Texas wildlife saved from oil spill

HIGH ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Workers using skimmers, absorbent pads and booms managed Saturday to keep the remnants of a 40,000-gallon oil spill out of a Galveston Bay wildlife refuge, oil company officials said.

But the spilled crude still stretched 4½ miles, forcing closure of the gulf coastal waterway until Saturday evening when the U.S. Coast Guard reopened it to one-way traffic only.

A 10-inch pipeline ruptured before midnight Thursday when Amoco workers were transferring light crude oil to a barge at the company's High Island terminal, in Galveston's east bay.

More than 90 percent of the spill was diverted into a ditch or barge slip, and damage to the environment was light.

Fire damages New York City ferry terminal

NEW YORK (AP) — Fire boats led the attack Sunday on a blaze that severely damaged the Manhattan terminal of the Staten Island ferry, the cheapest commuter trip in town and a popular tourist attraction.

A few Sunday morning passengers fled the flame-engulfed terminal and two required treatment for smoke inhalation, but most of the 13 reported injuries were suffered by police making sure all got out safely.

About 200 firefighters and two fireboats battled stubborn flames centered in the space between the terminal's roof and ceiling for nearly four hours. Eighty firefighters were decontaminated after exposure to burning asbestos and later returned to duty.

42 killed in South African political rally

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Gunmen ambushed members of the Inkatha Freedom Party marching through a black township Sunday, setting off bloody factional fighting around Johannesburg that left at least 42 people dead.

About half the victims were slain as they marched to a political rally Sunday morning in the Tokoza township, just southeast of Johannesburg.

Later, 13 people died in Soweto township as Inkatha supporters clashed with residents. After a grenade was tossed at Inkatha supporters returning from a rally, the Inkatha supporters rampaged through neighborhoods, attacking houses, smashing windows, looting televisions and firing guns.

Cease-fire succeeds in Western Sahara

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Dozens of U.N. peacekeepers were deployed in the Western Sahara on Sunday, and no breaches in the disputed territory's two-day-old cease-fire were reported.

Morocco and the Polisario guerrilla front have battled for control of the desert region in sporadic warfare over the past 16 years.

The cease-fire, which began at dawn Friday, is the first step in a U.N. plan for a referendum in January in which voters will choose between independence and Moroccan rule.

Volcanic avalanche kills 7 in Philippines

SAN FILIPANDO, Philippines (AP) — A 15-foot-high wall of steaming debris from the Mount Pinatubo volcano thundered down rivers in central Luzon, killing at least seven people, police said Sunday.

Officials said several others were injured but complete casualty and damage reports were unavailable.

Harkin to announce candidacy

Mike Glover
Associated Press

DES MOINES — Sen. Tom Harkin, clearing the final hurdle of family worries, told staffers last week "let's go" for the Democratic presidential nomination and will formally announce his candidacy Sept. 15.

"I'll tell you this — I'm going to do it my way," said Harkin. His decision is far from surprising. Throughout the summer, Harkin has been testing the Democratic presidential waters and sending increasingly strong signals.

Late last month he closeted himself with his family to discuss the pressures of a presidential campaign. Returning from that vacation, Harkin said he intended to keep his campaign commitments but hadn't made a final decision.

During an interview on Saturday, Harkin said he made the final decision Wednesday.

"I figured that at noon I was going to make a decision," said Harkin. "I sat in my office. At noon, I just quietly opened the door and I called (a staffer) in and I said 'let's go.'"

Harkin plans the announcement at his annual steak fry Sept. 15. His announcement will make him the second Democrat to formally enter the race for the nomination to oppose President Bush, who is widely expected to seek a second term. Former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas announced his campaign in April.

In his stump speeches, Harkin has been increasingly touting his announcement plans.

Harkin won election to a second term in the Senate last year and in his early campaign stops has hammered hard at traditional liberal themes. Harkin said the warm response he's gotten to those themes, combined with the decisions of other prominent Democrats not to seek the nomination, convinced him to make the bid.

Shamir implies loan guarantee delay might adversely impact peace process

Allyn Fisher
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — A defiant Yitzhak Shamir vowed Sunday that Israel will build more Jewish settlements in the occupied Arab lands and hinted that U.S. pressure to halt construction could endanger Middle East peace talks.

Contradicting previous Israeli assurances, Shamir also said settlement expansion is necessary to absorb Soviet Jews.

His remarks apparently were aimed at President Bush, who has asked Congress to delay consideration of an Israeli request for the United States to guarantee $10 billion in loans Israel needs to pay for the absorption of Soviet Jews. The guarantees would allow Israel to borrow at cheaper rates.

Bush wants to get a Middle East peace conference off the ground in October before discussing the guarantees and reportedly has insisted Israel stop building settlements before the talks. Washington considers them a major obstacle to peace.

But Shamir said on Sunday, "All the territories of Eretz Israel must be settled by Jews, more and more," Shamir said, pounding his fist on the table at a meeting of activists from his right-wing Likud bloc.

UI REACTION

Faculty use own finances to travel, hire support staff

Heather Pitzel
and Leslie Yazel
Daily Iowan

With budget cuts affecting all corners of the UI, reactions from faculty, professional and scientific staff, and merit employees range from reassuring to bitter.

Each group has suffered obstacles in its day-to-day work. Faculty have been taking over tasks usually done by support staff. Support staff and other merit employees have had to cope with new surroundings and frustrated students after being bumped or transferred to new jobs. P&S staff, while somewhat insulated by funds from grants and contracts, have felt losses in staff as well.

■ Faculty Senate president, Jack Fix

Fix said his colleagues' reaction to problems caused by a smaller budget have been mild.

"This is not a sinking ship; faculty and staff are still doing their jobs. I have not heard any tremendous outcry," Fix said, adding it might take time for the effects of the budget crunch to be felt.

Fix acknowledged that the budget cuts have brought added duties and stresses to faculty — some worse than others.

services have been cut, but nothing strikes at the heart of what we're here to do."

BUDGET CRUNCH

Recent cutbacks prompt differences of opinion

Heidi Pederson
Daily Iowan

Budget cuts ordered by Gov. Terry Branstad have called widespread attention recently to the UI's budget woes, but university faculty have been dealing with the problem for years, taking matters into their own hands to keep programs operating smoothly.

Many faculty members and administrators have been taking salary cuts and absorbing professional expenses for years, according to several professors.

Ed Folsom, chairman of the English department, said such a situation had not developed with the budget crunch but rather has been the case for years, especially when it comes to travel.

"Travel funds provided by the department are woefully inadequate for the kind and amount of travel an active, scholarly faculty has to take part in," he said. "When you add up what the department has, what the college has and what the university has — even if a faculty member was supported by all three — I would say that member would be lucky to get $500 for the entire year."

"On any trip airfare alone is going to take more than that. So yes, there are a number of faculty members who, if they want to remain active professionally and

Gathering place for elderly full of vigor

The center coordinates efforts with area senior citizens to provide activities and services.

John P. Waterhouse
Daily Iowan

For people who have never visited the Iowa City and Johnson County Senior Center, they may mistakenly think of it as a nursing home, according to Bette Meisel, Senior Center coordinator.

She added that, upon arriving at the center, 28 S. Linn St., many people initially assume that it is no more than an extended meal site with a few activities going on.

Leo Cain, a volunteer at the center for more than 10 years, said there is a variety of activities offered, including a carpenter's shop, a game room with pingpong tables and a golf practice area.

The center also offers classes in drawing, oil painting, dance, and Spanish and German, to name just a few.

Seven senior service agencies are also located within the Senior Center. They are the Elderly Services Agency, Adult Day Program, Johnson County SEATS, Congregate and Home Delivered Meals, American Association of Retired Persons, Visiting Nurses Association and the Senior Peer Counseling Program.

Meisel, who is also the landlord for the agencies in the building, said the agencies receive free space, use of furniture and equipment, and some city services.

"At the center we give each person the opportunity to continue to grow and share. We don't want to do things for the people. We are here to coordinate their efforts," she said. "We are not the traditional 'do for' kind of senior center."

For example, Meisel said, persons complained for five years that the staff at the center would not organize a dance for them. The staff would not do it for them, Meisel said, but would work with them. Eventually, she said, someone volunteered to plan the dance, and since then dances have been held every month.

"We are very unusual as a senior center," Meisel said. "You will never go anywhere and find a center that offers more than you'll find here. This is because we have a fantastic staff, and we receive a tremendous amount of support from the city."

She said the five-member staff consists of a Senior Center coordinator, program specialist, volunteer specialist, secretary and a maintenance worker. There are also 364 volunteers who give over 20,000 hours a year to the center. Almost 90 percent of the volunteers are senior citizens.

"The University of Iowa has students who need to do interns or practicums, and there are professors who do research here at the center as well. They start out thinking they are doing us a favor, but then they start asking us what they can do next because the experience is so fulfilling," Meisel said.

"The first thing we say when people tell us they are going to volunteer their time to help other people is, 'Don't be a martyr,'" she said. "You need to do it for yourself. The secondary benefit is that it will help others."

Meisel said seniors are often praised but not allowed to contribute to society.

"This is a very youth-oriented society. We give lip-service to how valuable our older people are, but in reality we are interested in people who are producers," she said.

In a study on the elderly published by United Way of East Central Iowa, Iowa ranks first in the nation in the percent of population over the age of 85 and third in the nation in the percent of population over the age of 65.

"One of the interesting things we notice is that when people retire... they will tell us, 'I want to try something entirely different because I did not have the time to do it when I was working.' What's so exciting to see is what people become when they come here and then how they develop and grow," Meisel said.

The future is always going to be different, Meisel explained. The Senior Center is going to have to respond to the needs and concerns of each generation.

According to a 1990 Kingston Hill Survey, "the aging WWII Baby Boomers will (eventually) enter their retirement years and be better educated, healthier and wealthier than the current generation of elders. This will create, in 20 to 40 years, a large group of relatively healthy and active elders who will demand services and facilities to support their lifestyles and activities."

Meisel said with the current parking lot capacity of 36 spaces and an average of 300 persons using the center daily, a parking ramp is their biggest necessity. She said with the addition of the parking ramp, an auditorium, a pool and an exercise facility, they could probably serve a few hundred more people a day.

Students, foreign writers work together

In a program first, student translators and international authors will collaborate this year.

Brad Hahn
Daily Iowan

When foreign writers think about writing in the United States, they think of Iowa, according to International Writing Program Director Clark Blaise.

This is because the IWP, which opens its 24th year of operation today, has hosted nearly 900 of the world's foremost authors at the UI. While in Iowa City they work on their current writing and research projects and participate in readings, panel discussions, translation projects, cultural and artistic events, and a mini-course titled "International Literature Today."

"This is the largest and oldest program in the world for international writers. It has made Iowa synonymous with writing all over the world," Blaise said.

The national recognition helps the UI in a number of ways. Blaise said that because the program is widely known, the university gains "enormous prestige" and thus is able to get more money through grants.

"The university is able to piggy-back grants in our name. It's a program of distinction. It exists as a kind of beacon of uniqueness and excellence," Blaise said.

In addition to the prestige and financial advantages of hosting the program, Blaise also spoke of the educational value.

"This year, for the first time ever, we will have a face-to-face translation," Blaise said. "The foreign writers will bring in their work, and the Iowa students will translate the work and get a chance to publish, of a contact person in case of questions.

speak with the authors." This is particularly impressive given the quality of writers who will be participating this year, according to Blaise.

Some of the writers participating include:

- José Donoso, a novelist from Chile who was awarded Chile's Municipal Prize for journalism and also received the William Faulkner Foundation Prize for the novel "Coronation."
- Renate Dorrestein, a novelist from the Netherlands who is one of the leading feminist writers in her country.
- Kiyohiro Miura, a fiction writer from Japan who is the 1991 Ida Beam Distinguished Visiting Professor at the UI.
- Taufiq Ismail, a poet and translator from Indonesia who served as chairman of the Jakarta Institute of Arts and who was the recipient of the Arts Award.

The field of participants is better than ever before, Blaise said, because for the first time IWP received funding from major corporations. "The funding has enabled us to reach higher and deeper."

As much as the UI benefits from hosting, Blaise also spoke of how the writers gained by seeing America through the program. "This is the only place where America is unafraid to show itself as it really is... It's the best opportunity for a foreigner to see American and university life."

He felt one of the best advantages the UI offers is that it's a major university in a small town. It has a great writing program, Blaise said, and has an unthreatening environment.

"It shows America to the world's writers, and it shows this particular university to people who've never known the university as anything but a hierarchy."

ABORTION PROTEST

Temporary injunction keeps activists off Towncrest land

Loren Keller
Daily Iowan

A temporary injunction obtained by the owner of the Towncrest office complex forced both abortion rights activists and anti-abortion activists off the sidewalk Friday.

The injunction, which prohibited demonstrators from being on the Towncrest property, stipulated a $1,000 fine and up to a year in jail for violators.

The office of Dr. Robert Kretzschmar, a gynecologist located in the complex where anti-abortion activists say abortions are performed, was the target of the protests.

At least two of the 18 anti-abortion demonstrators arrested Tuesday were at the site, but the injunction was largely obeyed, and no arrests were made.

About 12 abortion rights activists and 25 anti-abortion advocates were instructed by police to keep off the private parking lot or face arrest. Protesters congregated on the public sidewalk in front, the two sides standing inches apart but not engaging in confrontational behavior.

Action for Abortion Rights Chairwoman Dana Cloud was dissatisfied with enforcement of the injunction, which prevented AFAR from defending the entrance door of the office.

Dana Cloud,
AFAR chairwoman

"We're here, and we want to be here. It's not a failure on our part, but a failure of the system which isn't allowing us to do what we want," she said.

Anti-abortion activist Tony Nucaro would not comment on why his side chose not to defy the injunction.

"We'll leave whenever we feel like it — the other side can stay as long as they like," he said.

Nucaro claimed that abortion rights advocates recently protested at his residence and that he has since moved.

In related news, AFAR will have a rally in support of abortion rights at 12:20 p.m. today on the Pentacrest. Speakers will include Gayle Sand of the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women and Mary Mannax of Planned Parenthood, among others.

Food, games, plane ticket attract students to Union

Jessica Davidson
Daily Iowan

Friday was loud-and-obnoxious day at the Union.

Thousands of UI students, Iowa City residents and people from the woodwork came out to take part in the Union's Great Escape welcome-back activities.

"It's a good idea to get everybody together," UI freshman Meg Horsfall said. "It's like a cultural thing ... and it's free."

"And anything free is good, especially when you're a college student," senior Polly McKibben agreed.

The free food and numerous prizes attracted many students.

Mahoumbah Klobah, an African-American studies graduate student, won three bags of M&Ms at the blackjack table in the Iowa House's Monte Carlo and pronounced the Great Escape "a great way to spend an afternoon."

Marketing Manager Robin Hanson said the activities were a "great success."

"(We've) never seen so many people in the Union on a Friday afternoon," she said.

Over 500 entries were completed in the round-trip plane ticket drawing, Hanson said, and that was only "a drop in the bucket of all the people who went around."

Supervisor of cashier systems, Phillip Smith, said the activities attracted more people to the Union than usual.

"I saw a lot of students in the River Room," he said. "Usually it's just faculty and staff. And I saw more older students downstairs, where I usually see younger people."

The Student Activities Fair also benefited from the number of students walking around the Union.

"It's a good chance for some direct contact with students," Troy Larsen, a member of the Gay People's Union, said. "Here you can make eye contact, students can see a name."

Although the large number of students tramping about the Union caused some to complain about "circuses" and "airport traffic," the hullabaloo continued in the evening with three local bands.

"The ducks by the river headed for Canada at the first guitar licks," KRNA roadie Ryan Nelson said.

The first band, Blueprint, played Steeley Dan, Eric Clapton and Bob Marley covers to a crowd of about 1,000.

"We're having an awesome time," UI sophomore Renee Zukin, a Blueprint fan, screamed over the bass. "A thing like this really gets people together."

The band No Spokes played a selection of covers by INXS, Talking Heads and REM that continued to liver things up.

Former UI student Maureen Chartraud said she wished the UI had done something similar when she was a student.

SCHOOL BOARD

Iowa City to consider spending $11.1 million on education, expansion

William Pepper
Daily Iowan

Iowa City School Superintendent Barbara Grohe spoke at a community forum at First Christian Church Sunday about the upcoming school bond referendum.

On Oct. 15, Iowa City voters will decide whether to approve a $11.1 million bond referendum for the district. The funds will be repaid over 12 years and will be divided among several projects.

■ $1.21 million to add 10 classrooms to City High School.

■ $1.2 million to add seven classrooms at Southeast Junior High.

■ $3.8 million to build a new auditorium at West High.

■ $1.43 million to add three fine arts classrooms and a cafeteria at City High.

■ $3.4 million to build a new 20-classroom elementary school.

Grohe addressed each of these points in her presentation but reserved comment on the new elementary school, saying only that it will be built on the west side of town. She explained that the ongoing negotiations the district is undertaking to gain the land for the new school prevent her from disclosing more information. A complete announcement will be made at Tuesday night's school board meeting.

Repaying the bond will cost homeowners between $46 and $93 per year, depending on their property worth.

"Eleven million dollars is a lot of money. But I don't need $11 million from (the individual taxpayer). I need about a quarter a day," Grohe said.

She explained the bond issue came about because enrollment in the district has increased dramatically in recent years. According to studies conducted by the district in conjunction with the UI Department of Geography, current enrollment is at about 9,200 and is expected to increase to more than 10,000 by the end of the decade.

Grohe said the district has been especially surprised to see that the secondary schools, currently meeting the capacity needs of the district, will "start to run into serious trouble" in terms of available space by 1993.

"My theory is that as people are moving into Iowa City, they are moving in with older children causing unexpected fluctuations at the secondary level," Grohe said.

She added that several schools have been getting by so far with 27 metal, temporary classrooms constructed on the school grounds, all of which are over 30 years old and currently in use.

UISA Vice President Jennifer Kelly and Iowa State student government President Michael Noble plan a rally and forums for students to be held during the class boycott Sept. 13.

UISA to sponsor day of seminars, forum on budget situation as part of boycott

Ann Riley
Daily Iowan

Students are being encouraged to attend a rally, seminars and an open forum with state legislators on Sept. 13 instead of class.

The UI Student Association, in conjunction with the student governments of Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa, is planning numerous programs to educate students and other state residents on how the budget cuts are affecting them and what they can do about it.

"It is very much an educational day for students," UISA Vice President Jennifer Kelly said. "Students can learn how to lobby their state legislatures and how to make their voice heard."

Kelly said UI faculty and staff will be speaking during the day, and a round table discussion with state legislators will be held in the Union.

"We are emphasizing that it is not just a skip day for students," Kelly said. "This is their chance to express their concerns about higher education to the state legislatures."

Students are planning similar programs at ISU and UNI, although the UNI student government has not "approved" an actual student strike. Ben Stone, president of United Students of Iowa, said the UNI students are conducting rallies and forums similar to ISU and the UI, but had not voted to support the class boycott.

ISU student government President Michael Noble was in Iowa City Sunday to coordinate Friday's activities with UISA. He said his organization would be conducting a rally, a forum for students on lobbying and a "maintenance shop" where representatives from the ISU administration, faculty and staff would have a chance to address the budget cuts issue.

"Our president (Martin Jischke) is not standing in the way of the boycott," Noble said. "He is delighted with the activism of the students."

He said the ISU faculty is divided over the strike, but that most classes had been canceled.

Kelly said there has been a lot of "support on the street" on the UI campus, but she didn't know if teachers had officially canceled any classes because of the strike.

David Stark, the USI representative at the UI, said the purpose of the day was to draw the attention of the state to the budget cuts affecting higher education.

"We want to educate students, but we want to educate the state as well," Stark said.

Union crafts fair offers area artists opportunity to display original work

Loren Keller
Daily Iowan

Michelangelo, step aside. The Riverbank Arts Fair came to town this weekend.

Artists and craftspersons of all types displayed and sold their original works yesterday on 41 tables in the Union's Main Lounge.

Though the fair had to be moved inside because of rain, organizers said it was well-attended nonetheless.

Yesterday's show was a first for candlemaker Nancy Barnes of Tiffin, Iowa, though she has been making and selling candles for 28 years. She described her creative outlet as fundamentally worthwhile, as well as a lot of fun.

"Everybody has creative impulses, and if you don't deal with them you end up writing bad poetry or watching too many movies," she said.

Sharon Stubbs of Coralville, a self-described "local dragon lady," displayed the fruits of her hobby at the table "where the children come to hang around." Her craft includes making small cotton-stuffed dragons and dinosaurs, and giving them names such as "Quon-Lin."

"I love doing these shows, and I enjoy talking to the people," she said.

Jerry Fottral of Swisher, Iowa, took a lot of pride in his hobby of creating functional stoneware, a craft he learned in Japan. His wares included handmade pots, mugs and dishes intended for everyday household use.

"There's a bit of humanity in everything that comes out of the kiln. These pieces are not perfect;

there's a sense of the human maker in each one," said Fottral, who teaches computer programming at Kirkwood Community College. "The tendency to modernize and computerize everything is a big mistake, and this is a way to counterbalance that."

Carolyn Blatt-Britton, who does ink and color pencil drawings, is an artist who lives solely off her talent. She and her husband, whom she calls the "roadie," do about 15 art shows a year around Iowa.

"We don't have a 'real job' — this is our job," she said, claiming that she spent 433 hours on one particular drawing.

The fair drew a wide range of people, and as fair-wanderer Cindy Carter said, "We could spend a lot of money here if we had it."

Iowa winds may furnish electricity

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Midwest gusts could be harnessed to light homes and power factories under a proposal being considered by an eastern Iowa utility.

Iowa-Illinois Electric Co. of Davenport says a subsidiary is discussing such a project with U.S. Windpower Inc. of San Francisco, but that plans have not yet reached the stage of targeting land for locating turbines or setting a budget.

"It's really preliminary," said Kim Koster, an Iowa-Illinois spokeswoman.

The discussions with U.S. Windpower are expected to be concluded in two to four weeks. If an agreement is reached, Koster says the companies would move to determine the feasibility of the project.

Major U.S. wind energy projects have centered in California and Hawaii, but Koster says "we do believe that there are potential resources in the Midwest."

An Iowa State University specialist, Ganesh Rajagopalan, said a recent federal study listed Iowa as one of 16 states with wind energy potential equal to or greater than that of California.

Rhodes Scholarship applications available

Applications for Rhodes Scholarships can now be obtained from Sandy Barkan at Shambaugh House Honors Center, 219 N. Clinton St., 335-1681.

Thirty-two Rhodes Scholarships are granted each year to U.S. students to study two to three years at Oxford University. To be eligible a student must have an extremely strong academic record, must have demonstrated leadership through active participation in extracurricular activities, must plan to receive a bachelor's degree by August or if already in possession of a bachelor's degree, must not be older than 24 on Oct. 1, 1991.

The Rhodes Scholarship is highly prestigious and competitive, but UI students do well in competing for this award. Applications are due at Shambaugh House Honors Center on Oct. 4.

Iowa City resident named to advisory panel

The Iowa Utilities Board has appointed Phyllis Harper-Bardach of Iowa City as a member of the state's Dual Party Relay Service Council.

This 11-member council will assist the board in establishing a statewide telecommunications relay service between communications-impaired Iowans and the hearing and speaking community. This network will create a link for those with hearing and speech impairments to the many opportunities available through use of the telephone. The board hopes to launch the statewide network by the fall of 1992.

Harper-Bardach was with the UI College of Education until her retirement in 1990. She has served as an advocate on several national panels concerning communications impairments.

AIDS

Though the U.S. Centers for Disease Control has confirmed that Bergalis and four other patients were infected with the AIDS virus in Acer's office, these five are the only cases known to the CDC of health-care-worker-to-patient HIV transmission.

Nonetheless, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., introduced legislation to Congress last summer that would impose 10-year prison sentences and fines on HIV-positive health-care workers who perform "exposure-prone" procedures without informing patients of their HIV status. The bill has passed the Senate and awaits a vote in the House of Representatives.

Furthermore, the CDC issued guidelines in July stating that all health-care workers should voluntarily test themselves for the AIDS virus and that those who tested positive should notify all potential patients of their HIV status.

Henderson has criticized the CDC's stance, saying that "voluntary testing will lead to involuntary retirement" for anyone who tests positive. The guidelines, he added, would backfire because it provides health-care workers with incentive to avoid being tested.

Henderson said the CDC's recommendations fall prey to political wrangling because if it had endorsed the use of its "universal precaution" guidelines rather than voluntary or mandatory HIV testing, the public would perceive this as a "do-nothing attitude."

The American Medical Association and dozens of other medical organizations have refused to cooperate with the government's attempt to create a list of procedures dangerous for HIV-infected health-care workers to perform because they say the risk of HIV-transmission to patients is insignificant.

Henderson and others have noted that the risk of health-care workers contracting the AIDS virus from their patients is much greater than the health-care-worker-to-patient transmission risk.

FACULTY

cut last spring (which was not imposed) should not be compared to the situation this year.

"Those scenarios were grim — it was going to happen at the end of the year," he said. "But a (percentage) cut at the beginning of the year can be spread out."

Other universities across the country that are feeling budget constraints have had employees take unpaid furloughs for a year, according to Fix.

"I think faculty would get more irate about firings than furloughs or a salary decrease. We value our colleagues too much," Fix said.

Many professors' duties, and the number of sections they teach, have grown as the number of adjunct and visiting professors this year has decreased.

Fix said the university has been able to stay on course with its strategic planning by protecting undergraduate education.

"My impression is that first- and second-year students are getting full schedules — that's not free. There are fewer grad courses, and people are giving up research time," Fix said.

The possibility of future budget reversions or a faculty salary decrease as discussed at the Sept. 3 Faculty Council meeting did not result in an influx of negative feedback.

"Nothing has changed — (the meeting) was to clarify just where we are," Fix said.

AFSCME Local 12 president and secretary in the UI geology department, Kathy Shaffer

Shaffer said she wants people to remember that the entire university is being affected by cuts and layoffs — not just certain departments.

"It's created more devastation than the public realizes. Students and faculty are legitimately upset. . . . The level of service has completely diminished," Shaffer said.

"Now students see the high level of service that has been provided by the university in areas such as clerical, grounds work and maintenance in the past."

Many clerical staff employees have been reassigned to other departments but, Shaffer explained, they did not have time to become familiar with these new areas before the students returned.

"Not only do they have to cope with learning new tasks and a new routine," she said, "they have to deal with student frustrations."

Shaffer said she is also upset that P&S staff held two major forums to discuss areas of concern prior to layoffs last Friday while merit employees have had none.

"There were no forums held for merit employees who lost over 350 positions — P&S only lost six positions," she said.

Staff Council president and assistant director of external programs, Sue Dallam Dallam said she feels that a recent P&S forum with UI President Hunter Rawlings was very successful and that the chief problem with the recent round of cuts is that the merit layoffs were unplanned.

"It's a misnomer that a reduction in staff results in increased efficiency — that's generally not the case," Dallam said. "As P&S staff have left or retired, those spots were not filled. The staff picked up extra work that recent cuts might not indicate. . . . One person is now doing the work of three."

Morale problems have increased due to uncertainty, she said.

"Employees are wondering if and when the next budget cut will come and 'will I be next?' It's a question of job security — employees won't try anything new and those effects go far beyond monetary savings."

Dallam described the current situation among UI staff as tense but cooperative.

"The staff tries to be as supportive as they can of their colleagues at a very stressful time."

CUTS

attend conferences where their participation is vital, they have to pay for it themselves. This has been the case for the last several years," Folsom said.

Economics Professor Donald McCloskey said he recently had to hire his own part-time secretary, spending approximately $20,000 per year out of his own pocket for her salary and other office expenses. He said such actions were nothing new to him.

"This has been happening for years," he said. "When I first came to Iowa, for example, one could get professional travel paid for. Now there's only a comically small amount available. This is common enough in all the colleges."

Senior administrators in the UI College of Business Administration have quietly taken salary cuts, possibly as large as $10,000, to keep the college on its feet, according to a faculty member inside the college who wishes to remain anonymous.

In addition, he said, several faculty members, including himself, had volunteered to take cuts in order to help the department, but the proposal was turned down by central administration. The salary cuts would have saved secretarial and other non-administrative positions.

"I would like to know why this proposal was not accepted," the faculty member said. "If you think of someone like me, who makes a higher salary . . . if I took a $10,000 temporary cut and other highly paid professors did, too, then we wouldn't have had to fire anyone."

Gary Fethke, associate dean of the business college, said the voluntary senior administrator salary cuts were not implemented and the program of temporary, voluntary cuts was never proposed to the central administration.

"The cuts were discussed by the department, but we decided there were other ways to deal with the situation (of the budget crunch)," he said.

Peter Nathan, vice president for academic affairs, also denied news of such voluntary cuts.

"My understanding of the situation is that (the faculty) considered taking cuts. This was one of a large number of options considered by the college. It was ultimately decided that it was not an option to pursue," he said.

The faculty member said he expected administrative heads to deny such cuts had taken place.

ISRAEL

Eretz Israel is the Hebrew term for the biblical land of Israel, which includes the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Palestinians and Arab nations say the settlements, and Israel's drive to expand them, undercut the Palestinians' goal of establishing an independent homeland in the territories.

Secretary of State James Baker has been trying to get all sides to agree to a regional peace conference and is due to return to the region next week for further talks.

Palestinian leader Faisal Husseini who has participated in previous talks with Baker, welcomed Washington's decision on delaying the loans.

"For a long time the Americans have been sending advice and aid," Husseini told The Associated Press. "Israel was refusing the advice and receiving the aid. Now is the time to say to Israel, you cannot take one without the other."

Since capturing the territories from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war, Israel has settled about 100,000 Jews in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which are home to about 1.7 million Palestinians.

Shamir was quoted Sunday as arguing that if Israel agreed to halt further settlement, it would send the wrong signal.

"If today we agree we will settle no more, this would mean we are giving up these territories. This is how the Arabs would understand it. This is how others would understand it," Shamir said in an interview published by the daily Maariv.

His government insists Israel will not give up the occupied territories. Shamir also contradicted Israel's earlier stated position and said more settlements are needed to absorb Soviet Jews.

"This process . . . of increasing immigration, it is clear and self-understood that it goes hand in hand with a campaign of settlement," he said.

Independence possibility for Macedonians

Ivan Stepanovic
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Macedonians voted in large numbers Sunday, and all indications were that the poor southern region would become the third of the six Yugoslav republics to choose independence.

Fighting flared anew in Croatia, after a one-day lull during which the 12-nation European Community opened a peace conference in the Netherlands, attended by the leaders of Yugoslavia's federal government and the heads of the six republics.

Macedonian radio estimated turnout at about 70 percent of the republic's 1.4 million voters and quoted an election commission as saying first unofficial results indicated overwhelming support for the measure.

The ballot asks voters whether the republic should declare independence, with an option to rejoin a looser Yugoslav alliance of sovereign states. Polls before the vote said Macedonians strongly favored the proposal.

Although official results are not expected before Tuesday, Macedonians began planning fireworks and celebration, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported.

Macedonia, the poorest area of Yugoslavia, would be the third republic to seek to leave the fragmenting federation. Slovenia and Croatia, the two wealthiest republics, declared independence June 25, setting off fighting with ethnic Serbs and the army.

Macedonia's leaders fear that if Croatia and Slovenia succeed in leaving the federation entirely, their republic would be absorbed by neighboring Serbia, the largest Yugoslav republic.

Macedonians also fear that neighboring Greece and Bulgaria could raise claims to Macedonian territory. Both countries have sizable ethnic Macedonian minorities.

In Croatia on Sunday, heavy fighting was reported around the town of Pakrac in the ethnically mixed Slavonia region. The clashes ended a lull that followed an agreement by leaders of Serb rebels to join the army and Croats in observing a cease-fire to allow negotiations to resolve the crisis.

The Tanjug news agency quoted police sources as saying there were "dead, wounded and captured" in the area, about 70 miles southeast of Zagreb, Croatia's capital. The report gave no details, and the Croatian Defense Ministry said it had no casualty figures.

Fighting continued around Okucani, 70 miles east of Zagreb, near a strategic stretch of the Belgrade-Zagreb highway, Tanjug and Croatian authorities said. The battle has closed the road, Europe's main link with Turkey and the Middle East, since Wednesday.

Heavy fighting also was reported in the town of Sunja southeast of Zagreb.

The federal air force fired on an airfield in the Croatian stronghold of Osijek, 140 miles east of Zagreb, the Croatian Defense Ministry said. The air force said its planes were shot at first.

In Macedonia, lines formed at polling stations in villages across the republic after polls opened at 7 a.m. for 12 hours of voting.

The vote will be valid only if 51 percent of the republic's 1.4 million voters cast ballots. Of those voting, a 51 percent majority is needed for a mandate to work toward independence.

A poll published Sunday in the daily newspaper Nova Makedonija in Macedonia's capital, Skopje, said 85 percent of the electorate was in favor.

Macedonia's population of about 2 million is mostly Orthodox Christian. About 20 percent are ethnic Albanians, who are mainly Muslims.

Serb militants in Croatia have been fighting Croatian security forces for weeks and reportedly control about a quarter of the republic's territory, mainly areas with large numbers of Serbs. The federal army also has fought the Croats, but it denies Croatia's charges that the Serb-dominated military is siding with the rebels.

More than 300 people have died in the fighting in Croatia. A cease-fire has held in Slovenia, which is ethnically homogeneous, since the early days of the secession crisis.

Many of Croatia's 600,000 Serbs—12 percent of its 4.75 million people—fear they would be ill-treated in an independent Croatia.

SOVIET UNION

Azerbaijanis elect 1st president

Brian Friedman
Associated Press

MOSCOW — The southern republic of Azerbaijan held its first popular presidential election Sunday, but its current leader, a former Communist chief, was the only candidate on the ballot.

About 50,000 opponents of President Ayaz Mutalibov carried blank ballots to Freedom Square in Baku, the capital, to protest the election, the independent Turan news agency said. They demanded the resignation of the government, urged the creation of strike committees and demanded access to the republic's news media, Turan said.

In Soviet one-candidate elections, voters can approve or reject the candidate. But voter turnout was heavy and President Ayaz Mutalibov was expected to win easily, news agencies reported. Official results were expected today at the earliest.

Mutalibov, leader of the republic since 1990, called the election in June, months before an Aug. 18-21 hard-line coup in Moscow led to the disintegration of the Communist Party and central control. He quit as leader of the Azerbaijan Communist Party after the coup.

An opposition figure withdrew his candidacy last week and the opposition called for balloting to be postponed, claiming they had not had the time or resources to organize a credible campaign.

The Muslim republics of the Soviet Union traditionally have been the most supportive of Kremlin policies and the last to adopt the democratic principles that other republics have embraced.

Meanwhile, "intense shooting" was reported in the South Ossetia region of the neighboring republic of Georgia, Tass reported.

It said several Georgians and South Ossetians were killed and many were wounded in the violence near the city of Vladikavkaz. The exact number of casualties was not given. The news agency had reported Saturday that two people were killed in ethnic violence.

South Ossetia, a mostly Muslim region of more than 200,000 people, has accused the Georgian majority, most of whom are Orthodox Christians, of discrimination.

Georgia has been pressing for the Soviet Union and foreign governments to grant it the same diplomatic recognition of independence given the Baltic states last week, but thus far has failed to convince.

A U.S. congressional delegation left the republic Sunday after talks with President Zviad Gamsakhurdia, a strong Georgian nationalist, and said the United States should withhold the support Gamsakhurdia is seeking.

"I was frank with him," said Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz. "You're not going to get it unless you clean up your act."

DeConcini said he felt Washington would first demand a commitment to democracy and evidence of religious and press freedoms in Georgia, where an opposition movement has unsuccessfully demanded access to television to air its views.

In Baku, the Popular Front of Azerbaijan said the presidential election had been tainted by voting irregularities. It said that election observers were not allowed in some polling stations and that officials handed out multiple ballots to some people so they could vote on behalf of their families, Turan reported.

Such elections were a hallmark of Soviet politics before President Mikhail Gorbachev took power in 1985 but have diminished under his democratic reforms.

Scarce goods such as sugar, sausage, candy and cookies were put on sale at polling places to attract voters, the Popular Front alleged.

The election commission estimated 83.7 percent of eligible voters, or 3.24 million people, cast ballots.

Mutalibov, 53, is an economist and technocrat who rose through the Communist Party ranks to head the republic.

Following the failed coup, Mutalibov quit as Communist Party leader in the republic and seized party properties. Azerbaijan also joined other republics in declaring independence from the Kremlin.

Failed ethics

Publicity seems to go over the edge once in a while. There is always one or two commercials that people hate to watch. Bud Dry, Healthy Choice and the good ol' Iowa Book & Supply easily get on anyone's nerves. However, the creators of the pro-Clarence Thomas, anti-Democratic senators commercials must not be afraid of annoying anybody.

Controversies always arise after viewers react to political campaigning on television. But the Thomas ad made the headlines without even being seen by many viewers. The rather unusual attack on Democratic senators — who surely will vote against Thomas' nomination for the Supreme Court, surprisingly

Kennedy's well-known blunders, Cranston's implication in the S&L scandal and Biden's stupid plagiarism have enjoyed such wide press coverage that they need no further advertising.

— got flak from the Republican lines.

Everybody remembers the presidential campaign in 1988, or closer to Iowa, last year's gubernatorial and congressional races. Now that the winners of those elections are holding their positions, we do not think much about the means they used to get there. Let's warp back in time and take a look: Don Avenson's refusal to realize he was a "bully," Branstad's laughable efforts to convince his constituency that he's making Iowa a "better place EVERY day," or Harkin's and Tauke's scoreboards showing their pros and the other's cons in a sportslike fashion.

The polls those days were mostly concerned with showing who was ahead. But the underlying opinion, that of the "silent majority," was that it had been the dirtiest campaign ever.

But the attack on Ted Kennedy, Joseph Biden and Alan Cranston seems more like a desperate move to definitely turn the tide in Thomas' favor. Kennedy's well-known blunders, Cranston's implication in the S&L scandal and Biden's stupid plagiarism have enjoyed such wide press coverage that they need no further advertising. Surely few in world politics could pass the "ethical scrutiny" the ad's sponsors refer to.

Bush saw the futility of this pro-Thomas effort and denounced it, calling the ad "totally counterproductive." He knows that his candidate for the Supreme Court seems clean enough to pass any kind of scrutiny.

Whoever conceived the ad surely would not.

Under stress? Mellow out.

To the Editor:

I am writing to protest the headline of your article in the health section titled "Under stress? Load up on the cold medication." [Aug. 29].

The article correctly reports that new research has shown that stress increases susceptibility to the common cold. However, there was no evidence whatsoever that cold medication would in any way prevent or ameliorate the illnesses; and, in fact, this was not addressed in the quoted article in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Encouraging people to "load up on cold medication" to either prevent or treat the common cold is an inappropriate recommendation, as these drugs should only be used for symptomatic relief when necessary and they have no influence on the outcome of the disease. Stress reduction would be more appropriate.

State of the Union

To the Editor:

In a time when militarism is a foregone conclusion and violence the primary instrument of conflict resolution, Jim Rogers' editorial ["America's demise: just a liberal dream," Sept. 5] falls (frightfully) just a tab short of proclaiming the end of the first quarter of a thousand year Reich.

Is it impossible on a campus this size to find editorial staff who have original thoughts or are capable of genuine insight?

Despite the current fad of vacuous cheer-leading all is not on the upswing in the United States. Some exceptions might be considered: crime, poverty, the deficit, infant mortality, lack of productivity, business, bank and farm failures, environmental degradation, bad government, intolerance, and blind unthinking optimism.

Mr. Rogers: Get a grip. The Reagan feel good, fiddle while Rome burns era is over. "Liberal" is not now, nor was it ever, an obscene word. It is the embodiment of the finest tradition of openness, empathy, community and inclusion in "the good life."

In a complex world truths are seldom simple or easily found. The changes in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe do not in themselves validate the folly masquerading as leadership here. They may, however, be precursors of our own vulnerability.

We as a nation have some genuine problems that if they don't represent actual decline are a fair facsimile. Patriotism does not preclude this recognition. Rather it demands honest assessments and striving for the nation's ultimate potential. Such potential just may not be — perhaps even should not be — global domination.

Gary Smith
Iowa City

Think about it

To the Editor:

America's "decline" is simply the relative rise of rebuilt industrial parks in Europe. No surprise and no mystery [See: "America's demise: just a liberal dream," Sept. 5].

You want to give Republicans more credit than they are worth. Besides, the Democrats are not going away, so wake up.

Did you forget that John F. Kennedy was, after all, a Democrat? Why quote him trying to discount his party?

When they seem powerful, Republicans seem to look right. What will happen if parts of the "power" go out? Rethink your strategy, friend.

Media consistently fail to recognize the rights of Serbs

To the Editor:

Your AP story on the violence in Yugoslavia was extremely biased in favor of the Croatian side of the dispute. ["Serbs continued to seize land; 8 die in battle," Sept. 6]. Neshia Starcevic implied that the Serbian forces were fighting for Croatian land in a territorial border dispute which is invasive on the part of the Serbs. The actual motivation has historical roots.

During World War II, hundreds of thousands of Serbs were slaughtered by Croats under the protection of the Nazis. Serbians living in an independent Croatia could not feel safe any more than a community of Jews could feel safe living in Iraq.

The aims of the Serbians are consistent with American values. Serbians living in Croatia do not want to be part of Croatia — their right to self-determination is threatened.

Serbs practice an Orthodox version of Christianity; Croats are Catholic. Would the Croats allow Serbs the freedom to practice their religion? And what protection would the Serbs have from the same ethnic group which has historically persecuted them?

By portraying the violence in Yugoslavia as a petty border dispute rather than a struggle for human rights on the part of the Serbs, Starcevic and others in the media are helping to sway public opinion against them. In the current atmosphere of liberation and self-determination in Eastern Europe, our sentiments are naturally inclined toward breakaway countries. But we should transfer to another department to begin establishing that "hostility-free" work environment. You may think that's going too far. You may think she's pushing her luck, and you may be tempted to change your opinion of Dr. Jew from wronged party to wrongful avenger. Before you do, take a few minutes to look again. Reframe the pertinent question: Why did Dr. Jew have to ask for the transfer? Why didn't the institution do it long ago to remove from her shoulders the burden of returning to the court (and to public scrutiny) with her request?

Twelve years of being told that I would get better if she'd only be strong enough to ride it out. Twelve years of wondering why she should not be upset at being called a slut, a chink and a whore, years during which she established enviable research and publication records as well as a smashing reputation as a classroom teacher. Twelve years during which the state for which she worked not only paid damages on behalf of the doctor found guilty of slandering her BUT ALLOWED HIM TO KEEP HIS JOB WORKING ALONGSIDE HER IN HER DEPARTMENT.

I don't want to sound PMS or anything, but this whole thing is so outrageous it makes me want to slap the next male in a lab coat I see clean across the room. If Dr. Jew was a male and had attained comparable professional stature to that which she held at the time of the suit, Dr. Tomanek would be peering into a microscope on the spacecraft Magellan right now. He would be long gone, with very little publicity but a tacit understanding among the boys that he had to go. But Dr. Jew is not a male of comparable stature. She's a single, Asian-American woman that a few white doctors told dirty stories about, and nobody's willing to rock the boys' club boat by kicking some seriously salaried butt at the medical college on her behalf.

This institution has never stood in greater need of securing public trust. Wallowing in indecision, talking out of both sides of our mouths about freedom and tolerance and diversity while we do nothing to punish individuals who mock those values to the point of illegality and beyond, is not the way to garner public trust. If we sold stock in this place, our shareholders would be screaming for a meeting right now.

There may be a sucker born every minute, but most of them don't live in Iowa, and most Iowans can't believe the Jean Jew finding hasn't been properly complied with by this institution. In both the letter and the spirit of the law, and for the sake of upholding some plain old common decency, it should do so now.

UI lacks credibility in Jean Jew case

In November 1990, then Associate Professor of Anatomy Jean Jew was awarded tenure, promotion and a monetary settlement including attorney's fees and back pay that approached $1 million. A U.S. District Court made the award as confirmation of and reparation for 12 years of sexual harassment that would've had Chaucer's Griselda stalking the halls of the College of Medicine wielding an assault rifle. Given what Dr. Jew endured in the way of defamation, prolonged emotional assault and professional sabotage, the UI got off easy at that price.

But there were conditions attached to the settlement. These seemed reasonable despite the fact that they are not as neat as a dollar-and-cent sum. Among them was a requirement that the institution provide a "hostility-free" work environment.

Given that our Board of Regents responded to blistering publicity by opining that the ruling posed a threat to "academic freedom," we had every right to be skeptical about the institution's willingness to comply. Such skepticism was well-placed. It is now close to a year later, and the workplace of Dr. Jean Jew is much the same as it was before.

Warning: I am about to fly off the handle in a major way. Before I do, let me clarify some things. The issue here is not an overly sensitive individual's inability to just settle down and deal with it. In the Jean Jew case, we are confronted with a classic example of harassment that went on for over a decade. Dr. Jew survived well over 12 years of departmental and administrative scolding, cajoling and minimizing of the ugly realities of her working conditions. She is clearly no hothouse flower. She — and several male colleagues who supported her and paid for it concretely in terms of salary stall-outs — lived in hell for a long time before anyone would pay any attention. And when she finally had her day in court, and the court found in her favor, the UI responded by saying, "Dr. Jew deserves our apologies and our respect for her stand." That debt has not yet been paid; it has merely been acknowledged.

Dr. Jew is the first to admit that certain advantages, such as a solid salary coupled with an absence of family support burdens, helped her endure a lengthy battle that might have crushed others. Unfortunately, most people give up

College of Medicine brochure was making its way through the printing process (with his picture emblazoned on the cover). He had no time to worry about compliance with a federal court's somewhat difficult ruling.

Most astonishing of all, no administrator outside the medical college was willing to intervene either. So Jean Jew had to keep working with these same people, one of whom had been found guilty of slander against her to the tune of $35,000. How do you think Dr. Jew felt when she learned that the state was paying the damages on behalf of Dr. Robert Tomanek, who had been found guilty in the suit?

Last week, Dr. Jew requested Dr. Tomanek's

All hail the UISA

To the Editor:

All hail our illustrious UI Student Assembly and its decision to boycott classes "to demonstrate student objections to budget cuts" and thereby point out how students have unfairly become victims of the budget-cutter's axe. Now hush about a boycott of the UISA's own recent budget buffoonery — the $40 per student per semester computer fee charged regardless of whether each student actually uses university machines?

And get this — we could make those student "representatives" pay all our late payment / reinstatement fees when those university cashiers start noticing that some of us aren't willing to pay for something we don't use.

Do you suppose our new champions of fairness in higher education will put in a good word for us when the registrar won't let us register next semester because of delinquent payments?

Democrats want answer on abortion

Senators are also promising to pin the nominee down on natural law at Tuesday's hearing.

Jim Drinkard
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two Democrats vowed Sunday to pin down Clarence Thomas on the issue of abortion rights when his confirmation hearings as President Bush's Supreme Court nominee begin this week.

"I think Judge Thomas has a special responsibility to respond to us as to his position with respect to the issue of choice, a woman's right to choose," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio.

"I intend to inquire of him directly," added Metzenbaum, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which opens confirmation hearings Tuesday.

And committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., said the question of whether Thomas would use his concept of a "natural law" beyond the Constitution to impose a moral code on Americans is "a critical question for the hearings."

But Thomas' leading supporter in Congress, Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., said the nominee shouldn't be pinned on abortion and dismissed suggestions that Thomas' past statements indicate anti-abortion leanings.

"Clarence Thomas has never, ever taken a position one way or another on the abortion question," Danforth said in an appearance with Metzenbaum on the CBS program "Face the Nation."

"I think it is absolutely wrong if members of the Senate try to get a judge to promise how he would vote on a specific case before the Supreme Court as a condition of his confirmation," Danforth added.

"That really compromises the independence of the judiciary, to say in effect, 'We'll vote for you if you tell us how you're going to vote ...,'" he said.

President Bush, returning to the White House from Camp David on Sunday, said of his nominee, "He's doing very well."

one Democrats see as a potential political bonus for their party, and the prospect that a more conservative court could soon overturn the landmark Roe vs. Wade abortion rights case has re-energized pro-choice forces.

Biden raised the issue in an op-ed article published in Sunday's Washington Post, in which he argued that the idea of "natural law" — a concept dating to the country's founders — must not be used to override the Constitution.

Thomas, along with other adherents of the natural law philosophy, believes that people have inherent rights that may transcend the Constitution.

Biden said he agrees with that concept but said it traditionally has been used to protect the right of individuals to make their own moral choices and not to permit judges to impose a strict moral code on all Americans.

Quoting a Thomas statement that "human nature provides the key to how men ought to live their lives," Biden said that suggests "that natural law dictates morality to us instead of leaving matters to individual choice."

Despite that contentious issue, White House Chief of Staff John Sununu predicted Sunday that Thomas will be confirmed by the Senate.

States cut funding for colleges

Lee Mitgang
Associated Press

Public colleges are hitting students with the biggest tuition increases in a decade, giving less scholarship aid to pay for it, and offering fewer and more crowded classes.

Elementary and secondary school funding largely was protected as legislators struggled this summer to close budget gaps in more than 30 states, but public university campuses were not so lucky.

A 50-state survey by The Associated Press shows that, nationwide, state higher education appropriations for fiscal 1992 total an estimated $35.7 billion, virtually unchanged from the $35.5 billion spent by all 50 states in 1991.

Eleven Western and Southern states that weathered the recession better than most are boosting appropriations by at least 5 percent. But 17 others are lowering appropriations, one state's funding remained unchanged and 21 are raising them by less than 5 percent — not enough, in many cases, to prevent program cuts and higher student fees.

State colleges across the country are deferring maintenance, limiting or freezing faculty pay hikes, cutting back on library, computer and research budgets, and in some cases, laying off non-tenured teachers and administrators.

In at least 21 states, public college tuitions are headed up in double digits, the biggest increase since 1982 when runaway inflation sent tuition and fees at four-year public institutions up an average of 20 percent.

The increases could thwart campus efforts to diversify student populations ethnically and geographically, warns James Appleberry, president of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Appleberry and others believe the unusually steep tuition increases and lessened state support aren't just the passing consequences of a recession.

NFL ROUNDUP

Bears hold off Bucs to win, 21-20

Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — Jim Harbaugh threw two touchdown passes and the Bears sacked Vinny Testaverde six times Sunday as Chicago continued its mastery of NFC Central Division rival Tampa Bay with a 21-20 victory over the Buccaneers.

Harbaugh tossed TD passes of 7 yards to Neal Anderson and 43 yards to Wendell Davis to help the Bears (2-0) improve their record to 21-2 during the month of September over the past seven years.

Lions 23, Packers 14

PONTIAC, Mich. — Rodney Peete attempted a career-high 38 passes, completing 25 for 270 yards and Robert Clark had 10 catches for a career-high 143 yards as the Lions defeated the Green Bay Packers 23-14.

Barry Sanders had missed the Lions opener with a rib injury and gained only 42 yards on 18 carries against the Packers.

Vikings 20, Falcons 19

ATLANTA — Cris Carter caught two touchdown passes from Wade Wilson, the last a spectacular diving one-handed catch, in a 20-19 victory over the Atlanta Falcons Sunday, ending a string of 11 consecutive losses in open-air stadiums for the Vikings.

Carter beat Bobby Butler on both scoring plays, the first covering 25 yards in the first quarter and the acrobatic catch covering 39 yards to build a 20-10 lead with 11:23 remaining.

Browns 20, Pats 0

FOXBORO, Mass. — The Browns won the battle of last season's worst NFL teams as Bernie Kosar's two touchdown passes and the Patriots' inept offense led to a 20-0 victory Sunday.

Both teams had trouble moving the ball until Cleveland went on a 45-yard drive that ended with Kosar's 7-yard scoring pass to Leroy Hoard 36 seconds before halftime. Kosar combined with rookie Michael Jackson for a 65-yard scoring pass with 8:00 left in the game.

Dolphins 17, Colts 6

MIAMI — The Miami limited the Colts to 150 yards for a 17-6 victory on Sunday. The victory was the 299th of coach Don Shula's NFL career. Only the late George Halas won more games — 325.

Dan Marino completed 14 of 25 passes for 147 yards with one interception. The Colts' Jeff George completed 17 of 31 passes for 98 yards, and Indianapolis managed just 69 yards rushing.

Rams 19, Giants 13

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Rams defense limited the defending Super Bowl champion Giants to 293 yards and forced three turnovers — leading to two of Max Zendejas' four field goals — as Los Angeles defeated the Giants 19-13 Sunday.

The loss ended the Giants six-game winning streak and handed Jeff Hostetler his first loss in nine games as a starting quarterback. Hostetler finished 17 of 32 for 187 yards and threw an interception.

Saints 17, Chiefs 10

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bobby Hebert threw two first-half touchdown passes as the Saints ran up a 17-0 first-half lead and held off the Chiefs 17-10 Sunday.

Hebert, who was 19 of 27 for 211 yards in his second game back after a year-long holdout, threw touchdown passes of 13 yards to Eric Martin and 45 yards to Quinn Early. Morten Andersen added a 40-yard field goal as New Orleans controlled the ball for nearly 24 of the 30 minutes before intermission and piled up 13 first downs to one for Kansas City.

Bills 52, Steelers 14

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Jim Kelly threw a career-high six touchdown passes, four to Don Beebe, as the Buffalo Bills achieved their second-highest point total ever, crushing the Pittsburgh Steelers 52-14 Sunday.

Kelly's third and fourth touchdown passes to Beebe snuffed out the Steelers' hopes of a comeback, which were buoyed by two third-quarter interceptions that Pittsburgh used to close to 31-27.

Cardinals 26, Eagles 10

Stefan Edberg called his U.S. Open title win Sunday over Jim Courier, "The best match I've ever played." He won 6-2, 6-4, 6-0.

Edberg dominates Courier

Steve Wilstein
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Only a squadron of planes rumbling over the stadium could have rattled Stefan Edberg, who once hated the U.S. Open because of its noise and distractions.

But in the end there was nothing but silent skies and total respect for him as he captured his first Open title Sunday, beating Jim Courier 6-2, 6-4, 6-0 in the most lopsided final since 1986.

Edberg had Courier ducking in self-defense from serves and smashes, talking to himself about drop volleys he couldn't reach, staring at the ground after lobs that drifted over his head.

Playing elegant, nearly flawless tennis, Edberg allowed the best of the young Americans, the conqueror of Jimmy Connors, only nine points in the last set.

"I think honestly, it's the best match I've ever played," Edberg said, "I didn't think I could play this well. I was very disappointed last year when I lost in the first round. I'm very lucky. This year I'm starting to even like New York."

Edberg became the first player in the Open era since 1968 and the second in U.S. history to win the title the year after losing in the first round. A year ago, he was knocked out by Alexander Volkov.

"I've been pummeled before, but that's the worst beating I've taken this year," Courier said. "I was hitting some great shots, and he was coming back with shots that were making me look like I don't even know what. I'd hit a solid return at his feet and he'd come back with winners."

"I was beaten by the better man. There's no shame in that."

Back to No. 1 in the world and $400,000 richer, Edberg set the pattern early as he pushed Courier through seven deuces and five break points before finally breaking him in the third game of the match. That game lasted 15 minutes, half as long as the whole third set, and featured most of Edberg's repertoire of shots.

It also revealed Courier's weaknesses — a failure to pass Edberg, a tendency to make mistakes, and the absence of a serve big enough to pressure Edberg.

In Edberg's first eight service games through the first two sets, he allowed only nine points, racing through them many of them with a three-step dance — serve, return, volley winner.

He charged the net at every opportunity, coming in behind first or second serves, and following in chip returns on Courier's serves. On his 94 ventures to the net, Edberg was successful 68 times, compared to 12 of 22 for Courier.

Edberg won an amazingly high 84 percent of the time when he got his first serve in, and didn't seem bothered by several foot faults. Courier managed only three break points against him in the entire match.

Edberg broke Courier for the second time in the seventh game of the opening set, flicking a beautiful

Wipeout! Iowa calls Hawaii's bluff

Hawks maul highly-touted Rainbows

John Shipley
Daily Iowan

Every once in a while some crazy fan will suit up in a football uniform and play a down in a real game. Usually he's arrested for the privilege, charged, one would suppose, with impersonating a football player.

But has an entire team ever been replaced by impersonators? It seems that may have been the case Saturday at Kinnick Stadium as the Iowa Hawkeyes whipped an entire roster of players alleging themselves to be the Hawaii Rainbows, 53-10.

These were supposed to be the guys that had only a week earlier whipped Wyoming, who gave defending champ Colorado a good run for their money Saturday, 32-17.

Among them should have been a quarterback named Michael Carter, who ran for 213 yards and two TDs in his first collegiate start last week. And a certain Jeff Sydnor, a genuine Heisman candidate who averaged over 16 yards a carry last weekend and last year was fifth in the nation in all-purpose running. There was even billed a standout place kicker, Jason Elam, who had missed only one field goal from a range of 50 yards or better.

An elaborate ruse, or are the Hawkeyes that good? Iowa coach Hayden Fry promises that these were, indeed, the celebrated Rainbows who clobbered BYU last year, 59-28.

"As the season progresses, you'll see Hawaii make a lot of big plays on offense and move the Iowa receiver Danan Hughes, left, hauls in a 52-yard pass Saturday as Hawaii defensive back Kenny Harper gives chase.

1st quarter belongs to Rodgers-Hughes team

Erica Weiland
Daily Iowan

The words that flashed on the message board during the first quarter of Iowa's win over Hawaii Saturday said it all: "Danan knows football."

Danan Hughes — the Hawkeyes' version of Bo Jackson as a stand-out wide receiver and center fielder — was showing the stuff that earned him the position of starting wingback both this year and last.

His numbers told the story: 103 yards and one touchdown on just four receptions. But they didn't show the performances — the catch in the end zone that only a center fielder could have made, the 52-yard reception that led to the Hawkeyes' fourth touchdown of the game.

And that was only in the first quarter. After that, Coach Hayden Fry showed the Rainbows some mercy and his younger wide receivers some playing time.

"We tried to get all those young receivers in there," Fry said. "Matt Rodgers, Danan Hughes — we know what they can do. So we tried to get the young guys all the experience we could."

"You've got to give the younger guys time to play," Hughes said. "I was telling them to rotate with me even early in the first quarter. I just wanted them to get out there in a non-conference game, and ... I tried to get guys like Anthony Dean in the game early, and ..."

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

Hawkeye Open belongs to Iowa

Steve J. Collins
Daily Iowan

Despite being with out three of its top runners the University of Iowa women's cross country team dominated the Hawkeye Open competition on Saturday at Finkbine Golf Course to start the season on a high note.

In an attempt to keep his squad fresh, Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard will hold some of his runners out of early competitions. While missing veterans Jennifer Brower, Tracy Dahl and Jennifer Johnson the Hawkeyes still claimed the top four places.

The top four were: Christine Salsberry (18:35), Erin Boland (18:36), Tina Stec (18:39) and Christa Holmes (18:57). The next closest finisher was :38 seconds back. The final Hawkeye to score team points was Patricia Jones (20:20) in 10th.

The meet was scored as a double dual with Iowa downing Augustana (16-39) and Loyola of Chicago (19-36). Loyola beat Augustana 18-38.

"We run a very tough course out there so the times are not particularly fast relative to what we'll see the rest of the season and the competition wasn't as strong as we'll face later on in the year but it was a good outing for the team," said Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard.

Among the top four finishers Salsberry and Stec improved their times on the Finkbine course by :30 seconds and a minute respectively while Boland and Holmes had never run the course in competion.

The performances of Salsberry and Boland came as mild surprises to Hassard.

"It was nice to see her (Salsberry) win after she had been somewhat fatigued going into the meet," Hassard said. "We're still monitoring her but we hope that this is a sign she is getting better."

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

Iowa's Herd cruises to win at Finkbine

Steve J. Collins
Daily Iowan

After a disappointing track season and a long hot summer of solitary training, Iowa junior Kevin Herd wasn't sure what to expect when the cross country season got under way Saturday at Finkbine Field Golf Course.

He found out that he could put his fears to rest. Herd cruised to a victory at the Hawkeye Open in a time of 20:12, besting runnerup Sandu Rebeniuc of Augustana by 21 seconds. The Iowa captain stormed to an early lead and when Rebeniuc and Jim Westphal, an all-American in track last season for Loyola of Chicago, failed to respond to the expected three-man battle for the title never materialized.

"He beat two really outstanding individuals," Iowa Coach Larry Wiczorek said. "He responded like a champion."

As a squad the Hawkeyes won two of three dual meets, beating Augustana (24-35) and Northern Iowa (22-33) while falling to Loyola (20-35).

Other runners scoring for Iowa were: Matt Gerard in 10th, Andy Rosette in 11th, Garry Roseman, who placed 13th, and David Wood in 16.

"I felt alot better than I anticipated," Herd said. "I had a lot of question marks in my mind after a track season I wasn't very happy with."

Wiczorek said Herd was "surprisingly nervous for a veteran runner" the night before the meet.

"There were alot of things on my mind," Herd said. "I felt like I had to win and that's not a good thing."

U.S. OPEN: Edberg wins title

fully disguised forehand lob over the stunned American's head to make it 30-30, then taking the next two points on Courier's errors.
Edberg closed out the set by holding at love with his first ace and a crisp forehand volley on the last two points.
Shadows began creeping on the court at the start of the second set, and fans called out "Come on, Jimbo" to Courier, hoping to transform him into the original Jimbo — Jimmy Connors — and conjure up another comeback.

But there was no such magic from Courier, who proceeded to lose his service in the third game with two double-faults.
From that point on, there was no sense that Courier could mount any kind of comeback, and he just faded away along with the setting sun.

No Open final had been as one-sided as this 2-hour, 2-minute match since Ivan Lendl beat Miloslav Mecir 6-4, 6-2, 6-0 five years ago.
"Fifty years from now, you're going to look down in the record books and see my name," Edberg said.

Edberg said he always believed he could win the Open because he likes to play on hard courts, but he still regarded the first of his two Wimbledon titles as the most special to him.
"This is like No. 2 or 3 to me, but it's great to win here."

battle of backup quarterbacks.
Tupa hit on six of 19 passes for 218 yards, but connected on a 51-yard touchdown pass to Johnny Johnson in the first quarter to boost Phoenix's lead to 10-0. Jim McMahon, replacing the injured Randall Cunningham, completed 18 of 32 passes for 158 yards.
Raiders 16, Broncos 13
LOS ANGELES — Jay Schroeder threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Willie Gault, Roger Craig rushed for 99 yards, and Jeff Jaeger kicked three field goals as the Raiders beat the Broncos 16-13, leaving both teams with 1-1 records.

The Broncos were limited to a pair of first-half field goals by David Treadway and a 3-yard touchdown pass by Elway with 25 seconds left.
Seahawks 20, Jets 13
SEATTLE — Jeff Kemp, starting his first game in three seasons, passed for two touchdowns in the third quarter as the Seahawks beat the Jets 20-13 Sunday.

Dave Krieg's understudy, who didn't throw a pass in 1989 or '90, passed 12 yards to tight end Travis McNeal and 15 yards to Tommy Kane to give the Seahawks a 20-3 lead after three quarters. He completed 17 of 28 passes for 182 yards and two touchdowns. He also had three carries for 42 yards and was intercepted twice.

49ers 34, Chargers 14
SAN FRANCISCO — Steve Young threw three touchdown passes, including a 70-yarder to Jerry Rice that broke the game open in the third quarter, and the 49ers beat San Diego 34-14 Sunday.
Young threw for 346 yards, completing 25 of 35 passes for San Francisco. Two of his scoring passes went to Rice, who had nine receptions for 150 yards.

HUGHES: Dominates 1st quarter

so they get a taste of what's going on."
But from a receiving standpoint, the first quarter clearly belonged to Hughes.
The 6-foot-2, 202-pound junior returned the opening kickoff 26 yards. After three plays, Hughes had consecutive receptions of 21 and 12 yards from Rodgers.

Then, with 13:49 left in the first quarter, Rodgers launched the ball into the end zone, seemingly a little short of his receiver. But Hughes appeared under the ball and hauled it in for a Hawkeye score.

"That was just a down-and-out-and-go," Rodgers said. "All I had to do was see their free safety, and if he was sinking, I could pretty much loft it up. And if he was back, there I needed to throw a precision pass. The free safety sunk and I just kind of lofted it up."
"Coach Fry says, 'Put the ball where they ain't,' and that's basically what happened," Hughes said. "It might not have looked like a good throw being that I was on the sideline and he threw it toward the middle of the field. But he led me, and I was able to redirect and come over and get the ball."

going to do before I do it. You need that kind of mesh to be a winning quarterback-receiving corps."
They displayed that unity again late in the first quarter when Rodgers launched the ball 52 yards downfield into Hughes' waiting hands at the Hawaii 38 yard line.
That pass not only set up an Iowa touchdown three plays later, it sent a message to all Hawkeye opponents: Don't disregard the long bomb.
"I think Hawaii prepared to stop us on the little short routes all week, and they prepared well," Hughes said. "But we want to keep defenses on their toes. We don't want them to think that we're going to throw little seven-yard outs all the time or dump passes to our fullback all the time. We want them to be wary of us going deep. People underestimate our speed as a team but they have to realize that we have the speed."

HAWAII: Throttled by Iowa

ball," Fry predicted. "And also their defense will play well."
For now, we'll have to take Fry's word for it because against Iowa, Hawaii did none of the above.
The Rainbow quarterback did his best to impersonate the Carter of last week, rushing 17 times for a total of 71 yards. But this Carter was also sacked five times for a loss total of 26 yards. The slotback in the Sydner jersey rushed twice for seven yards. The place kicker missed a 52-yard field goal that would have cut the Iowa lead to 14-3.
Iowa used every method of scoring but the two-point conversion to build a 53-3 lead with 12:53 remaining in the game. Fullback Lew Montgomery scored three TDs on short runs, quarterback Matt Rodgers threw two touchdowns passes, tailback Mike Saunders ran 27 yards for a score, Phil Bradley ran a blocked punt 10 yards for a touchdown, Jeff Skillett kicked a 30-yard field goal and Matt Hilliard blocked a second punt for a safety. Skillett also converted six of seven points after.
"I'm extremely happy with that victory," Fry said at the post mortem. "That was a tremendous way to start the season."

The game was decided early. On the first possession of the game, Iowa marched 74 yards on six plays, culminating in an 18-yard TD pass from Rodgers to Danan Hughes, to open up a 7-0 with only 2:11 off the game clock.
A minute and a half later, it was 14-0. After Hawaii failed to gain a single yard on its first possession, Hawkeye defensive back Brian Wise stormed through the middle of the line and blocked the Rainbow's punt. It bounced into Bradley's hands and he ran it in.
"I got kind of bumped out of the play, I knew I wasn't in the hunt for a block," Bradley said. "I saw Wise out of the corner of my eye and he blocked it — the ball just took a good bounce right into my hands and it was end zone from there."
"You usually don't expect the inside people to get in there," Wise said afterward. "I think we just outnumbered them in the middle, they didn't have enough guys to cover us. Their I-back had to make a choice of either me or Matt Hilliard and he picked Matt."

Hilliard would get his shot in the third quarter, when he blocked a Hawaii punt in the Rainbow's end zone for a safety that made the score 43-3.
By the time the first quarter ended, the Hawkeyes were up 27-0 and the Rainbows knew there was no pot of gold waiting for them in Iowa City.
"We got that big momentum going right off that bat and we've got the kind of football team that if we can do that, they just get hotter and hotter," Fry said.
Fry said the only thing that surprised him was the effectiveness of his defense, which dominated Hawaii from their opening possession until the third team gave up a fluke touchdown pass from reserve QB Ivan Jasper in the game's final seconds. The Hawkeyes completely shut down Sydner, who led the Rainbows in receiving with 48 yards, and contained Carter, who passed for only 96 yards, going 8-for-21 with two interceptions.
"Our defense did a super job," Fry said. "Collectively we covered up for our mistakes because we were hustling so hard."
"I think the biggest factor in the game may have just been our size," Wise said. "They were out there trying to score every play, they never quit. Maybe our size got to them ... they may have been physically worn down play after play."

Linebackers John Derby and defensive back Carlos James recorded interceptions while line men Leroy Smith, Jeff Nelson, Jason Dumont and Doug Laufenberg each had a sack. Linebacker Tyrone Boudreaux also had a sack for Iowa.
"As a coach I'm real aware of our weaknesses and the things that we didn't do well," Fry said. "I don't want to lie to you and say we were great because we weren't. But we were real good."
The crowd of 70,044 was the biggest ever to watch an Iowa home opener and Fry didn't want any of them to get the impression that the Rainbows' performance Saturday was a real indication of how good they are.
"I told coach Wagner from Hawaii before the game, we were scared. We were really nervous," he said. "Hawaii is explosive ... you wait and see."
With bated breath.

Dodgers, Braves keep it tight in NL West

Associated Press
PITTSBURGH — Mike Morgan won for the first time in a month and Kal Daniels had a three-run pinch double as the Los Angeles Dodgers stayed atop the NL West by beating the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1 Sunday.
 The Pirates were held to two runs in the final two games of the series, with Morgan (11-9) giving up eight hits, striking out eight and walking one in 6½ innings.
 Reliever Bob Patterson (2-3) took the loss after giving up Mitch Webber's pinch double and Alfredo Griffin's RBI single.
Braves 7, Mets 5
NEW YORK — Tom Glavine overcame a four-run first inning to become the NL's first 18-game winner, and the Atlanta Braves beat the Mets 7-5 Sunday for their first series sweep at New York since 1982.
 Rookie Brian Hunter hit the go-ahead home run in the ninth off John Franco (4-8), only the second home run off the reliever this season, and Mark Lemke and Terry Pendleton added RBI singles with two outs.

 Glavine (18-9) allowed hits to four of his first five batters, then settled down and gave up just one hit after the third. His major league-leading ERA rose to 2.32 as he allowed seven hits in eight innings, struck out five and walked four.
Giants 4, Cubs 3
CHICAGO — Pinch-hitter Kevin Bass tripled with the bases loaded in the seventh inning and scored on Mike Felder's suicide squeeze as San Francisco beat Chicago 4-3 Sunday to snap a six-game losing streak.
 Greg Maddux (10-11) had allowed the only one hit, a two-out single by Willie McGee in the sixth, when he faltered in the seventh. Matt Williams, Tom Herr and Mark Leonard each singled to load the bases before Bass tripled off the center-field wall.

 Felder, batting for Wilson, squeezed Bass home with the go-ahead run.
 Winner Trevor Wilson (10-9) gave up seven hits in six innings.
Expos 4, Reds 2
MONTREAL — Cincinnati hit into a game-ending triple play as the Montreal Expos beat the Reds 4-2 Sunday to complete a three-game sweep.
 Dennis Martinez (13-9) gave up five hits, struck out three and walked none before Mel Rojas, Jeff Fassero and Barry Jones finished.
 Hal Morris led off the ninth with a single and Fassero then walked pinch-hitter Eric Davis. Jones relieved and Chris Sabo hit a grounder to third baseman Bret Barberie.
 Barberie stepped on third to force Morris and threw to Delino DeShields at second to force Davis. DeShields then made a quick pivot to get Sabo at first as Jones picked up his 11th save.

 Jack Armstrong (6-11), making his first start since returning Friday from a month in the minors, gave up nine hits and four runs in six innings.
Phillies 5, Astros 0
HOUSTON — Terry Mulholland pitched a three-hitter as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Houston Astros 5-0 Sunday. It was his sixth complete game and first shutout of the season, striking out four and walking one. His 14 wins are the most by a Phillie since Shane Rawley had 17 in 1987.
 Philadelphia took 1-0 lead in the first off rookie Ryan Bowen (4-3), when Von Hayes doubled and scored on a single by Dave Hollins.
 The Phillies made it 2-0 in the fourth on Wes Chamberlain's RBI grounder and added a run in the sixth on Steve Lake's run-scoring grounder. A two-run double by Ricky Jordan made it 5-0 in the seventh.

Erickson wins 18th as Twins sweep NY

Associated Press
MINNEAPOLIS — Scott Erickson became the first 18-game winner in the American League and rookie Pedro Munoz provided the game-winning hit for the second straight, leading the Minnesota Twins over the New York Yankees 6-5.
 Munoz, recalled from the minors Saturday, hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning for a 5-4 lead. Shane Mack also homered for the Twins.
 Erickson moved to 18-6, tied with Atlanta's Tom Glavine for most victories in the majors, despite an unimpressive performance. He gave up four runs on eight hits and walked three in six innings.
Royals 3, Orioles 2
BALTIMORE — Jim Eisenreich drove in the tie-breaking run with a ninth-inning sacrifice fly Sunday and the Kansas City Royals came from behind to beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-2.
 George Brett opened the ninth with a single and Oriole-killer Danny Tartabull doubled to right. After Mike Flanagan replaced Todd Frohworth (5-3) and Stu Cole came in to run for Brett, Eisenreich lifted a fly to center that scored Cole without a throw.
 Joel Johnston (1-0), who entered in the seventh in relief of starter Kevin Appier, got the victory and Jeff Montgomery pitched the ninth to earn his 27th save.

Athletics 7, Tigers 4
DETROIT — Harold Baines hit his 19th home run and the Oakland Athletics beat Detroit 7-4 Sunday, dropping the Tigers six games behind in the AL East.
 Cecil Fielder hit his major league-leading 39th home run, but the Tigers still lost for the fourth time in five games. They slipped into third place behind Boston and fell farther in back of first-place Toronto.
 Dave Stewart (11-8) got his fifth victory in 13 starts since the All-Star break. He allowing four runs on seven hits in seven innings, and Dennis Eckersley pitched 1½ innings for his 39th save.
 Bill Gullickson (17-8) allowed six runs on nine hits in 4½ innings and failed in his attempt to become the majors' first 18-game winner. David Haas, making his major league debut, followed with 4½ innings of one-run relief.
Red Sox 17, Mariners 6
BOSTON — Rookie Phil Plantier drove in five runs with four hits and Jody Reed doubled twice during a seven-run third inning as the Boston Red Sox routed the Seattle Mariners 17-6 Sunday in their highest-scoring game in five years.
 The Red Sox combined 17 hits, including seven doubles, and 12 walks in completing a four-game sweep and extending their winning streak to five.

Associated Press

Lance Blankenship relays to first to nail Cecil Fielder for a double play in the fifth inning. Fielder nailed his 39th homer in the game but the Tigers dropped to 6 games behind Toronto, losing to the A's 7-4.

Rookie Mike Gardiner (7-7) got a 9-0 lead after three innings and coasted to his first victory in seven home starts since June 15. He gave up six hits in six-plus innings before the relievers took over with a 17-3 lead.
 Mike Greenwell hit an RBI single and Carlos Quintana had a sacrifice fly in the first against Rich DeLucia (11-10).
Blue Jays 11, Indians 5
CLEVELAND — Kelly Gruber homered and drove in five runs and David Wells pitched seven shutout innings before tiring as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Cleveland Indians 11-5 Sunday.

 Wells (14-10) gave up seven hits and four runs in 7½ innings, while striking out three and walking one. Jim Aker got the final four outs.
 Toronto took control early, scoring four runs in the first and chasing Eric King (5-10) with three more in the third.
Rangers 7, White Sox 6
ARLINGTON, Texas — Monty Farris hit a three-run, pinch-double with two outs in the ninth inning for his first major league hit, capping a four-run rally Sunday that led the Texas Rangers over the Chicago White Sox 7-6.

Iowa quarterback Matt Rodgers rushed for 67 yards on nine attempts as the Hawkeyes crushed the Rainbows 53-10.

FIELD HOCKEY

Hawks put to rest early predictions

Jay Nanda
Daily Iowan

Things were not supposed to be this simple for Iowa field hockey in 1991.

After all, 71 percent of their offense from a year ago has disappeared, as well as the team's leading goaltender.

Which was supposed to forecast a not-so-glorious season for the Hawkeyes.

But judging from this weekend's performance in St. Louis, those thoughts may have to be thrown out the window.

The Hawkeyes shellacked Ball State 4-0 Sunday and Miami of Ohio 7-1 on Saturday to start their year at 2-0. But perhaps more importantly, Iowa showed no ill-effects of missing seniors Kris Fillat and Andrea Wieland, and junior Kristy Gleason, all of whom will miss the year because they are training with the United States National Team.

Fillat and Gleason were already guaranteed spots on the team. The only question mark was goalkeeper Wieland, who was selected as an alternate for the U.S. But Wieland survived the cut over the weekend — while her Hawkeye teammates cut up their opposition.

In Saturday's season-opener, the Hawkeyes used a balanced barrage of offense in a 7-1 rout of Miami of Ohio.

Senior Lisa Sweeney ignited the explosion with Iowa's first goal of the year, on a pass from Jibs Thorson at the 10:08 mark of the first half. Thorson then tallied an unassisted goal, as did sophomore Amy Aaronson at 16:20, to stake the Hawkeyes to a 3-0 lead.

Senior sweeper Amy Fowler then connected with junior Jamie Rofrano with 9:36 left in the first half to give Iowa a 4-0 halftime cushion.

Iowa poured it on in the second 35-minute stanza, starting with Aaronson's second score of the game, 3:30 into the half, with assists going to Sweeney and sophomore Tiffany Bybel.

The Redskins finally got one past Iowa goalie Eileen Moyer :38 later, but then freshman Mary Kraybill's first career goal, on a pass from Sweeney at 15:39, erased any ideas Miami may have had of a comeback.

Thorson closed out the scoring with her second unassisted goal of the day with 2:39 remaining. The senior contributed two goals and an assist — after having scored one goal and 13 assists in her previous three years as a Hawkeye.

Iowa ambushed the Redskins by outshooting them 64-10, as well as having earned 20 penalty corners to just six for Miami. Moyer made seven saves while Miami goalie Katie Kunish stopped 42 Hawkeye shots, proving to be the lone bright spot for Miami.

Afterwards, Beglin's praise for her team may have been just as balanced as its scoring attack.

"I was surprised at the variety of goals we scored," she said. "It was nice to see the scoring spread around. Lisa Sweeney played very well and caused a lot of havoc out there. No one from Miami could keep up with her. Jibs also played well in midfield. She distributed play and helped to really control the game. So much for losing our starting goalkeeper and 71 percent of our scoring."

And so much for opening-day jitters.

"I thought they'd be a little nervous, but more mad," Beglin said of her squad. "I talked to some friends of mine on the East Coast and rumor has it that everyone wants to write off Iowa this year. But (the team) was really fired up."

Iowa then took it to the Cardinals of Ball State, outshooting them 41-4 and outcornering them 20-3 en route to a 4-0 shutout.

Sophomore Heather Bryant scored the only two goals of the first half, both assisted by Sweeney and senior Kerry Horgan off penalty corners.

In the second half, Sweeney took a pass from Horgan on the right side of the field and blasted the ball past Cardinal goalie Kelly Rowker for a 3-0 lead. Finally, Fowler scored her first career goal on a rebound off a corner to account for the final margin.

For the weekend, the Hawkeyes outshot their opponents 104-14, outcornered them 40-9, and found the net 11 times to just one.

"It did them a world of confidence that everybody could score," Beglin said of her Hawkeyes.

Up next for Iowa is a journey to Boston University, where they will tangle with traditionally-tough Northeastern on Friday and Boston on Sunday.

IOWA NOTEBOOK

Second-half snooze-fest courtesy good manners

Daily Iowan

Those of you who may have dozed off in the second half of Iowa's 53-10 humiliation of Hawaii Saturday have Hayden Fry's sense of fair play to thank.

Seems after racking up a 41-3 halftime score, Fry was wary of bruising any egos on the Hawaii bench.

"You get that far out in front what can you do?" said Fry, whose team scored at will in the first half, but scored only 10 more points on offense for the next 30 minutes. "If you throw the ball the other team gets mad and upset, they say your running up the score. I kept it to just the short passes; I didn't let them throw anything long."

Preparation makes perfect

Iowa quarterback Matt Rodgers attributed his team's rout to the intense preparation the Hawkeyes devoted to the Hawaii game.

"I started looking at film of Hawaii last winter, in February," Rodgers said after the game. "I felt like I knew every guy on their team personally."

"When you prepare that long, things are going to work out for you because you know. You've got to do that every week. That's when you're ready for a team. They did exactly what we'd planned for."

Two in one game?

As soon as senior defensive back Brian Wise blocked the Rainbows' first punt in the first quarter, he had plans to block another one.

"It would have been nice. I was thinking about that the whole game, what it would be like to have two blocks in one game," Wise said. "I gave it a try and Matt (Hilliard) took it from me. He did a good job."

Hilliard blocked a punt for a safety in the third quarter to put Iowa up 43-3.

Bring on the best

Wise said that while the defense was concerned with Hawaii's Heisman candidate Jeff Sydnor, they were sorry to see him limited to just two carries.

"I just assume have him out for every play of the game," Wise said. "As far as the defense is concerned, they'd rather have him in there every play. You're not going to know unless you play against the best. I think we did the job on him."

Sydnor gained seven yards on two carries and caught four passes for 43 yards.

"I'm sure he's still a Heisman candidate... we did our job today and he'll go on and be successful," Wise added.

Mr. Nonchalance

Matt Rodgers on his first-quarter audible that resulted in a touchdown, giving the Hawkeyes a 27-0 lead.

"Jon Filoon told me he was open a couple plays before and I thought, 'Yeah, if he's open, what the heck.'"

Long time coming

Senior defensive back Phil Bradley scored a touchdown after hauling in Wise's first-quarter blocked punt. Bradley was a running back in high school and tried to remember his old moves when he found himself with the ball Saturday.

"I'm a fifth-year senior so it's been a long time since I've had a touchdown," Bradley said. "I've kind of lost my form after five years. But a touchdown's a touchdown, you take it any way you can get it."

Back in Black and Gold

Defensive end Leroy Smith was back in black and gold after missing spring drills after an emergency appendectomy. He wasted no time recording his first sack, nailing Rainbow quarterback Michael Carter for an eight-yard loss in the first quarter Saturday.

"I knew my appendix wouldn't affect me. If you get your appendix out, you're good in six weeks," Smith said. "I have confidence in myself and I believe in the Lord, he gave me a lot of strength to go out there and play today."

Nick and Tony who?

Junior tailback Scooter Lampkin was only one Hawkeye that didn't take kindly to those who may have suggested that without Nick Bell and Tony Stewart, Iowa's vaunted running game would be lacking.

"People were saying that without Nick and Tony, Iowa didn't have any running backs," Lampkin said. "That was kind of a motivator. We thrived on strength and I think the offensive linemen as well as the backs feel that we don't have much respect in that area because we did lose those two great backs."

"Hopefully we'll continue to work to improve and hopefully people will start to respect us. That will come, I guess."

Lampkin and Mike Saunders combined for 135 yards and one touchdown on 18 carries as the "new" Iowa tailbacks.

Iowa captures 14th spot while Texas drops out

Associated Press

Florida State remained No. 1 for the third straight week and Miami jumped over Michigan into the No. 2 spot in Sunday's Associated Press college football poll.

Baylor, Pittsburgh and Mississippi State moved into the Top 25, while Texas, Southern Cal and Brigham Young dropped out.

Florida State (2-0) received 53 of 60 first-place votes and 1,491 points after beating Tulane 38-11. Miami (1-0), which didn't play over the weekend, rose one spot with two first-place votes and 1,344 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Michigan (1-0) fell from second to third following a 35-13 victory over Boston College. The Wolverines, who led 14-13 in the fourth quarter, got one first-place vote and 1,339 points.

Washington (1-0), which opened with a 42-7 rout of Stanford, remained fourth with two first-place votes and 1,304 points. The rest of the Top 10 was unchanged, with fifth-ranked Penn State (2-0), followed by Florida (1-0), Notre Dame (1-0), Clemson (1-0), Oklahoma (0-0) and Houston (1-0).

Penn State destroyed Cincinnati 81-0, Florida overpowered San Jose State 59-21, Notre Dame beat Indiana 49-27 and Clemson clobbered Appalachian State 34-0. Oklahoma and Houston did not play.

Florida and Houston each got one first-place vote.

Tennessee is 11th, followed by Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa, Auburn, Alabama, Georgia Tech, Michigan State, Ohio State and Texas A&M. Rounding out the Top 25 are UCLA, Syracuse, Baylor, Pittsburgh and Mississippi State.

Idle Auburn climbed three spots to 15th and Alabama rose four notches to 16th after routing Temple 41-3.

Baylor (1-0), which beat Texas El-Paso 27-7, moved into the rankings for the first time since the final poll of the 1986 season.

Julia Alvarez

Dominican writer comes to UI, Prairie Lights today

Kimberly Chun
Daily Iowan

Julia Alvarez's first major work of fiction, "How the Garcia Girls Lost Their Accents," may be the most enjoyable book I've read this semester. Her depiction of a Dominican family and its first generation of rebellious girls has received praise from the press and garnered comparisons to Amy Tan's "Joy Luck Club." The stories within "The Garcia Girls" weave through decades and multiple voices. Alvarez spins tales that taste only like the juiciest morsels a family gathering has to offer.

I talked to Alvarez by phone yesterday, and her voice was as warm and appealing as her narrative tones. She speaks at the Grant Wood Room in the Union today at 4 p.m. and will give a reading at Prairie Lights at 8 p.m.

The Garcia girls, and particularly the writer Yolanda, experience a loss of language, and the demands of being bilingual and cross-cultural comes across strongly to the reader.

Yes, language is a very important issue. You know, some people say that there is such a thing as people who were born writers. But the experience of losing a language and a homeland was so strong for me that I often say that I might not have become a writer if I hadn't come to the States and come to another language.

Losing language — really, losing everything because language is such an important part of culture and life — pushed me into myself and a world of imagination. I had to create an internal homeland for myself.

You've published poetry in the past. What kinds of differences do you find in the change in form?

Well, I was primarily a poet when I was in a writing program in Syracuse. My poetry just kept getting longer and longer, with characters and narrative, story. The song I had to sing demanded a different form — people suggested that I write fiction. Now, when I write poetry, it seems so bare.

How autobiographical is "How the Garcia Girls Lost Their Accents"?

Well, I guess I'd identify the most with Yolanda, the character who becomes a writer. But all the sisters express a part of me. Yolanda's the storyteller, but they're all really storytellers. The book is about the telling of stories as a way of survival — how we have to relate experience to understand it. All the Garcia girls are storytellers — they've got it from their mother — and the book needs all their voices.

I think people wondered about writers like Louise Erdrich when her book "Love Medicine" came out. They said things like, "Where's the plot? This is just a series of stories!" People are used to the narrative involving a single hero, a single story and outcome — the traditional plot of the male hero. What she does is really very common among Native American storytellers. A story is first told by one teller and is continued in a round by other storytellers so that no single story or viewpoint dominates. You need multiple, different voices for the reader to get the whole story.

I may be mistaken, but "The Garcia Girls" somehow reminded me of "Little Women." The four daughters, one of which is an aspiring author nicknamed "Joe..."

It's funny. In my own family, with four daughters, people used to compare us to that book. One of the first books I ever read was "Little Women," and it was very important to me.

You currently teach at Middlebury, and you've attended a writing program in Syracuse. What do you think of writing programs in general?

Well, you have to speak from your own experience. I know that for me it was wonderful to be a part of a community of writers, to be able to exchange works with people who value what you're doing.

I know I can't teach anybody to write. Everyone develops at different speeds. Some people in my class might be at their peak, and you can just encourage them to continue. As a teacher, you can't make anyone a writer, but you can see what doesn't work, put models before them to make them understand what they do.

MOVIE REVIEW

'Dead Again' new Branagh 'masterpiece'

Hank Olson
Daily Iowan

It's odd watching an American romance/psychological thriller that stars old "Masterpiece Theatre" personalities. Why, at any time, Alistair Cooke could walk in, stop the action and plug Exxon.

Kenneth Branagh's "Dead Again," however, is a success despite its connections with public television and despite its hard-to-swallow new-age plot. The young British director's creation is sleek and filled with suspense.

Emma Thompson (Branagh's wife in real life and star of "Masterpiece Theatre"'s "Fortunes of War") plays Grace, an amnesiac who suddenly shows up at a home for boys run by a crochety priest and a well-meaning nun. The priest hires detective Mike Church (Kenneth Branagh, also from "Fortunes of War") to find out who Grace is.

Enter Madson (Derek Jacobi from "Masterpiece Theatre"'s "I Claudius"), a creepy hypnotist who also runs an antique dealership. Madson usually hypnotizes his clients so that they will tell him the location of precious objects that they encountered in childhood. However, when Madson hypnotizes Grace, it serves to connect her to a past life.

The past life involves Roman and Margaret Strauss, an opera composer and a concert pianist from the '40s. Roman was sentenced to death for the murder of his wife. The cause of Margaret's death will ultimately help Grace obtain an identity and possibly happiness.

And while all this is taking place, the plot twists more than Chubby Checker. Identities are switched; mystery characters appear; and the tension mounts and wanes. Branagh's direction, however, is skillful enough to make all of this not only believable but engrossing.

Emma Thompson gives a good performance both as Margaret, the concert pianist, and Grace, the amnesiac. She is convincing as the worldly sophisticate and vulnerably charming as the woman without a past. Branagh seems more comfortable playing the stuffy continental composer Roman than he does the private dick. Branagh may have an excellent American accent, but he is still very British in his mannerisms.

Peter Sorel

Emma Thompson strikes back as an enigmatic woman who has no memory of her own life in the thriller "Dead Again," directed by Kenneth Branagh ("Henry V"), playing at the Englert Theatre.

The chemistry between Branagh and Thompson is excellent. Though neither one of the stars is exactly glamorous or beautiful by Hollywood standards, they provide some of the most romantic scenes of the year. With this film, they have probably made their claim on Hollywood as a new hot couple.

And of course, Derek Jacobi is great as the whimsical hypnotist. He gives his character the right amount of charm and ambiguity.

The only problem with "Dead Again" is its Shirley MacLaine-esque, out-on-a-limb plot. Reincarnation and karma are pretty high concepts to base a thriller on. At least "Dead Again" is more believable and certainly much better than "Ghost."

"Dead Again" has probably established Branagh as a Hollywood director. Having taken on Olivier in "Henry V" and perhaps taking on Hitchcock in "Dead Again," one wonders what will come next. Hopefully, he'll beat Oliver Stone at his own game and make a film about the Kennedys using the cast of "Upstairs Downstairs."

COLLEGE ROUNDUP

Michigan holds on against BC, Texas is beaten

Associated Press

On a day when some high-ranked teams played some embarrassingly high-scoring games, Michigan and Texas were scrambling for every available point.

Thanks to the individual brilliance of Desmond Howard, who caught three touchdown passes and returned the second-half kickoff 93 yards for a TD, No. 2 Michigan held off Boston College 35-13.

"We won, which is the main thing," Michigan coach Gary Moeller said. "We have to give them some credit, though. I think we can show some improvements. This was our first game, and we will improve."

"We were about three quarters of the way getting there. We've still got another quarter to go," Eagles coach Tom Coughlin said.

There was some individual brilliance on display at Starkville, Miss., especially on the defensive side of the line. Rodney Stowers' fourth-down quarterback sack capped a day of big plays as Mississippi State upset No. 13 Texas 13-6.

"It was one of those days where our players didn't believe Texas would win," Sherrill said. "They weren't afraid of Texas as much as I was."

At the other end of the spectrum, consider that No. 5 Penn State pounded Cincinnati 81-0. It was indeed a testimony to the relative abilities of the teams that Penn State's Joe Paterno insisted he did everything he could to hold down the score and Cincinnati's Tim Murphy agreed with him.

Top-ranked Florida State, denied its knock-out punch by the Tulane defense, pounded the Green Wave into submission with football's version of the jab — short passes to the tight end. "They chose slow death," coach Bobby Bowden said after Florida State's 38-11 victory. "They gave us nothing long. We got only the short stuff."

No. 4 Washington, 42, Stanford 7 Billy Joe Hobert threw two touchdown passes and the Huskies forced five turnovers in beating Stanford for the eighth straight time. Jay Barry ran for two touchdowns, Beno Bryant and Leif Johnson ran for one each and Walter Bailey recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass.

No. 5 Penn State 81, Cincinnati 0 Tony Sacca threw two touchdown passes to Kyle Brady and J.T. Morris, Sam Gash and Shelly Hammonds ran for two each in Penn State's biggest point outburst since Joe Paterno took over as coach in 1966.

"Nobody ever wants to be in a game like that," Paterno said. Murphy dismissed any notion Penn State ran up the score. "I think Joe's a class guy and I don't believe he'd do that in a hundred years. I'm embarrassed, not Joe Paterno."

No. 6 Florida 59, San Jose St. 21 Shane Matthews threw five touchdown passes and Florida's "Fun and Gun" offense produced 506 yards. Matthews connected with Harrison Houston on a 22-yard scoring play on Florida's first offensive snap. Houston, a sophomore who caught only four passes last season, also scored on receptions of 37 and 14 yards. Matthews completed 17 of 22 passes for 272 yards.

No. 7 Notre Dame 49, Indiana 27 Rick Mirer, his run-in with the law now a memory, ran for three touchdowns and threw 58 yards to Irv Smith for another. Mirer, who this week had charges dropped after being arrested Aug. 30 for being drunk and disorderly, scored on runs of 46, 6 and 1 yards as Notre Dame won its 14th straight over a Big Ten opponent.

No. 8 Clemson 34, Appalachian St. 0 Ronald Williams ran for 108 yards and one touchdown on 14 carries while the Tigers' defense limited Appalachian State to two yards rushing and 84 yards overall. Clemson didn't allow Appalachian a first down in the first half and the Mountaineers made their first trip past midfield with only five minutes to play.

No. 12 Colorado 30, Wyoming 13 Darian Hagan completed 12 of 23 passes for 151 yards and a touchdown, ran for a score and ripped off punt returns of 37 and 30 yards. The latter gallop set up his TD pass to Mark Henry that helped the Buffs pull away from a shaky 16-13 lead.

No. 14 Nebraska 59, Utah St. 28 Derek Brown ran for 175 yards on 23 carries and fifth-year senior quarterback Keithen McCant passed for a TD and ran for one as the Cornhuskers rolled up 800 yards, 630 on the ground. Both totals were the second-best in school history, topped only by the 677 yards rushing and 883 overall against New Mexico State in 1982. Nebraska did set a national record with 44 first downs, one more than the record total set against New Mexico State nine years ago.

No. 20 Alabama 41, Temple 3 Siran Stacy, who missed last year with a knee injury, ran for 95 yards and a TD and threw for another touchdown. Quarterback Danny Woodson ran 85 yards on Alabama's first possession and Chris Anderson scored on a school-record 96-yard run as Bama won big.

No. 22 Ohio St. 38, Arizona 14 Butler By'not'e ran for 189 yards on 26 carries to pace a rushing attack that collected 325 yards, Ohio State's biggest output in two years. Jeff Cothran gained 105 yards in only seven carries, one a 39-yard TD dash.

No. 24 Syracuse 37, Vanderbilt 10 Marvin Graves completed 11 of 18 passes for 211 yards for the Orangemen, who used big plays in overcoming a 10-3 deficit. Graves threw a 34-yard TD pass to tight end Chris Gedney and Tony Montemorra returned a fumble 37 yards for a score.

No. 23 UCLA 27, No. 25 BYU 23 PASADENA, Calif. — Tommy Maddox out-dueled Heisman Trophy winner Ty Detmer, passing for 263 yards and two touchdowns, and Kevin Williams rushed for a career-high 132 yards on 13 carries as 23rd-ranked UCLA beat No. 25 Brigham Young 27-23.

IOWA CITY TRANSIT

serving the community for twenty years, 1971-1991

Service Improvements Effective Monday, September 9

In response to community support and increased ridership, Iowa City Transit will be expanding service on Monday, September 9.

- A new route, called Plaen View is being added to serve Southwest Iowa City.

- The existing Mall route is being extended to better serve Eastdale Plaza, Proctor & Gamble and the Fair Meadows neighborhood.
