year is separate from the federal fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30.

Iowa budget

The Iowa budget is expected to be close to $8 billion, with about $2 billion for state government, $5 billion for education and $1 billion for other programs.

Washington budget

The federal budget is expected to be about $2 trillion, with about $1 trillion for defense programs, $600 billion for social programs and $400 billion for other programs.

The federal budget is projected to run a deficit of about $200 billion, while the Iowa budget is expected to run a surplus of about $1 billion.

The Iowa budget is expected to be passed by both the House and Senate, with the governor signing it into law.

The federal budget is expected to be passed by both the House and Senate, with the president signing it into law.

The Iowa budget is expected to be signed by the governor on or before the state fiscal year begins on July 1.

The federal budget is expected to be signed by the president on or before the federal fiscal year begins on Oct. 1.

The Iowa budget is expected to fund the state's schools, public safety, transportation, health care and other programs.

The federal budget is expected to fund the federal government, including defense, social programs and other programs.

The Iowa budget is expected to be adopted by the state legislature, with the governor's approval.

The federal budget is expected to be adopted by Congress, with the president's approval.

Parking lot renovation too costly for UI

By Cynthia Taylor

Campus parking shortages are forcing Davenport to spend $200,000 to put the ramp east to one of the UI's largest parking lots, the Daily Iowan has learned.

An underground parking ramp was originally planned as part of the UI's planned $9.5 million expansion of the Old Main parking lot. The plan called for a 150-space ramp, according to campus plans.

The 25th annual International Writing Program panel discussion (left) Ophelia Alcantara-Dimalanta from the Philippines, Estol Gousheguir from Tunisia and Jean Arasa from St. Lanka. The moderator was IWP Director Clark Blake.

The program was an opportunity for the writers to come together and discuss their experiences as international writers.

The program was titled "The Woman Writer in the World," and it was the focus of the event.

The panelists shared their experiences and perspectives on the theme, highlighting the challenges and opportunities faced by women writers from different cultures.

The discussion was moderated by Clark Blake, who introduced the panelists and set the stage for their conversation.

The panelists included Ophelia Alcantara-Dimalanta from the Philippines, Estol Gousheguir from Tunisia and Jean Arasa from St. Lanka.

Alcantara-Dimalanta shared her experience of writing in the Philippines, discussing the cultural and political influences on her work.

Gousheguir spoke about her writing in Tunisia, highlighting the role of literature in engaging with political and social issues.

Arasa discussed her experience in St. Lanka, emphasizing the importance of literature in times of conflict and the role of writers in promoting peace.

The panelists also shared personal anecdotes and insights into their creative processes.

The discussion was engaging and informative, providing valuable insights into the lives and experiences of international writers.

George Bush has been on the receiving end of harsh criticism from Republicans. It is alleged that Bush would have extended the government's operating budget for automatic renewal. Hence, Bush did not vigorously argue for renewal. But this criticism of Bush’s "porky opportunism" is without substance. Bush did not willingly allow the current fiscal dilemma to determine his public stance before and after the Oct. 1 firearms deadline. Bush warned Congress that legislation would be "porky," but he did not support such action, for he endeavored to ensure that he knew the deficit reduction target had already been met and that he would not be left with new taxes to create a budget surplus. Bush argued with the fiscal roadblocks that were set up to ensure an automatic renewal. But Bush’s argument was not clear and it was not convincing.

Nina Wiener, a 51-year-old judge from Milford, Mass., has been named the first recipient of the Nobel Prize in medicine. Wiener is recognized for his groundbreaking research in the 1950s and 1960s.

The prize, worth $695,000, was awarded to Wiener for his contributions to the field of bone marrow transplantation. Wiener's work has been crucial in the development of modern transplant medicine, and he is credited with saving the lives of thousands of severely ill patients.

Wiener's research has led to the development of new treatments for cancer and other diseases. His work has had a profound impact on the field of medicine, and he is widely regarded as one of the most influential medical researchers of our time.

The award ceremony was held in Washington, D.C., on August 28, 1990, and was attended by President Bush and other dignitaries. Wiener was presented with a gold medal and a diploma by the Karolinska Institute, the institution that administers the Nobel Prize.

Wiener's achievements have not gone unnoticed by his peers. He has been awarded numerous honors and awards throughout his career, including the Order of the Rising Sun, the highest honor given by the Japanese government.

Wiener is a native of New York City and received his medical degree from Harvard University. He has been a practicing doctor for over three decades and is currently affiliated with the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle, Washington.

His groundbreaking research in bone marrow transplantation has revolutionized the treatment of leukemia and other blood-related cancers. Wiener's work has led to the development of new treatments for cancer and other diseases, and he is widely regarded as one of the most influential medical researchers of our time.

The Nobel Prize in medicine is awarded annually by the Nobel Assembly of the Karolinska Institute in Stockholm, Sweden, to recognize outstanding contributions to the field of medicine.

In addition to his work in bone marrow transplantation, Wiener has also made significant contributions to the field of bone marrow donors. He has been a vocal advocate for increasing the number of bone marrow donors, and his efforts have helped to save the lives of thousands of children and adults around the world.

Wiener's dedication to his work and his commitment to the field of medicine have earned him widespread respect and admiration. He is widely regarded as a true pioneer in the field of medicine, and his contributions will continue to have a profound impact on the treatment of cancer and other diseases for generations to come.

By teurred for duty with the multinational force facing Iraq died in a jet crash Monday in the Arabian Sea, the Navy searched for wreckage of at least one helicopter that belonged to a unit of the Saudi Arabian Air Force.

The official Iraqi News Agency, monitoring the Persian Gulf, said two American helicopters had been missing in the region since the deployment of more than 12 ships deployed in the gulf. The British Defense Ministry said the ministry had ruled out hostile takeoff in West Germany.

Both were assigned to the Royal Marines of the Canadian Camel Unit and were flying in support of American and United Nations troops in the region after Iraq invaded the Gulf. They were operating in the southern Gulf, said a spokesman for the multinational force of ships in the region, and had been monitoring the Iraqi ships to stop and submit to inspection.

The two Marine helicopters dis­ appeared about 9:45 p.m. during a training mission, said a guard officer at the military command in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia.

They were operating in the southern Gulf, said a spokesman for the multinational force of ships in the region, and had been monitoring the Iraqi ships to stop and submit to inspection.

The two Marine helicopters dis­ appeared about 9:45 p.m. during a training mission, said a guard officer at the military command in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia. The official Iraqi News Agency, monitoring the Persian Gulf, said two American helicopters had been missing in the region since the deployment of more than 12 ships deployed in the gulf. The British Defense Ministry said the ministry had ruled out hostile takeoff in West Germany.

Before Monday, five American soldiers had been killed in the region after Iraq invaded the Gulf. The Pentagon said raids would continue to enforce the embargo, which was allowed to continue on its way, was empty and presumably to Iraq, the ministry said in London.

Fifth down costs Mizzou, refs

By Doug Tucker
Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A play that never should have been run cost Missouri a victory, put seven Big Eight officials' reputations in jeopardy and cast serious doubt on the national championship tournament.

It started with a 5-0 lead. With 3:18 left in the game and FAMU 1st-and-goal at the Missouri 18, the scoreboard read: 4th quarter, 3 minutes, 13 seconds, 1st and goal.

The Big Eight's officials, who have been roundly criticized by fans and players alike, have a 60 percent胜率 of 1st-and-goal situations to convert. The officials had the last word. The officials' decision was later upheld.

But Missouri officials, and those in the Missouri-Miami game, have a 60 percent胜率 of 1st-and-goal situations to convert. The officials had the last word. The officials' decision was later upheld.

Miami's Mark Duper caught a 14-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Charles Johnson on the next play, giving the Hurricanes a 14-7 lead. Miami's Greg Blackard kicked the subsequent extra point for a 17-7 halftime lead.

Miami piled up 280 total yards against Missouri's 143. Missouri quarterback Doug Tucker completed 13 of 23 passes for 151 yards, but the Tigers committed three turnovers and averaged only 3.9 yards per play.

Miami's Walt McCallam completed 10 of 24 passes for 110 yards. The Hurricanes had only 28 rushing yards but drove on two of their three possessions to score.

This was the first meeting of the two teams since 1945.

"I wish 15 yards could have been made. The spectrum of what happened in this game clearly demonstrated that there was a problem," Miami coach Paul Theriault said.

"We expect the officials to do their jobs and we'll try to do ours," Missouri coach Don Peterson said.

The game was played on the field for the players and the feeling is that it should be played on the field for the coaches and officials as well.

The Missouri stats are obviously exciting. The Tigers did not score on their opening drive, but had an 8-play, 68-yard drive to set up Duper's 14-yard touchdown.

Missouri's offense, which had a season-high 14 first downs, dominated early. Miami's defense, which had allowed only 62 rushing yards in Miami's first five games, was held to 22 yards in the first half.

The Tigers had 155 total yards and 97 rushing yards in the first half. Missouri had 275 total yards and 170 rushing yards in the first half.

Miami's defense was its only strength. The Hurricanes had six sacks and forced Missouri into four turnovers. Miami's defense also held Missouri to 3.9 yards per play.

"I thought we did a good job of not making things easy for Missouri," Theriault said.

"We've slugged it out with Missouri on the field, and there was a question about whether or not Missouri was of that caliber," Theriault said.

Moor sits on a bench next to the field. The Missouri-Miami game was his last. He had a 7-4 record in five years as Missouri's head coach.

"It's kind of a bittersweet feeling," Moor said. "I'm happy for the players and the house. I'm happy they had a chance to play in the national championship game."
