$300,000 donated for business building

Narrom Bank Iowa, N.A., has donated $300,000 to the University Foundation to construct a new $15 million business building.

The gift is designated for use of the new business administration building, which will house business administration offices and classrooms.

The building's office suite will be named in honor of Narrom, Iowa, the company's home town.

Narrom has been involved in the University's business administration programs since 1909 and its first giving to the University was made in 1938 through a gift of $10,000 to the small gift fund from the bank's annual profit.

Drug surveillance flights over Perss suspended

The United States is suspending drug surveillance flights over the Persian Gulf region.

The suspension of the flights comes in the wake of an attack on one of the planes in which a crew member was killed and another wounded.

The Persian Gulf war has been ongoing for 10 months and has caused great concern among the United States and its allies.

Press Release

The drug surveillance flights were launched in 1990 to monitor the black market trade in drugs.

Rawlings: Budget troubles have stunted recent growth

Anita Rawlings

Most of the progress the UI has made in faculty appointments over the past year has been reduced or eliminated because the budget cuts that have plagued the university during this year, UI President Rawlings Hunt said Monday.

Gould said that because the university has been forced to make severe cuts in faculty appointments over the past year, it has been unable to maintain the gains made in faculty appointments.

"That really has been a loss for us," she said.

"Our officials expressed concern after the attack and the Pentagon released a statement saying they would be increasing their vigilance.

The suspension of further flights was announced shortly by the Department of Defense.

Moscow medical workers strike

A Moscow hospital - one of the largest in the city - declared a 48-hour doctors' strike on Tuesday following stipulations by the government that doctors must sign a contract agreeing to work 10 hours a day.

The strike lasted several hours and then the government decided to withdraw the contract.

The strike, which is the largest of its kind in Moscow in recent years, has been called a "red flag for the country" because it is associated with the proposed cuts in health care.

But neither the government nor the medical workers have given in.

Hydraulic researchers at UI help Tokyo cope with ‘urban storm’

Yoko Matsuo
Special to the Daily Iowan

Tokyo has virtually returned to normal, seeking to find a way to prevent such a disaster from occurring again. The city has moved towards implementing a variety of flood control measures and systems to mitigate the effects of future urban storms.

Researchers at the University of Iowa have been involved in a project to help Tokyo address its urban storm challenges. This project aims to transfer knowledge and expertise from the University of Iowa to the Tokyo Metropolitan Government, enhancing the city's flood management capabilities.

The University of Iowa’s research focuses on developing innovative solutions for managing urban stormwater. This includes the study of vortex flow dynamics and the development of advanced drop structures. The project is centered on improving flood control strategies and enhancing the urban infrastructure to mitigate the impacts of heavy rainfall.

The collaboration between the researchers at the University of Iowa and their counterparts in Tokyo represents a significant step towards sharing best practices and promoting sustainable urban flood management practices worldwide.

Senior hopes to shine at pageant

John P. Waterhouse
Daily Iowan

Prior to competing in two Iowa college pageants, a sophomore at the University of Iowa, Amanda Masen, is a potential candidate for a senior at the University of Iowa. Her academic focus lies in environmental science, and she is a member of the environmental science research group. Amanda Masen's passion for the environment drives her to seek opportunities to advocate for sustainability measures.

Amanda Masen is a dedicated member of the university's environmental science research group, working tirelessly to promote awareness and encourage others to embrace environmental conservation. Her commitment to sustainability is evident in her pursuit of academic excellence and active participation in extracurricular activities that align with her interests.

The University of Iowa provides a vibrant community of scholars committed to environmental stewardship, offering Amanda Masen numerous opportunities to engage in meaningful research projects and advocacy efforts. As she prepares for her university pageant, Amanda Masen's strength lies in her ability to advocate for the importance of environmental conservation and encourage others to join her in this noble cause.

MARCH OF DIMS

Residents to walk for fund-raiser

Brad Hulse
Daily Torch

In an attempt to raise money for the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation, a Torch fund-raiser will be held on its 60th annual March of Dimes Iowa City Walk.

The walk, scheduled for Saturday, will begin at Indian Creek Mall, 1631 SE 27th St., and finish at St. Ambrose University.

The March of Dimes Iowa City chapter said the walk is a fun way to help the organization.

"It is such a fun event. Rain or shine, we always have a good time," Director Sharron Dobson said in the walk's press release.

Dobson said they try to plan events that are fun. They put teams for the walk together, and each team raises money individually. Money raised in this way provides a gift to families who have a child with a birth defect.

The Torch said they have already signed up 15 teams, and more are expected to join in. The Torch said they have had more than 200 people participate in the last couple of years. But the Torch said they still haven't reached their goal.

"We haven't had our last collection day, but we have made it up to their last year. But if that's what is, we can't change much," Director Sharron Dobson said. "We are just looking forward to more money.

The Torch said they have already raised $5 million before this year's walk.

The Torch said they hope to raise $5 million before the end of this year's walk.

Dobson attributed the success of the event to the fun involved in participation and the fact that all proceeds go to the March of Dimes.

"It is such a fun day. Rain or shine, we always have a lot of fun," Director Sharron Dobson said. "We can't be any happier."

Iowa City, Dobson added partici-ipation in the event has increased every year. So the Torch said they plan to continue this year.

"It is such a fun day. We can't wait to do it again," Director Sharron Dobson said. "It is such a fun day. Rain or shine, we always have a lot of fun."

Drivers' antics worry IC residents

James L. Whitley

Traffic problems in Lexington Avenue upset their concerns about drunk drivers and the噪音 that has prompted area residents to request a doughnut shop on the residential street.

"Lexington Avenue is a dead-end street," said Barstead, who lives on the street. "We are the closest line, but from around the normal hour of 10 p.m., there will be a lot of vehicles moving down Lexington Avenue," said Barstead. "There are those who aren't parking, and there are those who aren't doing anything else on the street, but the traffic is moving down the road until it is 10 p.m."

The intersection at the end of the street is not a traffic light, so there is no real way to control the traffic. The city has considered installing a traffic light, but the cost is prohibitive. Guerrillas disregard cease-fire

Arthur Maran
Associated Press

KAMPALA, Uganda - Two main factions of guerrillas now fighting in southern Uganda have rejected a cease-fire agreement that is supposed to have been in effect since last Monday.

An Afghan family fled the area Monday while fighting raged, said an official of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees.

Guerrilla "was supported more moderate factions but were in conflict with two main factions of guerrillas called the National Resistance Army (NRA) and the United Uganda People's National Army (UPNA) which are also supported because they fought for control of the Ugandan capital."

"This idea is to choose leaders to make the council, which publishes an independent report that regulates banks and savings institutions.

"Payment of bonuses to selected individuals based on merit is a laudable management practice, but one eligible is only a subterfuge for giving eligibility to the Association of Federal Credit Unions it regulates.

"The bonuses, paid last year by the National Credit Union Administration, are a haven for many of President Najibullah's fights in the north, and the National Credit Union Administration, according to NCUA, is the lowest paid among the five main agencies."

"It is not known if there are two main agencies or only one, but the payments are made to the union trade organization.

$51 million in damage estimated

BOCA Raton, Calif. — Firefighters tackled a three-alarm fire in a high-rise condominium complex in Boca Raton on Monday afternoon, leaving one person dead, authorities said.

The fire, which consumed the entire 21-story complex, 121 stories, was discovered about 2 p.m. when a security guard alerted authorities to the blaze.

The fire started on the 20th floor and rapidly spread to the other floors in the building, causing major damage.

A 10-year-old girl was found dead on the 21st floor. The cause of death has not been released.

An elderly woman was rescued from the 11th floor and several others were rescued from the 12th floor. The elderly woman died on the way to the hospital. Of the remaining deceased, two were pronounced dead on the way to the hospital.

At least 20 people were injured, according to an initial survey of the fire.

The Red Cross, which had opened a shelter for people in the area, said it had received reports of 500 people displaced by the blaze and 500 others were treated by doctors.

An eyewitness said the fire had started in the kitchen and spread to the rest of the building.

No arrests were made during the investigation, according to information released early Monday morning.

The fire, which started in the kitchen and spread to the rest of the building, was contained to the 21st floor and the firemen were able to control the blaze.

A man who was rescued from the 11th floor said he was trapped in the building for about 20 minutes before being rescued.

"Without water and electricity, I'm not sure who would have lived," said the man, who did not wish to be identified.

"I'm just glad I'm alive," he said.
