Hillcrest sponsors holiday festival

Winterfest helps needy children

By Michael Williams
The Daily Iowan

Students in Hillcrest Residence Hall — busy completing term papers and studying for final exams — may have learned one of their biggest lessons this semester through a visit from Santa Claus and 80 needy children.

Over 30 UI students participated in the Hillcrest Association's ninth annual Winterfest program, held Saturday to benefit needy children.

"There's nothing like children to brighten up a room," said Lori Wunder, a resident assistant in Hillcrest Residence Hall who sang carols with the children. "When they're happy, there's no mistake about it. It really made you stop and think about how really important that paper was, or the tests coming up. They really don't mean very much — it's people who are really important, and that was an important lesson to learn."

In past years, about 40 children had signed up each year for the event through the Head Start program. But last Friday, HA President and Winterfest organizer Laura Hird, received a call informing her to expect more than 100 this year. About 25 local businesses donated food and toys, in addition to $150 given by HA and $400 dollars raised by Hillcrest residents.

In addition to cookies and punch, the children played games with UI students, sang Christmas carols

Kohl's coalition triumphs easily in German vote

Nation's swift reunification cited for leader's popularity

By Terrence Petty
The Associated Press

BONN, Germany — Chancellor Helmut Kohl's center-right coalition on Sunday easily won the first free all-German elections since 1932, buoyed by his popularity as the man who crafted swift unification.

The balloting capped a breathtaking transformation that began with a revolt last year against East Germany's Communist government and led to the merging of East and West Germany on Oct. 3.

East Germany's former ruling Communist Party, now called the Party for Democratic Socialism, won some seats in the new German Parliament, but lost much of the support it had earlier this year.

In perhaps the biggest surprise, the Greens environmental party of former West Germany, Europe's best-known ecology movement, lost all their seats. Only the Greens' sister party in eastern Germany won seats in the new parliament.

A jubilant Kohl was greeted at his Christian Democrat party headquarters by a throng of well-wishers.

"This is a day of great joy," he told them. "This is a great success and something to be proud of."

At the headquarters of the rival Social Democrats, the scene was somber. "We have lost the election," Kohl's rival Oskar Lafontaine told his supporters.

According to forecasts based on partial returns from most election districts, Kohl's coalition was expected to win 55 percent of the vote, compared with about 34 percent for the Social Democrats. The projections, broadcast on television, have been highly accurate in the past.

Official results were not expected until Monday.

Berlin, divided until just over a year ago by the Wall, held its own united elections. Social Democrat Mayor Walter Momper lost to his predecessor, conservative Eberhard Diepgen of Kohl's party.

The ARD television network said Kohl's Christian Democrats and their Bavarian sister party, the Christian Social Union, increased their parliamentary seats from 305 to about 316. It said the Social Democrats, who had 226 seats before the vote, captured about 240.

ARD based its forecasts on a poll of 453 of 477 election districts.

Along with Kohl, Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher was among the big victors. ARD said Genscher's Free Democrats, Kohl's junior coalition partner, would increase their representation from 57 to 79 seats in the 656-seat Parliament.

The poor showing of the Greens was one of the biggest election surprises. ARD said the Greens lost all but about eight of their 48 parliamentary seats. In the former West Germany, they garnered only about 4.8 percent of the national vote, ARD said, less than the 5 percent needed for parliamentary representation. That means the

Iraqi armies test surface-to-surface missiles on home turf

By Laura King
The Associated Press

Saddam Hussein's armies rattled nerves around the Persian Gulf Sunday with the first test of surface-to-surface missiles since the invasion of Kuwait. The Iraqi president said the chances of war in the region stand at "50-50."

In Washington, Secretary of State James Baker said the United States would not attack Iraq — provided Iraqi troops are withdrawn from Kuwait and foreign hostages are freed.

Iraq, which has been sporadically releasing captives, let more go on Sunday. Fifteen freed Americans flew out of Iraq with former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, who secured their release in talks with Saddam.

A spokesman for the boxer said he planned to return to Baghdad at Christmas to try to bring out more of the hundreds of remaining captives who were stranded when Iraq invaded small, oil-rich Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Iraq, meanwhile, told the Soviet Union that it could lose its influence in the Arab world if it sent troops to the Persian Gulf. That was apparently in response to a warning from Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who said last week Moscow would send in soldiers if Soviet citizens trapped in Iraq were harmed.

The official Iraqi News agency quoted an Iraqi Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying Shevardnadze "seems to be looking for a pretext to send troops to the region."

More than 350,000 troops are in the Persian Gulf as part of the U.S.-led multinational force. American troops, now numbering more than 240,000, are expected to swell to around 400,000 by next month.

The U.S. military refused to say whether the American forces went on alert Sunday when Iraq launched surface-to-surface missiles in what appeared to be test launches.

The missiles were fired — and landed — in Iraqi territory, U.S. military officials in Saudi Arabia said in a statement.

The officials refused to say how the missiles were detected, but they apparently were monitored either by U.S. spy satellites or AWACS airborne early warning radar planes, which are on patrol 24 hours a day.

The military statement did not say what kind of missiles were involved, but Defense Secretary

Dick Cheney, interviewed in Washington by ABC-TV, said they were SCUD missiles "or SCUD variants." He said it was the first such firing since April.

Cheney said Saddam has used the missiles, which have a range of 350 to 400 miles, with conventional warheads in the past. But he said a SCUD "could conceivably carry chemical weapons."

The Iraqi test-firing came at a time of already heightened tensions. The forces in Saudi Arabia were reported to have been put on "yellow alert" — one category below full combat alert — last week, after the U.N. Security Council approved a resolution authorizing use of force against Iraq if it does not withdraw from Kuwait by Jan. 15.

Saddam, in an interview aired Sunday by the French television network Antenne 2, repeatedly refused to answer questions about the possibility of a pullout.

In the interview, the first granted to a foreign television network since the U.N. resolution was passed, he was asked what the chances were of war breaking out.

"50-50," he replied.

But he said he was ready to talk with U.S. officials if they came to Baghdad "in a spirit of dialogue." That was in apparent reference to an offer by President Bush last week to send Baker to Iraq for

'Walk Against War' turnout surpasses organizers' hopes

By Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

Braving cold temperatures and biting winds, more than 250 people marched against war in the Middle East Sunday in Iowa City.

The marchers carried signs, chanted anti-war slogans and sang on the 45-minute "Walk Against War" that began at College Green Park and wound through the downtown area.

Organized by the newly formed Iowa City group Women Against War, the rally was the largest of its kind locally since the deployment of American troops in the Persian Gulf.

"We decided we need to articulate the voice of women opposed to the impending war," said Carol deProse of Women Against War.

DeProse said the organizers weren't expecting such a large turnout and were "exuberant" about how many men and women participated.

"What happened was beyond our expectations," she said. "We were floored by the numbers."

One marcher said many of the anti-war rallies against Vietnam in the 1960s began at the same location, and deProse said several people commented that the march brought back many memories.

Local geologists remain skeptical of earthquake prediction

By Susan Stapleton
The Daily Iowan

Iben Browning's earthquake predictions may have area residents trembling, but local geology experts and some residents don't hold much credence in Browning's December shaky fortune-telling.

Browning predicted that a major earthquake will strike on Dec. 2 or 3 on the New Madrid faultline.

The 72-year-old self-trained climatologist from Tijeras, New Mexico, who has no formal training in seismology or climatology, put the scare on Midwesterners when he predicted an earthquake with an epicenter that would affect a seven-state area — including Tennessee, Missouri, Mississippi, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Arkansas.

"He has absolutely no scientific credentials to predict an earthquake," said Ray Anderson, a geologist at the State of Iowa Department of Natural Resources, a geological survey bureau.

Anderson noted that there has been seismic activity in the region for the past 200 years. In 1811 and 1812 there were three large earthquakes that occurred, all measuring over an eight on the Richter scale. These were the largest series of earthquakes in North American history.

The most recent seismic activity in the area occurred in 1895 when a earthquake struck the New Madrid Fault — measuring over a six on the Richter scale, he added.

Anderson said studies of excavations in the area show that there have been previous earthquakes in this region. He added that the best indicator of an earthquake is the time elapse between seismic movement.

"The (earthquakes in this area) have a recurrence interval of once every 100 to 120 years," Anderson said. "That's the best indicator that one will hit."

Robert Brenner, a UI professor of geology, believes the region will be the target of a major earthquake — but not tomorrow.

"The geological situation is such that we're fairly certain that there will be a major earthquake in the future. But we don't know when," Brenner said.

"Predictions based on probability are made all the time. Tomorrow the chances are no better or no worse than any day. There's no real hard, scientific evidence to say it will happen tomorrow," he added.

Earthquakes occur when pressure builds up under layers of rocks over the years and eventually needs to be relieved, usually on faultlines. When the stress overcomes the friction, a faultline

Investigators find Walden Place fire suspicious

The Daily Iowan

Fire investigators have labeled Wednesday's Walden Place Retirement Center blaze suspicious.

Iowa City Fire Chief Larry Donner said he and investigators from the state Fire Marshal's office "haven't ruled anything out" in searching for the cause of the early morning fire that resulted in an estimated $2.9 million damage to the unfinished apartment complex.

"There was a lot of damage, and there are some things in the fire that don't fit the normal patterns," Donner said. "We haven't ruled anything out."

In a press release issued Friday, Donner said there are no suspects in the continuing investigation.

Construction on the 102-unit complex was about 80 percent complete when the fire broke out. Donner said 45-mile-per-hour winds spread the fire rapidly throughout the building and that if the building had been complete, the sprinkler system would have kept damages to a minimum.

He also said propane gas connected to portable heaters at the construction site added to the intensity of the fire.

The building was scheduled for completion in early February. The owner, Colson and Colson Construction Company, plans to rebuild the complex, according to Wally Gutzler, an attorney for the Salem, Ore., company.

Saturday, the Cedar Rapids Gazette reported that 21 liens for overdue payments totaling $900,000 have been filed by firms that provided materials for the project since last summer.

In the Gazette article, Gutzler said the firms will be paid in several weeks.

'Thieves' flock to IC to show their wares

By Aziz Gökdemir
The Daily Iowan

The thieves came to Iowa City this past weekend.

More than 120 Midwestern artists offered the products of their crafts for "The Thieves Market — A Juried Fair of Regional Art" Saturday and Sunday in the Iowa Memorial Union.

Visitors ranged from gleeful children strapped to their parents' backs to the graying young-at-heart.

Wooden trains and colored goose eggs — some carrying $27 price tags — seemed to be a favorite of the kids.

"The difficult ones take me hours to paint," said Debra Jo Yellick Manly, of Grinnell, Iowa. Manly conducts workshops in Iowa City to teach the art of coloring eggs.

Meanwhile, a long line led to local artist Dianna Penny, who drew portraits in charcoal. Her watercolors and pastels were also on sale.

The theme of the show seemed to be uniqueness and handmade production. Following signs from the Main Lounge to the adjacent lobbies, not once would visitors be greeted with the same product. As the Fine Arts Council puts it, "No commercially formed items, antiques, or molded works are allowed into the (Thieves') Markets," which are held four times a year.

The 116 stands painted a colorful picture and "the business (was) quite good," according to Sylvia Trout, a Goodman, Mo., artist who specializes in batik designs. Trout said that she attends 32 shows a year to sell the silk scarves and earrings she makes and that "these events help a lot."

A sight that detracted somewhat from the struggling artists at the fair, though, was the Visa/Mastercard sign on many of the stands — a necessity in this type of business, according to Trout.

And speaking of commerce: Familiar department-store dialogue was not absent from the event.

Showing off his works of wood, Steve Munn (center) from Indianapolis explains some details of his business "Wooden Concepts" at the Thieves' Market in the Union Sunday afternoon.

"Will it bleed?" a prospective customer wanted to know, as she fondled a shirt that sported a liberal spectrum of colors.

"It's been machine-washed and dried," the artist assured her.

From bronze sculptures to featherly masks, the event aimed to please as wide-ranging an audience as possible.

The UI Fine Arts Council will use funds raised by the Thieves' Market to sponsor several arts-related events and projects, including the annual Student Art Exhibition, monthly Art in the Bookstore exhibits and the Student Art Grants awarded annually to UI students working in a variety of fields.

Iowa may see increase in HIV-infected babies

The Associated Press

Six babies were born in Iowa last year to mothers infected with the virus that causes AIDS, according to the Iowa Department of Health.

Since it takes about a year for a child's immune system to develop, it is not known how many of the infants will be HIV-infected.

Nationally, about 30 percent of the babies born to HIV-infected mothers also are infected, said

Carolyn Jacobson, acting program manager for the state health department's AIDS program.

If that proportion holds true, it would mean two of the babies born to infected Iowans from July 1989 through June 1990 may be infected, she said.

To date, Iowa has recorded one case in which a child developed acquired immune deficiency syndrome after receiving the HIV virus from a parent.

The infected mothers were diagnosed through 37,846 blood tests analyzed for the year ending June 30 by the University of Iowa Hygienic Laboratory. The tests are required for any woman giving birth in Iowa.

Although the 19 Iowa women with AIDS are easily outnumbered by men with AIDS — 199 — cases involving women have grown at a faster rate this year. Six new cases have been reported by women since January, compared with 13 reported since 1983. Of the 218 Iowans reported as having AIDS, 123 have died.

and enjoyed a visit from Santa and Mrs. Claus (played by Nina Hudson, an employee of Hillcrest Food Services, and her husband, John). The finale came when bags of mittens, toothbrushes, candy, toys and stuffed animals were passed out to the children.

One teacher, Theresa Wilson, said that one of the most important benefits of Winterfest was "the interacting of the children with the students here. It's a little hard to warm up to them — I mean, I think my kids are kind of shy, but once they do, I think it's really good for them. I really like that the boys had young men to talk to — they don't all have that chance."

UI junior Annette Deitz spent the day playing "Pin the Nose on the Rudolph" and "Santa Says" with the children.

"I was really glad to see that they got toys and stuff that they could enjoy and probably couldn't afford otherwise," she said. "But they also got things that were useful, like warm mittens."

One mother said, "My husband's going to school right now, and I'm working and have three kids, and it's hard to afford presents right now."

"A lot of people think that college students are horrible," Hird said. "They view us as people who just go out and get drunk and be wild. There's a lot of students who don't fit that stereotype at all — I'd like to change people's ideas about college students."

Clockwise from upper-right: Santa Claus gets a taste of tag-team wrestling when an over-zealous duo decides to inspect the elasticity of his whiskers. He turns them over to his wife, as children and parents settle down for Mrs. Claus' telling of "The Night Before Christmas." Finally, the long-awaited moment came. Among the gifts, children receive fuzzy new friends, as well as warm mittens.

Tiny school districts unite at higher rate

The Associated Press

DES MOINES — Iowa's small school districts are merging or sharing classes at an increased rate in recent years, with some of their officials accusing the state of a broad conspiracy to make it impossible for tiny districts to survive.

Six years ago, two districts pooled some of their students. This year, 104 are sharing classes, according to state records. Superintendents are shared by 110 districts in 1990 compared with just four in 1984.

Between 1965 and 1985, consolidations occurred at a rate of one per year. Since then, there were two per year and next year, four new mergers go into effect.

Of Iowa's 430 public school districts, 79 had fewer than 300 students last year. Of those 79, only 24 were independent and operated all 13 grades in their schools without sending one or more grades to a neighboring district. Among them is the state's smallest district, Lineville-Clio, which has just 93 students from kindergarten through high school.

Another 19 districts have fewer than 200 students, of which only two — Prescott and Grand Valley of Kellerton — were independent.

Larry Waugh of Whiting, president of Rural Schools of Iowa, said the state is out to eliminate small districts.

"They've enacted all this legislation — the standards, the new funding formula and open enrollment — to squeeze the small districts," he said. New standards require additional course offerings, which is difficult for schools with few teachers. When the Hedrick district didn't measure up, the state took over the school last month, causing small-school advocates to fear their own schools might be threatened.

"It scared the hell out of a bunch of people," said Ron Warren, school board president at Gilmore City-Bradgate.

State officials insist there is no conspiracy. "I do not have an agenda to close the small districts," said William Lepley, director of the Department of Education.

But he said he takes the standards seriously. "I think the Hedrick decision has certainly drawn the attention from a few small districts that perhaps have not taken the standards all that seriously," he said.

He also said the smallest districts are fighting a losing battle. "I think they have a limited number of years they can remain financially solvent," he said.

Part of the reason is the state changed its funding formula to equalize the number of dollars spent per child. The old formula was supposed to do the same thing, but disparities had grown and rural districts were getting more per child than urban ones.

The debate between big- and small-school proponents is never ending. Small-school proponents note the large amount of parental involvement and low dropout rate among students. But small schools are also least likely to have teachers with advanced degrees, and scores on college entrance exams are lower.

Dan Ryan, minister at St. Thomas More, 405 N. Riverside, helps UI senior Beth Dennison remove debris and rubble from an old house Saturday morning. Several groups worked together to tear down the house in order to raise money for housing needs for people with AIDS.

Group gives to IC-ARE in honor of AIDS Day

By Heidi Pederson
The Daily Iowan

As part of World AIDS Day, several local citizens decided to observe the occasion by destroying a house.

The dilapidated dwelling, located at 122 McLean St., was owned by St. Thomas More Church. It was torn down Friday and Saturday by church parishioners, members of the Iowa Center for AIDS/ARC Resources and Education, and Phi Kappa Theta fraternity members.

In lieu of accepting contractor bids for razing the house, church members decided to pay $2700 — the estimated cost of the demolition — to a community group willing to do the job.

"(The church) wanted to give the money to the people who needed it the most," said Dan Ryan of St. Thomas More. "It was just a question of finding that need."

A church panel decided the offer would go to IC-ARE to help with housing needs.

"People with AIDS have biases to deal with in housing issues," said IC-ARE board member John Higgins. "Affordable housing is a particular problem for them."

These biases include a six-month carryover after a PWA is no longer able to work before Social Security insurance will pay for housing costs, according to Ryan.

The house was torn down Friday, and cleanup was done on Saturday, Higgins said. He commended local residents for their help with the project, including donation of trucks and equipment.

"A lot of people jumped in and got involved," he said.

Ryan said fund-raising projects like this provide badly needed assistance.

"These are people that we usually don't think about when it comes to housing, and there are a lot of needs out there that haven't been met," he said.

Census: Young farmers number fewer than ever

The Associated Press

DES MOINES—There isn't much room for young people on Iowa farms these days.

The average age of Iowa's farmers is 49, according to the most recent Census data, and there are fewer farmers under 25 than ever before.

With so few new faces, "We're getting to just about where we know every one of them by name," said Mike Duffy, an Iowa State University economist.

Advocates for farmers blame government policies for making it more and more difficult for young people to begin farming, and farm policy experts fear the graying of agriculture threatens the family farm tradition in Iowa.

"It's not just idle concern that we're going to develop a generation of landed gentry," said Marty Strange, an economist and founder of the farm advocacy group, the Center for Rural Affairs in Walthill, Neb.

Farmers under 25, always a minority in an occupation that demands modest wealth, shrank from 5,602 at the beginning of the decade to 2,850 by 1987, or just 2.7 percent of all Iowa farmers.

In Iowa State's 1989 financial survey of farmers, only 3 percent of farmland sold in Iowa went to beginning farmers, down from about 8 percent in the 1970s, according to Duffy.

While the number of farms and farmers has been declining steadily for decades, there have been several surges among young farmers. Shortly after World War II, the number of farmers under age 25 soared 45 percent as young men and women returned home. The number in 1950 was about 7,500. And in the easy-credit days of the early 1970s, there was also an increase in young farmers.

Among the leading reasons for a shortage is young farmers now is that it is increasingly difficult for them to obtain financing.

talks. Iraq accepted but said it wanted to talk about the Arab-Israeli conflict, too. The United States has refused to link any resolution of the gulf crisis with the Palestinian question.

Baker said Sunday that if Saddam complied with U.N. resolutions passed since the crisis erupted four months ago, he would have no reason to fear attack.

"There has never been any suggestion that force would be used if the U.N. resolutions are fully complied with," the secretary of state said in an interview on NBC-TV.

Those resolutions call for the unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait, the restoration of the Kuwaiti government and the release of all hostages.

The 15 Americans freed Sunday were among 47 foreigners, including Belgians, Britons and Canadians freed separately by Iraq, who arrived in Amman, Jordan, aboard an Iraqi Airways flight.

All the Americans had been held at strategic sites in Iraq and Kuwait as "human shields" against any attack by the multinational force.

In other developments:

■ Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz met with Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The Iraq News Agency said only that they discussed "developments in the Arab arena."

■ Eight British women and one Dutch woman left London Sunday bound for Baghdad where they hope to win the release of their husbands. The British government discourages such trips, but similar missions have met with success.

■ Filipinos returning from Iraq and occupied Kuwait told of long lines for food and of Iraqis scavenging for scraps thrown away at the airport by departing foreigners. Some of the Filipinos also said Iraqi soldiers were still looting groceries and homes in occupied Kuwait.

Quake

releases its energy, resulting in an earthquake.

Browning based his Dec. 3 earthquake prediction on tidal forces — a gravitational pull on the atmosphere when the sun and moon are aligned. Browning claims these forces will be at a 60-year high in the next few days.

Anderson said the tidal forces theory was thought of years ago and has been disproved. He added that the force on either side of the fault would be equal and could not cause an earthquake.

Brenner also has his doubts of the tidal forces theory.

"Tidal forces are very minuscule," he said. "Maybe that minuscule difference is going to make it happen."

UI graduate student John Phillips said he thinks that predicting earthquakes is foolish.

"Yes, I think there will be an earthquake, but not tomorrow. I really don't believe they can predict it will happen on a particular day," he said.

Iowa City resident Rob Robinson said he was looking forward to the impending quake.

"The guy who's saying it's tomorrow has a pretty good track record," Robinson said.

"Whether or not we can feel it, I don't know," said the 24-year-old Robinson. "I'm kind of excited. Every time my desk shakes at work I'm going to scream."

Man accused of attempted murder now faces rape charge

By Diana Wallace
The Daily Iowan

A Cedar Rapids man charged with kidnapping and attempted murder against a woman he allegedly stabbed eight times now faces an additional charge of second-degree sexual assault.

Patrick McAamis, 26, of Cedar Rapids, will be arraigned Tuesday in Linn County on first-degree kidnapping charges and again in Johnson County for the sexual abuse and attempted murder charges.

According to court documents, McAamis is accused of forcing his way into the car of the 21-year-old victim on the morning of Oct. 20, beating her, and then driving to a secluded area in rural Johnson County where he forced her to have sexual intercourse with him and stabbed her eight times.

The victim reportedly encountered McAamis when she stopped her car after leaving a bar that night to ask directions to the west side of Cedar Rapids.

According to the account of the incident filed by Johnson County Prosecuting Attorney Anne Lahey, McAamis forced the victim to perform oral sex and engage in vaginal intercourse, threatening her with a knife with a 5-inch blade. During this time, he repeatedly told the victim that, when he was finished, he'd let her go and wouldn't hurt her.

However, court records state that McAamis then said, "Sorry, bitch, but I'm going to have to kill you," and proceeded to stab the victim multiple times as she tried to escape.

"Die, bitch. I can't believe you're not dead yet," he reportedly said.

The victim suffered eight stab wounds that collapsed both of her lungs, lacerated her liver and left her in critical condition.

McAamis is currently being held in the Johnson County Jail on $150,000 bond. He was arrested at his father's home in El Paso, Texas, Nov. 16.

Germany

Greens' main leaders will be excluded from Parliament.

The Greens' sister branch in former East Germany won about 6 percent of the vote, said ARD. Under onetime special election laws, small parties in former East Germany can enter Parliament by chalking up at least 5 percent on their home turf.

In West Germany's 1987 federal elections, the Greens won 8.3 percent.

Lafontaine blamed his Social Democrats' loss on Kohl's ability to capitalize on the tumultuous events that began with East Germany's peaceful revolution in October 1989 and led to unification.

There were official events which gave the stage to the government and gave the opposition difficulties in articulating its program," he said.

Germany last voted freely as one nation in November 1932. Two months later, Hitler was named chancellor and soon drove through laws depriving non-Nazis of their seats in parliament. Hitler's designs triggered World War II, which laid waste to Europe and carved two ideologically opposed German nations out of one.

Kohl automatically became the leader of all Germany when the two states merged on Oct. 3.

Even as Germans looked to a united future, the election was shadowed by a reminder of a dark past. Officials were seeking entry to a Soviet military hospital near Berlin to arrest former East German leader Erich Honecker.

Honecker, 78, is accused of personally issuing shoot-to-kill orders to prevent people from fleeing the Communist state he ruled with an iron hand for 18 years before being swept from power in October 1989. A warrant for his arrest was issued on Friday.

Peace

Students, parents pushing strollers and young children were part of the diverse crowd participating in the march.

Marcher Steve Marsden said this was indicative of the support the anti-war sentiment has in all segments of the American population.

"People of all sectors of the population are against war; it's not just a student movement," Marsden said.

"So much of the opposition has

The polling institute Infas, basing its forecasts on early vote counts, gave Kohl's conservative Christian Democrats and their Bavarian sister party, the Christian Social Union, 43.5 percent of the vote.

Kohl's junior coalition partner, the centrist Free Democrats, were expected to win about 10.9 percent, Infas said.

The parties had already said they would form a new coalition if Kohl won.

The ARD network said the Social Democrats were badly defeated in former East Germany, where they won 25 percent of the vote to 57 percent for Kohl's coalition.

EEOC to implement use of 'testers' to facilitate job discrimination suits

By Denise Cabrera
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission said Sunday the federal government will begin prosecuting job discrimination cases in which individuals used as "testers" by civil rights groups charge they have been illegally denied employment.

The new policy extends the use of testers — long a tactic in housing-discrimination suits — to the federal employment bias arena for the first time.

"It's used in housing cases and used by other state agencies, and I couldn't see why it couldn't be used by the commission," Evan Kemp, chairman of the EEOC, said in a telephone interview.

Testers — or individuals from minority and women's groups who historically have been victims of discrimination — have posed as renters or home buyers to win housing-discrimination suits.

The Supreme Court in 1982 said such activities were legal even if the testers did not intend to rent or buy.

However, the government never has used the testimony of testers to

"People that apply for a job in answer to a newspaper ad can be discriminated against, and they won't know it."

Evan J. Kemp, Jr.
chairman, EEOC

prosecute job discrimination cases. Kemp said the new commission policy, announced Friday, would address one of the "weaknesses" of the EEOC system.

"People that apply for a job in answer to a newspaper ad can be discriminated against, and they won't know it," under current circumstances, Kemp said.

The EEOC chairman said he was confident his agency has the legal authority to bring the cases because the "courts address this all the time and make a determination whether an employer has discriminated or not."

Representatives of the business community could not be reached for comment Sunday on the new policy.

But Stephen Bokart of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce told The Washington Post that "proving the case" of job bias against an employment tester would be "infinitely more difficult than it is in the housing context."

In housing, the "only issue is whether someone is financially capable of paying the rent on the property or of buying a piece of property," Bokart was quoted as saying in Sunday's editions of the newspaper.

In job testing cases, "There are all sorts of things, how articulate the person is ... lots more subjective considerations that go into a decision," Bokart said.

Kemp admitted there may be some difficulties in implementing the policy and said his agency was still deciding "how we're going to work it."

There are no current tests set up, Kemp said, but the agency would initiate proceedings on charges brought by civil rights and community groups.

Earthquake predictions cause flight

By Janet K. Isbell
The Associated Press

MARKED TREE, Ark. — The earth stood still Sunday, as usual. The only thing moving was the stream of jumpy residents fleeing in fear of an earthquake.

New Mexico scientist Iben Browning projected a 50-50 chance of a major temblor along the New Madrid fault for the five days that began Saturday. The fault's southern end is under this town of about 3,200 people. It runs northeast to Cairo, Ill.

Browning, 72, bases his theory on the gravitational pull of the sun and moon, which he says will be particularly strong during the period.

On the basis of Browning's prediction, dozens of people have packed their belongings and left town.

Scientists have scoffed at his projection. But these same scientists say an earthquake is likely someday.

So even skeptical residents, like convenience store cashier Rhea Womack, aren't taking any chances.

"If this doesn't happen, I don't want to hear anything else about earthquakes," Womack said.

A few hours later, on Saturday night, Womack and her husband, Scott, left town, joining the temporary migration.

Those who stayed, prayed.

"Bless all of us, oh Father, that are upset about the earthquake," said Ira Whitfield when he opened Sunday school at St. John Missionary Baptist Church.

Church Deacon Sterling Ivy said he had expected the crowd to be smaller than usual. It was, what with some people suddenly out of town and others afraid to leave their houses.

The same concern has closed schools in parts of Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri, Kentucky and Illinois for a few days early this week.

In Illinois' St. Clair County, residents were watching cats, dogs and cows for signs of nervousness.

"If we notice any exceptional behavior, we will not hold school Monday," said Superintendent Bill Gullick of the county's Marissa Community Unit School District 40.

Democratic rule, market policies highlight Bush's S. American trip

By George Gedda
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush departed Sunday night on a week-long trip to South America that is aimed at calling attention to the historic shift in the region to democratic rule and market-oriented economic policies.

Bush's first stop on his weeklong tour was to be Brasilia, Brazil, following an overnight flight from Washington. His itinerary also includes Uruguay, Argentina, Chile and Venezuela.

At each stop he is expected to hail the evolution to democratic rule in Latin America and to promote his vision of a hemisphere-wide free-trade zone.

After a decade in which U.S. hemispheric policy was dominated by the political upheaval in Central America, Bush now has the luxury of what U.S. officials like to call a "positive agenda" in his dealings with Latin America.

Skeptics wonder about the utility of his visit at a time of crisis in the Persian Gulf, but Bush feels it is important to seize on what he regards as a moment of unique opportunity in hemispheric relations.

Bush was to have made the visit in September but postponed it because of the gulf situation. Secretary of State James Baker will remain in Washington to deal with that issue.

Each of the countries on Bush's itinerary, except Venezuela, began the last decade under military rule and now has an elected president. Venezuela has had a stable, democratic government since 1958.

Beyond that, there is an emerging consensus in the hemisphere that radical economic reform is required to help the region escape from the "lost decade" of the 1980s — a period in which production, investment and consumption all fell sharply.

Through his "Enterprise for the Americas Initiative," unveiled last June, Bush is attempting to promote economic growth by encouraging more free trade and increased investment. Countries that adopt reform measures would be eligible for debt reduction.

The emergence of democratic governments, coupled with the phasing out of the Cold War and the willingness of most countries to undertake painful economic reform, has produced an era of unusual harmony in U.S. relations in Latin America.

There was a similar period in the early 1960s when President John F. Kennedy launched the Alliance for Progress, an ambitious social and economic reform program. But Kennedy's death and a wave of military coups in Latin America took the steam out of the alliance, and hemispheric relations suffered.

Bush has pleased many Latin countries by recognizing more than President Ronald Reagan did the need to combat the drug problem, by adopting policies that reduce demand at home. For many years, the United States had caused resentment by placing more emphasis on efforts to reduce supply in producing countries.

No country has received more attention from the Bush administration than Mexico. Bush has met six times in two years with President Carlos Salinas, including a two-day visit this past week in which both stressed their goal of reaching a free-trade agreement.

Hopkins tests 1,800 for AIDS

The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Johns Hopkins Hospital is offering free AIDS tests to about 1,800 patients operated on by a surgeon who died of AIDS two weeks ago, according to a published report.

Dr. Rudolph Almaraz died Nov. 16 at age 41. His family refused to confirm that Almaraz died of AIDS, but the family's lawyer, Marvin Elin, told The (Baltimore) Sunday Sun. "He had AIDS, and he died of AIDS."

Elin said Almaraz told him he was exposed to AIDS when blood from an AIDS patient squirted into his eyes and mouth during an operation in New York about seven years ago while Almaraz was on a fellowship at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

A Sloan-Kettering spokeswoman on Sunday said the hospital did not have any records that would indicate Almaraz contracted AIDS when he practiced at the hospital from July 1 to Dec. 1, 1983.

"We have no record at this time. We have not uncovered any blood-incident report," said Suzanne Raussenbert, Sloan-Kettering's vice president for public affairs.

Dr. Timothy Townsend, Johns Hopkins Hospital's senior director for medical affairs, said the hospital made repeated efforts, starting in late summer, to determine the nature of Almaraz's illness amid rumors that he had contracted acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

The letter offering free AIDS tests will not name Almaraz because neither the doctor nor his family would discuss the nature of his illness, said Joann Rodgers, a Johns Hopkins spokeswoman.

Documents that would confirm the nature of the doctor's illness, including the death certificate and his medical records, are confidential under Maryland law.

The letter from Hopkins will go to all patients on whom Almaraz had operated since joining the staff in January 1984. The possibility that the AIDS virus was transmitted to any person during surgery is remote, the letter said.

Almaraz also had privileges at two other area hospitals, Children's Hospital and Homewood Hospital South.

Rebel leader takes control as president flees Chad capital

By Hissene Mahamat
The Associated Press

N'DJAMENA, Chad — Rebel leader Idriss Deby entered the capital in triumph Sunday and vowed to establish a new government. Conflicting reports emerged over the fate of deposed President Hissene Habre.

A Libyan news agency said Habre was killed near the Sudanese border, but diplomats and other sources said Habre and his family fled in a military plane to Cameroon, west of Chad, before dawn Saturday. Neither report could be independently verified.

Deby, who helped Habre lead a coup in 1982, arrived in N'Djamena in a black Mercedes, escorted by all-terrain vehicles. He refused to recognize the remnants of Habre's government as the country's legitimate authority, but declared his Patriotic Salvation Movement would institute a democracy.

There were no immediate reports of deaths in the takeover, but the French relief agency Doctors Without Borders said it treated 120 people hurt in rioting Saturday.

"My worry is not to be president of the republic," said Deby, who served as Habre's chief military adviser from 1982 to 1989. "This country must become democratic, pluralist. The moment has come to lay down our arms."

Deby did not rule out being president, but said the decision would rest with his party. He said he wants to meet with Alingue Bawayeu, president of Chad's National Assembly and the highest-ranking politician left in the capital.

Deby also urged reconciliation with Goukouni Oueddei, the president that he and Habre toppled in 1982. Oueddei is exiled in Libya.

On Sunday, Deby met French Ambassador Francois-Xavier Gendreau. The ambassador, however, declined to say whether he tried to persuade Deby to negotiate with Bawayeu.

Last year, Habre accused Deby of plotting a coup, and Deby fled to Sudan and organized a rebel movement against his onetime ally.

The official Libyan news agency, JANA, said Habre and several aides had been killed between Tine and Oum Chalouba in eastern Chad, the site of heavy fighting between government soldiers and rebel fighters last week.

"The reports by news media on the escape of Habre with his family on board an aircraft to a neighboring country were not true," said JANA, monitored in Rome. The news agency cited no sources and did not say when Habre had been killed. It provided no further details.

But a Patriotic Salvation Movement communiqué claimed Habre had sought refuge in Maroua, Cameroon, about 185 miles south of N'Djamena.

"Nothing confirms that he died in any fighting," French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said in a televised interview. "I even have information to the contrary."

Diplomatic sources also said most of Habre's Cabinet ministers left the capital by vehicle.

Though the rebels have been armed by Libya in the past, it is unclear how much help they have received recently from Tripoli. Libya has denied any involvement in the rebel's recent offensive.

Arabs stab Israelis on Tel Aviv bus

By Max Nash
The Associated Press

RAMAT GAN, Israel — Three Palestinians boarded a bus on a busy street outside Tel Aviv Sunday, knifed a Jewish yeshiva student to death and wounded three people, police said.

A policeman killed one of the attackers, and the two others were wounded.

Stunned bystanders looked on as frightened passengers, some dripping blood, poured out of the bus into a busy shopping area in Ramat Gan, a city adjacent to Tel Aviv.

It was the bloodiest incident in greater Tel Aviv, Israel's most populous area, since Arabs began a wave of stabbing attacks on Jews in October. The attacks followed the police slaying of Arabs on Jerusalem's Temple Mount.

Palestinian militants, in clandestine leaflets, had declared Sunday "a day of escalation" of their 3-year-old struggle against Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Knifings have been more common in Jerusalem, home to a greater mix of Arab and Jewish populations. The coastal Tel Aviv metropolitan area 40 miles away had been seen as a relatively trouble-free area.

The three attackers were from the West Bank village of Azmut near Nablus, army radio said. They had boarded the Tel Aviv-bound bus in the Jewish suburb of Pardes Katz and sat in the back seat.

Soon after boarding, they jumped up shouting "Allahu Akbar!" (God is great,) witnesses said.

The driver, David Shelef, said he saw the Arabs in his rear-view mirror "jumping in the air, waving knives in their hands and lunging at the passengers seated in front of them."

He said he braked, opened the doors to let out his approximately 20 passengers and approached the Arabs with his pistol. Shelef said he fired one shot in the air, told them to sit still and they obeyed.

Israel army radio said another attacker was hit in the hand with a bullet and a third was beaten by bystanders.

The injured Israelis and Arabs were rushed to nearby Beilinson Hospital. Baruch Heisler, 24, a student at a yeshiva, or religious seminary, died on the operating table.

The other Jewish victims were identified as Shmuel Cohen, 15, Becky Malka, 18, and Avisha Cohen, 18.

Shrouds, darkness mark day

By Catherine Crocker
The Associated Press

NEW YORK—The New York and San Francisco skylines dimmed Saturday, and museum visitors gazed silently at shrouded sculptures in a coast-to-coast observance for the victims of AIDS in the art world.

At least 3,000 arts organizations in the United States, including New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art and Washington's Smithsonian Institution, participated in the second annual Day Without Art.

"You take it for granted — art. It's all around, and people don't realize it," Michelle Liebowitz said, looking up at a sculpture of the goddess Diana that was covered by a black cloth at the National Academy of Design in New York.

"Now that you can't see it here, you take note of it," she said.

A posted notice told visitors to the academy that Anna Hyatt Huntington's Diana sculpture was obscured "as a gesture of mourning for all those who have suffered from and fallen victim to AIDS."

Day Without Art events were coordinated nationwide in observance of the World Health Organization's third annual AIDS Awareness Day, also known as World AIDS Day.

Many galleries closed in observance of Day Without Art while others withdrew art works from display. Some held memorial exhibits. A few handed out leaflets or displayed lists of artists and others who have died of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

At the San Francisco Museum of Art, photographs by Robert Mapplethorpe, who died of AIDS in 1989, went on display. An exhibit of Mapplethorpe's erotic images launched national debate last year over restrictions in federal art grants.

The decorative floodlighting at the Empire State Building and lights on the Chrysler Building and other major structures in New York went out for 15 minutes. Marquee lights along Broadway's Great White Way darkened for one minute.

"To see the skyline, which has always been so important to New Yorkers, to see it dim, is truly symbolic and truly powerful," said Patrick O'Connell, an organizer of the New York observance.

"Right now I'm filled with happiness, but I also feel sorrow and rage," he said.

The San Francisco skyline also dimmed for 15 minutes Saturday night, when the Golden Gate Bridge lights — except for the roadway lights — were turned off. Lights on City Hall, the Coit Tower and the tip of the Transamerica building also were dimmed.

U.S. cable TV networks and broadcasters in England, Canada and Australia planned to interrupt programming with a 60-second observance, including a blank screen and the sound of a ticking clock.

"The Museum of Modern Art and other cultural institutions want to use their power and prestige to try and remind people of something they are not hearing often enough," said Philip Yenawine, director of the museum's education department.

"That AIDS is a disease that we believe science can find a way to cure and halt and that people struggling with the disease need more care than they are getting," Yenawine said.

Display cases at the Museum of Modern Art held white letters on a black background spelling "Remember." The Cooper-Hewitt Museum displayed a dozen panels from the AIDS memorial quilt.

At the Metropolitan Museum of Art, several great works were removed, including a Rembrandt self-portrait, Renoir's "Two Girls at the Piano," and Matisse's "Nasturtiums and Dance."

In Washington, the Corcoran Gallery of Art darkened three contemporary art galleries and planned to donate admission fees to AIDS charities. The Smithsonian Institution's National Portrait Gallery displayed a list of people in the arts who have died of AIDS.

In Los Angeles, the J. Paul Getty Museum gave visitors fliers listing members of the arts community who have died of AIDS. The museum planned to give profits from Saturday's sale of the book, "The Indomitable Spirit: Photographers and Artists Respond to Time of AIDS," to the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

'Heavenly' lives up to name

By Steve Cruse
The Daily Iowan

The unique strengths of "Simply Heavenly," the UI Black Action Theatre's production of Langston Hughes' 1957 comedy/musical, were neatly summarized in an early scene in which Paddy's Bar patrons Melon (Elza Minor) and Miss Mamie (Jane Rau) began singing a slow blues song, accompanied by the bar's pianist and guitarist. The song, inspired by Mamie's refusals of Melon's lustful advances, was infused with a spirit of good-humored competition: The two characters sang alternate verses, each steadily building in intensity until the house (or more accurately, Theatre B) was rockin'.

In this scene, as in all of its musical numbers, "Simply Heavenly" avoided the artificiality inherent in many musicals. The songs, written by David Martin and arranged by Mark Brucker, weren't a cauterized break from reality, but simply a natural extension of the characters' lives — they sang because it turned them on and helped to establish a close-knit community (not only among themselves, but with the audience as well).

And it was quite a community. Owing both to Hughes' characterization and to the individual performances, "Simply Heavenly" had one of the most believable and agreeable ensemble casts in recent local theater. Much of the action took place in Paddy's Bar, where the regulars met to complain about their jobs, exchange songs and make occasional passes at each other. The bemused aspiring writer Ananias Boyd (Michelle Ross), the bar's guitarist, Gitfiddle (Richard Pugh) and the agitated yet oblivious Arcie (Julie Plotz), among several others, all contributed to the relaxed, funny atmosphere.

The play's major storyline involved the attempt of bar patron Jesse B. Simple (Dee Baylor) to secure a divorce from his first wife, so that he could marry the demure yet strong-willed Joyce (Cynthia Arrington). Various difficulties arose, in particular Joyce's suspicions of Simple's irresponsible carousing — suspicions seemingly confirmed during the play's most rousing scene, in which Joyce walked in on a wild, spontaneous birthday party in Simple's room.

However, the Simple-Joyce relationship, while competently presented, was also the least interesting aspect of the play. There just wasn't much else going on, apart from waiting for Simple's divorce to become final. Only one twist was thrown in, as Joyce criticized Simple for using his race as a source of self-pity and an excuse for his failures. This aspect of the play, however, seemed a bit too facile, skimming over the sociological implications of Joyce's statement in preference of a few easy jokes.

No matter, though. The true pleasure of "Simply Heavenly" derived from watching the characters interact, their words informed by Hughes' verbal inventiveness. Elza Minor showed impeccable comic timing as Melon, whose perpetual leer fueled some of the play's most hilariously suggestive lines. Me'Lisa Sellers, meanwhile, was most out-there as Simple's elderly landlady Madam Butler, who spoke always in a protracted, ominous wheeze. Even "bad girl" Zarita (Vena Potter-Hall), who led Simple into temptation and even injury, inspired sympathy through her sheer exuberance. (Her rendition of "Let's Ball" in the party scene was a definite redemption.)

'Dean of American music' dies at 90

The Associated Press

NORTH TARRYTOWN, N.Y. — Aaron Copland, the pioneering composer who used folk songs and jazz in writing plainspoken classics such as "Appalachian Spring," "Rodeo" and "Billy the Kid," died Sunday at age 90.

Admired by colleagues as the "dean of American music," Copland was a major force in gaining international recognition for the nation's 20th-century composers. His honors included a Pulitzer Prize, a Presidential Medal of Freedom, the Guggenheim Foundation's first music fellowship and an Oscar.

"He was the composer who would lead American music out of the wilderness," the late Leonard Bernstein wrote in High Fidelity magazine for the occasion of Copland's 70th birthday. "He was The Leader, the one to whom the young always came with their compositions."

Copland, who lived in Peekskill,

N.Y., recently had suffered two strokes and respiratory problems and died from complications stemming from them, according to his lawyer, Ellis Freedman, who announced his death. He died in Phelps Memorial Hospital in Westchester in upstate New York.

Copland wrote two operas, six ballets and eight film scores, including his Oscar-winning music for William Wyler's "The Heiress" in 1948. He was a pianist, conductor, author and educator, guiding numerous musicians including Bernstein.

Copland won his Pulitzer and the New York Music Critics Circle Award in 1945 for "Appalachian Spring," which he wrote for Martha Graham to accompany her choreography based on a Hart Crane poem. Among the composition's most famous themes is a Shaker melody played by clarinet and followed by five variations.

His ballets "Billy the Kid" and "Rodeo" also combined cowboy tunes and folk songs with original themes. Despite his success, Copland stopped composing after 1967, spending much of his time at his home and directing recordings of his works.

One reason for his decision to stop composing was the rejection by young composers of his "Inscape," his first attempt at the highly structured, atonal 12-tone system.

"When he started writing 12-tone," Bernstein wrote, "I asked him, 'Of all people, why you — you who are so instinctive, so spontaneous?' ... And he answered me, 'Because I need more chords. I've run out of chords.'"

Born Nov. 14, 1900, Copland was the youngest of five children. His parents, immigrants from Eastern Europe, owned a department store in Brooklyn.

Copland's maternal grandfather, Aaron Mittenhal, moved to Dallas and opened a dry-goods store there in the 1870s. According to Copland family lore, Jesse James' brother, Frank, worked in the store.

CRISIS IN THE GULF

No longer a game

There seem to be two discernible "official" sides to the increasingly complicated gulf argument. On Sunday, NBC's "Meet the Press" conveniently offered representatives of both. The first, articulated by Sen. Edward Kennedy, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, is that the people of the United States don't want war, but would rather give sanctions time to work. The other, presented by Secretary of State James Baker, is that if "the president commits forces, the American people will rally to support." It is nice of them to offer the people a choice.

Neither side could hope to speak for the general populace, but Kennedy probably comes closer to summing up the average American's feelings on the subject. He said, "This is not the time or the place to use force. Force should be advocated to protect Americans and their interests. But in the gulf, this would not be the case." There will soon be at least 400,000 U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf region. According to Kennedy, 90 percent of the casualties in the gulf, should a battle occur, would be American. This bolsters rumors that U.S. troops are preparing for heavy casualties and that the U.S. government has purchased thousands of caskets.

Mid-January is far too early a deadline for Iraqi withdrawal, regardless of the political and military factors involved.

The Bush administration's actions pose numerous complications. Of primary concern is the most recent U.N. resolution authorizing the use of force in the gulf if Saddam does not pull Iraqi troops out of Kuwait by Jan. 15.

Is this an arbitrary deadline? Certainly not. In fact, many analysts had predicted long before the resolution was passed that a U.S. strike would take place on this very date. In the days following Jan. 15, many factors will be favorable for a U.S. strike. The tides will be favorable for a sea assault. There will be no moon — an advantage for the U.S. forces that possess superior night-sighting equipment. On the 17th, the Islamic month of Rajab begins, a time when fighting is considered sinful by Moslems. And there are no American holidays until Easter on March 31, thus preventing a heightened negative political impact from television images of fighting and casualties when families are gathered together.

But mid-January is far too early a deadline, regardless of the political and military factors involved.

The sanctions that Bush fought so hard to get should be given more time to work. Jan. 15 is a mere 44 days away — certainly not enough time to let the embargo fully affect Iraq. Kennedy advocates extending the deadline to Aug. 2, giving Saddam a full year to make up his mind and letting the sanctions begin to choke him. This would seem to make more sense, especially in light of public sentiment toward war.

Kennedy predicted that Congress would "unquestionably" vote against a war declaration, but it is doubtful that Bush would let that stop him. Baker stated that the strongest message we can send to Saddam is one of American unity, and to hold congressional hearings would only undercut that message.

Baker's sentiments are misguided. It is time for the American public to wake up and see that this political game is turning ugly. Bush may have had fun playing lawman, but the crisis in the gulf is the real thing — playtime is over.

Bush, by sending Baker to Baghdad, is trying to legitimize his claims that what he truly wants is a diplomatic solution to the crisis. But Saddam has said that if Baker is coming only to reiterate the American position, it is a wasted trip. Both Baker and Bush have said that no negotiation will take place at the meeting. Then why go? The time for PR is over. Neither leader wants to negotiate — it stands to politically damage each one. With this selfish stand, what then can either leader do but go to war?

Baker stated numerous times Sunday that discussing possible courses of action in the gulf was hypothetical because it was impossible to tell under what conditions these actions would be taken. "I can't answer that in a vacuum" was his phrase of the day. He also said in regard to possible effectiveness of the U.N. sanctions against Iraq that "Saddam is the type of leader who would starve his own people." Wouldn't Saddam also then subject them to a costly war? He only recently ended an eight-year, very destructive war with Iran. Baker's statement that "there is an excellent chance that Saddam will quit Kuwait because he would face devastating military action if U.S. troops moved against him" seems short-sighted.

Additionally, the U.S. has reiterated the position that if and when Iraq withdraws from Kuwait meaningful negotiations between the two can occur. Negotiations like these would most likely happen after a war as well. In either case the probable result is that Iraq would obtain land passage to the Persian Gulf. Does it make sense then that thousands of American servicemen lose their lives trying to prevent a foregone conclusion?

In the worst case scenario, if Bush gets the war he's looking for it will forever change the face of the nation. Much as Vietnam changed a generation's views toward war and government, fighting in the Persian Gulf would set dangerous precedents for future presidents.

Bush has set ultimatums for Saddam. The American public, in turn, needs to set some for Bush. He should allow the sanctions to work, reduce the number of American troops in the region and consult Congress on all matters concerning the crisis. Anything less is an abuse of power.

Patience, Mr. President, patience

Rash action in the gulf will be counterproductive

By brilliantly forging an impenetrable economic blockade around Iraq and its inutile booty, President Bush has not only accomplished an international coup de maitre, he has also deprived Saddam Hussein of the means with which to exploit this repugnant act of aggression. But now, like a verdant desert traveler enticed by an Arabian mirage, the Bush administration appears to be foolishly marching the United States toward what may be an unnecessary war.

Obviously, Saddam Hussein cannot be allowed to profit from his aggression; ultimately, the cannot and should not attempt to police the entire world, even if the United Nations is too disinclined to accomplish this task.

Economic prosperity — attainable because of a stable and moderately priced oil supply — appears to be a prime consideration of the administration. If Saddam Hussein retains power over Kuwait, he will control 20 percent of the world oil supply, and he will have the military might to influence all the oil-producing countries in the Persian Gulf. Such a result would leave the U.S., Japan and Western Europe in a very precarious position. But while this prospect is disconcerting, it alone does not justify U.S. action in the gulf.

Guest Opinion

Byron Kent Wikstrom

Iraqi army must be required to unconditionally withdraw from Kuwait. In addition, Iraq should be forced to pay war reparations before it is allowed to return to the international community, but these conditions can be met without the United States waging a unilateral war. Iraq is weakening, while the coalition against it is not. Therefore, we must give sanctions a chance to work. Waiting may be difficult, but the alternative is hell.

Finding the patience to outlast the conflict requires thoughtful consideration about why the United States has hundreds of thousands of troops in Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf. From the very onset of the Iraqi invasion, numerous justifications for the U.S. troop buildup were bandied about by the administration. President Bush proclaimed that the U.S. was standing up to naked aggression in a new world order. But while this declaration sounds sublime, it will not satisfy the American public when dead soldiers begin returning home, especially since other nations appear reluctant to help extrude Iraq from Kuwait. The U.S.

There is only one rational and moral explanation for U.S. presence in the gulf: If Iraqi aggression is not countered immediately, Saddam Hussein will be able to radically alter the balance of power in the Middle East and, if he is successful in garnering the allegiance of the Arab masses, Saddam could be in a position to exert control over all of what was once ancient Persia. It is this abject possibility that has spurred the international coalition and united normally antagonistic powers, such as Syrian President Hafez Assad and President Bush, against Iraq.

This threat to world stability must be taken very seriously, but the logical course of action does not dictate the destruction of Iraq. It is the synergistic effect of Middle East oil and Arab indignation that may someday explode; Saddam Hussein is merely one of the individuals willing to detonate the bomb. If the United States fails to approach the conflict with empathy for regional interests, the battle may be won, but the opportunity to develop favorable and significant alliances will have been lost. Just as Saddam has replaced the Ayatollah Khomeini in American eyes as the devil incarnate, someone will eventually replace Saddam Hussein. Unless the United States displays regard for Arab concerns, it may someday be confronted with a united and powerful adversary.

For this reason, the United States must be willing to wait and to listen to the counsel of moderate Arab countries such as Egypt and Morocco. This is also the reason that the American people must show enough patience for the sanctions to be effective. As Admiral

If the United States fails to approach the conflict in the Persian Gulf with empathy for regional interests, the battle may be won, but the opportunity to develop favorable and significant alliances will have been lost.

William Crowe, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee: "The issue is not whether an embargo will work, but whether we have the patience to let it take effect." If President Bush is unwilling to heed the words of caution, then the American people must declare forthwith that this is not the time for another war; instead that it is the time for the world to start acting as if the new world order has truly arrived, just as all of us desperately desire.

Profiteering with idiotic designer labels

Yesterday my lawyer friend Twit brought a certain matter to my attention.

"Dave," he said, "have you ever thought about the strange way people dress?"

"Sure," I replied. "I've noticed how heavy-metal music affects certain people, attracting them to obnoxious T-shirts and ripped clothing. So what? That's one of the great things about America; we're free to dress like morons if we choose. It doesn't bother me."

Twit sighed and said, "No, that's not what I mean. Lots of people shell out big bucks for designer clothing, as if they're engaged in a yearlong fashion contest. But the extravagance only makes them look preposterous."

"How's that?" I asked.

"Consider Polo shirts. For the price of just one of those darned things

1st Person

David Guerrant

you could buy three shirts of comparable quality. You essentially pay $40 for a label. What an awful waste. Now make yourself useful and expose this imbecility to the reading public."

It seemed like a good idea, so with notebook in hand I set off into the wilds of Iowa City to document this threat to intelligent folk everywhere.

I hadn't gone far when I ran into my good friend Fifi (another threat to intelligent folk). I always have time for Fifi, as her "intellectual" capabilities are so entertaining. She led me into the mall, telling me of her activities as a Leisure Studies major.

As Fifi prattled I noticed the unmistakable "Guess" label on her jeans. Have you ever wondered what that question-mark label is there for? I have. I guess it stands for "Why did I spend $80 for a pair of jeans?" Or perhaps, "How could I have been so stupid?" Or even, "If I am so stupid, how could I be so rich?"

She also wore a Gucci watch that I know cost $500. There are members of Congress out there who cost less — and do more than tell time. (Just ask any S&L officer.)

As I pondered these insights, my good friend Michelle walked up to us. Fifi stared at Michelle's purse and cooed, "Omigod, is that, like, a Liz Claiborne purse? I've been thinking about getting one next time I go shopping; that is, today."

Michelle glared at her. "It is not a Liz Claiborne. It cost me two dollars, and I got it at Goodwill."

It's good to see that some intelligent life dwells among us.

"Oh," said Fifi, "then it's not the real thing."

"Of course it's the real thing," replied Michelle. "It's a real generic purse. It cost me two bucks. Your purse probably cost you a few hundred dollars. I know what I'm doing. Besides, your purse might not be the 'real thing' after all."

"But, I bought it from Dave's friend Guido, and he said it was real..."

"Listen," Michelle said impatiently. "Since society attaches so much prestige to labels, some Asian companies make huge illicit profits by selling counterfeit goods. For instance, you could buy a copy of your watch for $49.95 if you knew where to look. It would look just like your 'real thing' except for a removable sticker that reads, 'Made in Hong Kong.'"

"No..." Fifi began.

"Actually, she's right, Fifi," I said. "I've heard of that sort of thing. A few years ago there was a fuss over a truckload of fake 'Guess' jeans that were confiscated by the authorities. The jeans were to sell for $40 each. I wonder why such items sell? Any ideas?"

Michelle shook her head and Fifi stared vacantly.

"Fifi, why do you buy designer stuff?" I asked.

"Well, um, I guess it's the 'in' thing. You know, like, a... the who's anyone wears it."

Michelle rolled her eyes and said, "So you wear designer clothes to impress others?"

"Yeah. So?"

Michelle continued, "Well, I think your watch and jeans only make you look pretentious."

Fifi looked at me and said, "Dave, like, what does 'pretentious' mean?" Michelle stared at her, then turned and walked away.

So did I.

Later that day, I thought about Michelle's comments, and I realized that these proudly worn labels might as well scream, "Here there be idiots!"

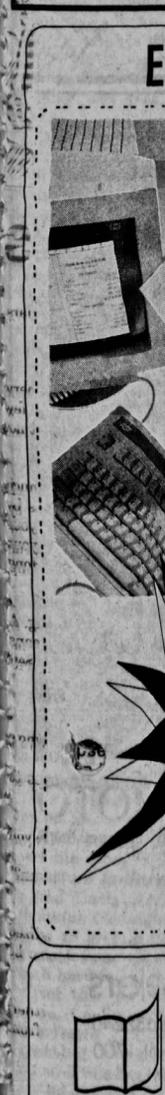

And rich ones, too. But I really must go since Guido, my friend and business partner, needs help unloading our latest shipment of fake Polo shirts from Singapore.

Indeed, here there be idiots. And I'm glad.

Germans issue warrant for Honecker's arrest

By Deborah Seward
The Associated Press

BERLIN — Officials on Sunday sought Soviet approval to enter a Soviet military hospital near Berlin and arrest former East German Communist leader Erich Honecker on charges of manslaughter.

Officials said Saturday they had issued an arrest warrant for Honecker, who was ousted last year during the peaceful East German revolution that led to German unity Oct. 3.

The warrant charges that Honecker personally signed shoot-to-kill orders for guards at the Berlin Wall during his rule. It directly links him to the deaths of several people who were killed trying to flee East Germany, officials say.

A Soviet diplomat said Sunday that German police need Moscow's approval to arrest Honecker at the well-guarded hospital compound where he has taken refuge with his wife. The hospital is outside Beelitz, a town in former East Germany in a forest 20 miles south of Berlin.

Some German officials criticized the Soviets for not turning Honecker over immediately. There were complaints that the Soviets were trying to protect their former ally.

Valery Zhilin, who identified himself as a first secretary at the Soviet General Consulate in former East Berlin, said he did not expect permission for Honecker's arrest to be granted on Sunday.

"It's a very complicated situation," Zhilin said in a telephone interview. "It will be decided at the very top."

He said that Gen. Boris Snetkov, the commanding officer of the Soviet forces in eastern Germany, was away on a business trip.

Honecker, 78, conferred with his defense lawyers on Sunday at the hospital complex. His lawyers maintain he is too ill to stand trial.

The arrest warrant was issued Friday, and officials began moving against Honecker on Saturday.

Impasses threaten trade talks

By Martin Crutsinger
The Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Trade ministers searched on Sunday for an 11th-hour miracle to rescue stalled free-trade talks but failed to make any progress on the biggest stumbling block: how to reduce costly farm subsidies.

There was some progress reported on another dispute involving removing barriers to trade in financial services. But a series of meetings on the agriculture question yielded no results.

The activity came as delegates from 107 nations prepared to open five days of formal negotiations Monday in hopes of completing a four-year effort to overhaul the world trading system.

The talks, known as the Uruguay Round, for the nation where they began in 1986, were being held under the auspices of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Australian Trade Minister Neal Blewett, chairman of the Cairns Group of 14 major farm-exporting countries, said the entire bargaining effort was "in deep crisis." He said what happens over the next 48 hours would likely decide whether the negotiations could succeed.

"There is a general recognition that agriculture is at the heart of the crisis... and that blockage is poisoning other parts of the negotiations," he told reporters.

The Cairns Group, supported by the United States, is attempting to scale back agriculture subsidies, which cost consumers and taxpayers $250 billion annually.

The 12-nation European Community and Japan have resisted, however, contending the measures go too far and would cause massive political unrest among farm groups in their nations.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter held what he termed "sparring" sessions with both Ray MacSharry, the EC's agriculture chief, and Japanese Agriculture Minister Tomio Yamamoto. He said that neither the Europeans nor the Japanese were signaling any willingness to compromise.

"Unless both Japan and the European Community begin to demonstrate greater commitment to trade liberalization in agriculture, I see no way of reaching" an overall Uruguay Round agreement, Yeutter said.

The United States and the Cairns Group are pushing a proposal that would cut export subsidies by 90 percent, while reducing internal farm support payments and barriers to farm imports by 75 percent.

The United States has also been lobbying heavily to get Japan to show good faith in the farm area by removing its ban on the import of rice, a barrier that forces Japanese consumers to pay seven times the world market price.

Without an agreement in agriculture, U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills said Third World nations would walk away from the bargaining table, dooming the most ambitious reform effort in 43 years.

And with just five days to go until the negotiations are scheduled to conclude Friday, there were still many blank spaces in the draft 291-page agreement, prompting a growing sense of failure.

Food, medical supplies from U.S. aid Soviets

By Ann Imse
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — "To the Soviet people from the people of the United States — with love," read the banners on 40 tons of donated food and medical supplies that arrived in Moscow Sunday.

It was the first of many shipments planned by the Connecticut-based aid organization, AmeriCares, to help relieve Soviet citizens faced with barren grocery shelves and severe shortages of imported medicines. Soviet television showed soldiers and students unloading cartons of medical supplies from the Southern Air Transport cargo plane.

Dr. Vasily Drozdov, head of the Republican Children's Clinic, said the medicine, for children under the age of 3, arrived at his hospital late Sunday.

The Soviet Union's chronic shortages of food and medicine have worsened dramatically this winter. Consumers must wait in long lines — often for as long as three hours — for basics such as butter. Sometimes pushing and shoving breaks out over a scarce item.

The shortages are caused in part by the country's transition from a centralized planning system to a free market, which has not yet taken hold. The centralized distribution system is breaking down in anticipation of changes.

A lack of foreign currency that forced a cut in imports earlier this year has also caused shortages, although President Mikhail Gorbachev has now won promises of billions of dollars of new credits and aid from abroad.

In addition, the country doesn't have enough rail cars or refrigerated trucks to transport food from the fields to markets, nor are there sufficient storage facilities. Theft and diversion to the black market is rampant.

Thus, despite normal levels of food production and a spectacular grain crop, food is not reaching consumers at the usual subsidized prices.

Bangladesh violence continues

The Associated Press

DHAKA, Bangladesh — More anti-government protesters poured into the streets Sunday, and an opposition leader said dozens of people have been killed and thousands wounded since emergency rules were decreed five days earlier.

The new protests broke out when the government of President Hussain Muhammad Ershad relaxed a curfew for 12 hours. About 500 university teachers announced they were quitting their jobs to protest the emergency orders suspending civil liberties.

The Interior Ministry said security forces broke up "an unruly mob" that tried to ransack stores and burn vehicles in Dhaka's main downtown shopping area. No details were given.

But in general, the law-and-order situation was improving, the ministry claimed in a news release.

After curfew was reimposed at sundown Sunday, paramilitary troops in another part of the capital were seen removing the body of a young man in civilian clothing. Bullet wounds were visible on his body, but the circumstances of his death could not be ascertained, according to a passerby who spoke on condition of anonymity.

State-run television said curfew would be lifted for 15 hours on Monday, from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. The government has gradually been extending the number of hours

Hawkeyes apply pressure, roll in Classic

Iowa press puts clamp on Creighton, Colgate

By John Shipley
The Daily Iowan

Creighton basketball coach Tony Barone knew that if his team were to face Iowa in the championship game of the Amana-Hawkeye Classic Saturday night, the Blue Jays would run into some tough pressure defense.

What he didn't see coming was the particular style of pressure applied by Hawkeye sophomore Jay Webb, whose tenacity on the press and backboards led Iowa to an 83-77 victory and its eighth Classic championship in nine years.

"Even when you're prepared for the press, you can't anticipate a Jay Webb in practice," Barone said after the game. "He was in our face the whole game."

"I thought he was the difference in the game because he's so tough on the inbounds pass."

In addition to rattling Creighton's inbounds passer, Webb scored eight points and ripped down a career-high 13 rebounds, two on critical missed free throws in the game's final minutes.

"This year we have a lot of scorers — guys that can do a lot of things," Webb said afterward. "Rebounding and full-court pressure is where I can really help the team. That's what I'm focusing on."

Coach Tom Davis' young Iowa squad made the championship game by coming back to beat Colgate Friday night 80-59 after trailing at the half.

Creighton easily handled Texas-San Antonio 93-47 Friday behind forward Bob Harstad's 38 points. Harstad went 13-13 from the field Friday night and hit 12 of his 13 free throws in a performance that won him the tournament's MVP honors.

San Antonio beat Colgate 99-59 in Saturday's consolation game.

The Hawkeyes got off to a quick start against Creighton, jumping out to a 14-5 lead at the 16:33 mark on a James Moses jumper.

Creighton countered with a 14-5 spurt of their own to tie the game at 19 on a short jumper by Matt Petty and took a short-lived lead on a three-pointer by Duan Cole that made it 22-19 Blue Jays with 12:34 left in the half.

The game continued to be tight until Iowa broke a 34-34 tie when Moses drove to the hole and was fouled by Todd Eisner for a three point play that made it 37-34 at the 5:44 mark.

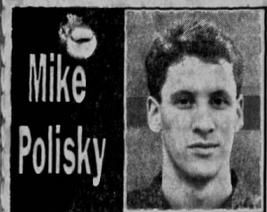

The Hawkeyes never trailed again and took a 51-42 lead into the locker room at the half.

Iowa had five players in double figures, led by guard Val Barnes, who scored 20 points on his way to making the all-tournament team. Center Acie Earl added 16 points and eight rebounds, including two big offensive boards that extended the Hawkeyes' possession as Iowa held off a late Creighton run in the

The Daily Iowan/Michael Williams

Iowa sophomore Jay Webb's pressure harried Creighton so much in Iowa's 83-77 win Saturday night that Blue Jay coach Tony Barone called him the "difference in the game."

Davis has Iowa back from dead

It doesn't take a rocket scientist to discover the major differences between this year's Iowa basketball team and last year's confederacy of dunces.

No, it's not Acie Earl's new haircut. (Earl, listed at 6-foot-10, now stands 7-foot-4 with the Kid 'n' Play afro) It's that Iowa once again fields legitimate ATHLETES.

Ever since the departure of B.J. Armstrong, Roy Marble and Ed Horton, Coach Tom Davis' squads have lacked the ability to overcome mental mistakes or turn a game around, à la UNLV, in a matter of minutes. For the past couple of seasons, Iowa relied on near-perfect play or overly emotional efforts to record victories. They were always underdogs. And they were always the less-talented team with a lot of heart.

Take last season. With Matt Bulard (now with the Houston Rockets) out with knee problems, Iowa started Michael Ingram, Les Jepsen, Wade Lookingbill, Troy Skinner and James Moses the majority of the season. Although this starting unit played with more heart and guts than any Armstrong-led team (perhaps a reason they never broke into the Final Four), their athletic ability couldn't compare with most Division I programs.

In Jepsen's case, the only thing really missing from his game was, well, basketball talent. Much like Skinner and Lookingbill, Jepsen accomplished what he did through desire. No one worked harder in practices and games, or during the off-season than Jepsen. He turned himself from a 7-footer who couldn't tie his shoes his freshman year, to the hardest playing 7-foot reserve in the NBA who ever wore velcro-straps.

Moses was the best athlete of the bunch, but his youth showed a bit too often, forcing unadvised shots or making crucial mental errors. And unfortunately, Davis was forced to pull too tight on his reigns. Mistakes proved way too costly with last year's club. Iowa didn't have the horses to overcome anything less than precision X's and O's basketball.

But now things have changed. With Davis' best recruiting class of his five years, the Hawkeyes have begun infiltrating untamed, inexperienced talent with the hard-working regime so endeared by the upper-classmen.

And the results? Exciting, fast-tempo basketball, loaded with great plays, great hustle and many, many mistakes. Mistakes much like the kind Armstrong, Marble and Horton committed during their youth. And mistakes that Davis can once again accept and forgive.

Talent, much like the pimple inside your nose that makes your eyes water on contact, should be left alone. Sure, newcomers like Kevin Smith, Chris Street, Val Barnes and James Winters are going to screw up. But what's exciting about this group is that after one commits a turnover or misses a lay-up, their next trip down court has occasionally been of highlight-reel material.

And with the improved play of Moses, Skinner, Earl, Brig Tubbs, Rodell Davis and Jay Webb, the Hawkeyes have a team chemistry bubbling with talent, heart and enormous potential.

It's a give-and-take situation, but unlike last season, Davis can afford to let a Smith or Barnes force up a terrible shot without a quick departure to the bench.

And Davis is probably just as thankful. No longer will the doctor have to prepare meticulous game plans or rule with a heavy hand for each hard-fought win.

Not this year. Davis can relax more, finally, gently molding his overflowing talent instead of creating fundamentally sound 8-foot-5 robots.

And he might get the color back in his hair.

Grapplers wreak havoc on eastern swing

By Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

Coming into the 1990 season, Iowa coach Dan Gable expressed a goal that not many coaches would dare dream about, let alone declare publicly.

Iowa had not yet wrestled a single meet, yet Gable, who's program has accomplished more than any other school in the country in his 14 years at Iowa, found something the Hawkeyes still hadn't done — gone through two consecutive years undefeated.

But if the Hawkeyes continue to wrestle like they did this weekend, there's no telling who, if anyone, can stop them from making history again.

Wrestling

Iowa maintained their reputation as a group of road warriors, as they manhandled what were supposed to be two fairly rough obstacles in their quest for the national championship — Penn State and Ohio State.

However, both meets turned out to be anything but roadblocks.

The No. 5 Nittany Lions were the first to be claimed by Iowa, as the top-ranked Hawkeyes improved to 7-0 with a 32-6 mismatch of Penn State in University Park, Pa., Friday night.

The Hawkeyes went 8-1-1 in the meet, which ruined Penn State's season-opener, and were led by 190-pounder Travis Fiser, who recorded the only fall of the night. Fiser pinned Penn State's Mike Kraft in 4:48.

At 158 pounds, No. 10 Hawkeye Tom Ryan recorded a technical fall over returning all-American Jason Suter, 24-7, while decisions were registered by six other Hawkeyes.

Iowa's only loss came at 177 pounds, where redshirt freshman Rich Catalano lost to high school teammate Matt White, 10-2. At 142 pounds, No. 2 Troy Steiner and Nittany Lion Troy Sunderland ended in a 2-2 draw.

Next up was a trip to Columbus, Ohio, and the Big Ten opener at No. 8 Ohio State Sunday. Once again, the Hawkeyes were confident about their chances even though they still had some wounds to heal.

"Anytime you're on a road trip, it can get to 'em," Iowa trainer Jim Hoegh said prior to the match. "We're fairly healthy even though we're missing (177-pounder Bart) Chelovskiy (with a broken toe) and (heavyweight John) Oostendorp had a foot problem at Penn State."

But despite losing the services of two of their big guns, Iowa ruined another team's season-opener in convincing fashion, this time at the expense of the Buckeyes.

The Hawkeyes cruised to an 8-0 mark on the year as they jumped out to a 30-0 lead before winning 35-5.

In the first three weight classes, the Hawkeyes maintained a perfect 39-0 mark as 118-pounder Chad Zaputil, 126-pounder Terry Brands and 134-pounder Tom Brands each improved to 13-0 with easy wins.

Zaputil started things off by dropping Cal

St.-Bakersfield transfer Jay Ashmore 24-11 as he never experienced trouble during the match.

Top-ranked Terry Brands pushed Iowa's lead to 8-0 when he took care of No. 5 Adam DiSabato by a 19-6 margin, which was followed by No. 1 Tom Brands' pin of junior Mike O'Neill in 4:01.

Brothers Troy and Terry Steiner added to Iowa's cushion, although they had things a little tougher.

At 142, No. 2 Troy Steiner raised his mark to 9-1-1 with a 2-0 shutout of senior Mike DiSabato. By this time, Iowa led 17-0 and Terry Steiner made it 20-0 at 150, despite trailing for most of his match versus Ken Ramsey.

At the end of the second period, Ramsey held a 4-2 lead but Steiner owned a minute and a half advantage of riding time. In the final 2:00 period, Ramsey lead 6-4 but Steiner was able to score a late two-point takedown to knot the score at 6-6 with 0:10 left.

Steiner was able to keep his riding time advantage and earned an extra point as a result, to come away with a 7-6 win.

Also winning for Iowa were No. 10 Tom Ryan, a transfer from Syracuse, at 158 with a 17-6 decision over Mike Schyck and No. 3 167-pounder Mark Reiland (12-1), who pinned Kevin Randleman in 5:47. Randleman, a redshirt freshman who had defeated two all-Americans, in going 13-2, could not do it a third time versus Reiland.

Ohio State got on the board at 177 when Dan Ritchie decisioned Catalano 12-5.

Smith runs fast show for Hawks

By Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

Iowa freshman Kevin Smith entered into the Hawkeyes' game with Creighton Saturday night with style.

Immediately upon checking in, the 5-foot-10 point guard drove the ball down the court, dribbled it behind his back and made a reverse lay-up.

It would be the only time Smith would score during the contest. But that move, along with his 17 points and six rebounds Friday night against Colgate, kept Smith in the forefront throughout the Amana-Hawkeye Classic.

The Fort Worth, Tex., native was the only freshman elected to the all-tournament team.

And Smith's moves have caught the attention of fans, but he says that's just the way he plays.

"I come in and push the break," Smith said. "With my type of game, I guess the game gets more exciting. But I'm the first one to get down on myself when I play bad."

During the Hawkeyes' 80-59 win over Colgate Friday, Smith was 7 for 7 — including 2 for 2

Hawks' momentum stopped at WIVC

By Brian Gaul
The Daily Iowan

It was like somebody stepped on the breaks, and the Iowa volleyball team fell out of cruise control.

After winning their first three matches by three-game sweeps in the Women's Invitational Volleyball Championship in Knoxville, Tenn., Thursday and Friday, the Hawkeyes were denied a berth in the championship round by second-seeded Cal State-Northridge, 6-15, 15-5, 15-12, 15-7 Friday night.

"We played well," Iowa coach Ruth Nelson said. "We played three solid matches and we played good volleyball for a game and a half against Northridge."

The Hawkeyes, seeded seventh going into the tournament, recorded a 3-1 mark in pool play to finish the season at 19-15 overall. Northridge completed pool play with a 4-0 record.

Cal State-Northridge eventually finished as the WIVC runnerup, losing to Houston in the championship match.

Senior setter Janet Moylan took advantage of the postseason action to set a new NCAA all-time record for career digs. The Chicago, Ill., native finished her four-year career with 1,948 digs, breaking the previous national record of 1,913.

Entering the tournament, Moylan needed 35 digs to reach the milestone. Her 1,914th dig came in the match against Colorado State Friday, when she saved a ball that was dropping out of bounds.

The Hawkeyes swept the Lady Rams, 15-5, 15-7, 15-9 in that match after winning three-game matches against Eastern Kentucky and Alabama-Birmingham Thursday.

"Those were the most consistent three matches we have played all year," Nelson said. "For three matches, we were sensational."

The Hawkeyes extended their game winning streak to 10 with a 15-6 victory in the first game against Cal-State Northridge, but the Matadors snapped the streak with a 15-5 win in the second game.

Cal State-Northridge then took a 15-12 decision in the fourth-game, a game Nelson said "we should have won," and cruised in the fifth game to advance to Saturday's semifinals.

An Iowa win would have put them in the championship round. Both teams entered the match 3-0 in pool play.

Seniors Moylan and Barb Willis were named all-WIVC picks after leading the Hawkeyes throughout the tournament. Iowa was the only team to place two members on the all-tournament team without qualifying for the championship round.

In the four matches, Willis recorded 54 kills, 13 blocks, 34 digs and finished with a .303 attack percentage. Moylan recorded 119 assists, 54 digs, 21 kills, a 512 kill percentage and zero errors in WIVC action.

Nelson also credited seniors Ginger Lorentson and Jenny Rees with strong performances in their final matches.

Rees hit over .250 in the first three matches, including a season-high .409 percentage against Eastern Kentucky. Lorentson recorded nine kills and nine digs against Cal State-Northridge despite playing with a broken nose.

The Hawkeyes closed the year with their best winning percentage of the season. Iowa started 2-9 and didn't move two games over .500 until two weeks were left in the season.

Nelson's team finished the regular season 16-14 overall and 10-8 in the Big Ten.

"When you look at what they did the last 19 (regular-season) matches, it's scary," Nelson said of her team.

Two Hawkeyes named to all-Big Ten team

Iowa seniors Barb Willis and Janet Moylan were named to the all-Big Ten volleyball teams announced last week. Willis was named to the first team and Moylan was an honorable mention pick.

Willis, a middle hitter from Camanche, Iowa, became a two-time first-team all-league pick. She was also a first-team selection last year.

Willis is the Iowa career leader in total kills, blocks, solo blocks and hitting percentage.

Moylan was an honorable mention choice for the second year in a row. She is the nation's all-time career leader in digs and is in the top ten in career assists.

played." Creighton climbed back into the contest when it switched from a zone defense to man-to-man, getting as close as 76-71 with 1:15 remaining. But the Hawkeyes put the game away by hitting 13-18 free throws in the final 11 minutes, during which the Hawkeyes registered only one field goal on a lay-up by Davis. "We worked real hard and tried to pressure the ball and yet help on the inside," Coach Davis said.

"Luckily they weren't burning it up from the 3-point range. "We conceded some threes, but it's better than Harstad going 13-13 from the floor and 12-13 from the free throw line." Iowa effectively stymied Creighton's big men Harstad and Chad Gallagher. After his brilliant game Friday, Iowa held Harstad to 14 points and 8 rebounds Saturday. Gallagher, the Blue Jays' 6-foot-10 center, was held to 16 points and 8 rebounds.

"We tried to shut off Harstad and Gallagher and at the same time pressure their good shooters," Davis said. "Overall we did a fairly respectable job for as young as we are. "Harstad may be the best low-point player in the country. In terms of his moves and what he does I don't know that I've ever seen anybody play as solidly on the block as that kid does." But Saturday it was Webb who had the last word on the court.

"Tonight Jay Webb had 13 rebounds and that is a terrific performance," Davis said. "When you get a young sophomore like Jay Webb getting 13 rebounds, that enables you to stay in the game against an excellent team." "I felt that the pressure was really key," said Webb. "But I was only one cog in the machine." "I thought that a bunch of juniors and seniors had already faced a pressure like ours. But I guess not."

in 3-point shots — and was credited with three steals. After the game, Iowa coach Tom Davis compared Smith to Michael Adams, who Davis coached at Boston College and went on to play in the NBA for the Denver Nuggets. "I don't want to hurt Kevin by (comparing him to) Michael Adams," Davis said. "I only coached Michael Adams one year. We had a real good ball club, so I was able to bring him off the bench and bring him along slowly. But he did not come along nearly as quickly as Kevin has."

But, Davis added, the Hawkeyes have needed Smith to play well, and that could have prompted the quick growth by the freshman from Fort Worth, Tex. Smith played 28 minutes against Colgate and 21 versus Creighton. Before the tournament, he was averaging 21 minutes per contest. "Maybe (Smith's improvement) is because we have a need," Davis said. "That's what happens sometimes. You have a need for a player like Kevin so we're just thrusting him in there."

"I had John Bagley playing ahead of Michael Adams and another little guard, so I didn't really have to rush Michael. Whereas Kevin, we've thrown him in there and he's succeeded. I'm very impressed with how quickly he's come along. Now, I get upset with him when he doesn't play that way all the time." Smith, saying his main objective is to keep the game flowing, fits well into Davis' fast-break style. While he still makes mistakes, the Iowa coach said he sees a lot of potential in Smith's play.

"You could see how he triggers the break," Davis said. "When he gets the ball going, he gives us a dimension at point guard that neither Troy (Skinner) nor Val (Barnes) can give us because of his great speed." "I try to keep everybody in the motion of the game, keep everybody in the flow, try to get everybody into it," Smith said. "If you're not in, I'll try to make something happen, offense or defense. . . I just hope I can improve the way I play while I'm playing."

Hawks eaten alive at Penn State

By Brian Gaul The Daily Iowan and DI wire services
 The Iowa women's basketball team stepped into the Lions' den Saturday and fared little better than their Biblical counterparts. The No. 17 Penn State Lady Lions used sharp shooting and balanced scoring to hand No. 11 Iowa its first loss of the season, 82-62, in University Park, Pa., Saturday. All five Lady Lion starters scored in double figures, led by junior Susan Robinson, who recorded the 30th double-figure game in both points and rebounds of her career. She tallied 17 points and 11 rebounds. The 20-point margin was the largest over Iowa in a regular-season contest since 1985, when Ohio State defeated Iowa in Columbus, Ohio, 64-41.

"Penn State is an outstanding team," Iowa head coach C. Vivian Stringer said. "They're obviously well-balanced. They're very experienced. . . There's no question that they're a top ten team." The paid attendance of 3,359 was the seventh largest crowd in Penn State school history to see a women's basketball game. It was also the most people ever to attend a women's home opener. The Lady Lions got on the board first, when senior guard Tonya Garner converted on two free throws after a foul by Iowa's Toni Foster eight seconds into the game. The Hawkeyes answered when junior Trisha Waugh hit a 10-foot jumpshot 46 seconds later to knot the score at two, the only time the two teams were even. The Lady Lions increased their lead to 17 points, 36-19, with 3:19 remaining in the first half, before the Hawkeyes cut the deficit to 11 on free throws and a pair of jumpers by Waugh and Schueler. Iowa trailed 38-27 at intermission. Penn State built the lead back up to 54-39 with 14:48 remaining, before Iowa began chipping away. Foster hit an eight-foot jumper, Laurie Aaron scored on a pass from Cassandra Rahming and Schueler's lay-up at 12:40 cut the deficit to nine, 54-45. But that was as close as Iowa would get. Junior guard Dana Eickenberg hit four jumpers down the stretch, two of them three-pointers, to seal the victory. The Lady Lions led by as much as 23 after she drilled one of the three-pointers with 2:15 remaining. A three-pointer by Schueler cut the Lady Lion margin to 18 with 47 seconds remaining, but a basket by freshman reserve Helen Holloway with two seconds left accounted for the final margin. "While we have numbers, I don't think there's any question that our inexperience showed up tonight," Stringer said. "Our veteran players like Trisha Waugh and Stephanie Schueler were keys for us, but we got virtually nothing out of our new players, our freshmen." "It was a good test, and there's no question that this team will be back, but it will be a while before we can defeat a team such as Penn State." Iowa senior forward Felicia Hall reinjured her right knee four minutes in to the first period and did not return. Stringer said the injury and Foster's early foul trouble set the tone of the game. The Hawkeyes, 3-1, return to the state of Iowa for a date with Drake Tuesday, Dec. 4, in Des Moines. Iowa then travels to Chicago for a contest at DePaul Saturday.

The 54-hole, $125,000 tournament will be one of 30 events on the 1991 Ben Hogan Tour, which was initiated last year in an effort to bring professional golf to new locations. "We are most fortunate to secure a Ben Hogan Tour event for the enjoyment of the tremendous number of golf fans in greater eastern Iowa," Elliott said. Elliott will serve as Tournament Chairman for the Open, while Iowa men's golf coach Lynn Blevins has been named tournament director. Baseball attendance slightly down ROSEMONT, Ill. — Major League attendance surpassed the 50-million mark in 1990 for the fifth consecutive season, but was down slightly from 1989. Attendance figures for regular-season games this season totaled 54,823,768 compared to a regular-season record 55,173,096 the previous season. The first week of the 1990 season was canceled due to the lockout of spring training camps and the games were made up throughout the year. The combined attendance of the major league regular season and the 19-league, 188-team National Association totaled a record 80,068,337, an increase of 1,791,648 (2.3 percent) over the previous record of 78,276,689 set in 1989. The National Association total of 25,244,569 was the seventh highest in the association's history and the most since 1952, when the minor league's drew 26,135,174. Vincent missing Winter Meetings ROSEMONT, Ill. — Commissioner Fay Vincent will miss baseball's annual winter meetings because of a respiratory infection. Vincent is being treated at home with antibiotics and has been advised by his physician not to travel. The meetings started Saturday and are scheduled to run through Dec. 5. A written copy of Vincent's "State of the Game Address," which he was scheduled to deliver Monday morning, will be released to the media at that time. In Vincent's absence, deputy commissioner Steve Greenberg will preside at the meetings.

Marble back in Iowa, looks forward to CBA

By Erica Welland
The Daily Iowan

A familiar face was seen behind the Iowa bench during the Amana-Hawkeye Classic Saturday night, a face that will be seen even more often in this area.

Former Hawkeye basketball player Roy Marble returned to Iowa this weekend to report to the Cedar Rapids Silver Bullets. He will make his first appearance with the Continental Basketball Association team Wednesday at Quad City.

The Bullets acquired Marble's contract through a trade with the CBA's Yakima Sun Kings in early November.

But until earlier this week, the 6-foot-6 forward had plans to play in Italy.

"I had an agreement worked out there, but I talked to a few NBA coaches and my agent, and everyone seemed to say that right now it wouldn't be a good idea because I'm young and I can always go that way," Marble said. "All the teams that are interested would like me to be here so if they do need me, they can get me immediately and not have to wait and go through conflict with the European leagues."

Marble, Iowa's all-time scoring leader, was a first-round pick in the 1989 NBA draft by the Atlanta Hawks. After playing 24 games with the Hawks, he was traded to the Houston Rockets, who waived him on Nov. 1.

Now Marble is trying to get back into the NBA but says he's not going to guess when his next chance will come.

"I'm not putting any predictions on it," Marble said. "When I came here, I brought the majority of my clothes. I'm going to give 100 percent, play hard and let the NBA take care of the other part. I came here to play and that's what I'll be doing."

"My heart goes out to him; I think all the Hawkeye fans feel the same way," Iowa coach Tom Davis said. "We'd just like to see him succeed. If this is a step to help him on that road, we'll all be here to cheer him on and pat him on the back and see if he can get his career moving along."

Marble also said he thinks he will be able to add more speed and athletic ability to the Silver Bullets squad. But the Flint, Mich., native plans to work his way into the system slowly to give himself time to adjust.

"I've been playing with overweight YMCA guys back home. But I think I'll be OK after some workouts and mentally getting back into it and learning the system," Marble said. "I don't plan on starting the first game. I don't want to shake up anything. I'm just going to take my time."

Former Iowa basketball player Roy Marble will return to the state to play basketball for the Cedar Rapids Silver Bullets. Marble signed with the Bullets on Saturday. He is the all-time leading scorer at Iowa.

'Fun meet' divulges Hawkeyes' abilities

By Michael Watkins
The Daily Iowan

Heading into last weekend's Wisconsin Invitational in Madison, Iowa head coach Peter Kennedy expected the Hawkeyes to have a "fun meet" to give the kids a break from their usual events.

But when it was all over, Kennedy discovered something very serious: No matter what the circumstances or competition, the Iowa women's swimming and diving team is very versatile and deep in talent.

gave the Hawkeyes their strongest competition, particularly Illinois, who took the 200 and 400 freestyles, the 1-meter diving event, and the 200 and 400 medley relays.

"Illinois basically put their people in their regular events while we decided to change some people around," Kennedy said.

The biggest surprise of the meet came from the strong performance of Iowa breaststroker Chrissy Eck, who not only won the 500 freestyle in 5:05.81, the fastest Iowa time of the season, but also anchored the winning 800 freestyle relay. She took second in the 200 freestyle as well in 1:55.43, also the fastest time in the event this season for the Hawkeyes.

"In the 800, (Eck) went off the block a good body-and-a-half length behind the girl from Illinois, and was still trailing her by the same distance into the final 100 meters," Kennedy said. "But then, Chrissy destroyed her, winning in the last 50 meters by a body-and-a-half length."

Getting a shot at what are normally Eck's specialty events, freshman Allison Pennington stepped forward and took the 100 breaststroke in 1:09.06, one of her best times of the year. As an exception to the switching of events, senior freestyler Colleen Thome remained constant on the year, winning the 50 freestyle in 25.06 for the fourth time in as many meets.

Returning in "very good form" in her first meet of the season for Iowa, sophomore distance swimmer Angi Todd took third in the 500 freestyle in 5:09.02. Todd had been out of action because of a shoulder injury, but according to Kennedy she "looked really good and in shape" in her first meet of the season.

On the boards for the Hawkeyes, junior Katy Ketoff captured the 3-meter diving honors and placed second in the 1-meter event. Senior Debbie Wirth came in third in both events.

"Overall, I was very pleased with the entire team's performance," Kennedy said. "Everybody performed 100 per cent and reacted very well swimming in different events. Our times were very fast and that made the meet that much more exciting."

Women's Swimming

"We got some real good results," Kennedy said. "The team really came through in their different events and turned in some of their best times of the season, and we didn't even have our regulars in their usual events. That shows me and the rest of the staff that depth-wise we are very good."

Because this meet was an invitational, Iowa faced Big Ten rivals Illinois and Wisconsin as well as Illinois State, Carrol College, Wisconsin-Lacrosse, Wisconsin-Whitewater, and Wisconsin-St. Peters.

As expected, Illinois and Wisconsin

Jasmine Guy sheds TV image with confident musical debut

By Jennifer Weglarz
The Daily Iowan

Jasmine Guy
Jasmine Guy
Warner Bros.

It would be far too easy to dismiss Jasmine Guy as just another dancer/actress turned singer. And it would also be a mistake to confuse Guy with Whitley Gilbert, her flighty alter ego on NBC's "A Different World." You might not think Jasmine is the kind of girl to insist you step to her while she reads you the riot act (as she does in "Don't Have To Justify"), but this is where you would be wrong.

track propel the updated girl-group sound of "Johnny Come Lately," which would sound absolutely incredible as a house mix. Shattering the Jasmine-is-Whitley myth is "Don't Want Money," an up-tempo dance-rock with crunchy guitar, in which Guy insists she doesn't need a man with money: "You know the almighty dollar never made me holler." Take that, Whitley!

A successful contrast with the tracks produced by L.A. Reid and Babyface currently flooding the R&B and pop charts.

sounds her most mature on this track.

On the downside, Pebbles would perform "Another Like My Lover" with more spunk; "Tuff Boy," which sounds like something from the Paula Abdul songbook, is too cutesy and coy for its own good, and Guy sounds more than a little like the ex-Laker Girl. But these two missteps are minor and don't really detract from the effect of the album.

Not many actors can make the transition to vinyl easily, but with her performance background, Jasmine Guy has a lot going for her, and that translates into a successful musical project. She can definitely hold her own.

"Everybody Knows My Name," written in part by "Different World" co-star Cree Summer, deals with the lack of privacy Jasmine and her fella will have because of her star status.

Other well-known performers lend their talents to several cuts. Gospel-tinged "I Wish You Well" features Jeffrey Osborne and Kipper Jones on backing vocals. The formulaic ballad "More Love," with a sax solo by Branford Marsalis, gives Guy the chance to show off a more romantic style. James Ingram guests on "Just Wanna Hold You." Though a ballad of the "let's not move too fast" ilk, Guy

Records

The key to the success of this self-titled album is Guy's projection of attitude. Guy is no vocal powerhouse, but she sounds remarkably relaxed and confident on her debut, and her personality shines through. With producers like Full Force and Oliver Leiber, these cuts successfully contrast with the tracks produced by L.A. Reid and Babyface currently flooding the R&B and pop charts.

The album's standout cuts are from Full Force. "Try Me" kicks off the set and benefits from a tight arrangement and soulful backing vocals (sometimes outshining Guy) by Ex-Girl Friend. Swirling synthesized strings and a hot rhythm

Gentle Communicators, It's reader mail day again, as I have received a veritable deluge of letters in the last few weeks.

A discerning reader asks that I clarify an unfortunately common error in financial notation. Ten cents can be written as 10¢ or $0.10 (the equivalent of 10 hundredths of a dollar).

Placement of the decimal point is important. Pretend you saw this sign in a store:

SALE
Kittens
Nuclear Warheads
Real-Wood Pencils
10¢ apiece

This is a good deal, and you should be commended for your skills as a bargain hunter and a power shopper. According to the sign, you could buy three kittens, two nuclear warheads and five real-wood pencils for a penny; each item listed costs only 10 hundredths of a cent.

Another reader asks that I describe when to use among and between. The distinction can be tricky. Generally, between introduces two items and among introduces more than two. If these items are compared individually or one pair at a time, however, between is used. Among also indicates that an entity has been chosen from the members of a group.

What should I do tonight? I cannot decide between studying chemistry and watching my fingernails grow. (Note: I do not wish to offend any chemistry aficionados among my fans, but could be in medical school now if I had understood chemistry as an undergraduate.)

An agreement was negotiated between the lawyer and the promiscuous cat's 95 heirs. Among her offspring, Xanthippe, my delicate kitten, is the most deserving.

Quite a few readers have requested that I explain the use of that and which.

That introduces essential or restrictive clauses. Which introduces non-essential or non-restrictive clauses, which are set apart with commas. The distinction is important. Notice the differences in meaning in the applications to this sentence:

The English degree that I received from the UI has yet to land me a $50,000-a-year job. The clause that I received from the UI is essential (or restrictive) to the sentence; I have made a hobby of collecting English degrees from universities around the country, but the UI degree is the only one that has failed me as far as employment goes.

My English degree, which I received from the UI, has yet to land me a $50,000-a-year job. The clause which I received from the UI is non-essential (or non-restrictive) to the sentence and can be removed without changing its meaning; I have one degree, which happens to be from the UI (look! another non-essential clause!), and I still have no job.

Many grammarians and linguists discount the importance of paying attention to that and which; they opine that commas define these clauses adequately. Indeed, some of the finest English literature since the Renaissance has shown blatant disregard for these rules. As a purist, however, I maintain that the rules exist for a reason, and I flinch when I hear them abused.

Until next time, happy communicating.

Jagger's conversion disputed

The Associated Press

JAKARTA, Indonesia - A Hindu leader in Bali says British rock singer Mick Jagger's recent wedding to longtime girlfriend Jerry Hall was illegal and merely imitated parts of a traditional Balinese wedding ceremony.

I Wayan Surpha, chairman of the Indonesian Hinduism Association in Bali's capital of Denpasar, said Jagger has not yet met conditions to be a follower of Hinduism, the official Antara news agency reported Saturday.

Jagger, 47, and Hall, a 34-year-old model from Texas, married Nov. 21 in Bali.

Ida Pedanda Sukawati, a Hindu priest, said he presided over the ceremony, which included a rite signifying entrance into Hinduism, the agency reported. The couple also signed a statement indicating they had converted.

But Surpha objected, saying, "It should not be so easy to hold such ceremony."

Bali Gov. Ida Bagus Mantra also said traditional weddings "should not be given too easily" to foreigners vacationing in Bali, the agency reported.

Tech became the school history to win the season, the first in 38 years. Tech completed Tech's first regular season since never has won the national championship.

Georgia Tech kept its hopes alive for the national championship and Tennessee and Alabama clinched bowl berths in college football on Saturday.

Shawn Jones passed for four touchdowns and accounted for a pair of 2-point conversions as the Yellow Jackets extended their unbeaten streak to 15 games with a 40-23 victory over Georgia. Georgia Tech, at 10-0-1 the only unbeaten team in Division I-A, not only solidified its No. 2 ranking but kept on the heels of top-ranked Colorado.

The Yellow Jackets conceivably could win the national championship if they beat No. 19 Nebraska in the Citrus Bowl while Colorado loses to No. 7 Notre Dame in the Orange.

"I want to be No. 1, but we still have another game to play," Jones said.

Jones completed 12 passes in a row during one stretch as the Yellow Jackets overcame an early 9-0 deficit.

"We've been down before," Jones said. "I told the guys to keep their poise. I told them we'd score and keep on scoring and it would get a little easier."

Tech became the sixth team in school history to win 10 games in a season, the first in 38 years. It also completed Tech's first unbeaten regular season since 1952. Tech never has won the national championship.

Georgia (4-7) lost its fourth in a row, the first time that's happened to the Bulldogs in a season since 1963. It also marked the first time Georgia had lost seven games since the 1961 season.

No. 12 Tennessee 49, Vanderbilt 90

Tennessee overcame a 17-14 half-time deficit and earned a New Year's Day date with Virginia in New Orleans. The victory gave the Vols an 8-2-2 overall record and 5-1-1 in the SEC. Florida has a 6-1 SEC record, but is not eligible for the conference title or Sugar Bowl due to NCAA sanctions.

"It was tougher than even I imagined," Tennessee coach Johnny Majors said. "The wishbone presents many difficulties. It runs the clock and shortens the game."

Tony Thompson carried 31 times for 236 yards, scoring on runs of nine, 12, 11 and 13 yards as he won the SEC rushing title, finishing with 1,261 yards on 219 carries.

"It couldn't be more appropriate for this team to have Tony Thompson as its captain. He's a champion, a winner," said Majors, who guided the Vols to back-to-back SEC championships for the first time since the 1938-40 Tennessee team won three straight.

Alabama kicker Philip Doyle is carried off the field after his three field goals broke an SEC record and carried the Crimson Tide to the Fiesta Bowl with a 16-7 win over Auburn.

Alabama 16, No. 20 Auburn 7

The Crimson Tide turned back the Tigers with a strong defense. Robert Jones' 1-yard touchdown and three field goals by Philip Doyle, now the Southeastern Conference's all-time leader with 78.

Alabama defeated Auburn for the first time in five years to earn its 31st bowl trip in the past 32 years. The Fiesta will be Alabama's 43rd bowl appearance, the most by any team. Auburn will be taking its 24th bowl trip, to the Peach.

The victory capped a remarkable turnaround for Alabama (7-4 and 5-2 in the SEC), which started the season with three straight losses.

The Crimson Tide will face Louisville (9-1-1) on Jan. 1, while Auburn (7-3-1, 4-2-1), which earned at least a share of the SEC title in each of the past three years, will go to the Peach Bowl on Dec. 29 against Indiana (6-4-1).

Alabama president Roger Sayers accepted the Fiesta bid although the university's Faculty Senate had voted in favor of rejecting the invitation because Arizona voters recently voted down a proposal to make Martin Luther King's birthday a paid holiday for state workers.

Alabama coach Gene Stallings said the players wanted to go to the Fiesta Bowl "and I think they are entitled to go to it. . . . And we're going to do everything we can to represent the conference."

No. 3 Miami 30, San Diego State 28

Craig Erickson overcame an erratic start to throw two touchdown passes and Miami won its fifth straight by holding off San Diego State in a matchup of two of the nation's top quarterbacks.

Cotton Bowl-bound Miami finished the regular season 9-2, while San Diego State wound up 6-5, losing its first game at home after five victories.

Erickson finished 17-for-39 for 284 yards after going just 6-for-22 in the first half. San Diego State's Dan McGwire also threw for two touchdowns and finished 32-for-53 for 323 yards.

No. 5 Texas 28, Texas A&M 27

The fifth-ranked Longhorns beat the Aggies when Mark Berry stopped Darren Lewis on a 2-point conversion with a little less than four minutes left.

The victory raised Texas' record to 10-1. The Longhorns already clinched the Southwest Conference's Cotton Bowl berth and will meet Miami in that game. A&M dropped to 8-3-1 and 5-2-1 and plays Brigham Young in the Holiday Bowl at San Diego on Dec. 29.

No. 8 Florida St. 45, No. 6 Florida 30

Amp Lee rushed for 147 yards and scored three touchdowns and Casey Weldon passed for 325 yards and two scores as Florida State defeated Florida.

Lawrence Dawsey caught a 76-yard touchdown pass in the opening minute and set up another score with a 71-yard reception in the fourth quarter. Dawsey caught four passes for 172 yards and finished the season with 999 yards on 65 catches.

The Seminoles finished the season 9-2 with five straight wins heading into the Blockbuster Bowl against Penn State on Dec. 28. The Gators, who finished the season 9-2 under David Klingler, first-year coach Steve Spurrier, are ineligible for postseason play because of NCAA sanctions.

No. 11 Houston 62, Arizona State 45

David Klingler passed for a record 716 yards and seven touchdowns, climaxed by a 95-yard play with 1:32 left to play, to lead Houston.

"I don't like close games. I'd like to just go out there and get it over with quickly, but they forced us to keep scoring," Klingler said.

Houston, prevented from going to a bowl by NCAA sanctions, came out of the 4-hour, 10-minute contest with a final record of 10-1. Arizona State ended its season with a 4-7 record.

BYU's Detmer wins Heisman

But Hawaii unimpressed, deals Cougars 59-28 loss

By Rick Warner
The Associated Press

Ty Detmer experienced the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat — all in the same day.

Hours after winning the Heisman Trophy on Saturday, Detmer played one of the worst games of his career in BYU's 59-28 loss to Hawaii. The BYU quarterback was intercepted four times, all in the first half, and threw for only 319 yards, his second-lowest total in two years.

The defeat, which eliminated the fourth-ranked Cougars (10-2) from the national title picture, took some of the pleasure away from Detmer's Heisman victory over Notre Dame's Raghob "Rocket" Ismail.

"I can't enjoy it," he said. Although Detmer set NCAA records for most passing yards (5,188) in a season and most touchdowns (86) in a career, he had a miserable time against Hawaii. Fans at Aloha Stadium taunted Detmer by shouting, "The Rocket should have got it," and Hawaii receiver Jeff Snyder celebrated a touchdown catch by imitating the Heisman Trophy stance.

Detmer, the latest in a long line of great Brigham Young quarterbacks, outdid them all Saturday by winning the Heisman Trophy.

Detmer, who has set or tied 25 NCAA passing and total offense records, became the first BYU player and third consecutive junior to win college football's most important award.

Raghob "Rocket" Ismail, Notre Dame's all-purpose star, finished second. Colorado running back Eric Bieniemy was third, followed by Virginia quarterback Shawn Moore and Houston quarterback David Klingler.

Ismail, Bieniemy and Moore were present at the Downtown Athletic Club, where the ceremony was televised live by CBS. Detmer was in Honolulu, where he was preparing for the Hawaii game.

"We've had great quarterbacks in the past and none of them won it. It's about time we won one," he said via satellite hook-up.

"You try to picture yourself in this position, but you really can't imagine it," Detmer said.

He received 316 first-place votes and 1,482 points in nationwide voting by 917 sports journalists and former Heisman winners. Ismail got 237 first-place votes and 1,177 points. Next were Bieniemy (114 and 798), Moore (46 and 465) and Klingler (7 and 125).

Players receive three points for a first-place vote, two for second and one for third.

Rounding out the Top 10 finishers were wide receiver Herman Moore of Virginia, running back Greg Lewis of Washington, quarterback Craig Erickson of Miami, running backs Darren Lewis of Texas A&M and Mike Mayweather of Army. Erickson and Darren Lewis tied for eighth with 31 points each.

Detmer, a 6-foot, 175-pound native of San Antonio, is the 10th underclassman to win the award. The recent streak of junior winners includes Barry Sanders of Oklahoma State in 1988 and Andre Ware of Houston in 1989.

Sanders and Ware skipped their senior seasons to join the NFL, but Detmer insists he will return to BYU next year.

"I'll be back next year," he said. "I committed when I took my scholarship. I haven't even explored the possibility of the NFL."

While Detmer impressed voters with his sensational stats, Ismail gained support with his versatility, speed and flair for the big play.

"I'm very relieved," Ismail said minutes after the announcement. "I'm just happy it's over with."

Although he touched the ball only 11 times per game, Ismail made the most of his opportunities. The junior averaged 157 all-purpose yards per game as a receiver, runner and kick returner, scored six touchdowns and gained an average of 14 yards every time he handled the ball.

Ismail's value was as glaring when he didn't play as when he did. Because of a bruised thigh, he missed all but one play against Stanford and sat out the entire second half against Penn State. Those were the only games Notre Dame lost.

Bieniemy, the nation's second-leading rusher, gained 148 yards per game, scored 17 touchdowns and became Colorado's all-time leading rusher and scorer.

Shawn Moore led the nation in passing efficiency, completing 144 of 241 for 2,262 yards and 21 touchdowns with only eight interceptions. He also rushed for 306 yards and eight scores.

Gibson on with Royals

By Doug Tucker
The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals, who appeared to lack clubhouse leadership last season while sinking to sixth place, are hoping high-spirited Kirk Gibson can light their motivational fires.

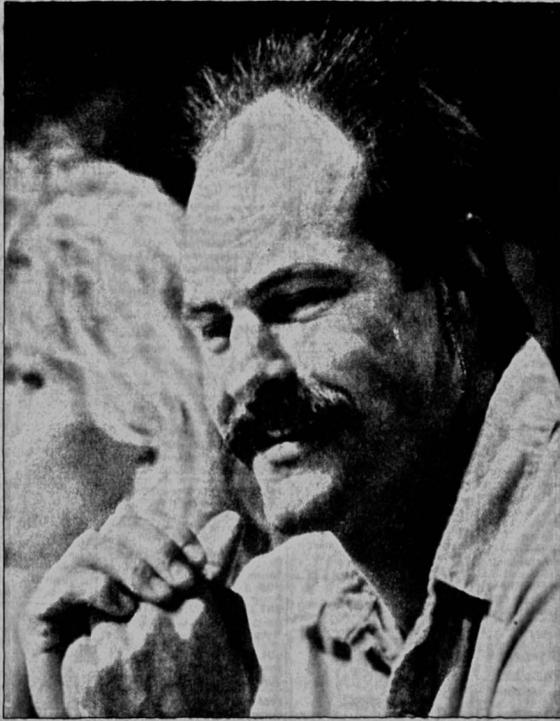

And Gibson, a 33-year-old outfielder and former National League MVP, is ready to strike the match.

"I play very hard and with a lot of emotion," Gibson said Saturday in a telephone interview, after signing a two-year free agent contract with the Royals. "You've got to stay focused on some of the days when things aren't going so good. All I can say is, I promise you I will play as hard as I can and do everything I can to win ballgames. I'm not a vocal lecture person. I'm just a leader by example with a lot of desire. And that can be contagious."

Gibson was given a thorough physical examination Friday by team physician Dr. Steve Joyce. After earning National League MVP honors with the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1988, the Michigan native was plagued by injuries. He began the 1990 season on the disabled list with a torn left hamstring.

"I think he's going to go to spring training next year in the best physical condition he's had in years," said general manager Herk Robinson.

According to The Kansas City Star, Gibson will receive $3.3 million from the two-year contract.

"If they didn't think I was healthy, the offer wouldn't have stayed on the table," Gibson said. "For the past two springs I've been in rehab. The rehab is done. I'm excited about being able to go to spring training on the same level as everybody else."

The Milwaukee Brewers finished runnerup to the Royals, Gibson said.

"I broke it down to Milwaukee and Kansas City," he said. "It was hard to call the other people and tell them they finished second."

Rough day at Winter Nationals

By David Taylor
The Daily Iowan

The performance of the three representatives of the Iowa men's gymnastics team at the Winter Nationals over the weekend was not exactly what Coach Tomm Dunn had hoped for.

Although they would have needed to finish in the top 13 of 50 competitors, the Iowa group of Paul Bautel, Chris Kabat and Gary Denk had "a rough day in the optionals," according to Dunn.

M. Gymnastics

"Kabat and Bautel had a shot if they would have had their best meet, but they didn't," said Dunn.

Bautel, a junior, finished 23rd overall with a score of 104.3, while sophomore Kabat took the 24th spot at 104.14.

"Bautel was in good shape after the compulsory competition on Friday, but he had a rough last two events in the optionals," Dunn said. "Kabat had a hard time in the optionals, also."

Denk, a freshman, scored a 99.62, finishing 39th.

The best showing was in the rings, where all three Iowa members grabbed spots in the top 15. Bautel finished ninth at 18.7, Denk was 14th at 18.15, and Kabat took 15th at 18.1.

"We did a good job in the rings, and also in the pommel horse," said Dunn.

Bautel and Kabat finished 14th and 21st in the pommel horse competition, respectively.

In other action, Kabat took 15th in the parallel bars and 27th in the floor exercise, while Bautel finished 26th on the horizontal bar, and Denk finished 32nd in vaulting.

"I thought we did some new things, but we just couldn't pull it all together," Dunn said.

"This is a relatively young team and they will be learning things through January, until we settle down in February and get ready for the important meets at the end of the season."

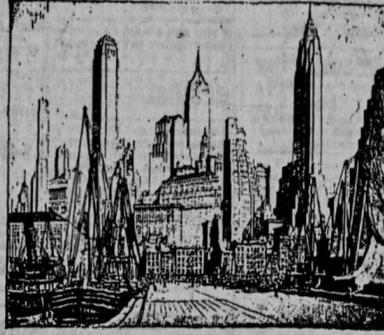

The Hawkeyes breaks from competition until next semester when they take part in the Spartan Open at Michigan State.

"It will still be early in our season and we will be coming off a break, but we'll just try to get going again and work towards progress on the compulsory events," said Dunn. "We might try a couple of new tricks in the optionals too."
