Abortion activists gather on Pentacrest

James P. Wellington

Nearly 50 people gathered on the University of Iowa's Pentacrest on Sunday to participate in a rally in support of abortion rights.

The rally, which was organized by the National Abortion Rights Action League, focused on the importance of reproductive rights.

The participants chanted and held signs in support of abortion rights.

During the night's UIS Student Assembly meeting was plagued with arguments and escalated tension, and a group of UIS student提案 was killed.

The meeting was brought to an abrupt end when President of the Student Senate's absense.

The body didn't have a quorum to make decisions.

GDPS Sen. Jon Reeser said the senators were frustrated with the difficulty of getting graduate students involved in the meetings, and his resolution was killed as a result.

Residents of Village Green concerned about odd smell

Lindy Kennedy

For the past four years, residents of the Village Green apartment complex in southeast Iowa City have been troubled by an odd smell.

Now, residents of the area are working together to find out where the smell is coming from and what it means.

God Feller, a resident of the Village Green, said the smell results in complaints from all over the area.

"It's not like we've been walking in the wind, he said. "It wasn't until the GPSS got involved that the smell went away."
Environmentalist speaks to UI community

David Brower has been involved in environmental concerns since 1928, long before it became fashionable.

Gary Gaeth said. The Iowa State University Environmental Center, the Center for Biological Diversity, and the Institute for environmental studies are forming a new consortium of students and faculty interested in the environment. The new building will be completed in the next 12 months.

Gary Gaeth, acting senior faculty, has been involved in the environmental movement for over 30 years. He said, "The new building will provide us with the latest technology and encourage students to become involved in environmental issues." The building will be completed in the next 12 months.

The Daily Iowan uses a collection of websites that are integrated with the newspaper. "We're also planning some changes in all the sections of the new building," Gaeth said. "The building will be completed in the next 12 months."
Survey says employment looking good

"I'm not surprised this study showed that male faculty and their spouses are generally more likely to be working together and that female faculty have more support from their partners and their mates to do things."

"Though there's been tough talk in balancing the state's budget by cutting spending, Branstad and Democrats are giving a mixed message. We're unsure just how they'll do it," Arnould said.

"We have to determine what the state is doing to help its health-care providers. That is an issue that needs to be discussed," Wilson said.

"Our legislative sessions have been a lot of work," said Betty Nickelsburg, the head of the Capitol Friends Group for friends of legislators at the Capitol.

"When things start moving, we're going to look at the differences and see if there's any way we can bridge them."

Arnould said there was a variety of requirements to be chosen for the team. One was being a business professional who had worked at the same place for at least 10 years, another was employed in Things and Things, and the third was a woman.

"We're interested in having women with a good perspective and who could represent the U.S. and the United States," she said.

"Dragon Head" of Teflon Triad set free by colony's high court

John Pavone

Associated Press

HONG KONG - Police arrested an alleged boss of Hong Kong's top crime syndicate on April 12 after they said he had been "around the world," including in Sarajevo, the capital of war-ravaged Bosnia.

Police officials also said that Hong Kong was in fact the "second headquarters" of a crime syndicate, after it was revealed that the Hong Kong crime syndicate's leader, called the "Dragon Head," had been arrested in Sarajevo.

The "Dragon Head" of Teflon Triad, whose real name is not known, is said to have been operating in Sarajevo for about a year, according to reports.

A police source said that the "Dragon Head," who was arrested on April 12, had been "around the world," including in Sarajevo, the capital of war-ravaged Bosnia.

The "Dragon Head" had been the subject of a manhunt for years, and police said that he was wanted for his involvement in various criminal activities, including the running of an illegal organization.

Defend gays and lesbians

The United States is a hostile, oppressive place for gays and lesbians. The American Medical Association declares that 80 percent will suffer from overt discrimination during their lives. Too many people are afraid to talk about their sexuality, even in their own homes. The United States is a hostile place that will not give gay and lesbian rights.

Cracker Barrel, a southern restaurant chain which fires workers for being gay, is a reminder of the homophobia that pervades American culture. While capitalism recognizes the "right" of Cracker Barrel to discriminate, the right of gays and lesbians to have equal rights is a right to simply live.

CRITICAL THINKING

We must understand the forces of gay and lesbian rights. Here is one of them. Jean-Lloydones and others have interpreted legislation to protect gay and lesbian rights, but Gov. Branstad has threatened to veto it. He has found a spokesperson on Terrace Hill.

Armenian, Azerbaijani border continues to be ‘combat zone’

Thursday, February 1

IAGDM, Azerbaijan—Police said Thursday that they had recovered the bodies of 120 killed in a recent Armenian attack on Nagorno-Karabakh, and that they were being buried today.

But diplomats in Moscow lashed out at “gross excesses” and called for an immediate withdrawal of Armenian forces.

The Nagorno-Karabakh conflict has been ongoing for nearly a decade, and Armenia has been fighting to maintain control over Nagorno-Karabakh.

There are also tensions with Azerbaijan over the status of Nagorno-Karabakh, which is internationally recognized as part of Azerbaijan but controlled by Armenian forces.

The United Nations has called for a ceasefire and for talks between the two sides.

In the latest fighting, at least 120 people were reported killed and many more injured.

Gable touches on issues of role models, student-athletes

Too much thinking and analyzing may have hurt Gable's last loss at Iowa State.

He now coaches, but Gable has actually done it all when it comes to the sport of wrestling, both as a coach and athlete. His seemingly never-ending list of credentials include: two-time NCAA Champion at Iowa State, Olympic Gold Medalist and World Champion. But his most notable achievement perhaps is mentoring freshmen to new niveaus of NCAA Championships. From 1979-86, a first matched only by Dan and his 1974-80 and 1980-83 back-to-back titles.

I could have rode him to win but I got aggressive again, a little greedy, and I tried to turn him and he got out. It was a controversial situation, I didn't know what happened and the score didn't change but the referee awarded him four points. I was in a situation that I couldn't get out either way.

I would have liked to exemplify myself in the best possible manner, it doesn't mean he's going to. I'm not trying to make a role model of myself, I'm just trying to be a role model out of the ring. My goal is to be a good person, not to be a role model. I'm not trying to make a role model of myself, I'm just trying to be a role model out of the ring. My goal is to be a good person.

You just gotta keep pushing and striving and trying to improve yourself. As a grappler, I start training him, I want him to be a good student but if I wrote my guide down for a kid, I'd probably put more emphasis on the academic side of it. If it's a junior or senior to- wards the end of the year, the goals of the program are for him to be in the best of his life and that's to be a four-time NCAA individual champion — which nobody has.

I'm not in the business of coaching for championships. I want him to be a four-year student. A student. But ideally, I want him to be a good student in the classroom and a good person in the classroom. The goals of the program are for him to be the best he can be, and I'm trying to help him become better fit for society and better prepared for the future.

Dan Gable

Gable, with his noggin' supposed to prompt, said a lot of walking, stepping, right down the match. "I didn't have to bring back to being what I did at the end of the match. I went for the same thing that he had in the match — a little kicker white.

At a home match last month, Gable still showed the same type of intensity he exhibited at the onset of a 118-1 record during his days at Iowa State.
Younger Rose proud of dad

Ronald Blum

"I'm not real tough when Dad got me out of the ballpark."

Sandberg agreed to a $28.4 million, four-year contract, giving the Cubs the most expensive first baseman in baseball in 1989.

"I hope people in Chicago will still call me Pops."

Ryne Sandberg, 29, was eligible for free agency following the 1988 season, when he hit .250 and drove in 104 runs.

"I've spent five months preparing for this season."

The boys started playing baseball when Dad was 8. and then I lined a single to left-center field."

"I'm not going to be saying I should have hit the ball a little more or less than that guy," said Ripken of Bogg's .333 average.

"We're going to be looking for a consistent hitter."

"I'm not worried about that."

Eddie Mathews and Billy Williams, who attempted to steal in a pinch.

"You try anything against me and your play is over."
Iow a City, Iowa -

The Boone Formation is an interbedded sequence of spring waters, tundra, and forest. It was a time when the Earth's climate was much colder than it is today. Beds of exposed glacial till, which are not affected by later weathering processes, are found in the southern part of the state. These beds are evidence of the Wisconsin Glacial Episode, when glaciers covered large portions of the state.

The Boon Formation is named for the town of Boone, Iowa, where it was first discovered. The formation is composed of well-stratified sediments, including sandstone, siltstone, and mudstone. It is one of the best-preserved sequences of glacial deposits in the state, and provides valuable information about the Earth's past climates.

The Boone Formation is an important geological feature in the state of Iowa. It is a valuable resource for scientists studying the Earth's past climates, and provides a record of the environmental changes that have occurred over time. It is also an important feature for the development of renewable energy resources, as the formation is a potential source of geothermal energy.
Keyboard Gods Pogorelic & Ohlsson spark life into Chopin

William Falk
Iowa City

All the excellence, culture-hungry sensibility, and artistic integrity that are usually present at a Chopin piano recital were on stage at the Iowa City public library last week. One wishes a Chopin Prelude could be recast from the wings to ensure the effect with the mouth. The usual piano was indeed played, but the actual pianist, Per-Ingvar Ohlsson, was already in his seat before the audience entered the auditorium. With his hands, he was drawing pianola than a concert instrument. The audience was treated to a shattering display of power that seemed to have come from the very core of the music. The opening selection, "La Bergamasque", was not entirely absorbed by the audience, the listener, but the piano itself seemed to have given birth to a son. The audience could not help but be moved.

With the mammoth Rachmaninoff Concerto No. 2 (Flat Major), Per-Ingvar Ohlsson's interpretative freedom and technical command were truly remarkable. His playing was a perfect combination of the Romantic and the Classical, a style that few pianists today could play it; fewer, perhaps, would want to.

The audience, some of whom stood up as the last note of the Prelude was heard, was obviouslyewarded with a rare encore—the Fantasie in F Minor by Schumann. The Fantasie in F Minor is a work that has long been overshadowed by the more famous Chopin Polonaise. However, it was beautifully performed by Ohlsson, who brought a sense of closure to the evening's program.

The audience was treated to a fascinating and moving performance of "La Valse", which Ohlsson managed to rework into a musical form that was both expressive and technically demanding. The audience was left with a sense of awe and wonder, a feeling that the music and the pianist were one, a perfect harmony that was both beautiful and powerful.
