UI focuses on recovering

Loren Keller
Daily Iowan

In a struggle to recover from the worst tragedy in UI history, today's classes were canceled following a deadly campus shooting spree that claimed the life of a fifth victim Saturday.

Officials at UI Hospitals and Clinics said T. Anne Cleary, 56, an associate vice president for academic affairs and professor of education, died at 1:42 p.m. Saturday after being taken off life support. The sixth victim, Miya Rodolpho-Sioson, remains in critical condition at UIHC.

Over the weekend authorities continued the massive ongoing investigation of the tragedy and disclosed details of its perpetrator, Gang Lu. Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White said the investigation has revealed evidence that Lu, a UI doctoral graduate of the physics and astronomy department, was upset about not receiving the nomination for an academic award and had other grievances with the university as well.

Lu was distressed about criticism of his dissertation and his inability to find employment after receiving his doctorate last spring, White said.

Four other people — the head of the physics department, two physics and astronomy professors, and the student who was nominated for the award Lu was seeking — were shot dead Friday in Van Allen Hall before Lu went to Jessup Hall, fired his .38 caliber revolver at two more people, and then put the gun to his head and killed himself.

"There are no words for the shock and grief we feel in the wake of this unfathomable event," said UI President Hunter Rawlings. "The whole university mourns with the families of the victims."

Further details released over weekend

The shooting rampage began when Lu got up from where he was seated in room 309, a conference room in Van Allen Hall, and shot two of the professors who were on his dissertation review committee — Christoph Goertz and Robert Smith. He also shot doctoral graduate Linhua Shan.

Lu then went downstairs to room 208, the office of Dwight Nicholson — the head of the physics department who nominated Shan over Lu — and shot him. Lu then returned to the conference room, where there were two eyewitnesses who were uninjured, and shot one of the wounded victims again. The four shootings took place within about a minute and a half, White said.

The three victims in the conference room were part of a research group that held regular Friday afternoon meetings, and Lu probably knew who was in attendance, Rhodes said.

After leaving Van Allen Hall, Lu went to Jessup Hall where he entered room 111 and asked to see Cleary, who had been involved in

GUNMAN

Acquaintances talk about Lu

Opinions of him vary widely

By the accounts of fellow students and others who knew him, Gang Lu was a contradiction.

On one hand, he was seen by fellow physics students as a loner who isolated himself from others. On the other hand, he sought acceptance in mainstream student hangouts such as the Sports Column bar, 12 S. Dubuque St., where he was called "Sweet Lu" because he was always smiling, one bartender said.

At a press conference Saturday, four of his fellow graduate physics students, all from the People's Republic of China, spoke of their relations with the "isolated" student who found nationwide notoriety through the mass murder of three physics professors, a high-level university administrator and a graduate student.

"Lu was isolated and didn't like to communicate with other students," said Tao An.

"When we saw Lu, he just said, 'Hi,'" said Jin-gen Wang. "He never told us about anything."

Bing Ji said he saw Lu at a departmental party a week before the shootings.

"I didn't notice anything unusual, but I sensed he was stressed, worried about job offers," Ji said.

Ji, a teaching assistant, was grading exams in the Van Allen seminar room when Lu came in and "calmly asked me why I was here." Ji then left the room — minutes before Lu shot his first victims, doctoral candidate Linhua Shan and physics Professors Christoph Goertz and Robert Smith.

Ji said he thought Lu was "quite stressed out" during the preparations for defending his dissertation last spring and that since then he was frustrated at an apparent lack of job prospects.

"He didn't like to talk to other students. If he had some problem, he would not know how to talk it out," Ji said.

While the Chinese physics students said Lu rarely socialized or talked with them, Lu was apparently a regular at the Sports Column.

Jim Grutzmacher, a Sports Column bartender, said Lu frequented the bar about two times a week. See GANG LU, Page 5A

UI moves ahead with memorials, counseling

In order to help the UI community cope with Friday's shootings, the university is holding a meeting today to provide information and counseling.

The meeting will be run by Jerry Stone, director of Counseling Service, at 9:30 a.m. in the Main Lounge of the Union, according to Vice President for University Relations Ann Rhodes.

Funeral services for Associate Vice President T. Anne Cleary will also be held today at 11 a.m. at St. Patrick's Church, 228 E. Court St.

The meeting at the Union will be followed by smaller group meetings throughout the day. Rhodes said both meetings are primarily for information on what has happened and how to get support.

She also said that counseling will continue until it is no longer needed.

"If people want individual counseling, they'll work on that. This is something that will go on for weeks to months depending on the needs of the people," she said.

In an effort to provide support for the UI community, Counseling Service has extended its hours from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Sam Cochran, director of clinical services at the UI Counseling Service, said "most people are still dazed about Friday's events. Once they come out of this phase, they'll experience emotions that they will want to deal with."

He said it is crucial for people "to share their grief and pain with others, otherwise they may have difficulty in the healing process."

MIDEAST

Settlements still prove problematic

Barry Schweid
Associated Press

MADRID, Spain — Israelis and Palestinians on Sunday had a "good, business-like" session in the first day of their direct talks, but the Israelis said similar talks with arch-foe Syria were unproductive and frustrating.

A Lebanese delegation also held separate talks with Israel on Sunday in the first day of the second phase of the Mideast peace talks.

"I think it was a good beginning," Secretary of State James Baker, who engineered the peace conference, said after the talks between Israel and a joint Palestinian-Jordanian delegation ended.

"We intend to stay fully engaged, as fully engaged as we can and for as long as we think the parties are serious about peace. And for the moment I think they are serious."

The five-hour Israeli-Syrian talks, although contentious, were a milestone simply by Syria's agreement to meet.

"This is the first direct bilateral meeting between Israeli and Syrian delegates. . . . We have to register the fact with some satisfaction," Yossi Ben-Aharon, head of the Israeli team, told reporters early today.

The Israelis and the Palestinian-Jordanian delegation displayed an amiable spirit after their talks, in contrast to a week of confrontational speeches and snubs during last week's ceremonial opening phase of the historic Madrid talks.

Still to be settled is where the substantive negotiations will be held. In a joint statement, the two sides said they would consult about when and where to hold substantive talks.

SURVIVOR

Surviving victim worked for peace, human rights

Daily Iowan

UI senior Miya Rodolpho-Sioson, who worked for peace and human rights through several UI organizations, is the only surviving victim of Friday's rampage.

A secretary, Rodolpho-Sioson, 23, was in the Office of Academic Affairs when the gunman, Gang Lu, entered the office. She was shot in the mouth, from where the bullet traveled downward and lodged in her fifth vertebrae, according to her friends.

Family and friends have kept a vigil at the UI Hospitals and Clinics and said she is now conscious, smiling and recognizes visitors. Her status, however, remains in critical condition.

Rodolpho-Sioson is majoring in Spanish, Portuguese and global studies and is a member of the honor society Mortar Board. She only needs to complete her honors thesis to graduate this May, friends said.

She and her three brothers were born in the Philippines. The family moved to Ames when she was a child. Her father, Frederico Sioson, was a mathematics professor at Iowa State University until he died of lung cancer in 1969 at UIHC. Her mother, Sonya, lives in Berkeley, Calif., and arrived in Iowa City at 4 a.m. Saturday.

Some of the UI organizations Rodolpho-Sioson belongs to include the Central American Solidarity Committee and University Lecture Committee. She has traveled to

PERSONALITY PROFILE

Psychiatrist suggests Lu was emotionally disturbed

Loren Keller
and John P. Waterhouse
Daily Iowan

In the professional opinion of Marvin Piburn, a Waterloo psychiatrist, Gang Lu may have suffered from a narcissistic personality disorder.

"A narcissist could acquire rage at individuals who they thought had personally injured them," he explained. "They would not see the other people as people in their own right, but would only see them in terms of how they injured them."

He said in cases like Lu's, the person is not mentally ill such that a lay person could tell it.

"A narcissist may have some level of depression or other emotional disturbance, but not so severe that the ordinary person could tell that there was anything wrong," Piburn said.

Normally a person like this will be emotional under the surface, he said, but no one else can understand just how emotional they are until after the action, he said.

"Friday was the only day when Lu felt like he was expressing himself. The gun did all the speaking. The act was very violent, very hostile and very honest. And when he was through, he had nothing more to say so he killed himself."

"By taking a gun and shooting six other people, he would see it as eliminating damages to himself and would not see himself as killing other human beings," Piburn said.

Piburn said Lu felt personally injured because he viewed Shan as someone who acquired the award only because he ingratiated himself with the department.

"There's an Oriental concept of losing face, losing respect, losing status. . . . You cannot carry that to the point of racism, but it is a part of their culture. Lu saw his victims as consciously and deliberately injuring him and causing him to lose face intentionally. After that point he no longer saw them as human beings.

"The concept of losing face is very Chinese, but there is nothing about Chinese culture that makes him more prone to this sort of act whatsoever. In fact, Chinese culture doesn't show this as much as American culture does," Piburn said.

Piburn said Lu finally committed suicide in order to spare himself pain, suffering and humiliation, an act that usually follows in cases like this that involve the concept of narcissism.

"It takes a person with a sense of rage and a sense of being wronged to act in that manner. Most Americans don't like to hear that this is a normal occurrence in our culture. Nor do they acknowledge that evil happens with a quite regular frequency in our society," Piburn said.

Sam Cochran, director of clinical services at the UI Counseling Center, said it's hard to say what motivated Lu's actions on Friday because no one has all the facts.

"If he purchased the gun in May, did he contemplate his actions at that time?" Cochran asked.

Most persons who commit suicide give warning signals, Cochran said, but 5 to 10 percent of suicide victims don't inform anyone of their actions.

Cochran said from what he has gathered about Lu, "it seems he had grievances against his victims, and he must have felt justified using arms if no other avenues worked for him."

In committing suicide there is "an erosion of hope, a loss of self-esteem, a loss of honor and no desire to go on." Lu may have felt he "had no more choices and that all his hopes were gone."

Clues indicating the tension Gang Lu felt toward the UI physics department are becoming apparent in the wake of Friday's tragedy. One of those clues is a reaction from Lu received by the UI Foundation, a branch of the university that organizes UI fund raising. Lu had sent a penny in response to a letter asking for a contribution to the physics department.

The letter, an annual general mailing soliciting donations, was sent to university alumni.

"When we heard that the shooting was by an Asian student, one of the secretaries remembered receiving a donation of only one penny for the physics department from an Asian student. We looked through the files and it was indeed Gang Lu," said Allen Swanson, vice president of communications and administration at the UI Foundation.

"Receiving only a penny could be a clue that he may not be widely happy to give any amount to the physics department," said Swanson.

Physics department struggles to fill void

Heidi Pederson
Daily Iowan

Days after the deaths of three internationally renowned professors and a brilliant research instructor, the UI physics department is attempting to return to some degree of normality as it struggles to deal with the tragedy.

Numerous departmental meetings have been held since Saturday to determine a course of action. First in importance, according to several staff members, is helping people cope with what has happened.

"Basically, our first order is to try to get support to students, staff, eyewitnesses and other people who are in a fairly bad state of traumatic shock," said John Neff, a professor of physics and astronomy.

Jack Fix, associate chairman of the UI physics department, said people have been good about offering assistance.

"For us right now there are a lot of people who need support," Fix said. "With everything that's happened, I'm surprised at how many people are handling the situation well enough to help other people out."

In addition to personal concerns, the department must decide how classes taught by Nicholson, Goertz and Smith will be handled. Fix said the matter would be taken care of.

"We don't know how we're going to deal with the situation," he said. "That's a very minor thing right now. It's not anything to worry about."

Neff said that while the department hasn't decided on one sure course of action, classes in the department will be held on Tuesday.

Fix said trying to find substitutes for the classes taught by the three has been a minor problem compared to the professional blow dealt to the department.

"They were among the most notable people in the department," Fix said.

Professor Emeritus James Van Allen, citing Nicholson's, Goertz's and Smith's many academic accomplishments, referred to them as "very able and distinguished."

Fix said all three had been popular with students and colleagues and that the tragedy was a severe personal blow to many.

"I can't express the horror and shock," he said. "These were people I worked with on a daily basis and knew very well."

Neff said students had suffered from the loss as well and should be offered assistance.

"I think we need to do something for the students in their classes," he said. "I'm sure they're all extremely upset and concerned, which is a perfectly normal reaction. We need to be responding to that in an appropriate manner."

FUTURE PLANS

Public Safety providing more campus security

Chris Pothoven

Security measures on the UI campus have been increased in the wake of Friday's shootings, little could have been done to prevent the incident, UI officials said Sunday.

"Immediately we are taking steps to provide additional security on campus," said Ann Rhodes, UI vice president of university relations. "This is not because we perceive there is any additional danger, but because we want to reassure students, faculty and staff."

The increased security basically consists of the presence of plainclothes officers at Van Allen and Jessup halls, said William Fuhrmeister, director of the UI Department of Public Safety.

These officers will mainly serve to deter curiosity seekers who try to get a glimpse of the rooms or people involved in the incident.

"They could disrupt the university and make it tough on the people who have already gone through a traumatic experience," Fuhrmeister said.

Different or additional security measures on the UI campus are possible in the future, Rhodes said.

"We've only just started to talk about what the implications of this are and whether we need to have better or different security systems in any of the buildings," she said.

Fuhrmeister said such discussion will probably continue for some time.

"I'm sure there will be some new policies somewhere down the line," he said.

Rhodes was doubtful, however, that other safety measures would have been able to stop the killings.

"I'm not sure there are any security measures that can prevent someone who truly wants to commit an act like this from doing so, particularly when it's someone who has access to the buildings as this individual did," she said.

"Looking at the total elapsed time of just a few minutes, it's not reasonable to expect that anyone could have prevented the shootings. You can't stop a bullet."

Additionally, the suddenness of the event made it almost impossible for UI law enforcement to adequately respond to it, Fuhrmeister said.

William Fuhrmeister

"We were totally unprepared for this," he said.

The Department of Public Safety had no set guidelines or precedent to follow, Fuhrmeister said.

"Each case dictates what needs to be done, depending on the severity or type of tragedy," he said. "The main concern was that we locked up Van Allen and Jessup Hall."

Much credit for the handling of the shootings should go to the Iowa City Police Department, Fuhrmeister said. Since the initial call reported shots fired on Jefferson Street, the police were the first to respond.

"Without them, we certainly could not have accomplished what was done," he said.

2 roommates of Gang Lu surprised, shocked by unsuspected killing spree

Loren Keller and Ann Riley Daily Iowan

Gang Lu, the man who gunned down six UI faculty and staff members Friday night, was not a "violent person," according to his roommate of three years, Glenn Mitchell.

"He was not a danger to himself or anybody else. Whatever happened was completely out of character for Lu. Something must have happened to cause him to snap," Mitchell said.

Adam Usadi, a UI physics graduate student, was Lu's roommate for the past two months at 515 E. Jefferson St. Usadi said he last saw Lu Wednesday and that his mood seemed normal. Lu didn't stay at their apartment Thursday night.

"I am completely shocked. I knew he was kind of down and depressed, but a lot of students can be down like that," he said.

The Spriestersbach award, which authorities say was the reason for Lu's shooting spree, wasn't the only thing that was bothering him, according to Usadi.

"I had heard that he had not gotten along well with various professors," Usadi said, "but he never spoke in menacing tones about them." Mitchell stressed that it was not the prestige from the award that Lu would have coveted, but the fellowship that accompanied it.

"The award represented financial security to him. He was afraid of having to go back to China. I never heard him talk about academic awards, but he was preoccupied with not having to go back to China," Mitchell said.

Usadi said Lu moved a lot of his personal things, including a stereo and answering machine, out of the apartment Thursday night. He said he never suspected that Lu had a gun in the apartment.

Both Usadi and Mitchell met Lu through the roommate placement service in the Union.

Mitchell shared an apartment with Lu up until last year when he began teaching at Florida State University. Mitchell planned to return to Iowa City in December to defend his dissertation in political science. He spoke with Lu less than four weeks ago and had made plans with him to go out to dinner next month.

Mitchell said he contacted Department of Criminal Investigations officials shortly after he heard about the shooting on the UI campus.

"I wanted to let them know that whatever happened was completely out of character for Lu. I wanted to make sure that people didn't get the wrong idea about him.

"I can say honestly that I never saw any indication that he was capable of that kind of behavior, and I've had as much contact with him as anybody," he said.

Lu was a sociable person, Mitchell said, and had many friends. He went out almost every night for dinner with other Chinese students and dated often but did not have a serious girlfriend. Mitchell said Lu kept in fairly close contact with his family in Beijing, China, calling them about once a month.

Mitchell said Lu apparently was unsuccessful in his job hunt last spring, and he blamed the lack of employment on the physics and astronomy department Chairman Dwight Nicholson.

"He blamed the department chair for not getting a job. He also thought Nicholson was trying to block his dissertation," Mitchell said.

Positions that Lu had applied for were no longer available because of recent budget cuts, Mitchell said.

"Universities lost the ability to hire with the budget cuts. The legislatures around the country made it very difficult to find a job," he said.

Students react to tragedy, feel danger is past

Jessica Davidson Daily Iowan

Several UI students said they have thought a lot about Friday's shootings but also said they do not consider themselves in any continuing danger.

"I don't feel in danger, but it's always in the back of your mind," UI junior Doug Zuercher said.

"I know some people saying they're having trouble sleeping, and I worry a little and think more," he added.

UI freshman Jane Van Nevelle came to the UI from Littleton, Iowa, a town of about 100 people.

"It's not the size of the town that's important. There might be more people who have problems in a big town, but they're in little towns, too," she added.

UI freshman Jennifer Hendrickson said it isn't hard to believe the police assessment that Gang Lu may have killed people because he was upset over an academic award.

"There is that sort of competition around here," she said. "There are people who feel so strongly that they'd do something like this. People get so stressed out. If they think they can't be the best, they feel they have to do something."

UI sophomore Asim Alavi said regardless of graduate or professional pressure or a competitive attitude, "killing people cannot be justified."

"From what I heard, he was a brilliant student. He was 28 years old. For 28 years he worked so hard to get where he was, and it didn't take him 28 minutes to kill himself and five other people," Alavi said.

UI graduate student Mariani Tjandra said that she and her Asian friends are worried about community reaction.

"I haven't been out much this weekend so I don't know if the reactions of people towards me have changed," she said. "I hope it's just unfounded fears."

Tjandra said common perception of Asian students as studying a lot is accurate in many cases.

"We study more than usual," she said. "We study more than students in our home countries because we're in the United States. We want to do well, and there's not much else to do."

"But he took it to extremes, as if there was nothing more in life than that award," she added.

Several students said they felt stricter gun control laws would be a good thing even though such laws might not stop tragedies like Friday's.

UI graduate student Geoff Larson said he has always supported stricter gun control laws, but he was not sure they would have made a difference.

"It seems as if up to that point, Gang Lu was a stable person. He would probably seem like a person it would be OK to give a gun to," Larson said. "If you're stable, you get a gun. Who knows what'll happen or what it takes to make someone do this."

Zuercher said he doesn't understand why gun laws aren't stricter.

"After the shootings in Texas somebody said to me, 'If someone in that cafeteria had had a gun, it would've been different,'" Zuercher said. "I just said, 'You haven't got the point.'"

Larson said he didn't think Friday's shootings could have been avoided.

"Maybe there was somewhere where it could have been changed," he said. "But whatever the warning signals were, who would believe it?"

Award meant to honor excellence in research

Chris Pothoven Daily Iowan

When the UI created the D.C. Spriestersbach Dissertation Prize in 1981, no one knew it would eventually be responsible for the deaths of six people.

Instead, it was set up to recognize excellence in doctoral research and honor outstanding doctoral dissertations at the UI. The award was named in honor of Professor Emeritus D.C. Spriestersbach, who from 1948 to 1989 was a member of the UI speech pathology and audiology department, dean of the Graduate College and vice president for Educational Development and Research.

"This award is being established to recognize high achievements in creativity and scholarly research," UI President Willard Boyd said in 1981. "At the same time, it appropriately honors Dean Spriestersbach for his ceaseless efforts to foster this activity among faculty and graduate students alike."

It is reported that because he did not receive this honor, former UI graduate student Gang Lu went on a shooting spree Friday, killing five members of the university community and himself and wounding another.

The $2,500 prize is awarded annually in one of four broad disciplinary areas including physical sciences.

Voters decide Tuesday on public library levy

Brad Hahn
Daily Iowan

On Tuesday, Iowa City voters will decide whether to grant the Iowa City Public Library an additional $330,000 through an operating levy referendum.

According to Suzanne Richardson, co-chairwoman of the Committee for the Library Levy, the passage of the levy would mean homeowners would pay 27 cents per $1,000 of their taxable evaluation.

Richardson said the extra money would allow the library to respond to the needs of the Iowa City community.

"The library hours were scaled back on July 1 in an effort to make better use of the staff because there weren't enough people to get things done. If the referendum does not pass, there will be permanent scalebacks," she said.

Library Director Lolly Eggers said the money would also go toward adding five new library staff members, new library materials and refurbishing the building.

Richardson spoke of other consequences of the referendum not passing.

"The library Board of Trustees would have to make decisions about what the library won't be able to provide," she said.

Eggers said the need for the referendum is due to the rate at which the library is growing.

"In the last 10 years, services have doubled. In the last three years, they've grown 30 percent. It's just a real busy place, and there aren't enough people and money to keep going at that rate," Eggers said.

Richardson said if the levy does pass, it will offset the bond referendum which passed in 1979. The bond, which had payments of $335,000, ends in 1991-92, and the new referendum won't start until 1992-93.

Richardson said she hopes there are enough people who enjoy the library for the levy to pass.

"I have a positive feeling. A lot of people have asked if there's anything they can do to help. Many people are concerned because they love the library and want to see it as complete as possible," she said.

"It gets very heavy use, and the library serves a very broad base. We're responding to a need."

Eggers said she felt "cautiously optimistic" despite the fact that the last two Iowa City referendums, one for the expansion of the Iowa City school system and one for a new sports complex, were defeated.

"The other two were bond issues and required a 60 percent majority. This kind of levy only requires a majority," she said.

Richardson said she hoped voters would look at the motives of the levy before voting.

"We're trying to respond to a need that has been here for several years, and I hope that helps it to pass," she said.

Dean of engineering to retire in June '92

Anne Johnston
Daily Iowan

One of the longest tenured engineering deans in the nation will step down from his position at the UI at the end of this year. Professor Robert Hering, senior dean on the UI campus, announced his retirement Aug. 1.

After 10 years at the University of Illinois, Hering first came to the UI in 1971 to chair the mechanical engineering department. He became acting dean in 1972 and was named dean the following year. Hering said that the college of engineering has grown considerably and undergone several changes under his tenure.

The current enrollment of approximately 1,200 undergraduate students is roughly three times that of 20 years ago. As a group, these students rank first academically among incoming freshmen at the UI, Hering said.

He also pointed out that the college's efforts to recruit women have been successful, with women constituting 21 percent of the undergraduate population.

"I'm proud of our undergraduate students — not only the number but also the quality and the diversity," he said.

Hering said that he is also pleased with the performance of the high-quality faculty the college has been able to attract.

In addition, Hering cited the maintenance of the Iowa Institute of Hydraulic Research as well as the establishment of the Iowa Computer Aided Network as other positive developments during his nearly 20 years as dean.

"I that think we have accomplished a great deal and that now is an appropriate time for new leadership of the college," he said.

Hering will officially step down as dean at the end of the 1991-92 fiscal year, June 30. Following a sabbatical, he plans to return to the department of mechanical engineering to teach and conduct research.

The search for Hering's successor is being conducted by a 10-member committee chaired by Forrest Holly, a professor of civil and environmental engineering and a research engineer with the Iowa Institute for Hydraulic Research.

"This college has several identifiable strong points, and we're looking for someone who can recognize those strong points and use them to build for the future," Holly said.

The committee's search began earlier this semester with placing ads in 13 national publications and seeking recommendations from 300 U.S. college deans, members of the Engineering Advisory Board and members of the UI engineering college faculty.

According to Holly, the college of engineering's excellent reputation has the committee confident that it will be able to find a qualified replacement for Hering.

"Even though these are tough times for all universities, we still have a pretty good chance of attracting strong candidates because we have a very strong product to sell," Holly said.

Holly said that by the middle of the spring semester, the search committee hopes to provide a list of the three top candidates to Vice President for Academic Affairs Peter Nathan, who would then rank those candidates and negotiate with them.

Professor Robert Hering

Hering said that he foresees nothing but good things for the College of Engineering.

"This college has achieved a certain level of excellence, and it's my hope that the next dean will be able to take it to another level of excellence," Hering said.

CAMPUS SECURITY

Schools' safety directors to review policies

Greg Smith
Associated Press

Campus security directors at the state's three universities said Sunday they expect procedures to be reviewed in the wake of the weekend shooting rampage that left six dead at the UI.

However, a former director of security at Iowa State University said he thinks stronger actions — such as carrying guns — are in order.

"I don't know all the circumstances around the shooting," said Joe Wehner, director of public safety at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind.

"But if you do what Iowa does, which is to try to maintain your own law enforcement agency and call them anything but police and have them do police work, then it's wrong," he said.

Wehner was director of Iowa State campus security for nearly three years before he left one and a half years ago because of the Iowa Board of Regents' "attitude on carrying weapons and toward campus law enforcement."

On Friday, Gang Lu, 28, of Beijing, China, killed five people associated with the UI and critically injured another in two buildings — Van Allen Hall and Jessup Hall — before killing himself. Lu received his Ph.D. in physics last spring at Iowa and went on the shooting spree because he was upset his dissertation paper did not receive a prestigious award, officials said.

Campus security officers at the three regents institutions do not carry firearms. Wehner advocated that policy be changed about two years ago, but his proposal was defeated by the regents.

"I hate to tell you this, but Iowa and Iowa State are two of three institutions that are public — with over 20,000 students — that are unarmed," Wehner said.

The third is the University of Michigan, Wehner said. But officials there contract with the Ann Arbor police to patrol the campus, he said.

"I mean, you guys are a real anomaly," he said. "There isn't any place that does it like you."

R. Wayne Richey, executive secretary for the regents, said he doesn't expect the board to change its policy.

"I doubt it. What good would that have done?" Richey said. "There weren't any campus officers around."

Iowa City police officers were the first law enforcement officials on the scene.

Regent Marvin Berenstein of Sioux City, Iowa, agreed with Richey.

"Had there been security guards with loaded pistols, it still wouldn't have prevented this from happening. If there had been a security guard at Van Allen Hall, he'd be dead now," Berenstein said.

William Fuhrmeister, director of public safety at the UI, said the issue of whether campus security officers should be armed "is the least of my concerns right now."

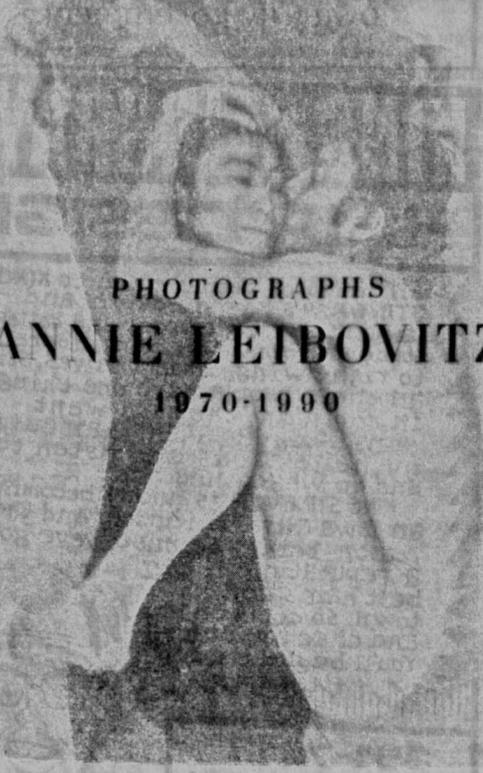

"But it's an issue that we probably will be discussing after we get this cleared up and get back to the normal day-to-day operations. I'm sure the whole security system will be re-evaluated," he said.

The UI's 27 security officers have the same arrest powers as police. They carry nightsticks, mace and handcuffs. They attend a 10-week training session at the law enforcement academy in Johnston in addition to 32 hours of extra training throughout the year, he said.

Having the Iowa City police so close to campus "helps us tremendously on the arms issue," Fuhrmeister said.

At Iowa State, Loras Jaeger's 24-member uniformed security force receives similar training.

LAYOFFS

United we stand

This week's split between the UI Student Assembly and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees over university layoffs is unfortunate and short-sighted. Students and university workers have every reason to fight together against layoffs and budget cuts — and everything to lose from continued divisiveness.

Bickering about the groups' differences was in generous supply at and following Tuesday's UISA meeting. Union representatives complained that they were cut off before they were able to fully explain their position and that the meeting location was not adequately publicized. Meanwhile, UISA officers maintained that the union representatives — who attended the meeting to appeal for solidarity against a common foe, Gov. Branstad — were hopelessly antagonistic toward student interests.

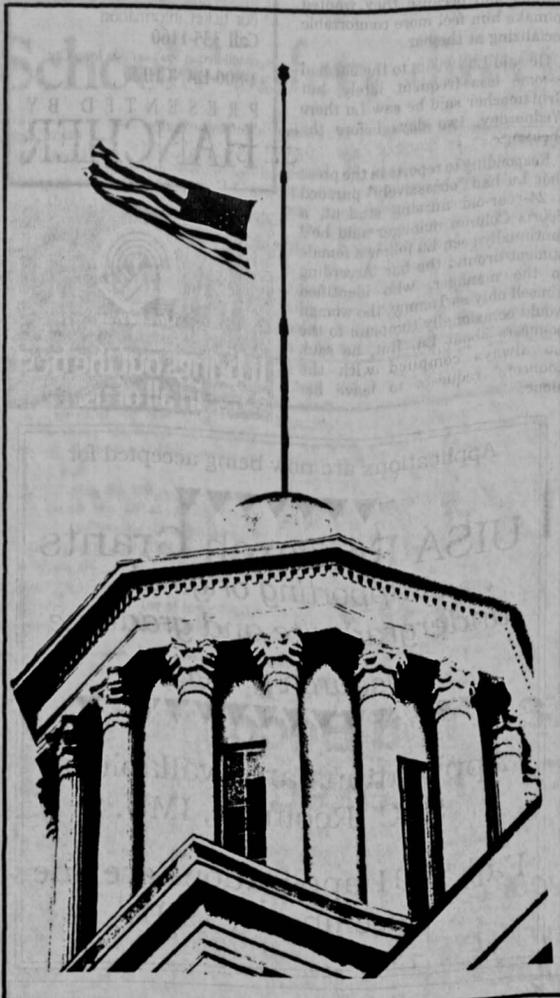

After the student assembly terminated public access time and the union representatives left the meeting, the undergraduate student senates passed a resolution condemning a recent arbitrator's decision to lay off part-time student employees instead of union workers. The resolution also stated that the union should focus on fighting the budget cuts instead of students.

In fact, the UISA's own house is far from clean on this issue. Its leadership to date in resisting outrageous program cuts and tuition increases has been, to say the least, lukewarm. Short of calling for a tuition boycott, the UISA has little economic power to back up its demands — and it has so far been unwilling to take that step.

Much more significant pressure could be brought to bear by a concerted, cooperative effort on the part of university students and state employees. The union's power to call strikes, combined with the students' power to withhold tuition and boycott classes, could generate pressure on the state government that would be hard to resist.

Although the immediate situation appears to pit the interests of students against those of union workers, both groups have far more to gain in the long run by working together than they do by acceding to a transparent divide-and-conquer strategy. The emphasis now should be on finding common ground, supporting each others' demands, and creating a united front to restore eliminated university services and departments — and, correspondingly, jobs for both students and union workers.

To the Editor:

We are shocked and grieved. Shocked at the cold-blooded murders. Grieved at the deaths of Professor Dwight Nicholson, Professor Christoph Goertz, Professor Robert Alan Smith, Dr. T. Anne Cleary and Dr. Linhua Shan.

We wish to express our deepest sympathy for their families. We also want to express our appreciation for the support from the UI and the Iowa City community. Their support, either by acts or by words, touched and inspired us. THIS IS AMERICA. We will never be the same.

Trying to say what really can't be said

The physics and astronomy department is one of the university's great treasures. Last Friday, a gun in the hands of one man irrevocably damaged that treasure. The loss has been profound and numbing, and will be mourned and eulogized much more appropriately by persons other than myself.

I am more familiar with the people who work on this campus eight hours or more a day, five days a week. They do not teach and rarely do research. They facilitate the inner workings of the institution, helping students reach their goals and find solutions to problems. They see students daily, in hours of achievement and moments of failure. They are devoted to helping students trade the pain of relinquishing the unattainable for the positive energy required to articulate and pursue more appropriate academic goals. T. Anne Cleary was one of those people.

Anne was known as a student advocate who did not just sit back and wait for the great forces of institutional nature, time and inertia to erode student complaints. She had mastered the delicacy required to discuss student complaints with colleges and departments without seeming to wield heavy cudgels of power or coercion. It is one of the bitterest of Friday's many bitter ironies that she fell victim to a student who became murderous with frustration and self-absorption over the fact that he could not change a perceived academic defeat into victory via administrative channels.

Despite knowing that her injuries were terribly severe, it was easy to hope that she might live, almost necessary to pray too hard for the survival of at least this one colleague. Now her death has been confirmed, along with the deaths of three professors and one graduate student. Their killer then killed himself. A temporary member of central administration support staff and a UI honors student, Miya Rodolpho-Sison, is suspended at this moment between life and death.

Survivors are left wondering what to do with the weight of all this death. It is far too heavy to carry for long, but most of us are not yet ready to let it go. This is the moment in which we stand still and grieve, reaching back to a place we can never again get to, at the same time realizing the importance of moving forward, of placing foot before foot and continuing on. The tension of being torn between those two things is what we call grief. It is the rack across which many of us who work in administrative offices on campus will spend today painfully stretched.

Perhaps it is no coincidence that the life of a university is so tightly woven together with the seasons. Certainly, the change of seasons hit bitterly hard Friday. By the time I heard with alarm the news that three policemen carrying shotguns were running across the Pentacrest toward Jessup Hall, a biting wind had begun to blow hard bits of snow down from the full, grey sky.

I went to a window myself, finding it all hard to believe. There they were, police trucks on the Pentacrest. Ambulances blared, skirting the wrong way, west on Jefferson Street. The words drifted into the vocabulary of the office as if by magic. Shooting. Bodies in Van Allen Hall.

I made a call to Jessup, stupidly, panicked over the forgotten travel schedules of friends there, wondering who was where. The voice on the other end was badly shaken, infused with an entirely unfamiliar tremble. "Anne Cleary's been shot. We don't know where the person is who did it. I saw a young man walk out of that office as I was coming back upstairs. We're just sitting here in my office. We don't know where he is. The building is full of police, and a moment ago there were shots from down the hall."

How to hang up the phone. What to say. People were dead or dying. People I knew and had worked with and grown to care deeply for were endangered. I knew everything and nothing, and there were no right words for the friend on the other end of the phone. I told her to take care.

What we tell ourselves today is, of course, what we already know. This university is bigger than any individual, though one of its many miracles is that it allows each of us to make and leave our own distinctive imprint on its life. It will continue along in its own seasonal rhythms without each of us someday. That is the harsh truth. That is the great solace. We do, we must, let go of the hands of our colleagues and friends who have fallen and continue onward. This is what they chose to do with their lives, and their choice for us would not be paralysis but rather a pause and then continued motion.

The five slain individuals brought this university recognition, new knowledge, and much human and humane understanding. Each of those is a magnificent gift. Each such gift enriched this university, leaving it stronger today than it was when they arrived here.

When we are wracked by internal difficulties, it is because we all love the university in our own way and feel passionately dedicated to our own vision. Such collisions are vigorous, sometimes fierce. But the greatest strength of the university is that these collisions serve to bind us closer together rather than hurl us further apart.

So it is with our internal tragedies. That this tragedy was of a magnitude of violence and senselessness so extreme that we cannot fathom it and that it leaves survivors feeling deprived and cheated does not negate the fact that it also leaves us keenly aware of the value of human life. There is one and only one good thing that can come of such a calamity: that we renew our commitment to cherish the individuality of all members of the university community. Forgetting to do so, even in our extreme pain, gives the victory to forces utterly undeserving of it and desecrates the lives taken.

Each of us will remember T. Anne Cleary, Christoph Goertz, Dwight Nicholson, Linhua Shan and Robert Smith in different ways. That is as it should be. The important thing is to remember and to allow ourselves to be enriched by their spirit as we continue the work they believed so strongly in.

Haiti: a temptation for interventionists

Foreign affairs, however dramatic, can rarely compete with domestic scandals for public attention. Although the coup in Haiti received front-page attention for a couple of days, it has since disappeared, lost in the backwash from the Clarence Thomas hearings. But the issue is no less important.

Occurring in the nearby Caribbean, the coup is an obvious challenge to George Bush's "New World Order." Democracy has been overthrown; human rights have been violated.

Naturally, the United States has rushed to get involved, backing efforts by the Organization of American States to force the return of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide. Washington also has imposed an economic embargo on Haiti, ensuring further hardship in one of the world's poorest nations.

A number of observers have even been calling for American military intervention. Some would have the United States act as part of an OAS "peacekeeping" delegation. Others would simply send in the Marines.

The interventionist temptation is a strong one. After all, there is no doubt that Washington could impose its will on Haiti and presumably with few casualties. Democracy could be restored, human rights could be protected and the New World Order re-established.

Indeed, "democracy" has become the newest foreign policy idol. Editorialized the Los Angeles Times, "the OAS must not overlook the possibility that it might have to take some kind of military action . . . to back up a government elected just last December."

Although coups have been commonplace in Haiti, this one, stated the paper, "is different from the rest: Aristide won the people's mandate."

True enough, of course, but so what? The fact that democratic election is a better selection method than military coup doesn't mean the resulting government is worth the lives of American soldiers.

Indeed, in this case the "democrat" is no white knight. A populist demagogue, President Aristide was elected by an illiterate population based on unrealistic promises of economic redistribution. He is a fan of mob violence, calling "necklacing" with burning tires a "beautiful instrument" and is thought to have ordered the murder of a jailed political opponent.

Moreover, Haiti's problems are not solvable by a quick military strike. "There is no center in Haiti" says one analyst. So some observers have suggested a multyear occupation — after all, U.S. troops stayed around for 19 years after America's first invasion of the island in 1915 to restore order.

But what business does the United States have in again becoming a fact colonial power? We obviously didn't bring democracy and stability back then, just as our repeated interventions elsewhere in the region have achieved little of permanence — other than to breed substantial hostility toward "Yanqui Imperialism."

But the issue goes much deeper than whether intervention works. Rather the question is one of principle: Are we a republic or an empire? The former, where we defend ourselves but leave other nations alone, seems terribly boring. But the price of exciting empire-building is high. There is the financial cost, of course, of maintaining a military that can roam around the world righting wrong and enforcing democracy. More significant is the inevitable loss of life. The price may not always seem high, but we often don't get off as cheap as we did in Iraq. Vietnam should be remembered for this if no other reason.

Moreover, a relative paucity of casualties still gives scant comfort to the families of those who do die.

The critical question, then, is: For what causes should young Americans, whether one or 58,000, be asked to die? Defending the United States, the political community to which they and the rest of us all belong, is a just cause. Restoring a violent, foreign demagogue — even if democratically elected — to power is not.

The United States enjoys many advantages that provide it with the luxury of remaining aloof from most of the geopolitical and internal struggles that MBI countries. Rather than apologize for our unique status, we should rely on it to save both our treasure and our soldiers' lives.

We should still, of course, remain engaged throughout the world culturally, economically and politically. Toward problems that do not concern us, however, we should remain aloof.

Haiti's latest convulsion is tragic, but frankly, irrelevant. The Bush administration should continue to resist the interventionist temptation and keep the troops at home.

Imelda Marcos returns to Manila

Ben Dipietro
Associated Press

HONOLULU, Hawaii — Ferdinand Marcos' widow, Imelda, ended five and a half years of exile Sunday and headed to the Philippines to face charges that they looted billions of dollars from the Philippines treasury.

"I leave with a heavy heart," the former first lady said before departing from Honolulu International Airport. "I have to do this. It's the first step to fulfill my family and sacred duties."

Marcos wept as she said goodbye to friends and boarded a chartered plane with more than 200 journalists and supporters. The plane is to arrive today in Manila.

Marcos and his family were forced out of the Philippines in 1986 when he was ousted in a civilian-military revolt that propelled the widow of rival Benigno Aquino to the presidency.

Imelda Marcos has been coy in discussing whether she plans to seek the presidency. President Corason Aquino has said she will not seek re-election, but there have been reports she may be reconsidering.

Marcos said it was the wish of her husband to be buried in Manila, but the Philippine government won't permit the return of his body unless it is buried in his home province of Ilocos Norte. Marcos refused the government's offer of an Ilocos Norte burial.

"I would like to ask for an audience with Mrs. Aquino and perhaps convince her it is time to bring the remains of the late President Marcos back to the Philippines — a milestone in our healing process and a milestone in the concentration and unity of our country," Marcos said.

On Saturday, Marcos sat by her husband's open casket during a brief prayer visit and touched his hair during a service in his makeshift mausoleum at Valley of the Temples Memorial Park in suburban Honolulu.

It was the first public glimpse of Marcos' body since he died in Hawaii on Sept. 29, 1989.

Asked what she thought as she viewed the body, Marcos told reporters Sunday that her late husband "looks even better now — just like he's sleeping."

Marcos faces tax fraud charges in the Marcos' 20-year rule. Last year, she was found innocent of embezzling up to $10 billion from the Philippine treasury during her husband's rule.

Americans approve of euthanasia

Associated Press

BOSTON — A new poll suggests that most Americans favor physician-assisted suicide and euthanasia for terminally ill patients who request it.

The poll by The Boston Globe and the Harvard School of Public Health indicates that public sentiment on euthanasia hasn't been swayed by warnings from religious leaders and medical groups that it could lead to abuses.

The poll, published Sunday, shows that 64 percent of those questioned favor physician-assisted suicide.

"People are trying to tell us something," said Dr. Marcia Angell, executive editor of the New England Journal of Medicine. "There's a great perception out there that high-tech medicine has gotten out of hand."

While a substantial majority of those polled favor giving terminally ill patients the option of suicide, 52 percent think they would actually exercise it themselves.

"We live in a libertarian culture in which freedom to choose in these personal matters is very important to us," said Professor Robert Blendon of the Harvard School of Public Health, who helped design the poll.

But others argued that Americans haven't considered the implications of euthanasia.

"They're captured by the argument of self-determination and have not begun to think about what are the implications for the medical profession or the potential for abuses," said Daniel Callahan, who directs the Hastings Center, an institute of medical ethics.

The American Medical Association is against lifting its traditional opposition to physician-assisted suicide and euthanasia.

"I don't think the profession will move" from this position, said Dr. M. Roy Schwarz, the AMA's senior vice president of medical education and science. "Maybe in five or 10 years, but not soon."

Washington state residents are to vote Tuesday on a ballot question that would make it legal for doctors to help a consenting patient die. Thirty-one states have laws against physician-assisted suicides.

Church teachings against suicide had little impact on those polled.

Among Roman Catholics, 71 percent said they would vote for the Washington initiative if it were on the ballot in their state, as would 69 percent of Jews and 49 percent of born-again Christians.

The survey also shows nearly nine out of 10 people favor withdrawing life-sustaining treatment from terminally ill patients if they have requested it in a living will.

Controversy over euthanasia resurfaced after Dr. Jack Kevoorkian, a retired Michigan pathologist, provided suicide machines to two chronically ill women who used them to kill themselves Oct. 23.

KRC Communications Research surveyed 1,311 adults over the age of 18 by telephone Oct. 18-20 in the poll commissioned by the Globe. The company reported a margin of error of 3 percent.

Trimming The African Elephant Population

Zimbabwe and other southern African nations, whose nature reserves are threatened by elephant overpopulation, have resorted to slaughtering the animals. Despite a 1989 international ban on the sale of elephant products, the nations seek to market the ivory produced by the killings.

Africa's Estimated Elephant Population in millions

Elephant Distribution in Africa

Conservationists estimate about 1,000 tons of ivory, or the tusks of 100,000 elephants, left Africa every year before the 1989 ban.

In many African countries, growing human population competes with elephants for tillable and grazing land. The elephant is a browser capable of consuming up to 700 pounds of leaves and grass a day.

Couple killed in plane crash in Kansas

Associated Press

SUPPESVILLE, Kan. — A plane crashed in a field and burst into flames Saturday after the pilot lost consciousness and his wife tried to fly the aircraft. Both were killed, authorities said.

"The information we have at this point is that the man flying the plane blacked out or became unconscious, and the woman tried to fly the aircraft back to Wichita and she didn't make it back," said Sedgwick County Sheriff's Lt. Jim McKeel.

The victims were identified as James Gould, 65, and Kathryn Gould, age unknown, both of Wichita, Kan., the sheriff's department said.

About 10 minutes after the twin-engine plane took off from Wichita, the woman radioed for help, saying her husband was unconscious or dead.

Crews battle last 4 Kuwaiti wells

Donna Abu-Nasr
Associated Press

RAWDATEIN, Kuwait — Fire crews failed Sunday to cap the final four oil wells sabotaged by Iraqi occupiers, but preparations began for a celebration at a special well waiting to be capped by the nation's royal ruler.

Shifting winds complicated efforts to put out the last two burning wells, and crews struggled to channel oil gushing from two others, officials said.

Crews had hoped to finish their work by Saturday and end the eight-month battle to control wells damaged or set ablaze by Iraqi troops at the end of the Persian Gulf War. Of Kuwait's 940 producing wells, 640 were set on fire and 92 were damaged by Iraqis.

"So far, we've done so well and now we're stuck in the last two," said Warren McLeod, an explosives specialist with the Canadian-based Safety Boss company. "It's a pity."

One of the gushing wells is next to the ceremonial well, Burgan 118. It was reignited last week and Kuwait's emir, Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, was to cap it Wednesday during a ceremony marking an end to the ordeal.

But Burgan 118 has been extinguished again and officials are now uncertain whether they will start the fire for the ceremony.

An oil official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that if the wind changes, oil could be blown all over, creating problems.

Nevertheless, workers installed light bulbs and flagpoles on Sunday, and smoothed the road leading to the Burgan 118 well, located south of Kuwait City. In Rawdatein, about 55 miles north of Kuwait City, another well gushed oil out of control despite efforts by crews to control the flow with a shaft, called a chimney.

"When we put the chimney in, the flow didn't go up," said Ken Rose, operations supervisor for Safety Boss. "We either have a fan-shaped flow coming out of the top of the well head, or we've got a side flow. We don't know yet."

Meanwhile, changing wind direction frustrated attempts to halt fires in two other wells in Rawdatein and Sabriyya, about 50 miles north of Kuwait City.

"That means we have to do the opposite of what we did Sunday," he said. "It's going to complicate matters, and we may not be able to extinguish the two wells Monday."

stated, disappeared and political prisoners of El Salvador. Friends said it is ironic that she should escape unscathed from a war zone in El Salvador only to face violence in Iowa City.

Jacque Gharib, a friend of Rodolpho-Sioson, said she supported the women's movement in El Salvador and was instrumental in bringing Maria Teresa Tula, a representative of the CoMadres, to address human rights at the UI last month.

Madhu Dahiya, UI medical student and childhood friend, said, "I thought I was busy with medical school, but whenever I saw her on campus she was always more busy. . . . She wasn't a sterile and driven activist, she was very friendly."

Rodolpho-Sioson also helped disabled students, was a Spanish tutor and worked for the Women's Resource and Action Center, friends said.

They described Rodolpho-Sioson as a timid and shy woman who gained self-confidence and poise through her political activism.

Blake Wood, one of Rodolpho-Sioson's longtime friends, said she was a "real workaholic" and her life revolved around social work.

"Miya is the most gentle and sweetest person I've ever met," Wood said. "I used to give her flowers, and she'd get really mad that I killed them. After that, I started giving her potted plants."

She and her family were planning their first trip to the Philippines in over 15 years for December, Gharib said.

RUNNING

Garcia takes NY Marathon

NEW YORK — Salvador Garcia, a sergeant in the Mexican army, led a stunning 1-2 Mexican finish in the New York City Marathon Sunday.

Garcia, 31, the runner-up in last year's race, broke away between the 17th and 18th miles with a blistering mile time of 4 minutes, 26 seconds.

He finished in an unofficial 2:09:28, the fastest of his career, in earning the $20,000 first prize and a new Mercedes Benz sports sedan. Garcia also earned a $35,000 bonus for breaking 2:10:00.

Andres Espinoza, a 28-year-old who never had broken 2:14 in a marathon, came in second, also under 2:10:00.

TENNIS

Guy wins Paris Open

PARIS — Guy Forget rallied from a set down to beat former U.S. Open champion Pete Sampras 7-6 (11-9), 4-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4 and win the Paris Open Sunday.

In a match billed as a possible preview of a Davis Cup match later this month, Forget duplicated his victory over Sampras in the ATP Championships in Mason, Ohio, last August.

Sampras and Forget are almost sure to be picked up to represent their countries in the Davis Cup championship matches Nov. 29-Dec. 1 in Lyon.

Forget, seeded No. 5, and Sampras, No. 6, were the highest ranked survivors in this $2 million tournament after the top four seeds — Stefan Edberg, Boris Becker, Jim Courier and Michael Stich — were gone by the third round. Forget won $270,000 for the victory.

Canseco battling baseball card promoter

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Jose Canseco is expected to make an appearance Monday for the start of a federal court trial involving a dispute between the Oakland Athletics slugger and a former baseball card show promoter.

Canseco's appearance at a 1988 baseball card show is the subject of a suit brought by the former promoter who claims Canseco did not fulfill his part of the deal to sign autographs.

Bobby Segall, an attorney for plaintiff Jim E. Pitts of Montgomery, said the case focuses on the dealings between Pitts and Canseco's agents prior to the show.

"The point is, they never intended to do the things they agreed upon," Segall said Sunday.

But Canseco's local attorney, Jimmy Walter, said Pitts stopped payment on the player's $13,250 check for appearing at the show and filed the lawsuit after Canseco sued him in California. That case is still pending.

FOOTBALL

More Ramsey tapes released

AUBURN, Ala. — Former Auburn football player Eric Ramsey got cash from assistant coaches and told one of them he received money from coach Pat Dye, according to secret tape recordings made by Ramsey.

The Birmingham News published a copyrighted story Sunday that details contents of a second batch of tapes released by Ramsey and his attorney.

In one taped conversation released Sunday, Ramsey told secondary coach Steve Dennis that Dye gave him money. In others, former assistant coach Larry Blakeney, now coach at Troy State, agreed to help Ramsey arrange a payment from Birmingham advertising executive Don Kirkpatrick, an Auburn booster.

Blakeney refused to comment. Kirkpatrick denied giving money to Ramsey.

Ramsey's attorney, Donald Watkins, said three tapes of conversations between Coach Pat Dye and Ramsey would be made public in two weeks.

Prior to Sunday's matchup at Northern Illinois, Iowa field hockey coach Beth Beglin said she didn't expect the Hawkeyes to duplicate last month's 6-0 drubbing of the Huskies.

And, she was right. A 5-0 blanking was more like it.

In the midst of single-digit temperatures, the No. 4 Hawkeyes upped their record to 14-1-1, 8-0 in the Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference, with a virtual repeat performance of the last time these two teams met.

Back on Oct. 5 at Grant Field, Iowa stymied a Huskie squad consisting of 13 freshmen and one senior by outshooting them 24-1 and outcornering NIU 12-2, enroute to scoring three goals in each half. Five Hawkeyes accounted for the scoring in that game.

"The team played very well in spite of the very cold weather and the concern for what was happening on campus. We were moving the ball well and our passing game was definitely on."

Beth Beglin, field hockey coach

Sunday did not prove to be much different, as five players once again paced Iowa to a shutout of the Huskies.

Senior co-captain Jibs Thorson was the first to dent the scoreboard for Iowa, when she converted on a penalty stroke 16:55 into the first half. Then, at the 27:41 mark, junior Amy Fowler fed senior Lisa Sweeney with a breakaway pass, which Sweeney converted for a 2-0 lead.

After a penalty corner by Fowler pushed the lead to 3-0 early in the second half, senior Kerry Horgan and freshman Debbie Humpage eventually found Sweeney.

Iowa's leader with 21 assists and 39 points on the year, Sweeney forced Huskie goalie Amy Boomer-shine to commit, allowing freshman Mary Kraybill to sneak in and notch her fifth marker of the season with 7:12 left in the game.

Sophomore Heather Bryant rounded out the balanced attack on a penalty corner at 30:58. It was Bryant's team-leading 16th goal of the year. The Huskies dropped to 5-10-1, 1-6-1 with the loss.

"The team played very well in spite of the very cold weather and the concern for what was happening on campus," Beglin said. "We were moving the ball well and our passing game was definitely on."

The Hawkeyes outshot NIU 23-1 and outcornered the Huskies 13-4. As in last month's encounter, Iowa goalie Eileen Moyer needed to make just one save, while this time, Boomershine replaced NIU goalie Gretchen Splinter.

L.A. ace becomes free agent

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Orel Hershiser, Glenn Davis and Alejandro Pena are free agents while Jim Gantner, Ken Griffey Sr., Dickie Thon and Bob Walk are now eligible to file.

Friday was the last day for teams to offer salary arbitration to players covered by the five-year restriction on repeat free agency. The only player who received an arbitration offer was outfielder Candy Maldonado of Toronto, raising the total to four.

Oakland pitcher Mike Moore and Los Angeles pitchers John Candelaria and Jim Gott were given arbitration offers earlier in the week. But Milwaukee failed to make an offer to Gantner and Seattle did the same with Griffey. Philadelphia and Pittsburgh failed to make offers to Thon and Walk.

A total of 10 players filed Friday, raising the number of free agents to 67. Also filing were Dan Petry of Boston; Bert Blyleven, Donnie Hill and Dick Schofield of California; Jerry Don Gleaton of Detroit; Tom Candiotti of Toronto and Jay Howell of Los Angeles.

In other baseball news, the Yankees sent pitcher Mike Witt outright to Columbus of the International League. Witt, who signed an $8 million, three-year contract as a free agent on Jan. 2, pitched just twice in 1991 and had surgery July 25 to replace a tendon in his elbow.

Witt, not expected to pitch until the middle of next season, had to consent to the assignment.

Associated Press

Orel Hershiser bears down during 1991 baseball action. The former ace of the Dodgers filed for free agency Sunday and could join another major league team for the first time in his career.

Hershiser, who underwent surgery on April 27, 1990, started 21 games for the Dodgers this season and went 7-2 with a 3.46 ERA. The Dodgers won 16 of the 21 games he started.

"We are talking to Orel in hopes of reaching an agreement," Dodgers general manager Fred Claire said.

"That's the reason for our discussions."

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Matt Rodgers ran for one touchdown and passed for another and 11th-ranked Iowa's defense turned back two late threats by No. 13 Ohio State for a 16-9 victory Saturday.

Iowa's players wore all-black helmets in memory of four Iowa professors and a graduate student shot to death Friday by another graduate student, who later killed himself.

Rodgers completed 20 of 27 passes for 258 yards before leaving the game with a sprained ankle late in the third quarter.

Ohio State, which came in averaging 255 yards rushing a game, was limited to 124 yards on the ground and 97 more passing. Meanwhile, Iowa totaled 443 yards, including 283 passing.

Iowa, which had beaten the Buckeyes at Ohio Stadium only once since 1960, moved to 7-1 and remained tied for second place in the Big Ten with Indiana with a conference record of 4-1.

Trailing 16-9 late in the game, Ohio State (6-2, 3-2) twice drove into Iowa territory. But after a first down at the Iowa 48 with six minutes remaining, Buckeye quarterback Kent Graham was called for intentional grounding while being pressured by Iowa's Leroy Smith and Brian Wise, eventually forcing Ohio State to punt.

The Buckeyes' last possession began with 3:23 left and they drove to a first down at the Iowa 41 with two minutes remaining. Graham's pass on first down was dropped by Bernard Edwards. On second down, Leroy Smith and Ron Geater sacked him for a 9-yard loss.

On third down, linebacker John

Derby batted down a pass intended for Joey Galloway. Then on 4th-and-19 at midfield with 1:37 left, Graham's pass in the end zone for Galloway was knocked down by Hawkeye defensive back Gary Clark.

Rodgers had opened the scoring on a 1-yard plunge, with Ohio State answering on a run-only drive from midfield.

Carlos Snow rushed on all eight plays of the 50-yard drive, scoring on a 2-yard run, to draw Ohio State even at 7-7 midway through the second quarter. Snow did not carry again, however, because of a head injury.

tight end Alan Cross in the right flat. Cross lumbered 61 yards for the touchdown and a 13-7 lead.

On the extra-point attempt, however, Ohio State's Greg Smith blocked the kick by Jeff Skillett and outside linebacker Jason Simmons picked up the loose ball and returned it 85 yards for a defensive safety to cut the lead to 13-9.

Iowa AD elects to continue with game

Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — With more than 95,000 fans in the stadium and a regional television audience watching, Iowa's football game at Ohio State went on as scheduled.

But if the game had been played in Iowa City instead of Columbus, it would have been called off because of the shooting on the Iowa campus that left six people dead, Iowa athletic director Bob Bowsby said.

The Hawkeyes already were in Columbus when the shootings occurred Friday afternoon. Because of that, Bowsby said the school decided to meet its obligation to Ohio State and the Big Ten Conference.

"However, the shooting incident has cast a pall over all of us," he said. "The University of Iowa is shocked and saddened by the shooting. The prayers of all of us in the athletic department are with the families, friends and associates of the victims."

The Iowa players wore plain black helmets in honor of the shooting victims and the crowd observed a moment of silence before the game, which Iowa won 16-9.

"That tragedy back in Iowa City was so sad and so bad that I know it had a big part to do with us winning, because I think our guys just gave that 20 percent extra effort," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said.

"Just to try to bring a little happiness to all the people back in Iowa — to the students, the faculty and the families, the people that are so down right now. If we could just bring a few hours of happiness to them."

"That's why this victory has special meaning. No way can we substitute for the people that are gone. Our guys played their hearts out for the university family."

NFL ROUNDUP

Redskins remain unbeaten

Associated Press
Sure, the Washington Redskins are good. Otherwise they wouldn't be 9-0.

But it takes a little luck to be the only undefeated team in the NFL, and the Redskins had plenty Sunday.

Washington watched Houston's Ian Howfield miss a 33-yard field goal try with one second left in regulation, then beat the Oilers 16-13 on Chip Lohmiller's 41-yard field goal 4:01 into overtime.

The Redskins are off to the best start in team history. Houston, which began the game tied with Buffalo for the best record in the AFC, lost for only the second time in nine games.

"I'm having as much fun as a coach can have," the Redskins' Joe Gibbs said. "It doesn't get you anywhere, but it's still there. It's the first time I've ever been here in pro ball. It's something to cherish."

In other games, Atlanta stunned San Francisco 17-14, Cincinnati defeated Cleveland 23-21, Chicago downed Detroit 20-10, Buffalo beat New England 22-17, the New York Jets defeated Green Bay 19-16 in overtime, Minnesota topped Tampa Bay 28-13, Dallas downed Phoenix 27-7, New Orleans beat the Los Angeles Rams 24-17 and Miami stopped Indianapolis 10-6. Pittsburgh played at Denver in a night game.

On Monday night, the New York Giants are at Philadelphia.

Houston tied the game at RFK Stadium with 1:42 left in the fourth quarter on Lorenzo White's 1-yard touchdown run. The Oilers got the ball back when Brian Mitchell fumbled the ensuing kick, but Howfield missed a chance to win it.

Last week, Howfield missed three extra points in a 35-3 victory over Cincinnati.

"You never know until it's over," Oilers quarterback Warren Moon said. "Our kicker has had some problems lately, so you never know."

In overtime, though, it was Moon who caused his team problems.

Darrell Green made his league-leading fifth interception, picking off Warren Moon's pass at the Houston 31. That set up Lohmiller, who did what Howfield did not.

"Maybe the difference," Lohmiller said, "was the power of positive thinking."

Falcons 17, 49ers 14

Michael Haynes won a jump ball among eight players in the end zone with one second left and came down with a 44-yard TD catch that lifted Atlanta over San Francisco.

The host Falcons (5-4) went 80 yards in the last 53 seconds. Billy Joe Tolleriver completed a 19-yard pass to Andre Rison on fourth down and, after an incompletion, lobbed the ball for the winning score.

The 49ers (4-5) had taken a 14-10 lead on a 30-yard TD pass from Steve Bono — replacing the injured Steve Young, who strained his left knee — to John Taylor with 53 seconds remaining.

Atlanta, which won at San Francisco 39-34 three weeks ago, swept the two-game series from the 49ers for the first time since 1980.

Bengals 23, Browns 21

Cincinnati won its first game, holding on at home in the final minutes to beat its cross-state rival.

Boomer Esiason rallied the Bengals (1-8) from a 14-3 deficit with a pair of touchdown passes, and Jim Breech's 38-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter was the difference.

Kevin Mack, who scored three touchdowns for Cleveland (4-5), fumbled at the Bengals' 16 with five minutes left. Then, Browns kicker Matt Stover, who had made his last 10 field goal tries, hit the upright on a 47-yard attempt with 1:56 left and had a 34-yard kick blocked with one second remaining.

Saints 24, Rams 17

Steve Walsh, starting in place of injured Bobby Hebert, passed for two touchdowns as New Orleans bounced back from its only loss to win in Los Angeles.

Walsh completed 17 of 33 passes for 269 yards. Hebert warmed up before the game, but was visibly bothered by his right shoulder, hurt last week in a 20-17 loss to Chicago.

Vince Buck intercepted two passes for the Saints (8-1). He picked off Jim Everett's first throw of the game, and blunted the final hope for the Rams (3-6) when he intercepted Everett's midfield lob into the end zone on the final play.

Bears 20, Lions 10

Jim Harbaugh threw a pair of second-half TD passes to Wendell Davis, and Chicago won at home to take sole possession of first place of the NFC Central.

Detroit and the Bears had not met while tied for first place since 1956. Playing in a minus-8 wind chill factor, the Lions (6-3) led this one 10-3 at halftime before Chicago (7-2) rallied.

Harbaugh's 22-yard toss to Davis put the Bears ahead 13-10 with 26 seconds left in the third quarter. He also completed an 8-yard scoring pass to Davis with 3:53 to go.

Bills 22, Patriots 17

Thurman Thomas ran for 126 yards as Buffalo got by New England for its 16th straight victory at Rich Stadium.

The Patriots (3-6) shut down the high-scoring Bills (8-1) for most of the game. Three field goals by Scott Norwood and two misses by New England's Jason Stautvrosky were the difference.

Patriots rookie Leonard Russell gained 106 yards in 27 carries, the second straight week he's reached the 100-yard mark. He scored two touchdowns on short runs, both set up on fumbled punts by Al Edwards.

Jets 19, Packers 16

Pat Leahy, who earlier this season

Buffalo Bills wide receiver Andre Reed tries to slip from the grasp of Patriots safety Harry Colon during the first period of the Bills 22-17 home win over division rival New England.

missed a 28-yard field goal in overtime that led to a loss in Chicago, kicked a 37-yarder with 5:20 left in overtime to beat Green Bay.

Leahy, the NFL's oldest player at 40, kicked four field goals. His 22-yarder with 1 minute remaining in regulation lifted New York into a 16-all tie.

Chris Jacke had a chance to win it for the Packers (2-7), but missed a 42-yard field goal in overtime. The host Jets (5-4) then failed to move and punted, but Vai Sihakema fumbled the ball and Bobby Houston recovered at the Green Bay 23. Three plays later, Leahy won it.

Dolphins 10, Colts 6

Mark Duper tied Miami's career reception yardage record and the Dolphins kept Indianapolis as the NFL's only winless team.

The Colts (0-9) have not scored a touchdown in 53 possessions spanning 20 quarters. They got to midfield in the last two minutes, but turned over the ball on downs.

Duper caught three passes for 64 yards and matched Nat Moore's team record of 7,547 yards. Dan Marino hit Duper with a 12-yard pass as Miami (4-5) scored the only touchdown on its first possession at the Hoosier Dome.

Cowboys 27, Cardinals 7

Emmitt Smith scored three touchdowns and Robert Williams blocked a punt and intercepted a pass, leading Dallas at home.

Smith scored twice on 3-yard runs and again on a 1-yard run. He has nine touchdowns in his last three games against the Cardinals. He scored twice earlier this season and had four touchdowns against Phoenix last December.

The Cowboys (6-3) are off to their best start since 1986. Johnny Johnson ran for 89 yards, including a 1-yard score, for the Cardinals (4-6).

Vikings 28, Buccaneers 13

Terry Allen, subbing for ineffective Herschel Walker, ran for a career-high 127 yards and two touchdowns for Minnesota.

Only 35,737 fans — the Vikings' smallest non-strike crowd since 1964 — watched at the Metrodome. The Vikings (5-5) trailed 6-0 with 5 minutes left in the third quarter until Tampa Bay (1-8) fell apart.

Just 58 seconds after Allen's 15-yard run put Minnesota ahead for good with 4:40 left in the period, Testaverde was intercepted by Mike Merriweather, whose 22-yard TD return made it 14-6.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Dvorak makes mark against nation's elite

Michael Watkins
Daily Iowan

For the first time in her five years as head coach of Iowa's women's tennis team, Micki Schillig took four of her best singles and doubles players to Madison, Wis., last weekend to participate in the Rolex Regional tournament and see what the Hawkeyes' "cream of the crop" could do against some of the best in the Midwest.

Once the singles matches were over with two of the three players losing their opening round matches, followed by a second-round defeat of Iowa's lone doubles team, Schillig said she discovered that the team has some work to do before the start of the spring season in January.

"This tournament showed me that we have the potential to play with anybody, but we have to win sets and matches when we're up," Schillig said. "We've been struggling lately to close out matches, and when the spring comes around and the Big Ten season starts, we can't keep doing that. You only get lucky every once in a while."

Freshman Laura Dvorak, who's been playing the No. 2 spot so far this year, made the strongest tournament showing for the Hawkeyes. Dvorak, out of Western Springs, Ill., reached the third round before falling in straight sets to the tournament's No. 6 seed, Jenny Moe of Minnesota.

After easily dropping the first set 6-1, Dvorak started confusing her opponent with a consistent mixture of pace to take a 5-3 advantage in the second. But Moe held her ground and her serve, and then broke Dvorak before taking the final two games for a 7-5 victory.

"She really raised her level of play after being down, and I started thinking a little bit too much instead of just playing my game," Dvorak said. "Overall, though, I think I played really well. I came to the net a lot more, which was something I've been working towards. So, I wasn't disappointed."

Senior Lori Hash and freshman Minna Hatakka made early exits from the tournament with first-round losses. Hash, last year's top player for the Hawkeyes, lost a close 6-3, 5-7, 6-3 match to Wisconsin's Amanda Gregory, while Hatakka dropped a convincing 6-4, 6-1 decision to Michigan's Jamie Fielding.

Iowa's top doubles tandem of Hash and Catherine Wilson easily handled a Ball State duo 6-0, 6-1 to win their first-round match.

The bowl picture for Big Ten Conference teams is starting to take shape.

Michigan looks to be headed for the Rose Bowl as the conference champion, while Iowa and Indiana are dueling for the runner-up spot and a berth in the Holiday Bowl.

And Northwestern? Well, the Wildcats should get a bid to some Underdog Bowl.

Northwestern beat Michigan State 16-13 on Saturday for its first back-to-back Big Ten victories in five years.

In other conference games, Iowa downed Ohio State 16-9, Michigan whipped Purdue 42-0, Indiana beat Minnesota 34-8 and Illinois beat Wisconsin 22-6.

Michigan's Wolverines, favorites for the Jan. 1 Rose Bowl at Pasadena, sit alone atop the Big Ten at 5-0. Iowa and Indiana, both 4-1, will play next Saturday for second place, which carries with it a trip to the Dec. 30 Holiday Bowl in San Diego.

Northwestern improved to 3-5 overall and 2-3 in the league with its victory over Michigan State. The Wildcats won on Len Williams' 7-yard touchdown pass to Mark Benson with 1:48 left.

But Northwestern could get a reality check this week at Michigan.

With the loss, the Spartans — co-champs in the Big Ten last season and 8-3-1 overall — fell to 1-7 and 1-4.

Quarterback Matt Rodgers passed for one touchdown and ran for another to lead Iowa at Ohio State.

Indiana's Vaughn Dunbar, the nation's No. 2 rusher, ran for 149 yards and three touchdowns at Bloomington, Ind. Trent Green passed for 241 yards and scored a touchdown.

"It feels good to be back," said Indiana coach Bill Mallory, who served a one-game suspension the previous week for criticizing officials. "That's what I get paid to do — coach."

Desmond Howard, a leading Heisman Trophy candidate, had 169 all-purpose yards and scored two touchdowns for Michigan.

"I feel I can help this team get to Pasadena, but as for the Heisman, I can't control that," Howard said. "I just want to help this team get back to the Rose Bowl and as long as we get victories and I play consistent, then I'll be a very happy individual."

Elvis Grbac completed 11 of 16 passes for 175 yards, including scoring tosses of 47 and 17 yards to Howard. Grbac now has 22 TD passes for the season, breaking his own school record of 21 set last year.

J.D. Carlson kicked six extra points, giving him the Big Ten record of 110 consecutive PATs. The old mark of 107 was set by Indiana's Pete Stoyanovich from 1986 to 1988.

Linebacker Julyon Brown grabbed an errant snap on a punt in the end zone for a second-quarter touchdown, giving the Illini the lead for good at Champaign, Ill.

"That was the big play in the game," said Illinois coach John Mackovic, whose team broke a two-game losing streak. "All of a sudden we had a chance to make a big play and we did, and we were ahead."

Brown grabbed the bouncing ball with 14 seconds left in the second quarter to give Illinois a 7-6 lead.

"That was a big boost because we were sort of mentally down," Brown said. "We felt it was only a matter of time before we could take Wisconsin."

NBA TRADE

Jepsen no longer a Warrior after big NBA deal

Associated Press

OAKLAND — The rights to Billy Owens, the Sacramento Kings' unsigned top draft choice, were traded Friday to the Golden State Warriors in exchange for Mitch Richmond, center Les Jepsen and a second-round draft pick in 1995.

Owens, a 6-foot-9 forward out of Syracuse, was the third player taken in the NBA draft. The acquisition of his rights breaks up the Warriors' potent threesome of Richmond, Chris Mullin and Tim Hardaway. They combined to average 72.5 points a game last season as Golden State won 44 games while averaging 116.6 points a game, the team's best in 23 years.

"The decision to trade Mitch Richmond is the toughest I have ever made," Warriors coach and general manager Don Nelson said. "Mitch has been much more than just a great basketball player for the Warriors. He's been a member of our family. Fortunately, as we say goodbye to Mitch, we know he will remain a good friend for life and become an NBA All-Star.

"Les Jepsen is also a wonderful man and a hard-working young basketball player. Given some more time and experience, he will continue to develop."

Iowa finished last at the Big Ten men's country championships in West Lafayette, Ind. The team was an eye opener for our guys," Iowa coach Larry Wiecezorek said. "We're in a tough league, it's a tough meet and we just have to continue to work harder until we're up to the task."

Team scoring was as follows: Wisconsin (25), Michigan (61), Michigan State (83), Penn State (89), Illinois (143), Purdue (198), Ohio State (204), Indiana (218), Minnesota (222) and Iowa (267).

Iowa's top finisher was Matt Gerard in 43rd. He completed the 10k course in 26:41, 1:41 behind winner Donovan Bergstrom of Wisconsin.

Other Iowa finishers were: Marc Roehl (43rd), Andy Rosette (51st), Dave Wood (66th), Dave White

Larry Wiecezorek

(67th) and Steve Marshall (69th). Despite finishing last, Wiecezorek said the future looks bright for Iowa.

"I know all the guys tried hard," he said. "This is a group of guys that want to be good and they will be good before they leave here."

With the exception of Penn State, Iowa will get another shot at its conference foes when it travels to the NCAA District meet in Bloomington, Ind. Nov. 16.

Women earn honors, team finishes fourth

Steve J. Collins
Daily Iowan

Three Hawkeye runners earned all-Big Ten cross country honors Saturday but as a team Iowa hobbled in fourth.

Iowa's Jennifer Brower completed the 5K course in 18:02, four seconds behind Michigan State's Misty Allison, to finish second.

"Jennifer came very close to winning the race," Iowa coach Jerry Hassard said. "She moved up late in the race and challenged Allison, but with about a quarter mile to go she slipped and lost some momentum."

In the team race Wisconsin (49 points), Penn State (74) and Michigan (87) all finished ahead of the Hawkeyes (102).

Teammates Tracy Dahl (4th in 18:05) and Jennifer Johnson (5th in 18:17) combined with Brower to become the first trio in Iowa history to earn conference honors in the same year.

Other Iowa scorers were: Tina Stec (39th), Patty Jones (62nd), and Amy McReil (75th).

"I'm very encouraged by those first three people, they only scored 11 points," Hassard said. "If we can get people healthy we're going to be in real good shape next time around."

Hassard said it was ironic that his team didn't have the depth to win the meet with three all-conference performers. Early in the year Iowa routinely withheld runners and still won. Injuries have changed that.

This week it was Erin Boland who joined Iowa's ever-growing list of walking wounded. She joined Christine Salsberry and Christa Holmes who missed the meet with injuries while Stec ran with a taped ankle.

Teams' thoughts in Iowa City

Daily Iowan

Despite a shooting on the University of Iowa campus that left six dead, administrators decided to proceed with the Hawkeye football team's game at Ohio State Saturday afternoon.

Iowa coach Hayden Fry said the tragedy had a direct effect on his team's 16-9 victory over Ohio State.

"That tragedy back in Iowa City was so sad and so bad that I know it had a big part to do with us winning, because I think our guys just gave that 20 percent extra effort," he said in postgame remarks.

"Just to try to bring a little happiness to all the people back in Iowa: to the students, the faculty and the families ... the people that are so down right now. If we could just bring a few hours of happiness to them. ... That's why this victory has special meaning. No way can we substitute for the people that are gone. Our guys played their hearts out for the university family. That's why this victory was special."

In a statement issued before the game, Iowa Athletic Director Bob Bowsby said "because the official travel party was already in Columbus at the time of the incident it seems appropriate to meet our obligation."

The Iowa football team wore all-black helmets in recognition of the shootings, which left another person in critical condition.

Prior to the game, a moment of silence was observed by a crowd of 95,357, the largest crowd ever in enlarged Ohio Stadium.

The Big Ten Conference game pitted teams ranked 11th (Iowa) and 13th (Ohio State) in the nation.

Officials in the Department of Women's Athletics forfeited the Iowa Volleyball match against Wisconsin Friday due to the shooting incident.

"In light of today's tragic shooting, we think it's only appropriate that we turn our concerns to our friends and colleagues in the University community at this very troubled time," Dr. Christine Grant said Friday night.

The match Saturday at Northwestern was postponed until Sunday.

The Iowa women's swim meet against Minnesota in Minneapolis Saturday was postponed due to blizzard conditions in Minnesota.

"We were just a couple of hours from leaving when the decision not to go was made," said coach Pete Kennedy. "It is just too bad because we were really looking forward to going."

Kennedy added that he hopes to reschedule the meet but does not see that happening before spring.

The Hawkeyes next see action on Saturday against Wisconsin and Michigan State in Madison, Wis.

Hawkeyes swim past Wisconsin

Curtis Riggs

Daily Iowan

What if they held a swim meet and only one team showed up?

That's basically what happened in the Iowa men's swim team's victory over Wisconsin on Friday at the Field House.

The Hawkeyes won by a score of 157-82 and won all 13 events in the rout.

The meet started well for the squad, with B. J. Blair winning the one-meter diving competition with a score of 201.1. Freshman Vico Hidalgo came in second with 197.70.

"It was close. I started with two good dives but dives three and four weren't as good," Blair said. "With Vico's great performance, it pushed me real hard. If I am going to get beat this year, hopefully it will be by him."

Iowa won the 400 medley relay with the team of Mike Johnson, Brad Gaeth, Rafal Szukala and Eric Kirch in 3:27.05. The Hawkeyes also placed second as Matt Young, Keith Gunderson, Erik Marchitell and Doug Helm had a time of 1:51.24.

Iowa continued its dominance by sweeping the top four places in the 50-yard freestyle, with Rob Meadows winning in 21:19.

"I am ecstatic about my performance and I am also happy that we swept the event," Meadows said.

The Hawkeyes' Artur Wojdat was not to be outdone, as he took the 1000-yard freestyle by a pool length over Wisconsin's Pinter with a time of 9:24.14.

"I could have been faster if I had more competition from Wisconsin," Wojdat said. "But I am pleased with the time. It is several seconds faster than last year."

Wojdat also won the 500-yard freestyle in 4:29.61, and he was the anchor of the 400-yard freestyle team that won in 3:08.51. Matt Smith, Danny Leibrand and Dan Stoppenhagen comprised the rest

"I could have been faster if I had more competition from Wisconsin. But I am pleased with the time.

Artur Wojdat, swimmer

of this relay team.

Wojdat says that the key to success for the Hawkeyes this season is their younger athletes.

"There are many newcomers on this team who are performing really well," he said. "They have shown great improvement over the summer and I think that we will represent our school much better this year and place in the top three in the Big Ten."

"The freshmen and sophomores are showing that they have what it takes and the team is really ready to kick some butt."

However, the Hawkeyes weren't done, as Szukala won the 200-yard freestyle in 1:40.02 and ten minutes later, the 200-yard butterfly in 1:51.24.

"I am very excited about the relay and the 200-fly," said Szukala who, along with Wojdat, will represent Poland in the 1992 Olympics. "I was very tired before the 200-free, but since it was my first meet at Iowa, I guess that it was a good job."

Marchitell is another freshman who had an excellent inaugural meet by winning the 200 individual medley in 1:53.08.

"I was really nervous when I got up on the block but when I hit the water, I just exploded and felt great," Marchitell said. "I couldn't ask for anything better than today."

Other Hawkeye winners were Blair in the three-meter dive with a score of 195.20 score, Kirch in the 100-yard freestyle in 46:69, Matt

Smith in the 200-yard backstroke in 1:50.55, and Gunderson in the 200-yard breaststroke with a time of 2:10.52.

"I was really pleased with the ease in which we were able to win," Coach Glenn Patton said. "It was a little scary at first but we came through with flying colors."

"Szukala really impressed our coaching staff," Patton added. "I think that we have really found a national level swimmer here. Also, I am really impressed with the performance of Marchitell in the 200 individual medley."

On Sunday, the Hawkeyes won the Northwestern Relays in Evanston, Ill. Iowa took first in the 300-yard butterfly, 300-yard backstroke, 500 freestyle, 400 medley, 200 freestyle and the 400 freestyle.

Iowa finished with a team score of 132, while Michigan State finished second with 120. Indiana came in third with 60 points.

"We were very pleased with the guys from top to bottom," assistant coach Brad Flood said. "This meet gave us a chance to change some guys around and let them try different events."

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Top teams stomp on weaker opponents

Associated Press

No. 1 Florida St. 40, Louisville 15

At Louisville, backup quarterback Brad Johnson threw for 190 yards and a touchdown and sophomore walk-on Gerry Thomas kicked four field goals as the Seminoles (9-0) handed Louisville its seventh loss in nine games. Johnson, who started six games for the Seminoles last year before losing the job to Casey Weldon, completed 16 of 26 passes in his first start in more than a year. Weldon injured a knee last week against LSU.

No. 3 Washington 44, Arizona St. 16

At Seattle, Billy Joe Hobert threw for two touchdowns and ran for a third in the first half. The Huskies (8-0) haven't carried an unbeaten record this far since 1984, when they went 11-1 and finished No. 2 behind BYU.

No. 5 Notre Dame 38, Navy 0

At South Bend, Rick Mirer threw for 303 yards and three touchdowns as Notre Dame (8-1) buried the hapless Midshipmen (0-8). Mirer set a school record with his 17th TD pass, breaking the record set by Bob Williams in 1949 and tied by John Huarte in 1964 and Joe Theismann in 1970.

No. 6 Florida 31, Auburn 10

At Auburn, Ala., Shane Matthews threw for 264 yards and two touchdowns and also ran for a score as the Gators (7-1) moved closer to the schools' first official Southeastern Conference title. Auburn (4-4) lost its third straight at home.

No. 7 Alabama 13, Miss State 7

At Tuscaloosa, Ala., Stacy Harrison scored on a 64-yard interception return and ended Mississippi State's last drive with an interception in the end zone. Two field goals by Matt Wethington in the fourth quarter field goals provided the difference for Alabama (7-1), which remained a game back of Florida in the SEC.

No. 9 Nebraska 19, No. 15 Colorado 19

At Boulder, Colo., Greg Thomas blocked a 41-yard field goal attempt by Nebraska's Byron Bennett as time ran out, leaving the Cornhuskers (6-1-1) and Buffaloes (5-2-1) in a first-place deadlock in the Big Eight at 3-0-1. Should Nebraska and Colorado, each with three games remaining, tie for the league title, the Orange Bowl would decide which team will represent the league in the Jan. 1 bowl at Miami.

No. 10 California 52, USC 30

At Berkeley, Calif., Russell White rushed for a career-high 229 yards, the most ever allowed by USC, and scored three TDs. The nephew of USC's 1979 Heisman Trophy winner, Charles White, surpassed the previous best against USC of 224 yards by UCLA's Gaston Green in 1986. Mike Pawlowski threw touchdown passes of 33, 11 and 5 yards to Sean Dawkins, and Doug Brien kicked field goals of 19, 23 and 37 yards as Cal scored the most points ever against a Southern Cal team.

No. 12 Texas A&M 38, Rice 21

At Houston, Bucky Richardson scored two touchdowns and Kevin Smith returned a punt 71 yards for another score during a 28-point Texas A&M first half. The Aggies, frontrunners in a bid for the Cotton Bowl, won their fifth straight game.

No. 14 Tennessee 52, Memphis State 24

At Knoxville, Tenn., Andy Kelly passed for 319 yards and Aaron Hayden ran for 169 as the Vols

Associated Press

Beno Bryant cuts to avoid a tackle as an Arizona State safety attempts to strip the ball from him. The Huskies baked the Sun Devils 44-16.

(5-2) rolled up a school-record 603 yards. Kelly directed scoring drives of 64, 75, 65, 75, 58, 72, 60 and 55 yards, completing 28 of 37 passes.

No. 16 Clemson 28, Wake Forest 10

At Clemson, S.C., Rodney Blunt rushed for 103 yards and scored first-period touchdowns on runs of 10 and 25 yards as Clemson (5-1-1) won its 15th straight over the Demon Deacons. Clemson scored on its first three possessions and led 28-0 at halftime.

No. 17 East Carolina 38, Tulane 28

At Greenville, N.C., Jeff Blake threw three touchdown passes to Hunter Gallimore and became East Carolina's career leader in touchdown passes (34), passing yardage (4,152) and completions (287).

No. 18 Syracuse 27, Temple 6

At Syracuse, N.Y., Marcus Lee and Al Wooten each scored on short runs as Syracuse (7-2), held to 68 yards in the first half, won its third game in a row.

Florida (7-1) remained No. 6 after downing Auburn 31-10.

California (7-1) rose three spots to No. 7 after routing Southern Cal 52-30, while Alabama (7-1) fell one notch to No. 8 after edging Mississippi State 13-7.

Idle Penn State (7-2) dropped one spot to No. 9 and Iowa (7-1) jumped one place to No. 10.

Miami, Wash closing in on Florida State

Rick Warner

Associated Press

Washington moved into a second-place tie with Miami, while Virginia and Indiana cracked the Top 25 for the first time this season in Sunday's Associated Press college football poll.

Washington (8-0), which has been inching closer and closer to Miami the last few weeks, finally caught the idle Hurricanes (7-0) after pounding Arizona State 44-16 Saturday.

The Huskies and Hurricanes each received 1,413 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Washington got four first-place votes, one more than Miami.

Florida State (9-0) remained No. 1 after beating Louisville 40-15. The Seminoles, who have occupied the top spot every week this season, received 53 of 60 first-place votes and 1,492 points.

Michigan (7-1) stayed No. 4 following a 42-0 win over Purdue. Notre Dame (8-1), which blanked Navy 38-0, is still No. 5 and

MUSIC REVIEW

Allen Cohen

Pictured at a performance earlier this year, esteemed conductor and Kennedy Center honoree Alexander Schneider led the Brandenburg Ensemble through a program titled "Mozart's Last Year" Wednesday at Hancher Auditorium.

Mixed Mozart program at Brandenburg concert

William Palik
Daily Iowan

The Brandenburg Ensemble played Wednesday evening to a large and appreciative Hancher audience. The ensemble was directed here by Alexander Schneider, an octogenarian whose concern for music's humane and spiritual values has been documented in his long association with the Budapest Quartet, the Casals and Marlboro festivals.

The program, titled "Mozart's Last Year" and featuring two of the composer's final orchestral works (1791), nevertheless commenced with the Two Marches in D, K. 335, from 1779.

The concert's center was occupied by Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 27 in B-flat, K. 595, which was played by the composer in his final concert appearance eight months prior to his demise. Here the small ensemble of 15 string and eight wind players betrayed an occasional tonal thinness in the upper strings, resulting in a lack of motivic definition. Overall, though, the playing was unified and heartfelt.

The soloist, 17-year-old Japanese pianist Rieko Aizawa, gave a virtually note-perfect rendition of this lyrical work, excelling especially in her graceful duets with the wind players in the final movement. Her immaturity occasionally surfaced earlier in the concerto; in the opening Allegro, where her passagework seemed a trifle ponderous and notey, her tone insufficiently transparent, her phrase transitions somewhat square and lacking in poise and point. In the middle movement, the musical effect was of mere slowness rather than rapt sublimity. Aizawa, now a student at the Curtis Institute, seemed disinclined to return to the piano, but Maestro Schneider stagily "forced" her, as if compelled by (non-existent) audience hysteria, to play as a literal encore the concluding section of the concerto's finale.

Mozart's Clarinet Concerto in A, K. 622, is not the most inspired of his compositions, but soloist Richard Stoltzman made it sound like the masterpiece it evidently can be. The Omaha-born Stoltzman, now in his 50th year, successfully affects the appearance and mannerisms of extreme youth. He laughed, minced and clowned about in his black velvet tux, and the audience ate it up.

Stoltzman's musical mastery, however, was manifested most poignantly in the exquisite return of the opening material of the concerto's Adagio movement. Here, he exhaled the soft, long-lined theme with a superb control of breath and timbre that served the music wonderfully; at other times, he seemed to revel almost excessively in displaying his command of different articulations, tone colors and dynamic levels.

In the Rondo finale, Stoltzman's artistry came together in his magnificently shaped and shaded musical phrasing. His subtle rhythmic and tonal inflections differentiated the repetitions — both within phrases and in the restatements of the Rondo theme as a whole — in a way that seemed ever delightfully new and yet logically inevitable.

The ensemble again took the word "enore" literally — in this more appropriate but by now also more formulaic instance — by repeating the conclusion of the finale of the clarinet concerto, in which Stoltzman illustrated the somewhat paradoxical concert axiom that the more self-satisfied the soloist seems, the more satisfied the audience will be.

Radical feminist conservative Paglia's turn in media spotlight

Dana Kennedy
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Speaking with the speed of an Uzi, cracking jokes like Joan Rivers and dropping politically incorrect statements like bombshells, Camille Paglia packed the halls at MIT last month and recently entertained an overflow crowd in New York.

"I'm pro-prostitution, pro-pornography, pro-homosexuality and pro-drag queen," Paglia announced cheerfully. "I seem to do my best to offend everyone." Paglia, a diminutive 44-year-old woman from Philadelphia, is a rapidly rising star with a gimmick — she's a scholar. Her brand of in-your-face sexual politics has appeared to catch fire with a public glazed over from efforts to save the whales or Walden Pond.

She found her ticket onto the world stage with her book, "Sexual Personae: Art and Decadence From Nefertiti to Emily Dickinson," a controversial and exhaustive exploration of sexual philosophy.

The book was rejected seven times by New York publishers before coming out last year. Since then, "Sexual Personae" and its author slowly have gathered steam.

Paglia has been on the cover of New York magazine (pro) and The Village Voice (con). She sees her growing fame as vindication after 21 years spent in academic obscurity, shunned by big-name universities and occasionally collecting unemployment.

"It's like one of the great stories on 'Oprah,'" says Paglia. "It's a great story about overcoming every obstacle. It's a great feminist saga."

Much about Paglia is a paradox. She vacillates between childlike merriment and ferocious militancy.

She peppers her speech with references to everything from Plato, the Marquis de Sade and Spenser's epic poem, "The Faerie Queene," to Fleetwood Mac, the film "Psycho" and Madonna.

But her ability to mix turgid academes with pop culture and a plethora of one-liners has struck a chord with audiences and readers.

At her lecture at the New York Public Library, Paglia called herself a feminist. But she blames women for many of their own problems, decrying what she sees as a plague of "victimology."

Paglia dismisses women's issues such as date rape as the products of white middle-class naivete. Though she says she is the "first one" to condemn rape, she terms the current focus on date rape "sex-phobic propaganda."

"Women have to take personal responsibility," she says. "No more of this whiny, weepy stuff." Paglia scorns mainstream feminists such as Gloria Steinem and believes all women's studies courses at universities should be eliminated.

"Women's studies departments are all run by a bunch of 1950s ladies," she snarls. "Young women today are being taught by 10th-grade minds, by an incestuous, solipsistic little group who only read and teach what they agree with."

Paglia suggests — no, INSISTS — that men are responsible for much of the great work of civilization, though she says their drive to create works of art is a reaction to what they feel is the omnipotence of women.

Paglia calls "Sexual Personae," which she wrote in longhand at her kitchen table a decade ago, her "life's work." There are plans for a second volume.

Bette Midler claims Geraldo Rivera drugged, molested her

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Bette Midler says Geraldo Rivera forced her to inhale a drug in an encounter she calls "interview rape."

Rivera has described their 1972 meeting in her apartment bathroom as the start of an affair and a spokesman on Saturday strongly denied Midler's charge.

Midler gives her account in a profile of her in December's Vanity Fair.

"You call that little thing an affair? He's such a toad! He has the nerve. . . He's such a user," Midler told the writer, Kevin Sessums.

In his memoir, "Exposing Myself," Rivera described a monthlong affair with Midler including a bathroom liaison.

Midler, however, told Sessums that Rivera and an unidentified producer shoved her into the bath and forced her to inhale amyl nitrite, a stimulant sometimes called "poppers." Soon Geraldo was groping and molesting her, she told Sessums.

Jeff Erdel, a Rivera spokesman, accused Midler of making the claim to promote her new movie, "For The Boys."

"For her to claim Geraldo had to force her to have sex is preposterous," Erdel said from his home in Island Park. "This relationship was consummated many, many, many times in several states."

A spokeswoman for Midler was not in her Los Angeles office Saturday.
