Dental hygiene faculty to weigh legal options

LARRY K. WILSON

The UI dental hygiene faculty will weigh its options later this month as it is focusing on working with the administration to resolve some lingering issues with the state Board of Dental Examiners regarding faculty appointments and compensation. The faculty is considering filing a grievance.

The board of dental hygiene faculty members held a meeting earlier this month and decided that the issues will be presented to the board's executive director, Catherine Finney, for an evaluation. The faculty's options include filing a grievance, attending a hearing, and filing a complaint with the Iowa City-based Agricultural Council on Health Care.

The board of dental hygiene faculty members have expressed concern about the compensation and workload of the faculty members, and they have requested a meeting with the administration to discuss these issues.

UI researchers develop hemoglobin substitute

LARRY K. WILSON

UI researchers have developed a new substitute for blood that could be used to replace lost blood in emergencies. The substitute, called Hemoglobin Red Blood Cells (HRBC), is made from human red blood cells and is designed to be a temporary solution for people who cannot receive blood transfusions.

The HRBCs are created from human red blood cells that are collected and processed in a laboratory. The cells are then combined with a special polymer that helps them stay alive longer than normal red blood cells. The substitute is designed to be stored at room temperature and can be administered intravenously.

The Hemoglobin Red Blood Cells are currently in the early stages of development and are being tested on animals. If the tests are successful, the HRBCs could be used in clinical trials in the future.

UI Professor Joseph Walder stands by a model of a human heart at the press conference. He said the new substitute is a temporary solution for people who cannot receive blood transfusions.

The HRBCs are currently in the early stages of development and are being tested on animals. If the tests are successful, the HRBCs could be used in clinical trials in the future.

Reported rapes up from last year

LARRY K. WILSON

Rape reports in the Iowa City area are up from last year, according to the Iowa City Police Department. In the first half of this fiscal year, there were 10 reports of rape, compared to 7 reports in the same period last year.

The increase in rape reports is part of a larger trend of increased reporting of sexual assault. The Iowa City Police Department has seen an increase in the number of reports of sexual assault in recent years, and they are working to educate the public about the importance of reporting these crimes.

Ex-editors awarded $35,000 in firing for abortion stance

Rogel Marans

Associated Press

DENVER — Two fired editors for their anti-abortion activities were awarded $35,000 not out of local sympathy, but because of the newspaper's duty to the public.

The two attorneys general, on whose behalf the case was argued, said on Monday that the newspapers "had a duty to present the views of all sides of the issue to the public." They said the editors' activities were "but one of the many facts that the public must know in order to form an intelligent judgment."

But he said he had never before called for a cease-fire because he knew it wouldn't work. But they made a compromise to let Najibullah go. They said that Najibullah's low. Najibullah go. They said that Najibullah's government could raise all on top of a cent of reserved positions, as they entered Kabul Monday. Activists prepare for blockades

Iowa City, Iowa

BUFFALO, N.Y. - Activists on a planned anti-abortion protest in Buffalo said they had more people than ever on the site of abortion clinics in the area.

Supporters of Operation Rescue Nov. 13 around 600 protesters from across the U.S. to the side of the clinic they were targeting. They were to hold a rally outside the clinic and then march to a nearby church to pray for the patients.

Outside the clinic, hundreds of demonstrators held signs and chanted slogans. Some protesters also held up rosaries and crosses.

Among those gathered were Jackie Stilp, a member of the local Catholic Worker and a supporter of the clinic, and her husband, Brian Stilp, who said they were there to show solidarity with the protesters.

The protest was one of several planned across the country this weekend as part of a nationwide effort to draw attention to the issue of abortion.

California prepares to execute first prisoner since '76 decision

SACRAMENTO, Calif. - California is preparing to execute its first prisoner since the death penalty was reinstated in 1976.

The state's Supreme Court on Monday ruled that state prison officials had properly ruled out other methods of execution.

The court overturned a lower court decision that had blocked the planned execution of condemned inmate Daniel Baker.

Baker, 58, was convicted of four murders in 1978 and has been on death row since then.

California has executed 13 inmates since the death penalty was reinstated in 1976, and the last execution was in 1989.

The state has one of the highest death row populations in the country, with nearly 700 inmates on death row.

If the Supreme Court upholds the state's decision, Baker will be the first inmate executed in California since 1989.

The ruling comes as California and other states are facing criticism for their use of the death penalty.

California's death row population has more than doubled since the death penalty was reinstated, and the state has executed less than 20% of the inmates on death row.

The state's Supreme Court has also faced criticism for its role in the death penalty debate, with some arguing that the court has been too lenient in ruling on death penalty cases.

The state's death penalty has been controversial for decades, with some arguing that it is too expensive and that it does not deter crime.

California's death penalty has been challenged in several high-profile cases, including that of核准纳米技术的死刑犯丹尼尔·巴克。

Yoko releases complete Ono

Jeff Nathan

The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Yoko Ono, who hasn't released a single since the late 1970s, has ordered an array of collection of one-month duets, most of which she has written for her husband John Lennon since his death in 1980. The projects include new songs and the release of previously unheard duets.

"I'm now exploring new territories," Ono said in a statement. "I would like to share these duets with the world and would like to share them with everyone."

The collection includes the following projects:

* "Imagine: The John Lennon/ Yoko Ono Duets" - This project includes 20 previously unheard duets performed by Lennon and Ono, along with interviews and commentary.
* "Lost Lennon/Ono: The John Lennon/ Yoko Ono Diaries" - This project includes previously unheard diaries written by Lennon and Ono, along with interviews and commentary.
* "Lennon/Ono: The John Lennon/ Yoko Ono Letters" - This project includes previously unheard letters written by Lennon and Ono, along with interviews and commentary.
* "Lennon/Ono: The John Lennon/ Yoko Ono Tapes" - This project includes previously unheard tapes recorded by Lennon and Ono, along with interviews and commentary.
* "Lennon/Ono: The John Lennon/ Yoko Ono Videos" - This project includes previously unheard videos recorded by Lennon and Ono, along with interviews and commentary.

The projects will be available for download and streaming on various platforms, including Apple Music, Spotify, and Tidal. The projects will also be available for purchase as physical CDs and vinyl records.

Ono said in the statement, "I am excited to share these duets with the world and would like to share them with everyone. I hope that these projects will inspire people to create their own duets and to share them with the world."

The projects will be released on the 50th anniversary of the John Lennon birthday in October 2020.

Annie"/Disney Buys "Newsies"

By KARL STOECKEL

TUESDAY, April 22

Disney is acquiring the rights to a forthcoming stage musical based on the popular 1992 movie "Newsies," a musical about newspaperboys who strike against their employers in 19th-century New York City.

Disney+, its streaming service, announced on Friday that it will produce "Newsies," which is based on the Broadway musical of the same name. The production will be directed by Disney veteran Marc Shaiman, who has worked on several other Disney productions, including "Mary Poppins Returns" and "Beauty and the Beast." The musical is set to premiere in 2023.

"Newsies" is a story about young newsboys who strike against their employers for better working conditions and pay. The show has received critical acclaim for its music, choreography, and performances.

Disney purchased the rights to "Newsies" from the original creators of the stage musical, Tom Kitt and Jeff Whitty, who will serve as producers on the Disney+ version. The production will be directed by Thomas Kail, who recently directed "Hamilton" on Broadway.

"Newsies" is the latest in a string of Broadway spectacles that Disney has bought rights to in recent years, including "Aladdin," "The Lion King," and "Hamilton." Disney has been expanding its reach into the world of live-action musicals, and "Newsies" is expected to be a major addition to its roster.

DANCE REVIEW

Graduate thesis dance concert passes with highest honors

By MERRIL SEEL

The University of Iowa’s Graduate School of Dance presented its annual thesis dance concert on Friday, April 17, at the Little Dance Hall. The concert featured works by 10 graduate students, all of whom are working toward their master’s degrees in dance.

The concert was divided into two sections: the first was a showcase of student choreographers, and the second was a collaborative work by the entire program. The first section included works by students from across the country, including works from Iowa, Illinois, and California.

The collaborative work was a site-specific piece created in collaboration with the University of Iowa’s Department of Architecture. The piece was set in the Little Dance Hall and featured performers from the University of Iowa’s Department of Dance and the Department of Architecture.

The concert was well-received by the audience, who praised the students for their creativity and innovation. The concert was a success, and the students were invited to perform at the University of Iowa’s Spring Dance Festival on April 23.

THEATER REVIEW

"Uncharted Territory" goes where one woman has gone

By TARA ROBINSON

"Uncharted Territory," a new play by UI graduate Jackie Gallagher, is currently playing at the University of Iowa’s Dinner Theatre. The play tells the story of a young woman who embarks on a journey to find her mother, who disappeared several years ago.

The play is directed by UI Professor Marissa McKenzie, and cast includes UI students Liza Birt, Jackie Gallagher, and Elizabeth O’Brien.

The play is set in a small town, and follows Gallagher’s character as she navigates the challenges of searching for her mother and dealing with the emotional aftermath of her disappearance.

The play is a powerful and moving exploration of the themes of loss, search, and family. It is a must-see for anyone interested in exploring the complexities of family relationships and the human condition.

Cilia Anderson's film "Ferngully" is a visually captivating tale that delves into the rich tapestry of nature and its inhabitants. The film follows the story of a young girl named "Squirt," who discovers a magical forest filled with creatures that are in danger of being destroyed by a greedy corporation. "Ferngully" not only entertains with its vibrant animation and enchanting music but also carries a powerful message about the importance of preserving the natural world.

The film is directed by Mark A. D. Young, who has also been involved in the production of other films such as "The NeverEnding Story" and "The Goonies." With "Ferngully," he brings to life a world where nature is portrayed as a living, breathing entity that needs protection.

"Ferngully" is a film that appeals to both children and adults alike, offering a story that is both entertaining and thought-provoking. It has been praised for its beautiful animation, catchy music, and its ability to convey important environmental messages.

In conclusion, "Ferngully" is a film that should not be missed, especially for those who appreciate nature and the importance of protecting it. With its captivating visuals and compelling narrative, it is a must-see for all ages.

Both had times that were less than half of the standings in the first women's race in 1997.

Rubash, 30, of Long Beach, Calif., held her lead from start to finish in the 26.2-mile (42.1 km) course, winning with a time of 2:25:36.3 to win her third consecutive victory.

"It’s a pleasure to see this amount of runners up at the half-marathon mark because it was just 10 days ago that I won this race and was actually physically removed from the pool.pursuit," Rubash said.

C Brunner, 27, of Denmark, finished second in the women’s race at 1:58:21 followed by Ann Avis, 25, of Albergarpor, M.D., who held on to win the finish line by 1.214 miles.

RODGERS: Draft-watching this spring

But according to Rodgers, who has only one selection with a No. 1 selection with April 21 deadline for 22nd outstanding in their heads.

Rodgers may have earned some of the upcoming NCAA draft, but the NFL draft will interest him as well, as his son could get a call next month.

The pride father thinks Matt's accomplishments as a肪hlete stand behind him.

"It has done everything that he has done, and what I have done," Rodgers said. "He has held on to his dreams and followed his heart to get him a chance to go as far as I have a boy has a great degree and confidence that he can do it."

The older Rodgers is excited about the draft, but he can’t help but remember Matt's last two years as a Hawkeye.

"It has been a draft not only for the Iowa Hawkeyes, but that was the only one he and I have, but more so because he had a chance. He had been a start to go back and see again and be a part of that entire sequence."

Although Rodgers may have earned an opportunity to follow his son on this important two years, he said he was saddened the Kirkland Stadnigaa season is over.

"I wish we could have gone to the Super Bowl, but it has been a tough year for us to finish on the last two years."

ROCKET POINTS

Finger-pointing starts for Houston Rockets

Michael A. Lutz

"Rocket's decision to finger-point at the Los Angeles Lakers before Game 4 on Friday was not a new tactic for the franchise," says Lutz.

The Rockets have a long history of finger-pointing, dating back to their days in San Diego. In 1968, the Rockets played the Lakers in the Western Conference finals, and the Rockets' finger-pointing strategy was born.

Lutz points to a specific incident in 1971, when the Rockets played the Lakers again in the Western Conference finals. In Game 5, the Lakers led by 13 points with just over three minutes left in the game. The Rockets had gone 10-0 since the Lakers last missed a shot, and the finger-pointing strategy was used.

"The Lakers thought they had the game won and started their victory celebration," Lutz says. "But instead of letting up, the Rockets came back to win the game."

Since then, the Rockets have used finger-pointing to great effect. In 1986, the Rockets used the strategy to win the NBA championship.

But Lutz admits that finger-pointing has had its downsides. In 1995, the Rockets finger-pointed at the Lakers, only to lose the game.

"We had no intention of losing," Lutz says. "But we were too focused on our finger-pointing strategy and didn't react well to the Lakers' defense.

"Since that game, we've been more careful about when and how we use the strategy," Lutz adds.

"Rocket's decision to finger-point at the Los Angeles Lakers before Game 4 on Friday was not a new tactic for the franchise," says Lutz.

The Rockets have a long history of finger-pointing, dating back to their days in San Diego. In 1968, the Rockets played the Lakers in the Western Conference finals, and the Rockets' finger-pointing strategy was born.

Lutz points to a specific incident in 1971, when the Rockets played the Lakers again in the Western Conference finals. In Game 5, the Lakers led by 13 points with just over three minutes left in the game. The Rockets had gone 10-0 since the Lakers last missed a shot, and the finger-pointing strategy was used.
