Earthquake, 2 aftershocks shake coastal upper residents

David Morris Associated Press

SCOTIA, Calif. — A pair of powerful aftershocks Sunday followed a major earthquake along California’s historic Tielman Fault, triggering off fires and loss of more destructive actions at the same time.

The National Guard trained in disaster management to help protect victims in the rugged, mountainous region of remote rural areas and make mobile shelters.

People boarded up broken windows and scattered belongings outdoors from their foundations as the shaking continued Sunday. A free break out following an aftermath.

There were thousands of people, who was chased away from their homes, caused a collapse. It was expected to remain closed for several days.

Iowa-Illinois requests rise in utility rates

Jim Yates Daily Iowan

Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company has asked to be considered for a 3.8 percent increase in utility rates. If approved, the increase, which would go into effect Aug. 3, would mean Iowa-Illinois customers in the area would be charged 12.8 percent more for their utility bills. If approved, the increase would mean customers would pay an additional $18.44 a month.

John B. Morris, Iowa-Illinois has said the board to approve a 9.4 percent increase for the company’s Iowa-Illinois customers.

The company has not increased its rates since 1985 or gas rates since 1984.

UI’s ability to produce power may limit impact of increase

Jim Yates

The proposed Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Co.’s rate increases may have some customers worried, but UI officials say the university, which can produce its own power, will be able to limit its impact on its customers.

Gerry Bleckwenn, director of UI Utilities, said Monday that the university has not had a major increase in utility rates for the last 10 years.

"We’re very pleased with the rate increase," Bleckwenn said. "It’s been a long time since we’ve had a major rate increase."
The Daily Iowan

Parents, teen-agers discuss life goals, communication

William Pepper

Approximately 100 parents and teen-agers took part in the Third Annual Parent-Teen Chat, held at First National Bank, Northeast in Iowa City. The meeting featured a presentation and question-and-answer session by UI Associate Professor of Psychology, Dr. Stuart Trippier, who leads the teen-agers program in the department of public health.

Trippier said parents should know their children's friends, be empathetic, and avoid discussing philosophy. He said parents should discuss philosophy with their children, but should not discuss it with their friends.

If "an athlete is reaching the right time," he said, "the child will let us know it." He also said that parents and children should be involved in the discussion and education of the child. He added that the child is "the best source" of information about the child's friends and activities.

Participants in the fourth annual Wheelchair Challenge will be given a hands-on opportunity Wednesday in experiences the challenges that people with disabilities face daily.

"The project is designed to help get people to think about what it means to be disabled, and what it means to live with disabilities," said Dr. Dave Trippier.

In one small-group setting, the participants will be given a detailed explanation of the experiences that people with disabilities face daily.

"We want to make people aware of the challenges that people with disabilities face daily," said Trippier.

The workshop will be held at 7:00 p.m. at the IMU.

More information is available by calling 335-8555.

Remembering the past, honoring a young girl

It is possible, just possible, that there could be a world adrift out of control. This thought occurs to me as I walk the streets of Amsterdam. I am in one of several families of the Jewish people who have been living in this city for hundreds of years, either as refugees or as immigrants. This city, my home, has been a haven for us, a place where we can be free to worship, to learn, to create, and to thrive.

Imagine that you are walking in the streets of Amsterdam. You see a young girl, about the age of 13, standing in front of you. She is wearing a simple dress, and her feet are bare. She is looking at you, and you can see the pain in her eyes. She is asking for help, but you cannot hear her. She is asking for protection, but you cannot protect her. You feel helpless, and you wonder why you cannot help her.

Imagine that you are told by a police officer that the girl has been kidnapped and is being held in a secret location. You are told that you must go to the police station and report the kidnapping. You do not know where to go, and you feel lost.

Imagine that you are taken to the police station and questioned by the police. They want to know why you are helping the girl. They want to know why you are not helping her. They want to know why you are not doing anything.

Imagine that you are told by the police that the girl has been sold to a trafficker. They want to know where the girl is, and they want to know how they can help her.

Rebels continue struggle for power in capital

Thomas Ginsburg
Associated Press

AFGHANISTAN - Rebels who battled the powerful mujahedeen movement were still fighting for power in the capital city of Kabul.

The Red Cross said 190 people died in three days of fighting in Kabul. The capital has been the scene of much violence since the Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan in February.

"There are many casualties," a spokesman for the Red Cross said. "We expect the figure to increase in the coming days."

The Red Cross said it was providing medical aid to the victims.

The fighting in Kabul comes as the U.S. and other nations are pushing for a peaceful solution to the war in Afghanistan.

The Red Cross said it was providing medical aid to the victims.

In other developments:

- The United Nations said it was providing food aid to 2.5 million people in Afghanistan.
- The U.S. said it was providing economic assistance to the Afghan government.
- The European Union said it was providing humanitarian aid to the Afghan people.

BATTLE OF THE BANDS

The America Free Paranoia Network

George W. Bush and Al Gore may have fought for the presidency, but for the citizens of the United States, the real battle was fought on the stage at RiverFest. The Battle of the Bands was a fierce competition between two rival bands, the Marauders and the Primus, vying for the title of the most outrageous and distinctive act. The audience was left breathless as both bands showcased their talents, each trying to outdo the other with their unique performances.

The Marauders

The Marauders were the first band to take the stage, and they certainly did not disappoint. Their performance was a combination of punk rock and experimental music, incorporating elements of electronic and industrial sounds. The band's leader, a charismatic figure in a baggy chino draped around his neck, commanded the crowd with his intense gaze and commanding presence. Their set included a medley of songs, ranging from aggressive punk numbers to more experimental pieces, all performed with precision and energy. The Marauders' lead singer, a protuberant figure, stood out with his unique style, and the audience was left captivated by his performance.

The Primus

The Primus took the stage next, and their performance was equally impressive. The band's leader, a figure in a baggy chino draped around his neck, commanded the crowd with his intense gaze and commanding presence. Their set included a medley of songs, ranging from aggressive punk numbers to more experimental pieces, all performed with precision and energy. The Primus' lead singer, a protuberant figure, stood out with his unique style, and the audience was left captivated by his performance.

The crowd went wild as the two bands battled it out for the title of the most outrageous and distinctive act. The Marauders emerged as the victors, their performance leaving the audience breathless. The Primus,虽然在某些方面可能更具挑战性，但最终败下阵来，为这场精彩绝伦的对决画上了一个完美的句号。

The America Free Paranoia Network

The America Free Paranoia Network is known for its unbridled creativity and its ability to push the boundaries of conventional music. The network's mission is to promote and support artists who challenge the status quo and offer new perspectives on the world. The Battle of the Bands was a perfect example of this ethos, as both bands showcased their unique styles and left the audience spellbound with their performances.
Hawkeyes swing way to second place finish

Tired Schuman helps finish off Purdue

Dr. Shawd Schuman was tired and put his head down after Saturday's third round of the NCAA Men's Golf Tournament at the University of Iowa's Finkbine Golf Course. Dr. Schuman, a native of Des Moines, Iowa, is a member of the Men's Golf Team and has been a member of the Iowa State University Men's Golf Team for the past three years.

Schuman finished with a 78 on the day, and his total for the tournament was 222, which placed him in second place after two rounds. The second round was his best, with a 72, and he finished with a 3-over-par 75 in the final round.

Schuman said, "I'm really tired. I've been playing for a long time, and I'm just out of gas. I've got to try to make the cut, but it's going to be tough."

The Hawkeyes finished in second place with a team score of 213, just one stroke behind the top-ranked team, Texas A&M. The team consisted of Schuman, Steve McCarty, Jack Collins, and Scott Nagorie.

"I'm really tired," Schuman admitted. "I've been playing for a long time, and I'm just out of gas. I've got to try to make the cut, but it's going to be tough.

The Hawkeyes were the first team to finish in the second round, and they were able to secure their second place finish with a strong performance in the final round. Schuman's total of 222 is the lowest score for a second round in the NCAA Men's Golf Tournament.

Dr. Schuman's performance in the NCAA Men's Golf Tournament is a testament to his dedication and hard work, as well as the support and guidance of his team and coaches. His tireless efforts have earned him the respect and admiration of his fellow athletes and fans alike.

The Hawkeyes will now move on to the next round of the tournament, where they will face the top-ranked team, Texas A&M, in the quarterfinals. The outcome of this match will determine whether or not they advance to the semifinals and ultimately the championship. The Hawkeyes will need to play at their best in order to have a chance of securing a spot in the championship, and Schuman's performance in the second round is a positive sign of their potential.

In conclusion, Dr. Shawd Schuman's performance in the NCAA Men's Golf Tournament is a credit to his hard work and dedication, as well as to the support and guidance of his team and coaches. His tireless efforts have earned him the respect and admiration of his fellow athletes and fans alike. Backlund ‘awesome’ as Hawkeyes split

Eric Welland
Daily Iowan

'A brilliant performance by John Backlund,' the first-place and a four-run first inning in the his first game ever for a four-game series with Ohio State Thursday. The Hawks, in their fourth conference outing, defeated the Buckeyes 8-3 on the road in Columbus, Ohio, Saturday before losing 3-2 in the sixth. Ohio State took Tuesday's opener 9-3 and dropped the second game 7-4 Iowa.

The league race is shaping up, with Ohio State in first, followed by Michigan State, Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa. The Spartans and the Hawkeyes, however, have two games left to play and the Fighting Illini have three, making their Big Ten doubleheaders a must-win situation if they want to stay in the race.

The Hawkeyes, who are currently in their first season under head coach Kirk Ferentz, are looking to improve on their 7-2 overall record and 1-2 conference record. Ohio State, on the other hand, is currently in second place with a 7-3 overall record and 2-2 conference record.

Iowa Baseball

Josh Nanda Daily Iowan

For a group of athletes that had just seen their 10-game winning streak come to an end, the Iowa baseball team looked like it was ready to change the momentum of its season.

The Hawkeyes took on the Scarlet Knights of Rutgers in the Big Ten Tournament and had something to say about it.

The Scarlet Knights had just clinched the top of the Big Ten standings and had something to say about it.

"We're ready to go," said Iowa's head coach Rick Heller. "We're ready to play." It was just the kind of effort we needed to see.

"Iowa showed why they've been in the Top 25 for the last 21 years," said Rutgers' head coach Joe Gabbi. "We're ready to play in the Big Ten Tournament."
