Harris, who received a maximum sentence of 30 years' imprisonment, was convicted on the willful injury counts for a May 2 shooting.

Zywicki family opts for private funeral

EVESHAM TOWNSHIP, N.J. — The family of Tammy Zywicki, the Grinnell College student whose body was found along a highway in Missouri, asked this weekend that they be allowed to attend her funeral in private.

In a statement from the family released by township police, the family said, "Anyone who would like to express their concern for the family may attend a Mass which will be held at the same time as private services."

The public Mass is scheduled for 10 a.m. Tuesday at the St. John Neumann Catholic Church. The family will have services at the same time at another location, Lt. Jonathan Wainwright said.

Grinnell College in Iowa, where Zywicki, 21, was a student, is to have a service simultaneously at the school's Herrick Chapel. Classes will be canceled during the service.

Meanwhile, authorities continue a nationwide search for the killer, focusing on the driver of a white tractor-trailer truck who apparently was among the last people to see the woman alive.

Authorities identified Zywicki, of the township's Marlton section, Thursday as the victim of an apparent stabbing. She is survived by her parents, JoAnne and Hank Zywicki, and three brothers.

Missing purse returned — 46 years later

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP) — By the time a missing purse was returned to Evelyn Betts, her driver's license had expired, her name had changed and she had moved several times.

A lot can happen in 46 years. Betts, 65, said she lost the purse at a dinner club in Grand Island where she and her future husband had dinner in August 1946.

It turned up Thursday, delivered by mail to Herman Plumbing in Grand Island. Herman was Betts' maiden name and the sender may have thought there was a connection.

In addition to her old license, Betts said the purse still contained her Social Security card, a pair of white gloves, two tubes of lipstick, letters from her mother and friends, family pictures and $1.75 in change.

Payne works on rebuilding physics department

Anne Johnston
The Daily Iowan

In the aftermath of last year's Nov. 1 shootings, the UI Department of Physics and Astronomy has been focusing on rebuilding its renown research program, and heading up the effort has been Professor Gerald Payne, who was officially named chairman of the department last month.

Payne became acting chairman of the department on Nov. 5 last year, four days after a shooting spree claimed the lives of department Chairman Dwight Nicholson, Professors Christoph Goertz and Robert Smith, and graduate student Linhua Shan.

Payne, who first came to the UI in 1969, said his primary objective during the past 10 months has been to work with others in the physics department in recruiting new faculty members and strengthening the department.

Although recruiting new faculty members is a long-term process, Payne said the department is in the final negotiation stages with a person for one of the two theory positions open, and is getting ready to begin the search for the second. An experimental position is expected to be approved by the UI administration soon.

In the meantime, Payne said two visiting professors have been hired to teach in the department, and existing faculty has taken on added responsibilities.

"It's really been a team effort," he said. "Everybody's working together to rebuild the department, which makes my job a lot easier."

Support from the university has been extremely helpful as well, Payne added.

"Certainly we've been doing the bulk of the work, but we could not have done it without the support of the administration," he said.

Payne said the shootings brought what was already a closely knit department even closer together.

"You don't just go out and replace people and start running your life again the way it was. There's a healing process that goes on," he said. "You've suffered a tragic loss of people — professional colleagues you worked with who were also your very close friends."

Although the responsibilities of department chairman haven't left him with much time to devote to his research in the fields of theoretical nuclear physics and theoretical plasma physics, Payne is teaching an upper-level course in the department called "Statistical Physics" this semester.

"I happen to think that physics is fun and interesting, and if I'm able to convey that to students, that's a rewarding experience," he said.

Payne has also recently been busy poring over carpet and wallpaper samples for a room being renovated on the second floor of Van Allen Hall. The room will serve as a memorial meeting room in honor of the shooting victims.

"It's supposed to be a pleasant room dedicated to the people who were killed, and that's why I want to make it as nice as possible," Payne said.

The room was suggested by a support group formed after the shootings, and is being paid for by contributions to memorial funds and additional funding from the university.

Payne said he's hoping to have it ready in time for the department to hold a dedication ceremony Friday, Oct. 30.

Candidates compete to claim legacy of Truman

Jill Lawrence
Associated Press

George Bush and Bill Clinton opened their fall campaigns Monday promising prosperity and fighting to claim Harry Truman's legacy of plain talk and presidential leadership.

Presenting voters in key Midwestern states with what Democrat Clinton described as "the clearest choice in a generation," each man offered himself as the best hope for the future and derided the other's claims of common ground with Truman.

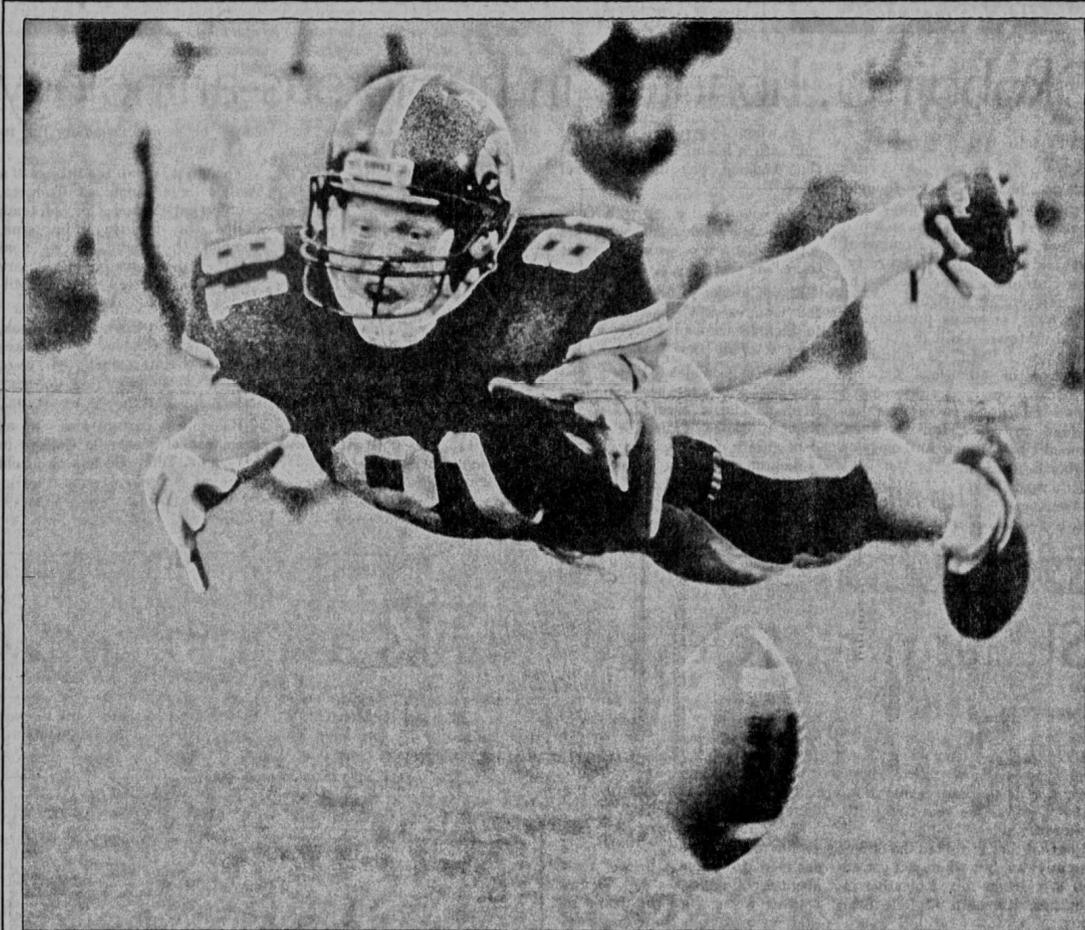

The traditional Labor Day campaign launch hardly seemed like a beginning. "I think the American people feel this one's been going on about 10 months too long," Bush told Republicans at a picnic in Waukesha, Wis.

The president paid tribute to "all who punch the time clock, pay the bills, sweat it out at tax time." And he said his top priority in a second term would be to build economic security for them.

Clinton, in Truman's home town of Independence, Mo., said Truman would "always be remembered as the working people's president" and pledged to match the opportunity, security and dignity he said the Democrat had given workers.

Government troops fire on marchers

BISHO, South Africa — Troops in the black homeland of Ciskei opened fire Monday on an African National Congress march against the region's military government, killing at least 24 people and injuring almost 200.

South Africa said it would send troops to Ciskei at the request of the homeland's pro-Pretoria government to guard important installations from possible retaliatory attacks. Homeland troops patrolled the capital, Bisho, and guarded the border, where ANC supporters staged a vigil late Monday.

Ciskei is one of several homelands formed by South Africa under apartheid to create separate nations for blacks. The homelands, dependent on South African aid, have been failures and most are dominated by authoritarian regimes. The homelands are expected to rejoin South Africa under a new constitution to share power with the black majority.

But the bloodbath in Ciskei threatened to plunge South Africa into a major crisis and block efforts to revive stalled talks between the ANC and the government on giving blacks the vote and ending apartheid.

The ANC — which considers the homelands vestiges of apartheid — said the killings could trigger an outbreak of popular anger.

Commission votes against ACT plan to close road

Lynn M. Tefft
The Daily Iowan

The American College Testing Program may have to alter expansion plans for its northeast Iowa City campus, following a vote by the Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission to recommend that the Iowa City City Council not close a portion of Old Dubuque Road where it crosses ACT property.

The commission voted unanimously for the recommendation following a public hearing on the subject at its regular meeting Thursday night. Area residents, ACT representatives and various area officials expressed their opinions about the possible closing, which has been the subject of debate at commission and council meetings over the past few months.

Many residents argue that they need the road for access to their homes and businesses, while ACT feels that traffic on the road would disrupt their campus. Efforts to negotiate special privileges for certain residents have proved unfruitful so far.

"It's simply a matter of good planning, to have another road in place before closing a good road," commission member Ann Bovbjerg said when asked why she voted against the closing.

"ACT can build without the closing," Bovbjerg said. "I think they're a good company, but there just was no road in place as an alternative."

Joe Pugh, ACT's legal representative, said the corporation was "disappointed in the commission's decision, but not surprised."

Bovbjerg said the next step in deciding the road's fate will be a joint meeting of the City Council and commission, where commission members will be able to explain their choices and discuss pertinent information to prepare council members for their final vote on the matter.

Bovbjerg said that when presented with opinions from all sides, commission members had a difficult decision to make.

DYERSVILLE

Field of Dreams jubilee draws stars, crowds

Timothy Connors
The Daily Iowan

DYERSVILLE, Iowa — Organs roared. Bats cracked. The soothing scent of bratwursts and hot dogs filtered through the air as smoke from barbecues gently rolled over the dewy infield grass and into the outfield.

The citizens of Dyersville, along with a handful of celebrity guests and baseball greats, celebrated baseball and Labor Day weekend Sunday with a Field of Dreams parade downtown, and the Second Annual Upper Deck Field of Dreams Charity Game at the "Field of Dreams" movie site among the cornfields outside of the town.

The movie "Field of Dreams" was based on the novel "Shoeless Joe" by W.P. Kinsella, a former UI Writers' Workshop professor.

The parade and game were part of the Upper Deck Field of Dreams Weekend, which included a baseball fantasy camp, a drama workshop and a golf tournament.

The parade showcased locally campaigning politicians, Gov. Terry Branstad, local marching bands, sponsors, celebrity players and baseball legends. Thousands of spectators lined the Dyersville streets.

Most in the parade were content to wave and smile for photographers. Rock star and actor Meat Loaf, however, picked out onlookers who weren't waving back and blasted them. "Wave! Wave! A simple wave!" he shouted at one.

Tickets for the game were priced at $50 apiece as attendance was limited to 2,000 people. Proceeds from the game will be donated to the Make a Wish Foundation, Easter Seals and local charitable causes. Upper Deck, a California baseball card manufacturer, sponsored the event.

The celebrities on hand included Meat Loaf, former UI basketball player Bobby Hansen, Jonathan Silverman of "Weekend Update" fame, Kelsey Grammer of "Cheers," Corin Nemec of "Parker Lewis Can't Lose," Dana Ashbrook of "Twin Peaks," Rhonda Shear of "USA: Up All Night," "Studs" host Mark DeCarlo and "Saturday Night Live" original cast member Garrett Morris.

Meat Loaf's antics at the game made him a crowd favorite. He started it off with an emotional delivery of the national anthem, and then proceeded to be ejected from and reinstated into the game twice. At one point he stole second base and carried it to third. Later he tried a couple outs as umpire.

Kelsey Grammer, who plays the psychiatrist Frasier Crane on "Cheers," said he was enjoying his return visit to the event. "The people are great, warm, and friendly," he said.

Bobby Hansen, a member of the 1992 NBA champions Chicago Bulls, acknowledges the crowd Sunday night at the second annual Field of Dreams charity baseball game in Dyersville, Iowa.

Corin Nemec, who plays Parker Lewis, was sporting a shiner on his right eye. He said he was hit by a baseball while sitting on the bench at a workout the night before the game.

Reggie Jackson, Vida Blue, Bob Gibson, Ferguson Jenkins and Joe Rudi were part of the contingent of retired baseball players taking part.

"I always feel as though the Field of Dreams, the field here in Dyersville, is like America's little league ballpark," said Jackson.

The seven-inning contest pitted the Upper Deck All Stars, made up of celebrities, against the Upper Deck Heroes of Baseball. Despite a few rules bent in favor of the All Stars, the Heroes prevailed 10-3 behind two home-run clouts deep into the cornstalks by Hall of Fame pitcher Vida Blue.

HIGHER EDUCATION

Okoboji U. honored in humorous anthology

Sara Epstein
The Daily Iowan

Mark Ebersole always thought people in higher education took themselves too seriously, so when he heard about the somewhat mythical Okoboji University, where fun in life is one's degree, he was immediately intrigued.

Ebersole, emeritus president of Elizabethtown College in Elizabethtown, Penn., is editing a collection of humorous articles, cartoons, poems and stories about higher education, which he has decided to call "Hail to Thee, Okoboji U!: A Humor Anthology on Higher Education."

He'd read an article about Okoboji University in The Wall Street Journal, but it wasn't until earlier this year when Ebersole was playing golf with a friend that he realized that Okoboji was indeed a real place.

"My friend had a cap with 'Okoboji' on it so I asked him where he got it. Within two weeks I flew out there," he said.

Ebersole was so impressed with the "campus visit" that he decided to include Okoboji University in the title of his book.

"It was a good idea to include it—why not? All he teaches is humor," Ebersole said, referring to Herman Richter, Okoboji's director of student affairs.

Richter said he is flattered and thrilled to have Okoboji University included.

"Wow, what a shot for our university, the great lakes area and, frankly, the state of Iowa," Richter said. "It's Okoboji U.'s literary 'Field of Dreams.'"

Joining the ranks of President George Bush, Hayden Fry and Bruce Jenner, Ebersole was awarded an honorary degree from Okoboji University.

"It pales all my other degrees... Richter also made me a faculty member, but he believes in academic freedom, so if you don't want to teach, you don't have to. He gave me tenure too," Ebersole said.

The absence of an actual curriculum does not phase Richter.

"So what if there're no classes? We've got the people and a positive attitude, and everyone has a good time," he said. "It's where fun in life is your degree."

Though it has all the fittings of a real college, such as T-shirts, reunion parties and a football team called the Fighting Phantoms, Okoboji University has no real estate. "Administrative offices" are located in Richter's store in Milford, Iowa, near Lake Okoboji.

According to Ebersole, the book, set for an Oct. 1 release, "pokes fun at commencement exercises and at alumni affairs — it's particularly hard on college presidents."

Ebersole is currently serving as president of Maryville College in Maryville, Tenn. He has also held posts at Temple University, the Ford Foundation and Bucknell University.

EXPERIMENT

ISU farm recycles soft drinks as lamb chow

Roger Munns
Associated Press

DES MOINES — Arnold McClain's lambs don't know much about being part of the Pepsi generation, and if Coke is the real thing, it's news to them.

Not that they could tell the difference anyway, but when you get all your soft drinks mixed together in a bucket, it's hard to tell them apart.

"Root beer, different colas, strawberry pop, we just put 'em all in. After all the carbonation is settled out, you'd be surprised how similar they taste. Actually, it tasted pretty good," said McClain, the livestock supervisor at Iowa State University's research farm near Chariton.

Soft drinks for lambs? Not normally, but McClain discovered that gallons and gallons of colas were being discarded daily by a bottling company. He decided to see if the animals liked the stuff, and if so, whether it would help them grow.

The answer is, they did like it. Mostly. And it did help them grow, although not as fast as he hoped. But it was such a success that he'd like to try pigs next.

"I was excited to do it. Here's an example of an animal looking after somebody else's problems. Animals have come under the hit as of late for some problems that maybe aren't their own fault. Obviously when a cow stands in a river, there will be a little pollution." But fish do the same thing, he said.

McClain said he learned that a soft-drink company, which he declined to name, throws away about 1,800 gallons a day. There's nothing wrong with the drink, he said. Instead, something happened to the cans to make them unmarketable.

Throwing it down the drain wasn't the answer.

"The acid in the soft drinks was screwing up the sewer system, so they had to truck it somewhere else for disposal," he said.

Instead, they brought it to ISU's McNay Research Farm for several weeks last winter.

"A lamb on a fattening ratio needs 3,600 calories a day and normally gets that from corn. We thought if we could get them to drink 25 percent of that in pop, we could expect them to gain 25 percent faster, assuming they ate the same amount of corn," he said.

To gain 900 calories in soft drinks, a lamb would have to drink about a six-pack a day, since each can has about 160 to 200 calories.

McClain is looking for grant money to run the same experiment on pigs. Lambs and cattle have four stomachs, while pigs have one. "I have a suspicion that we might find this experiment would be even more useful in single-stomach animals," he said.

Disabled students find help, advocates at SPD

Anne Johnston
The Daily Iowan

Donna Chandler says that when she first became coordinator of UI Service for Persons with Disabilities in 1985, there were about 250 students registered with her office.

Today, the number has grown to 518, which Chandler said reflects a nationwide trend of increasing numbers of disabled students on campus.

"The number tends to grow every year. As soon as the doors are opened to them, they're going to college just like everyone else," Chandler said.

The growing population of students with disabilities at the UI has been accompanied by a greater awareness of the need to include them in everything that the university offers, Chandler added.

"Our goal is not to ensure equal outcomes. We can't do that, but we can at least try to assure an equal playing field," Chandler said.

In order to meet that goal, Chandler said SPD provides students with both physical and learning disabilities with a wide array of support services. Those services include counseling, alternative testing accommodations, academic aides, and assistive devices, as well as information and referral services.

Chandler said the staff at SPD treats every student as an individual.

"We assess with them what it is testing accommodations, academic disabilities, Chandler added. "They just have to let us know there's a problem, and then we will intervene and assist them," she said.

Often those students who need intervention with a professor are students with learning disabilities, him to University Counseling Service shortly after he first came to the UI in the fall of 1989.

Tests revealed that Lane has a learning disability involving a memory problem. He was later diagnosed as also having an anticipatory strain of attention deficit disorder, which Lane said causes him to become especially anxious over tests and papers.

Since his disability was diagnosed and he began utilizing the services of SPD, Lane said, "Everything has gone straight up." Last spring, he just missed making the Dean's List by a few hundredths of a point.

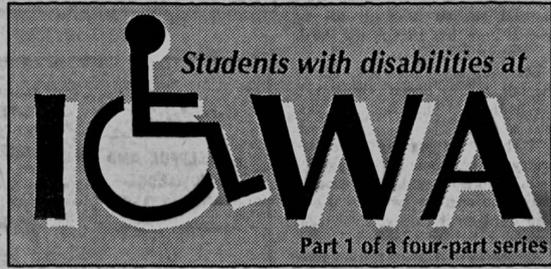

Lane said he usually stops in at the SPD office, located on the main floor of Burge Hall, once or twice a month.

The office helps make taped texts available to him, and also administers his tests, for which he requires extra time.

Chandler said SPD oversaw about 700 hours worth of proctored exams last semester.

Lane said he has encountered a "very positive, upbeat attitude" from the staff at SPD.

"They've been wonderful," he said.

they think they're going to need, and we make recommendations and refer them to various departments in the university that might meet those needs," she said.

SPD also works as an advocate for students who run into difficulties with professors who may not understand the nature of their

One of those students is history education major Adam Lane, whose learning disability went undiagnosed until SPD referred

FOREIGN RELATIONS COUNCIL

Rep. Leach addresses American values, ideals

Jude Sunderbruch
The Daily Iowan

Despite calls within the United States for fundamental and dramatic change at home, much of the world is moving to copy American ideas and structures, said Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, in an address Friday to the Iowa City Foreign Relations Council.

"At the very same moment in time that there is extraordinary self-doubt in the United States, there has never been a situation where America and American values have been more on a roll abroad," he said.

Amidst the dramatic changes in the world today Leach struck a cautionary note, saying that while a new world order has been declared and is under construction, it hasn't been defined or understood.

"If we really think it through, it could well be that this generation of people that live on the planet are really witnessing, standing on, or part of something that might be described as a hinge of history," Leach said.

The 1st District congressman continued by telling the audience gathered at the University Athletic Club that while the Soviet Union has collapsed and the Cold War may well be over, America must now win peace by ensuring that the former republics of the Soviet Union do not shy away from democracy as they face the challenge of establishing capitalist economies.

Drawing a comparison to the benevolent nature of American assistance to its defeated enemies at the end of World War II, Leach praised efforts by the international community to provide humanitarian aid and other assistance to the former USSR.

"There isn't anyone in the world that doesn't understand that generous treatment of the losers of World War II hasn't been a principal reason why we have had greater stability in the post-World War II era," he said.

In his remarks Leach discussed a variety of other international topics besides the easing of East-West relations. These ranged from the North American Free Trade Agreement to the need for caution in the United States' response to the conflict raging in the republics of the former Yugoslavia.

During a question-and-answer session after his speech, Leach said he agreed in principal with proposals for a standing U.N. military force and added he thought the United States should contribute more to U.N. peacekeeping forces.

Under Iowa's congressional redistricting plan, Leach would represent the Iowa City area if re-elected this fall. His democratic challenger, Jan Zonneveld, was invited but did not speak at the luncheon.

Campaign volunteers gear up for election

James Anderson
The Daily Iowan

For the next 56 days, political activists will work the phones, assemble yard signs and lick envelopes until the spearmint glue leaves an unpleasant taste in their mouths. The hub of this activity will be the campaign office.

Johnson County Democrats opened the doors to their campaign office at 328 S. Clinton St. last Thursday afternoon with hopes of enlisting an army of volunteers to help elect Democrats to county, state and federal offices on Nov. 3.

"Our goal is to talk to every Democrat and independent voter in person by election day," said Tom Carsner, chairman of the Johnson County Democratic Central Committee. "Then on election day get them to the polls."

Carsner said achieving that goal will be done as part of a "coordinated campaign" with the Iowa Democratic Party. The coordinated campaign will assist the Clinton/Gore campaign as well as all democratic candidates seeking elected office.

Another group of volunteers that will assist with activities at the newly opened Johnson County Democratic Party office will be volunteers from the UI Young Democrats.

"We will be working closely with both the Johnson County Democrats and the coordinated campaign," said UI Young Democrats President Pete Weber. "The main thrust will be getting out voters and registering 5,000 voters in Johnson County."

Weber also said that the UI Young Democrats will volunteer to staff the newly opened Johnson County Democratic Party office so that it can remain open "16 hours a day."

Johnson County Republican Central Committee Chairwoman Mary Jo Streb said Johnson County Republicans plan to open an office between the Wardway and Eagle stores on Iowa City's south side. A date for the office opening has not been determined.

"Our basic task is to get out the vote and assist the campaigns," said Streb. "As best we can we are also going to locate yards, donations and favorable voters."

Also involved in turning out Republican voters and assisting GOP campaigns will be the UI College Republicans.

"College Republicans will be involved directly with all the campaigns and working closely with the candidates," said Michael Clark, a UI political science and history major who is active in the organization.

College Republicans will be working with students at City High School and West High School in Iowa City for volunteer recruitment and getting those students who can vote this November to the polls, Clark added.

The final day to register to vote is Oct. 24.

Both the campaigns of President George Bush and Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton have opened their Iowa campaign offices in Des Moines in preparation for election day on Nov. 3.

"We will have a field director out of Iowa City, who will be part of the coordinated campaign effort for eastern Iowa," Camille Johnston, press secretary for the Clinton/Gore Iowa Campaign said.

Johnston also said that Clinton will make a campaign appearance in Indianola, Iowa, on Sept. 27 to speak at a Democratic fund-raising event sponsored by U.S. Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and state Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones, D-Iowa City, who is challenging Republican Charles Grassley for his seat in the U.S. Senate.

"Gov. Clinton has accepted the invitation to attend," said Johnston. "We have every intention of being there."

The scheduled Iowa visit will be Clinton's second to the state

SPECIAL PROGRAM

4 UI students set sail for Semester at Sea

Molly Spann
The Daily Iowan

To explore such places as Japan, India, Egypt, Ukraine and other exotic lands would be a distant dream for most students. But four UI students will not only visit these places this semester, but will also study on a ship while traveling to their various destinations.

This Saturday, the four UI students will join 506 students from colleges and universities across the U.S. in Vancouver, British Columbia, to depart on a 18,000-ton ship designed and equipped as a floating university.

The Semester at Sea program, which began in the early '60s, is an opportunity for students to get a different approach to the traditional travel-abroad programs, according to Paul Watson, the director of admissions at the Institute for Shipboard Education, which works in cooperation with the University of Pittsburgh.

"A lot of students aren't prepared to immerse themselves in one culture for a long time," Watson said. "With our system, they're immersed in multiple cultures, economic systems and political systems."

The chance to visit other countries was the main reason Julianne Morelli, a UI junior, decided on the Semester at Sea program.

"It's a great experience to see what other cultures are like," Morelli said. "It will broaden my horizons through a different way of learning."

Wendy Thoreson, a UI senior, decided on the program for many of the reasons Watson said Semester at Sea is designed.

"My older brother has done a lot of traveling. I wanted to travel, but I didn't really want to take a semester off from school," Thoreson said. "I thought about studying abroad, but I didn't know if I wanted to be stuck in one country, especially if I didn't like it. This was the perfect combination."

Since Thoreson is an anthropology major, she said the trip will help her to better understand other cultures, which will help enhance her knowledge of the field.

Thoreson will be taking anthropology classes on board the ship as part of her 12-hour course of study.

According to Morelli, all students aboard the ship are required to take 12 hours. All students on the ship will take a core course which will teach them what they need to know about cultures they will visit, she said.

On Saturday, Alex Lord, a UI senior, will be leaving on the ship along with Thoreson and Morelli.

As a history major, Lord said he has always been interested in other cultures and wanted to leave Iowa City for a semester, so Semester at Sea was a chance to satisfy both his desires.

"I'll be able to get some insight. At school it's different, you read a book and that's it," Lord said. "Here, I'll read the book and go to the places and learn about them at the same time."

Since travel packages are available to the students once they reach port, Lord said he will be visiting the Great Wall while in China and he will also venture to Israel, traveling on his own through Jerusalem for three or four days.

Thoreson will also take advantage of the travel packages. She plans to visit Beijing, China, and to tour the pyramids of Egypt.

Stays in ports will range from three to seven days, according to Watson. Students will have the opportunity to stay in families' homes, visit other universities and set their own course of travel.

According to Lord, teachers on board the ship will sometimes walk around with the students while in port, explaining cultural history of the countries as part of the study.

Altogether, about 50 days are spent at sea and 50 days are spent in port, Thoreson said.

Morelli said the first two weeks of the Semester at Sea program will be spent on the ship.

"My best friend's brother who went on the trip said about three-fourths of the people do get seasick at one time or another," Morelli said. "I'll probably get seasick, but they have a mini-hospital on board."

Besides being equipped with a hospital, the ship has 20 faculty members, closed-circuit television capability, a library, a theater, a student union and a cafeteria. Also on board is a swimming pool, basketball and volleyball courts and a weight room.

But even with all these things to do, Morelli and Lord said there are some things they'll miss about Iowa City.

"It's hard to leave school with football season and all of my friends here, but I think it's worth it," Morelli said.

Lord said he will miss Iowa City in the fall, but he doesn't think he'll get homesick. Thoreson, however, isn't so sure.

"I think the mailing system is pretty good, I know I'll at least get mail," Thoreson said. "I'll probably call home once or twice. A friend who went on it said you don't get homesick, but America-sick."

According to Watson, tuition, room and board, and passage cost $11,295. However, Watson added that considering this fee includes traveling the world and an education, the program is reasonable.

The credits received on the ship are through the University of Pittsburgh and are transferable.

The ship, which leaves Saturday, will return from the voyage on Dec. 22.

"We have such a narrow view of the world," Lord said. "We think we're the center of everything. We're going to find out that we're not the only country out there."

Attendance increases at annual AIDS conference

Mary Geraghty
The Daily Iowan

The increase in people concerned with the issues surrounding the AIDS epidemic was reflected at Friday's UI-sponsored AIDS conference, which had a surprise increase in participants over last year.

Approximately 325 health-care professionals gathered for "AIDS 1992: An Interdisciplinary Conference for Health Care Professionals." Last year's conference only drew 100 participants.

"People are coming to the conclusion that AIDS is not going away," said Bill Radl, educational coordinator for the UI Department of Internal Medicine and one of the conference organizers.

Participants came from all over Iowa and parts of Illinois, Missouri, Minnesota, Wisconsin and California to hear a series of lectures on topics ranging from AIDS education to AIDS and the role of the church.

"We sent out a mailing to all physicians, nurses, social workers, pharmacists, lawyers, and AIDS patients in Iowa and the counties bordering it," Radl said.

Ralph Knudson, assistant professor in the UI Department of Family Practice and conference coordinator said, "The goal is to provide a beginning look at HIV and to meet others also dealing with the problem." Knudson said he thinks one reason the attendance was higher this year was because of the effect AIDS has on people's professional lives.

Guest lecturer, Dr. James Rothenberger spoke to the group about the necessity of behavior change in combating the AIDS virus. Rothenberger directs the Midwest AIDS Training and Education Center at University of Minnesota, a group which also sponsored the conference.

Although AIDS education is only 11 years old, sexually transmitted diseases have been a problem for thousands of years, Rothenberger said, pointing to the problem of leprosy from biblical times as perhaps the earliest example.

"It is intriguing that we always tend to blame people, not behaviors," Rothenberger said of the general public's attitude toward the spread of the AIDS virus.

Rothenberger said that it is important that educational AIDS information be "specifically targeted at population groups" so that the message is on the same level as the receivers. He also said that simply providing information is not education — true education must be interactive.

Iowa's reapportionment planner arrested for drug possession, sale

Associated Press

DES MOINES — The man who drafted Iowa's reapportionment maps after both the 1980 and 1990 census has been charged with nine felony counts of delivery and possession of marijuana and LSD.

Gary Kaufman, 44, was arrested after a Thursday evening search of his Des Moines home. He was released from the Polk County Jail on Friday along with his roommate and another Des Moines man who were arrested on related charges.

An undisclosed amount of marijuana and LSD was seized, said authorities, who released few details about the case.

Kaufman, who earns $50,000 a year as a staffer for the Legislative Service Bureau, is accused of selling marijuana and LSD to an undercover state narcotics agent three times in the past two months.

Kaufman is a lawyer and former aerospace engineer who once worked for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. His political redistricting plans in 1981 and 1991 were approved by the Iowa Legislature.

President Nabyev resigns after detention at airport

Associated Press

DUSHANBE, Tajikistan — The hard-line Communist president, Rakhmon Nabyev, resigned Monday after armed anti-government militants stopped him at the airport and prevented him from leaving the Tajik capital.

Two presidential bodyguards were injured as Nabyev was detained.

Nabyev was the third president of a former Soviet republic to be toppled in the tumult following the 1991 collapse of the Soviet government. The Georgian and Azerbaijani presidents also were ousted amid civil strife.

The resignation came a week after armed opponents seized the presidential palace, forcing Nabyev into hiding and taking more than 40 hostages, who were later freed. Days later, Nabyev's Cabinet and leaders of the Supreme Soviet legislature approved a vote of no confidence in his government.

He faced growing opposition from a coalition of former Communists, the liberal Democratic Party, the Islamic Revival Party and Rastekhez, or Renewal, a nationalist people's front. They said he did not move fast enough to introduce political and religious freedoms and end civil strife.

Nabyev, 61, said that he decided to resign in order to end a civil war in the poorest former Soviet republic, a mostly Muslim country of 5.3 million people bordering China and Afghanistan.

Tajik television showed the white-haired Nabyev in the VIP lounge of Dushanbe airport, wearing a gray suit and brown tie and surrounded by 15 senior government and legislative leaders as he signed a document. He then said in a calm voice: "I'm submitting my resignation."

He passed his powers to Parliament speaker Akbarshah Iskandarov, in accordance with the constitution.

"Taking into account the political situation, and in order to stabilize it and stop the fratricidal war, I decided to relinquish my powers as president," he said. His statement was later broadcast on television throughout the Commonwealth of Independent States.

Nabyev also foreswore any "provocation or intrigues" in Tajik politics, the ITAR-Tass news agency reported.

The Cabinet voted to give Nabyev a pension along with the home in which he lives, and to provide bodyguards.

Nabyev and a group of lawmakers had gone to the Dushanbe airport to fly to his native Khuzhand, in northern Tajikistan, to meet with other pro-Nabyev lawmakers boycotting the legislature.

They were detained in the VIP lounge by militants who identified themselves as "the youth of Dushanbe," the group which last week occupied the palace and took officials hostage, Interfax said.

They released the last of the hostages on Thursday and left the complex without incident on Saturday.

A Dushanbe journalist who witnessed the scene said about 1,500 people surrounded the lounge. He said one of Nabyev's guards fired accidentally, and the militants fired back, wounding two presidential guards in the legs.

Four Russian tanks and two armored personnel carriers arrived at the airport during the incident, but did not intervene, the journalist said.

Nabyev, accompanied by about 30 armed guards, left the airport and went to a government villa in downtown Dushanbe, Iskandarov and acting Prime Minister Jamshed Karimov told a news conference.

The president has lost virtually his entire power base since he was elected by 60 percent of the vote in November 1991.

His appearance at Dushanbe's airport was the first time he had been seen in public since the presidential palace was seized Aug. 31.

In a telephone interview Sunday with The Associated Press, he accused Tajikistan's senior Muslim clergyman, Kazi Akbar Turadzhozoda, of staging an Islamic "coup" against his secular government.

BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA

Hospitals' resources cut short by shelling

John Pomfret

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — No one will ever know what kind of chances Alija Catic's baby might have had in peacetime. But in war, she's fighting for her life.

For two weeks, baby Adelaida, born prematurely at Sarajevo's main Kosevo hospital, has been in a ward with no water or electricity, in an incubator that sometimes runs short of oxygen.

Such shortages are becoming so serious that they relegated the crash of shells around the hospital on Monday to mere background noise. As winter approaches, they could bring Sarajevo to its knees.

"I'm not letting her die," Catic said of the tiny, wizened baby wrapped in cloth napkins in a maternity-ward room lit only by candles.

"She's had two crises, but both times she's made it through," said Catic. "I'm near her. I touch her. She can feel me. She's got to fight."

Catic, a nurse at Kosevo, gave birth Aug. 16. Her contractions began after a night of heavy shelling on her apartment building in the hard-hit Dobrinja suburb. A pickup truck driver braved shells and snipers to rush her to the hospital, where Adelaida was born nearly three months early.

Since then, the infant's weight has dropped from 32 ounces to 27 ounces. And the war raging outside for five months now is hardly helping her chances.

The Bosnian government claims that on Aug. 29, Serb militiamen cut Sarajevo's last available 2 megawatts of power — 1 percent of the city's normal prewar consumption. Since then, Adelaida has had to share an incubator.

Food shortages are a worry too, especially since the humanitarian airlift has been suspended after last week's crash of an Italian relief plane. In Geneva, Switzerland, a spokeswoman for the U.N. high commissioner for refugees, Sylvana Foa, said Monday that food stockpiles in Sarajevo could run out within three days.

Water has also become a weapon in the struggle for Sarajevo. Serb forces are accused of cutting power on Saturday to pumps serving the Bacevo reservoir, the city's biggest water supply. By Monday, water flowed again from some Sarajevo taps, but the main hospitals still went without.

Capt. Damien McKeown, a royal

British engineer trying to help restore the basic utilities, refused to lay blame for the shortages.

"If we did that, we wouldn't get anywhere," he said.

Crews escorted by U.N. peacekeepers have come under mortar fire during repair operations. On Saturday, 15 minutes after a switching station was repaired, it was shelled again.

Over the weekend, Ogrrevtrans, Sarajevo's biggest coal and wood supplier, sold the last stocks from its warehouse.

"If it stays empty, then all the forests around Sarajevo will disappear," said Ljucica Rehim, the company's 29-year-old general manager.

People already are cutting down trees in the city's once-beautiful parks and hillside woods, preparing for freezing winter weather.

Slobodan Primorac, a senior manager at Elektroprireda, Sarajevo's state-run power company, negotiated with the Serb side on Sunday.

Plane crash in Ill. leaves 12 dead

Michael Gougis

HINCKLEY, Ill. — A skydiving plane crashed and burned in a farm field Monday, killing all 12 aboard, authorities said.

The twin-engine Beechcraft B-18 went down shortly before 1 p.m. about one mile north of town, said the De Kalb County Sheriff's Department.

"There are no survivors," said department spokeswoman Jennifer Smith.

Rescue workers found the burned bodies of 12 males on the aircraft being used by the Hinckley Parachute Club, Sheriff Roger Scott said. There were parachutes aboard but there was no evidence any of the victims attempted to leave the plane, which crashed moments after takeoff, he said.

On the scene, the tail of the wrecked plane was visible above waist-high soybeans in the field. Dozens of emergency vehicles were in the field and rescue workers fanned out on foot to search for victims before Scott declared that all aboard had died.

Mort Edelman, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration, said the plane belonged to EXA Inc. in nearby St. Charles and crashed shortly after takeoff from the Hinckley airfield, 50 miles west of Chicago.

Some witnesses reported hearing two explosions, Edelman said.

Witness Stephen Lee said he saw the plane flying less than 40 feet from the ground and rocking from side to side.

"It was sort of floating down, left to right, left to right. It looked like it would land," he said.

"When it hit the ground, the plane flipped over and burst into flames," Lee said. "It was immediately engulfed in flames from front to back."

Broadcast reports from the scene said the victims were on a weekly outing.

Jim Burnett, who owns the farm field, said the plane crashed about 200 yards from his house. He said he saw smoke and ran to the plane with his two daughters about four minutes after the crash but they couldn't get close enough to attempt a rescue.

"It was too hot," Burnett said. "It was already too much in flames."

Baboon liver dies of int...

Claudia Gates
Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Doctors were sure Monday what caused the death of a mystery man who survived for 71 days with a baboon's liver, but they said a historic operation helped pave the way for more animal-to-human transplants.

The 35-year-old man, whose name was not made public, died Sunday as doctors at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center tried to wean him from a respirator.

The man died from bleeding in the skull but did not have a stroke as was first announced, said John Fung, chief of transplant surgery. Autopsy results were in yet, he said. Early indications were the hemorrhage probably not directly related to the transplant.

Dr. Howard Doyle, a member of the transplant team, said the man had suffered a blood infection and loss of liver function since the operation but appeared to be improving.

More would be known Tuesday, Fung said.

The man received the liver July 28 in an 11-hour operation that was the first animal-to-human liver transplant. He had suffered from hepatitis B, which was destroying his own liver and liver would have attacked any transplanted human liver, doctors said. "It's given us an idea of what to look for, what the drawbacks are, what the potential benefits are," Fung said.

Susan Manko, a medical spokeswoman, said she and co-workers were told only the man's name and that he was released. Even the alias was released.

"He probably didn't want to be bothered with the news media," she said. "If people found out he was, they would be calling all the time. I'm talking about 'National Enquirer' and 'A Current Affair.'"

Animal rights activists opposed animal-to-human transplants raised ethical questions.

Baboon liver recipient dies of internal bleeding

Claudia Gates
Associated Press

PITTSBURGH—Doctors were not sure Monday what caused the death of a mystery man who survived for 71 days with a baboon's liver, but they said the historic operation helped pave the way for more animal-to-human transplants.

The 35-year-old man, whose name was not made public, died Sunday as doctors at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center tried to wean him from a respirator.

The man died from bleeding inside the skull but did not have a stroke as was first announced, said Dr. John Fung, chief of transplant surgery. Autopsy results were not in yet, he said. Early indications were the hemorrhage probably was not directly related to the transplant.

Dr. Howard Doyle, a member of the transplant team, said the man had suffered a blood infection and loss of liver function since the operation but appeared to be improving.

More would be known Tuesday, Fung said.

The man received the liver June 28 in an 11-hour operation that was the first animal-to-human liver transplant. He had suffered from hepatitis B, which was destroying his own liver and likely would have attacked any transplanted human liver, doctors said.

"It's given us an idea of what to look for, what the drawbacks are, what the potential benefits are," Fung said.

Susan Manko, a medical center spokeswoman, said she and her co-workers were told only the alias under which the man was registered. Even the alias was not released.

"He probably didn't want to be bothered with the news media," she said. "If people found out who he was, they would be calling him all the time. I'm talking about the National Enquirer and A Current Affair."

Animal rights activists opposed to animal-to-human transplants had raised ethical questions.

"Animal rights groups should feel vindicated, though we don't applaud the death of any person," said Wayne Pabelle, national spokesman for The Fund for Animals Inc., based in Silver Springs, Md.

The man was able to move out of intensive care Aug. 3 and into a regular room at Presbyterian University Hospital, also at the center.

He was able to eat hospital meals and drink chocolate milk shakes, Manko said. He began leg and arm exercises and could walk around his room or down the hall, pulling along the pole that held his intravenous feeding.

He watched videotape movies — Danny DeVito was his favorite actor — and eagerly read newspaper stories about himself. The man kept his sense of humor and laughed at baboon jokes, Manko said.

"He had a really light attitude about everything," she said.

Doctors believe the patient developed a blood infection after dye was injected into his bile duct Aug. 28 for an X-ray, possibly introducing bacteria. A fever sent him back to intensive care.

The man's condition had been downgraded from fair to critical. He had been on a respirator since Aug. 29.

Physicians speculated he may have been experiencing some unknown form of organ rejection, although a biopsy taken Aug. 31 showed no sign of rejection.

The surgery was made possible by FK506, an experimental anti-rejection drug that is an estimated 100 times more effective than previous drugs. The patient took three other drugs.

Dr. Thomas Starzl, director of Pitt's Transplantation Institute and a pioneer of liver transplant surgery, observed the transplant but was not on the surgical team.

The last known animal-to-human organ transplant was in 1984 when a baboon heart was implanted in a baby at Southern California's Loma Linda University Medical Center. The girl, known as Baby Fae, died 20 days after developing an antibody to the animal's blood.

Beijing upset over planned sale of F-16s to Taiwan

Kathy Chenault
Associated Press

BEIJING, China — A top State Department official flew to the Chinese capital Monday and sought to patch up relations chilled by U.S. plans to sell fighter jets to Taiwan, but neither side announced any improvement.

Chinese officials instead warned that United States would be responsible "for the serious consequences arising from its wrong action" in agreeing to sell 150 F-16s to Taiwan, the state-run Xinhua news agency reported Monday.

In a dispatch from Washington, Xinhua said a State Department spokesman had "cudged his brains" to justify the sale of fighter jets to Taiwan.

"No matter how the U.S. government tries to justify its wrong decision, it cannot offer a tenable argument," said the article.

William Clark, U.S. assistant secretary of state for Asian and Pacific affairs, declined to speak with reporters after the meeting that also included Ambassador J. Stapleton Roy.

They met with Vice Foreign Minister Liu Huaqu and Zhang Yijun, director of the Foreign Ministry's Department of North American and Oceania affairs, who reiterated China's strong opposition to the $6 billion sale, according to Xinhua.

The Chinese have refused to say what actions they may take if the sale proceeds.

Clark was dispatched to Beijing specifically to try to ease tensions over President Bush's decision last week to sell the fighters to Taiwan, the longtime rival of China's communist government.

Taiwan, which says it needs the planes for defense, has been China's rival since the Communists came to power in 1949 and sent the Nationalist government fleeing to the island just off the mainland. Both Beijing and Taipei claim to be the legitimate rulers of all China.

Realignment difficulties

To borrow a phrase that has been seen more than once, for Major League Baseball, it is the best of times, it is the worst of times. On the positive end, George Brett and Robin Yount are closing in on 3,000 hits. Better yet, the best part of the season has now arrived as the contending teams start the annual September drama. Right now it looks like three out of the four races will go down to the wire, creating excitement all over the country. But even if all the divisions go down to the final Sunday, the pennant races of 1992 will be tempered due to the events of last Thursday. History will record that moment when the club owners, acting out of greed and arrogance, decided to push out Commissioner Fay Vincent.

Vincent was formally asked to resign by an 18-9 margin (with one owner abstaining). This matter was concluded Monday when Vincent, bowing under pressure from the Major League team owners, resigned. Vincent previously asserted that one of his powers as commissioner is the right not to be fired. The owners, however, believe that since Vincent is an employee of the owners, he can be dumped. This whole situation is ludicrous, considering the reasons why the owners want Vincent out.

What heinous crimes has Vincent committed? To start with, there is the issue of National League division realignment. Vincent decided that yes, Atlanta and Cincinnati are east of Chicago and St. Louis, and corrected a mistake by wanting to realign the divisions by putting the Braves and Reds in the East, Vincent was formally asked to resign by an 18-9 margin. This matter was concluded Monday when Vincent, bowing under pressure from the Major League team owners, resigned. Vincent previously asserted that one of his powers as commissioner is the right not to be fired. The owners, however, believe that since Vincent is an employee of the owners, he can be dumped.

and the Cubs and Cardinals in the West. While this makes perfect sense to anybody who can read a map, the mighty Tribune Co., owner of the Cubs, went to court and got this move blocked. The Tribune Co.'s explanation for this action was tradition. Funny that this is the same company that didn't mind destroying tradition by erecting lights at Wrigley Field four years ago.

The real reason why the Tribune Co. wanted the Cubs to stay in the East is that it doesn't want any more late night, non-prime-time games on WGN, also a Tribune property. In reality, with the expansion, and with Florida and Colorado franchises starting play next season, there will be fewer games each team will play against its own division rivals. Most likely, the NL will switch to a schedule, similar to the American League, where each team plays 13 games against its division rival, instead of the 18 today. Since NL teams play 12 interdivision games, the total increase in West Coast games for the Cubs would have been two or three. A minor change, to put it mildly. But the issue is moot. Due to the Cubs' lawsuit, and then the subsequent move of the San Francisco Giants to Tampa, realignment won't happen. Even in victory, the Tribune Co. became a leader of the dump-Vincent movement because somebody actually had the audacity to tell it what to do.

Another reason why the owners are acting like the spoiled brats they are is the issue of labor relations. In short, the owners want a commissioner who won't interfere with their collective desire to screw the players. Since the owners can't police themselves, in terms of player salaries they want somebody who will tell the world how the owners are all going broke, despite huge TV contracts and solid attendance figures. The players are no angels either, with their whining demands for contract renegotiations, but no player has ever put a gun to an owner's head and forced him to create the ridiculous salary structure that is in place today. The owners want somebody who will only listen to them in labor matters, not somebody like Vincent, who gives a damn about the players and (heaven forbid) the fans.

The owners will have a new commissioner in place next spring when the next players' lockout takes place. So enjoy the pennant races and the post-season, because the people who are running this most perfect of all games are just about to destroy it.

Running the asylum

To the Editor:

I imagine that Michael B. Clark's weekly column-by-letters must be inspiring some people to urge the DI editor to put a quota on the guy's emetic missives, but please, oh please let him continue. Clark, a rising star on the local right-wing activist scene (look out, Jeff!), is proving the old adage about giving someone enough rope. Representing the poisonous fundamentalist wing that has captured the reins of the GOP, Clark attempts to convince readers in his most recent letter (DI, Aug. 31) that the GOP stands for change — what he neglects to mention is that the "change" he's advocating is the kind of thing that Cotton Mather would take a shine to. Both the state and national Republican platforms prove that the lunatic fringe, as it used to be called, has taken over the asylum. Dogmatic, intolerant, and arrogantly "Christian," the fundamentalists have successfully made the GOP their instrument. The Republican moderates and honest conservatives who sold their souls to this zealous crew for electoral power are now realizing that the devil always cashes in.

Not only are the lunatics in charge of the asylum and trying to burn it down, they want to burn the rest of us as well. Clark's ilk, including Pat Robertson, are in high dungeon over the addition of the word "women" to the state constitution; would-be brownshirt Pat Buchanan is declaring war against some of his fellow Americans because he doesn't like who they sleep with. WHAT is in the water these people drink? As unappetizing as the Democratic Party is, the GOP as it is now constituted is a clear and present danger to America's best values: respect, tolerance, openness, truth and liberty.

A glance at the horrors of fundamentalism around the world is all we need to be reminded of when we vote this fall.

BYRON KENT WIKSTROM

Thomas' rational point a rarity

I don't usually agree with Cal Thomas, so when I read his column last week, I was pretty surprised. In case you don't know, Thomas is that hyperconservative moralist who occasionally graces The Des Moines Register's editorial page. A cross between Marilyn Quayle, Pat Robertson and Bozo the Clown, Thomas likes nothing better than describing in intimate detail the moral decay that has infiltrated this nation's popular culture.

Thomas is a throwback to the days when you made up your mind on an issue and then tried to find evidence to support that position, rather than looking at the evidence objectively and then making an informed decision. Thomas, who writes for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate, justifies his assertions with an anachronistic ethical code based on a stringent set of conflicting Christian beliefs. So it's not surprising that Thomas is about the only nationally syndicated columnist who is consistently inconsistent. (Last week's column is a classic example.) Usually when I read Thomas' columns, I don't expect much insight. But last week, Thomas surprised me; he was right for a change — or, at least partly right.

As usual Thomas was acting as the self-appointed, plenipotentiary TV czar. But, for a change, the issue at hand wasn't sexual perversity or the wickedness of "alternative lifestyles." Instead, Thomas wanted to talk about abortion and in particular photos of aborted fetuses. So you shouldn't be surprised (although if you've read many of his columns you'll see the obvious irony) to hear that Thomas was asking for tolerance — tolerance to show aborted fetuses.

The column, which was titled "The power of photos of aborted fetuses," addressed the recent ruling by the Federal Communications Commission that political ads which show aborted fetuses are not indecent and are therefore not restricted from being aired before 10 p.m. Thomas supports this ruling, primarily because he feels it will strengthen the anti-abortion position.

Thomas and the FCC are correct when they argue that the commercials are fit for television. Pictures of aborted fetuses are no more indecent than pictures of invasive surgery or parturition. Abortion is simply a surgical procedure designed to terminate fetal development. There is nothing indecent about showing an aborted fetus on a television commercial if the commercial is done honestly.

Of course, most of the commercials aren't done honestly. Since the objective of the people making the commercials is not to present an accurate depiction of an aborted fetus but to sway public opinion, these people usually falsely depict the fetus.

For example, recent commercials produced for Daniel Becker, a Republican congressional candidate in Georgia, enlarge the fetus to fill the entire television screen, making a 1-inch fetus appear 25 inches long. (There is no attempt to inform the viewer that the fetus has been magnified.) Likewise, in the past, various anti-abortion "movies" used highly enhanced audio recordings to make it seem like the fetus is screaming during abortion. And of course, most of these depictions choose fetuses that are more developed than an average fetus of the same age.

These tactics demonstrate the dishonesty of the anti-abortion camp and the lengths they are willing to go to in manipulating the public. Still, dishonesty (at least in the FCC's definition) is not indecent. If it was, the entire Republican convention would have been deemed unfit for presentation.

Still it's hard to miss the incongruence in Thomas' argument. If abortion really is murder, then isn't it indecent to sensationalize these murders by turning them into 60-second commercials or, as we saw in Buffalo, dragging them around for days in order to show them in other people's faces?

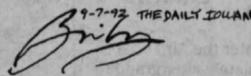

You can't have it both ways. Likewise, it would be equally hypocritical of abortion rights advocates to argue that these commercials should not be shown on television. If a fetus is not a human being, but simply a mass of tissue connected to a woman's body, how can showing an abortion be worse than pictures of other types of surgery?

Abortion rights advocates might contend that the commercials are overly biased, but that is not a good reason to censor them. Instead, these groups should make their own commercials which honestly depict the size of the fetus and the effect that abortion has on the fetus. The best way to fight deception is with the truth, not with a call for censorship. Censoring the commercials makes it seem like the anti-abortion people have a point.

Thomas is correct when he says the commercials have informational value. But he's wrong to claim the "entire direction of the abortion debate could be changed with just one 60-second commercial." The abortion rights position is strong enough to stand on the facts. It doesn't need to be shielded from additional information. In fact, the more people are educated about abortion, the more likely they will be to support a woman's right to choose.

Byron Kent Wikstrom's column appears Tuesdays on the Viewpoints Page.

Heaven knows why God is a GOP issue

"You think maybe God is a Republican?" Slat's Grobnik asked.

I don't know. My guess is that he's non-partisan. Why do you ask?

"Well, listening to some of the Republicans, they talk like God is an honorary chairman of their party. Even President Bush slammed the Democrats for not mentioning God in their party platform. You think God really cares if he's in a party platform that hardly anybody reads anyway?"

I've never heard a theologian express that view. "From what I can tell, most party platforms are a lot of baloney. So I figure God would probably say, 'Hey, if you're going to make a lot of phoney promises, don't do it in my name, OK?'"

I'm not sure he'd phrase it that way, but that could be his sentiment.

"And what about his son?"

"What about him?"

"He was Jewish, right?"

On his mother's side, yes.

"And he was kind of liberal, right?"

In some ways, I suppose.

"Well, he said the poor are blessed. And so are the merciful. And that the meek are going to inherit the Earth. You didn't hear nobody at the Republican convention putting in good words for the poor or the merciful or the meek. Pat Buchanan sounded like he'd like to hang 'em from a tree. And what about the rich Republican fat cats?"

What about them?

"Didn't God's son put the whammy on the rich? He said something like woe to them. And that a rich guy has about as much chance of getting to heaven as a camel has in getting through the eye of a needle. Boy, put that in the Republican platform and see what happens to contributions."

Yes, he frequently made harsh statements about the rich. Especially those who were tightwads. He was in favor of giving your riches away.

liberal, I don't know what is. And the thief, too?"

"What thief?"

"Remember, the one on the other cross. I mean, the guy was a criminal, which was why they nailed him up there. But he gets an ironclad promise that he's going to the kingdom. Hah, all the fat cats are still trying to get through the eye of a needle, and some crook walks right through the pearly gates. Hey, if he showed up today,

"Yeah, but he couldn't get in there, either. There ain't no way they'd let a carpenter in. No status. And he probably couldn't afford the down-stroke or the dues. Besides, he'd probably want to carry the bag for the caddy, which would embarrass everybody."

Well, this is all mere conjecture. In answer to your original question, we have no way of knowing whether God is a Republican, a Democrat, an independent, or if he even takes an interest in such matters.

"Then the Republicans ought to stop acting like he's one of them. And if they keep doing it, the Democrats ought to say, 'Hey, if God is a Republican, how come his son was a Jewish liberal?'"

Because we don't know that, either.

"Come on. What about turning the other cheek when someone whacks you? And loving your enemies. And giving hell to the money changers. Hah! Put a blast on the money changers in the Republican platform and Dow Jones would drop 3,000 points."

Well, I don't think God should be an issue in a political campaign.

"See? If that ain't a liberal, I don't know what is. And I think he was in favor of taxes, too."

I'm not sure about that.

"Sure. When some guys came to him and tried to con him into bum-rapping the taxes, he pointed at the coin that had Caesar's mug on it and said that they should give Caesar what he has coming. Which meant not beeing about paying taxes. You don't find that in the Republican platform, either. And what about the hooker?"

What hooker?

"That Mary Magdalene. He said she's going to heaven, but all the rich fat cats ain't. Now, if that ain't you think he could get into one of those fancy private country clubs a lot of the Republicans belong to?"

Jesus in a country club?

"Yeah. If he goes in and applies, and says that his mother was Jewish, the old blackball would come out, right?"

At some clubs, I suppose they would exclude him on that basis.

"Imagine that, some membership chairman saying, 'Sorry Jesus, we believe you and all that, but right now our membership list seems to be filled up.'"

Well, he could apply at one of the predominantly Jewish country clubs.

"What kind of sign?"

"One Republican speechwriter and one bolt of lightning, and that would be the end of it."

That would do it.

"And if Dan Quayle is smart, he'll get off the course when it gets cloudy."

 50-odd days of the race with Clinton leading in national polls, economic indicators sagging and voters overwhelmingly unhappy about the direction of the country.
 Bush's uphill task was underscored by a pink bed sheet held aloft at the Waukesha fairgrounds. "Hey George," the sheet said. "This pink slip's for you."
 The president started his day with a chilly dawn walk across the Mackinac Bridge connecting Michigan's upper and lower peninsulas.
 He headed for Detroit, Mich., after the Wisconsin picnic.
 Clinton was speaking in Ohio and Connecticut after a rain-soaked rally in Independence.

 Truman has been the third man in the race almost since Ross Perot abandoned that role in July. Both candidates have invoked Truman's name frequently. Bush so often that Margaret Truman Daniel, the late president's daughter, was moved to write a newspaper column in protest.
 Competition for the reservoir of good feeling that Truman apparently has left behind reached new heights Monday.
 Clinton, the governor of Arkansas, pictured himself a can-do, Truman-style populist as he stood before a Truman statue in Independence. Less than an hour earlier in Waukesha, Republican Bush was saying that while he hadn't voted for Truman in 1948, he had a lot in common with him.

 Bush described the two as plain-spoken underdogs frustrated by a "do-nothing Congress," men who had met private-business payrolls, served in the military and become leaders on the world stage.
 "Harry Truman never engaged in doublespeak," Bush added. "Harry Truman was a man of decisiveness, not equivocation. He'd find little in common with Governor Clinton, a man who hedges or ducks on almost every tough issue."

 comment, which the ANC blamed for the killings on the outskirts of Bisho, about 450 miles south of Johannesburg.
 A Ciskei military official said troops fired after being attacked by marchers.
 South African Foreign Minister P. W. Botha accused the ANC of trying to seize power, and said the government would not resume power-sharing talks until the ANC abandons "Communist" plans.
 "There is a Communist shortcut to bring the economy to its knees, weaken the country and take over when it is weak," he said on state-run television.
 The Ciskei border was closed after the shootings and many of the ANC protesters gathered in King William's Town, about four miles from the border.
 "It seemed so absolutely unnecessary. If this is a taste of things to come, then God help us all," said John Hall, head of the National Peace Secretariat, who was on the porters calling for the removal of Ciskei ruler Brig. Gen. Oupa Gqozo, witnesses said. The march began in King William's Town.

 Soldiers with semiautomatic weapons fired into the crowd as terrified people ran screaming for cover. Some witnesses said the troops fired for at least two minutes before throwing tear-gas grenades.
 Dead and wounded people were scattered about as survivors tried to care for them. Some struggled to crawl away, dragging dead or injured friends, witnesses said.
 "People were paralyzed — even the ANC leadership," said local journalist Guy Jepson. "It was absolutely terrifying."
 Witnesses said the first of two bursts of gunfire erupted when the marchers stormed through a back entrance of a stadium on Bisho's outskirts. More shooting broke out a few minutes later, after protesters began ripping down razor wire erected to contain the march, they said.

PROTESTERS HECKLE COLLOR AT PARADE

Jorge Mederos
 Associated Press
 BRASILIA, Brazil—Thousands of demonstrators booed scandal-plagued President Fernando Collor de Mello at a military parade Monday and called for his resignation as Independence Day protests erupted around the country.
 Opposition leaders said the protests were spontaneous. They said plans for huge anti-government rallies were dropped to avoid antagonizing military leaders, who have discreetly endorsed a campaign to remove the president.
 "The military is in a good position and we don't want to create problems with them," said Rep. José Genoíno of the Socialist Workers Party.
 "We didn't organize anything," said Jair Meneguelli, head of the radical leftist Central Workers Union, Brazil's biggest labor group. "A demonstration could cause conflicts and that only interests the government."
 Collor, 43, is accused of receiving millions of dollars from a slush fund run by his 1989 campaign treasurer, Paulo César Farias.
 Congress is to vote on the question of impeachment by October. Meanwhile, Attorney General Aristides Junqueira will decide whether to recommend filing criminal charges against the president for corruption and criminal association.

 Collor denies any wrongdoing and says he will serve out his term, which ends in 1995. He took office in 1990 as the first freely elected leader in three decades.
 A nationwide movement to oust Collor has drawn millions to the streets and united nearly all sectors of society, from students and church officials to big business and the military.
 On Monday, Collor was greeted with a chorus of boos, whistles and shouts as he took the viewing platform in front of the Army Ministry.
 Top generals reportedly tried to dissuade him from attending the Independence Day parade, fearing protests or insubordination among soldiers who might refuse to salute the commander in chief.
 Collor was joined by Cabinet members, including his three military ministers. Congressional leaders were absent, as was Vice President Itamar Franco.
 The president ignored the shouts calling for his indictment and resignation from some 3,000 protesters barely 100 yards away. Many were dressed in black as a sign of mourning.
 Collor's military Chief of Staff, Gen. Agenor Homem de Carvalho, had proposed banning anyone dressed in black from the parade. The idea was dropped as unenforceable.

 However, police confiscated banners and flags reading "Collor Get Out" and pamphlets urging his resignation. No violence was reported.
 Thousands of protesters also marched in the state capitals of Fortaleza and Belo Horizonte. Hundreds paraded along Rio de Janeiro's beaches in the rain.
 Bishops of Brazil's influential Roman Catholic Church held a mass for "ethics and morality in politics" at the cathedral in Aparecida do Norte, the shrine of the patron saint, Our Revealed Lady.
 Impeachment must be approved by a two-thirds majority of the 503-seat Chamber of Deputies. Collor would then be suspended for 180 days, while the Senate decided whether to remove him permanently.
 Folha de Sao Paulo, Brazil's largest daily newspaper, reported Monday that 355 legislators had said they would vote for impeachment, more than the required 336.
 A poll by Folha also found that 54 percent of Brazilians surveyed favored switching to a parliamentary system of government, which makes it easier to remove leaders when they lose popular support.

Gillis leads Iowa split in Arizona

Roxanna Pellin
The Daily Iowan

After defeating Bradley 3-1 in season opener Tuesday, Courtney Gillis and the Iowa Hawkeye volleyball team split 3-2 after the Sun Devil Labor Day Challenge at Arizona State University in Tempe, Ariz., Friday and Saturday.

Her goal was accomplished as the Hawkeyes beat Western Illinois and Weber State 3-1, but dropped 3-0 matches to Arizona State and Cal-State Northridge to come out of the tournament with a split record.

"We were hoping to come out 2-2," Schoenstedt said. "I think we would have been able to beat Cal-State Northridge later in the tournament if we had beaten them."

Hitting was the key factor for the Hawkeyes in the 17-15, 15-3, 15-10 loss to the Cal-State Northridge Matadors in the tournament opener. Overall, the team hit for the match against .266 for the Matadors.

Dawk Krenik led Cal-State Northridge with a match-high 15 kills and five service aces.

In the second match, Iowa lost to Weber State 15-13 and 16-14 after losing the first game 15-6.

Junior Courtney Gillis led the team with 15 kills and a career-high 19 digs. Senior Michelle Thompson added 13 kills and junior Erin Weaver had 12.

"I think that we played good," Gillis said. "I didn't expect to do as well as we did. We were confident, but a little surprised."

"We felt our players really stepped up when they could easily buried their heads in the sand," Schoenstedt said. "It was a total team effort. There was a contribution from the bench, especially from sophomore Stephanie Stitt. Her serve scored a lot of points."

Stitt and freshman Lisa Dore each had two ace serves in the match.

Although the Hawkeyes hit .173 against Arizona State's .173 and blocked the Sun Devils in the Arizona State match, the team won the third match 15-13, 15-6 and 15-11.

Weaver led the team with 15 kills and eight digs. Gillis also had eight digs for the match.

"The Arizona State match was the best match of the season to date, no question," Schoenstedt said. "We played very good defense against the top 25 powerhouse."

For the final win in the tournament's 2-2 split, Iowa defeated Weber State 15-5, 15-11, 8-15 and 15-5.

Weaver was again the team leader with 15 kills and 14 digs. Dore, however, Iowa had 61 digs to Weber State's 54.

Overall, Schoenstedt said she was pleased with the team's play in the tournament.

"It was very gratifying because we played better and better," she said. "There was a tremendous amount of improvement Tuesday."

The Sun Devil Labor Day Challenge was also an opportunity for senior Michelle Thompson to play in front of her home crowd.

"It was a lot of fun to have my family there to see me play," she said.

An injured shoulder seemed to have little effect on her against Western Illinois. Thompson had 12 kills, 12 digs and one ace serve.

Gillis leads Iowa split in Arizona

Roxanna Pellin

After defeating Bradley 3-1 in the season opener Tuesday, Coach Linda Schoenstedt had hoped for the Hawkeye volleyball team to be at 3-2 after the Sun Devil Labor Day Challenge at Arizona State in Tempe, Ariz., Friday and Saturday.

Her goal was accomplished as the Hawkeyes beat Western Illinois and Weber State 3-1, but dropped 3-0 matches to Arizona State and Cal-State Northridge to come out of the tournament with a split.

"We were hoping to come out 2-2," Schoenstedt said. "I think if we would have been able to play Cal-State Northridge later, we would have beaten them."

Dawk Krenik led Cal-State Northridge with a match-high 15 digs and five service aces.

In the second match, Iowa came back to beat Western Illinois 15-9, 15-13 and 16-14 after losing the first game 15-6.

Junior Courtney Gillis led the team with 15 kills and a career-high 19 digs. Senior Michelle Thompson added 13 kills and junior Erin Weaver had 12.

"I think that we played great," Gillis said. "I didn't expect to play as well as we did. We were confident, but a little surprised."

 Stitt and freshman Lisa Dockray each had two ace serves in the match.

Although the Hawkeyes hit .247 to Arizona State's .173 and out-blocked the Sun Devils 10-8, Arizona State won the third match 15-13, 15-6 and 15-11.

Weaver led the team with 15 kills and eight digs. Gillis also had eight digs for the match.

"The Arizona State match was our best match of the season to date — no question," Schoenstedt said. "We played very good defense against the top 25 powerhouse."

For the final win in the tournament's 2-2 split, Iowa defeated Weber State 15-5, 15-11, 8-15 and 15-5.

Weaver was again the team leader with 15 kills and 14 digs. Defensively, Iowa had 61 digs to Weber State's 54.

Overall, Schoenstedt said she was pleased with the team's play in the tournament.

"It was very gratifying because we played better and better," she said. "There was a tremendous amount of improvement from Tuesday."

The Sun Devil Labor Day Challenge was also an opportunity for senior Michelle Thompson, of Phoenix, Ariz., to play in front of her home crowd.

"It was a lot of fun to have my family there to see me play again," she said.

Vincent bows out under pressure

Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Baseball commissioner Fay Vincent gave up the fight to keep his job and resigned Monday, four days after an overwhelming no-confidence vote by major league owners.

"I've concluded that resignation — not litigation — should be my final act as commissioner in the best interests of baseball," Vincent wrote in a three-page letter to owners that he made public.

On Aug. 20, Vincent had vowed "I will not resign — ever." But the teams voted 18-9 with one abstention Thursday urging him to quit, and he decided to resign after a weekend of reflection at his vacation home in Harwich Port, Mass.

Vincent was forced out by owners angry at his refusal to relinquish the commissioner's "best interests" power on collective bargaining, his unilateral order to realign the National League and his stance against superstations.

The group was led by Jerry Reinsdorf of the Chicago White Sox, Bud Selig of Milwaukee, Stanton Cook of the Chicago Cubs and Peter O'Malley of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It would be an even greater disservice to baseball if I were to precipitate a protracted fight over the office of the commissioner," Vincent wrote. "After the vote at the meeting last week, I can no longer justify imposing on baseball, nor should baseball be required to endure, a bitter legal battle — even though I am confident that in the end I would win and thereby establish a judicial precedent that the term and powers of the commissioner cannot be diminished during the remaining months of my term."

Reinsdorf also sounded relieved that a fight was avoided.

"It was the only sensible thing he could do," Reinsdorf said. "It was his best interest and in our best interest. The important thing is that the commissioner made the decision that was right for himself, for baseball and for everybody. We don't have to speculate on what we would have done had he not done that."

Vincent took over as baseball's eighth commissioner when his friend, A. Bartlett Giamatti, died on Friday of Labor Day weekend three years ago. He becomes the third commissioner forced to leave early, joining Happy Chandler and William Eckert. In addition, Bowie Kuhn was defeated in his bid for a third term and Peter Ueberroth departed prematurely after sensing owners would not re-elect him.

AMES — Ohio University turned out to be the perfect opener for Iowa State. Opponent No. 2 might not be as cooperative.

Iowa State not only beat Ohio 35-9 but got a good test for its new triple-option offense. ISU coach Jim Walden says Ohio threw a little of everything at the Cyclones defensively, which served as good preparation for next Saturday's game at Iowa.

"This team did us a great favor," Walden said. "They gave us everything that you would want. Now we'll get to see it in an active sense of how we should make adjustments."

And Walden said some fine tuning definitely is in order before his team faces Iowa. The Hawkeyes are 0-2 after a 24-7 loss to top-ranked Miami and are likely to be in a nasty mood.

An Iowa team hasn't lost its first three games since 1979, coach Hayden Fry's first season. Iowa has beaten Iowa State nine straight times.

"We made some mistakes," Walden said. "We'll have to get much better if we're going to compete the way I want to compete."

Iowa fumbled the ball away on three of its first four possessions Saturday and fell behind 9-0. That stretch also included a 53-minute delay prompted by a lightning storm.

But once the backs got a grip on the ball, the Cyclones rolled. They finished with 435 total yards, 284 on the ground. Fullback Chris Ulrich, a former walk-on playing his first major-college game, led the way with 120 yards in 17 carries.

Ulrich scored Iowa State's first touchdown on a 1-yard run and set up another TD with a 35-yard scamper to the Ohio 4.

"We'll have to get much better if we're going to compete."

Jim Walden

"We want 100 yards out of our fullback every ball game," Walden said. "If we get that, I think we'll be in fine shape."

Ulrich, a 208-pounder from Fort Dodge, said the triple option suits him perfectly.

"In this offense, there's always going to be holes for the fullback," he said. "All I've got to do is run."

Iowa got burned on several option plays in a 24-14 loss to North Carolina State in the Kickoff Classic. The Hawkeyes were much sharper against Miami's running game, holding the Hurricanes to 97 yards rushing. But Miami quarterback Gino Torretta passed for a Kinnick Stadium record 433 yards.

Iowa State quarterback Bob Utter threw just 10 passes Saturday, completing seven for 151 yards. The biggest was an 83-yarder to Lamont Hill for a third-quarter touchdown that stretched the lead to 21-9.

"We probably could have tried to throw the ball more," said Utter, who also ran for a touchdown. "But the weather wasn't the best and we didn't want to show the other opponents too much, so we kind of backed off some things."

Sherman Williams and freshman Calvin Branch also scored touchdowns as Iowa State spoiled the return of Ohio coach Tom Lichtenberg. Lichtenberg is a former assistant coach and assistant athletic director at Iowa State.

"I wish I had stayed home," Lichtenberg said. "It was embarrassing."

Torretta rips Iowa for record yardage

For the Miami Hurricanes' first visit ever to Iowa City, all quarterback Gino Torretta wanted was a victory. He got a lot more.

Torretta wrote his name into the Kinnick Stadium record books with a 433-yard performance through the air in top-ranked Miami's 24-7 victory over the Hawkeyes Saturday night.

The fifth-year senior all-American and Heisman Trophy candidate also earned a career-best 51 passing attempts and his 31 completions fell one shy of another career mark and Kinnick standard, set by Purdue's Eric Hunter in 1990 on 60 attempts.

"I wasn't sure how many times I was going to throw it but whatever's called upon me, if I have to throw it that many times or more, I'm going to do what it takes to win," said Torretta, who eclipsed former Hawkeye Chuck Long's 420 yards versus Northwestern in 1983.

The 6-foot-3, 205-pound signal-caller didn't have much trouble picking apart the Iowa defense when a big third down play was needed, nor did he have difficulty spreading the wealth.

Miami tight end Coleman Bell had seven catches for 115 yards, including a 51-yard reception. He was joined by wide receiver Horace Copeland, who hauled in seven more for 89 yards. All-American Kevin Williams added six catches for 92 yards and a touchdown, while Hurricane tailback Darryl Spencer had a 17-yard scoring reception that sealed the win with 3:13 left.

Expectations may have been high on all fronts for the Iowa football team coming into this season, but any talk of a bowl appearance will have to be put on hold. For the Hawkeyes, there's one simplistic objective weighing heavily on everybody's mind.

"What we learned from this is that we have to get that sour taste out of our mouth. We gotta get a victory," sophomore defensive back Marquis "Bo" Porter said after Iowa's 24-7 loss to No. 1 Miami Saturday night knocked the Hawkeyes to 0-2 for the first time since 1982 and out of the top 25 rankings. "That's our goal."

"We gotta keep the same intensity and go back, not so much to the drawing board, but work on our techniques," senior left tackle Scott Davis said of this Saturday's encounter with Iowa State.

"We just gotta work on the basics. The team's gonna be hungry, starved for a win. This 1992 Hawkeye team has worked their rear end off and we've played two games and we haven't been rewarded. We've just gotta keep pushing. We've worked too hard to be 0-2 right now."

After a lackluster 24-14 loss to North Carolina State in the Kickoff Classic two weeks ago, Coach Hayden Fry and a Kinnick Stadium record crowd of 70,397 appeared to be more appreciative of Iowa's performance versus the Hurricanes. But moral victories aren't any consolation to the Hawkeyes.

"Our ballclub improved tremendously," Fry said. "The intensity level was much superior to the first game. But because Miami is so good, it obviously doesn't show on See HAWKEYES, Page 2B

Miami's Gino Torretta

"I don't know where they get 'em from," Iowa defensive back Carlos James said of the Hurricane receivers, "but I would like to know. They were very fast."

"We were putting ourselves in bad situations," Torretta said. "Long yards, first down, long yards, second down and anytime you do that, automatically, you're going to go to the pass."

TORRETTA: Sets Kinnick record

"I told the (linemen) to keep their heads up and give me some time to throw and they did," Torretta added. "They started picking up everything real well, started opening up the running game and the passing game."

"Torretta played about as good as you could play," Miami coach Dennis Erickson said. "His arm's probably sore. We really felt we had to come in and throw 'cause they were playing a lot of zone coverage. We probably threw too much in the first half and we had to come out and establish the run, which we did in the second half."

Others, however, weren't so apologetic. "He's a pretty good quarterback," was all a semi-impressed Marquis Porter had to say afterwards. Porter picked off Torretta's only mistake on the night, an end zone pass intended for Jonathan Harris that kept the score 10-0 in favor of Miami with 4:02 to go in the third quarter.

Torretta, on the other hand, appeared ready to play another four quarters. "My arm's not tired," he said. "I throw a lot more than 50 balls in practice."

VINCENT: Driven out by owners

Vincent's resignation put the 10-member executive council in charge of baseball. The council is made up of American League president Bobby Brown, National League president Bill White and eight owners: Jackie Autry of California, Bill Bartholomay of Atlanta, Douglas Danforth of Pittsburgh, Eli Jacobs of Baltimore, Fred Kuhlmann of St. Louis, Carl Pohlad of Minnesota, Haywood Sullivan of Boston and Tom Werner of San Diego.

Philadelphia Phillies owner Bill Giles said the executive council would meet by telephone Tuesday and would meet in person Wednesday in St. Louis to discuss whom to put in charge for now.

Among the possibilities are former AL president Lee MacPhail, Democratic National Committee chairman Ron Brown, the current league presidents and former Montreal Expos executive John McHale.

"I doubt anybody will be given the title of commissioner, but we'll see," Reinsdorf said when asked what would happen in the near-term. "The council consists of 10 very able people. We'll see what they want to do."

MacPhail, for his part, said no one has talked to him about the job and added, "I wouldn't want to."

Vincent, elected on Sept. 13, 1989,

HAWKEYES: Drop out of rankings

"We obviously have a lot of work to do," the Hawkeye coach lamented. "We've got to develop consistency with our offense and improve our tackling on defense, and I think we will. I really feel much better about my football team tonight than I did a week ago."

For a squad that went 10-1-1 last year and made a Rose Bowl appearance in 1990, starting a season at 0-2 can hardly be described as normal. Consequently, the all-too-common phrase of "taking one game at a time" has probably never been more significant as far as the Hawkeyes are concerned.

"We got a lot of character on our team. The guys have a lot of pride," said quarterback Jim Hartlieb, who was engulfed by boos from the crowd despite completing 26 of 38 passes for 266 yards, including a 31-yard scoring strike to Harold Jasper with 5:30 remaining in the game.

"There's no sense in worrying about the first two games. They're dead and gone. You just learn from them now. We have a lot of improving to do."

The game was billed as "A Night To Remember" to commemorate the first game under the lights in Kinnick Stadium history, but it was the defending co-national champion Hurricanes who were left with memories to cherish.

"I think defensively, we had control all the time," Miami coach Dennis Erickson said. "(Iowa) has probably never been more significant as far as the Hawkeyes are concerned."

"We got a lot of character on our team. The guys have a lot of pride," said quarterback Jim Hartlieb, who was engulfed by boos from the crowd despite completing half, 242 yards to 121.

"We played well enough," Erickson said, relieved to get a win under his belt after his team was forced to practice in Vero Beach, Fla., following Hurricane Andrew. "The last two weeks have been real hard and distracting on everybody."

For the Hawkeyes, the biggest complication may have come on the second play from scrimmage, when wide receiver Danan Hughes took a pitch from fullback Lew Montgomery and let fly to a wide open Jeff Antilla, who had nothing but the end zone in front of him.

"It was a real big play. We had planned before the game that we were going to do that, regardless of the wind factor," Hughes said. "I don't think Jeff knew that he was that wide open."

The ball fell out of Antilla's reach, leaving the Hawkeyes contemplating what might have been for the

HAWK TALK

Iowa's 24-7 loss to No. 1 Miami marked the first time since 1982 in which the Hawkeyes lost their first two games of a season. The game, witnessed at Kinnick Stadium record crowd of 70,397, was the fourth victory in many tries for the Hurricanes in Iowa.

Saturday night's loss to Miami as Iowa must now prepare for State this weekend, Colorado State and the opening of the season at Michigan Oct. 17, since Coach Hayden Fry's Iowa squad started out with a 1-0 record in 1979. Fry's record against the Cyclones is 1-1, but the Hawkeyes will be overt against the Cyclones.

Stormy Weather

"I think you certainly have some suspicions confirmed about ability and the quickness of speed of Miami on both sides," Fry said. "We haven't anyone with that much speed and quickness. The fact that even comes close is what we had in the (1991) Rose Bowl."

Engine problems

Fry, explaining Iowa's trouble on the second play from scrimmage when wide receiver Danan Antilla was disconnected with a wide of the ball, said: "It would've been a long gain. (Antilla) was behind (the DB). I don't know if Danan overthrew it or if he choked his motor. I just couldn't catch it."

Hughes, who caught seven passes for 81 yards, discussing the play: "(Antilla) just choked his motor a little bit too much and just overthrew him."

Not cutting it

Left tackle Scott Davis said it was difficult scoring against Iowa. "We were coming up short on time and it was just so frustrating. Our defense just played a game and you feel so bad you can't convert, especially you're on the offensive line. A lot of guys are looked to for leadership. When we're not cutting mustard, it's really hard."

Not enough effort

Defensive back Carlos Jasper said he played aggressive throughout the game. "We were playing aggressive throughout the game. We were playing aggressive throughout the game. We were playing aggressive throughout the game."

HAWK TALK

Hawkeyes face to face with uphill battle

Iowa's 24-7 loss to No. 1 and defending co-national champion Miami marked the first time since 1982 in which the Hawkeyes have lost their first two games of the season. The game, witnessed by a Kinnick Stadium record crowd of 70,397, was the fourth victory in as many tries for the Hurricanes over Iowa.

Saturday night's loss left the Hawkeyes facing an uphill battle, as Iowa must now prepare for Iowa State this weekend, Colorado Sept. 26 and the opening of the Big Ten season at Michigan Oct. 3. Not since Coach Hayden Fry's first Hawkeye season in 1979 has an Iowa squad started out 0-3, a statistic the Hawkeyes will look to avert against the Cyclones.

Stormy Weather
"I think you certainly had your suspicions confirmed about the ability and the quickness and the speed of Miami on both sides of the ball," Fry said. "We haven't played anyone with that much talent, speed and quickness. The only one that even comes close is Washington in the (1991) Rose Bowl."

Engine problems
Fry, explaining Iowa's trick play on the second play from scrimmage when wide receiver Danan Hughes misconnected with a wide open Jeff Antilla: "It would've been a heckuva long gain. (Antilla) was so far behind (the DB). I don't know if Danan overthrew it or if Antilla choked his motor. I just know we didn't catch it."

Hughes, who caught seven passes for 81 yards, discussing the same play: "(Antilla) just choked his motor a little bit too much and I just overthrew him."

Not cutting it
Left tackle Scott Davis on the difficulty of scoring against Miami: "We were coming up short all the time and it was just so frustrating. Our defense just played a helluva game and you feel so bad when you can't convert, especially when you're on the offensive line and a lot of guys are looked to for leadership. When we're not cutting the mustard, it's really hard."

Not enough effort
Defensive back Carlos James: "I felt we played aggressive the whole game. We were playing against the best and sometimes when you play hard, it's not enough. You gotta give it extra effort if you really want to win the ballgame. Next weekend we just gotta get it all together and play 120 percent. We hung tough. I'm proud of the defense."

Postgame dilemma
"Right now, I'm just trying to decide whether or not I want to go home and go to bed 'cause I'm so upset," James said, "or go home and watch TV and see what you guys have to say on the news."

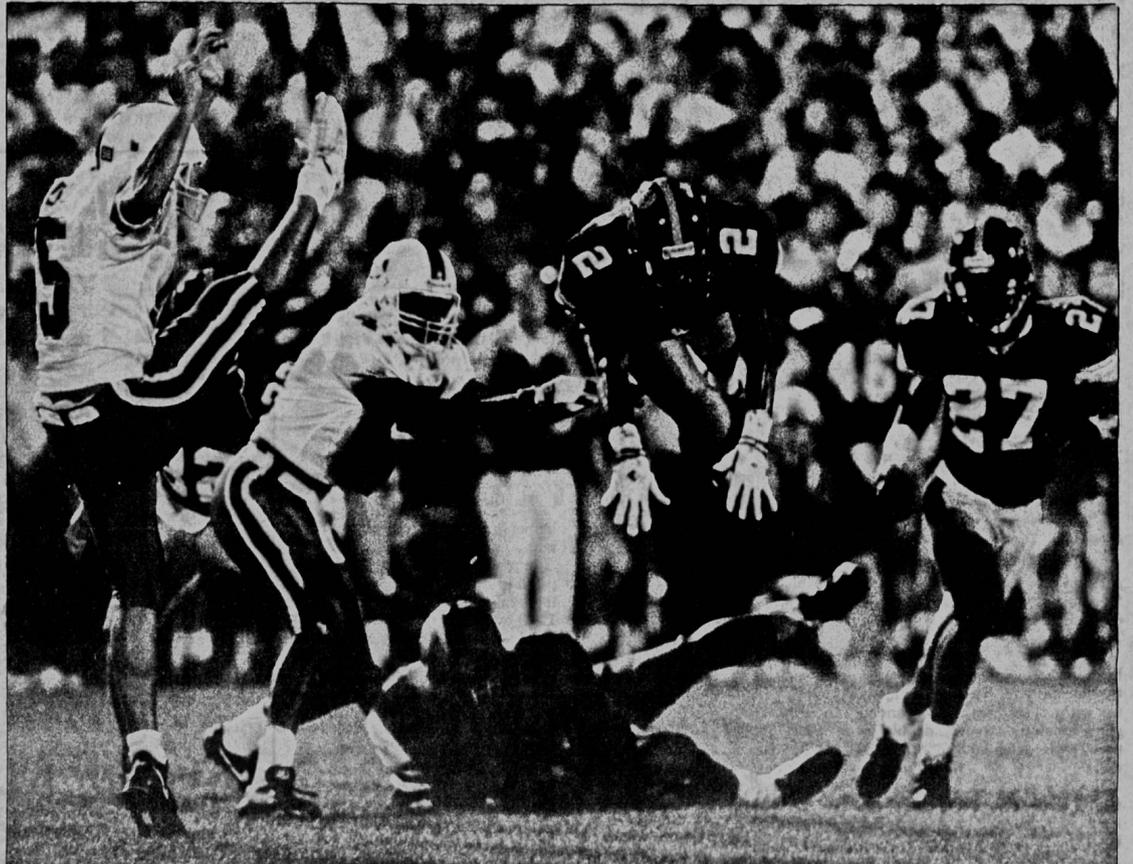

Well-wishers
Fry: "I just can't say enough nice things about Miami with all the hardship they've been through. I was very impressed with their character. It was very nice of a Miami player to come up to me after the ballgame and tell me and the players that we were extremely tough and they thought we could go on and have a very fine season. They were impressed."

Hawkeyes not out of it yet
Miami coach Dennis Erickson's impressions of Iowa: "They're a good football team. Don't ever underestimate them. I don't think they were ready to play (the Kick-off Classic) but they were ready to play today. They're going to win a lot of football games."

Boobirds
Iowa quarterback Jim Hartlieb's reaction to hearing boos from the Hawkeye fans: "Any player that gets booed has gotta feel bad. But we weren't playing well, we weren't putting points on the board. The fans pay good money to get into the stadium. It's their right to boo."

Join the club
Miami quarterback Gino Torretta on the constant pressure applied to Hartlieb by the Hurricanes' formidable defensive line: "I know what it feels like 'cause our defensive line's probably the best in the country and to have those guys as fast as they are — I know I can't outrun them. I don't know if there's a quarterback in the country that can."

Holding his own
Fry on containing Hurricane pre-season all-American defensive end Rusty Medearis: "Scott Davis did a tremendous job against Medearis, who is the fastest lineman I've ever seen in college football."

Positive signs
Fry on some aspects of the Hawkeye game that may be looking up: "Hartlieb continues to improve. He obviously made some mistakes but he was much better than a week ago. I'm extremely pleased with Jimmy. He took a beating. He's a real tough young man. He made some mistakes, but I guess everyone is going to against Miami."

"Ryan Terry showed a lot of mobility as a receiver as well as a runner. The kicking game continues to be good. (Scott) Fisher did a good job."

Deceiving scoreboard
"For us to have given up just 10 points for some time into the third quarter, I kept looking up at the scoreboard and thinking the score was wrong," Fry said.

Serving notice
Defensive back Marquis "Bo" Porter on playing the Hurricanes tough: "I think we earned a lot of respect from the whole nation today. We definitely gained confidence. We played really flat last week and we came out charged and played our level of football. We came into the game and we said we wanted to improve every down, every series, every quarter. I think we definitely accomplished that. We improved over 50 percent compared to the (Kickoff Classic)."

It's never over 'til...
Erickson on when he thought the Hurricanes had the game wrapped up: "I never feel comfortable. When it was 17-0, I didn't feel comfortable."

Looking ahead
James: "Yeah, I'm thinking about Iowa State cause everyone knows that when they come into town, it's a very big ballgame and we're going to be ready for that game — definitely."

Davis: "Iowa State is going to present a different sort of defense. They don't have the personnel Miami has of course."

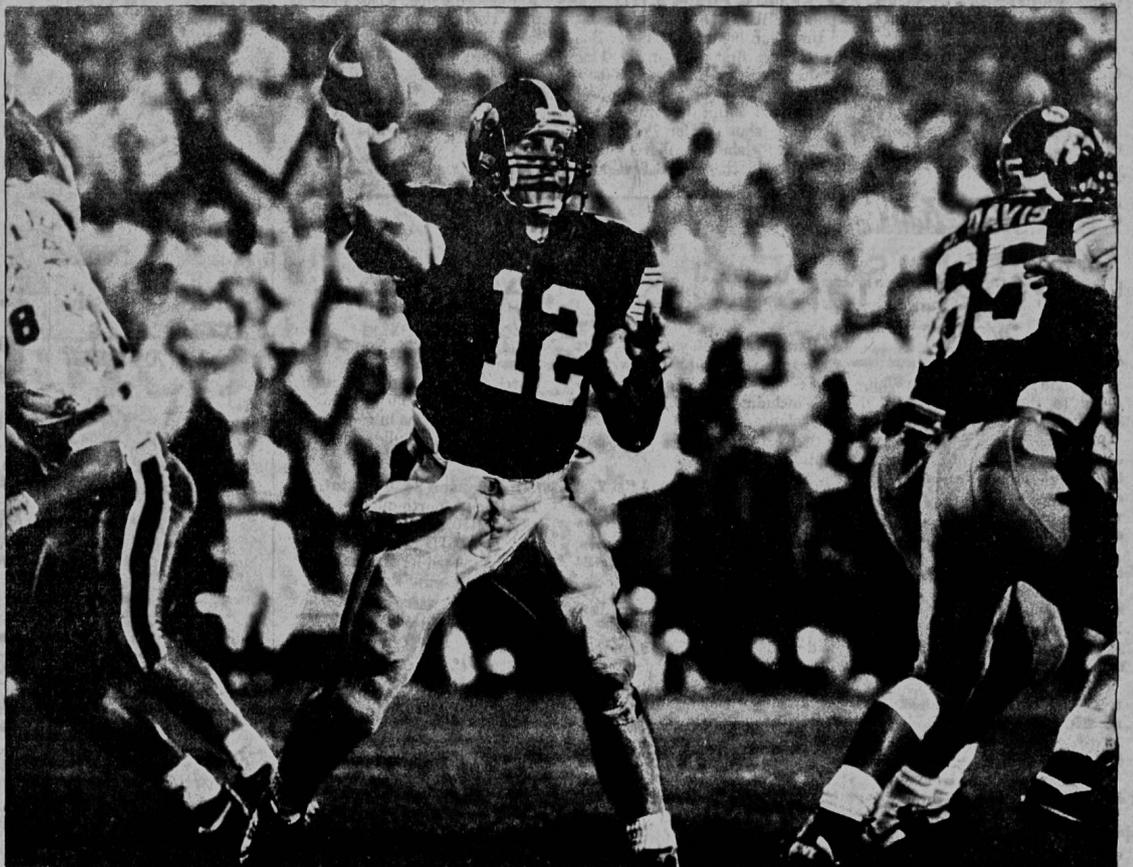

Fry: "I don't anticipate anyone missing the next ballgame."

COLLEGE POLL

Loss to Miami drops Hawks out of poll

Associated Press
Iowa, ranked 23rd last week, dropped out of the AP Top 25 poll after falling to No. 1 Miami 24-7. Since Iowa was the only ranked team to lose this weekend, there was only minor shuffling in the poll. The top three stayed the same, with the No. 1 Hurricanes followed by Washington and Notre Dame. Miami received 45 first-place votes and 1,525 points from a nationwide panel of writers and broadcasters. Washington, which beat Arizona State 31-7, got nine first-place votes and 1,469 points. Florida, which opens next week against Kentucky, jumped two spots to No. 4. The move continued a strange pattern for the Gators, who fell two notches the previous week — also without playing. Florida State dropped a spot to No. 5 following its 48-21 win over Duke, while idle Michigan also fell one place, to No. 6. The Wolverines start their season Saturday at Notre Dame. Florida State, Michigan, Texas A&

M and Alabama each received one first-place vote. Mississippi State's 28-10 victory over Texas boosted the Bulldogs three spots to No. 18, their highest ranking since reaching No. 13 in 1986. Ohio State fell five places to No. 22 after barely beating Louisville 20-19.

Atlanta's Lonnie Smith knocks the ball loose from Los Angeles Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia during the Braves' 7-1 win Monday. The Braves kept their 6 1/2-game lead on Cincinnati.

MAJOR LEAGUES

Larkin blows it, then saves it

Associated Press
 MINNEAPOLIS — Gene Larkin's performance was far from complete Monday, but it was more than enough to break the Minnesota Twins' three-game losing streak.
 Larkin made two errors at first base, including one that sparked a two-run rally for Seattle, but made up with a two-run homer and a game-breaking two-run double as the Twins defeated the Mariners 4-2.
 "He let in a few, but he knocked in more," said Twins manager Tom Kelly. "He more than made up for it."
 Larkin's bases-loaded, one-out double off the right field fence broke a 2-2 tie and made a winner Scott Erickson (11-10).
 Erickson labored in the early innings, twice working out of bases-loaded, one-out jams by inducing double-play grounders. Rick Aguilera got the final four outs for his 37th save.
 The Twins made three errors in the game, but Seattle grounded into four double plays and had two runners thrown out at the plate.
 "They tried to give it to us and we couldn't take it," said Seattle manager Bill Plummer. "We helped them out in a couple big situations."
 Tim Leary (6-8) held the Twins hitless through 3 1/2 innings but couldn't halt the Mariners' losing streak, which reached five games.
Brewers 2, Indians 0
 MILWAUKEE — Robin Yount closed within two hits of 3,000 and Cal Eldred won his sixth straight decision.
 Yount hit a 3-2 pitch through the hole on the right side for a fourth-inning single off Cleveland's Dennis Cook (5-7). Yount grounded to third in the first and lined to center in the sixth.

 Eldred (7-1), who has allowed only two earned runs in his last 44 1/2 innings, gave up only four hits in seven innings. He walked four and struck out three. James Austin pitched the eighth and Doug Henry pitched the ninth for 26th save.
 Greg Vaughn hit his 19th homer in the second.
 Cleveland's Kenny Lofton broke the American League rookie record for steals with his 51st and 52nd.
Braves 7, Dodgers 1
 ATLANTA — John Smoltz won for the first time in a month, setting down the Los Angeles Dodgers on three hits over seven innings as the Braves won their third game in a row.
 The win, only Atlanta's eighth in 18 games, kept the Braves 6 1/2 games ahead of Cincinnati in the National League West. The Reds beat Houston 10-0.
 Smoltz (15-10) was 0-4 in his last five starts with an ERA of 5.28 before Monday. He struck out nine and walked five before leaving for a pinch hitter after seven innings. Mike Stanton pitched the eighth and Mark Wholers pitched the ninth, allowing a run.
 The Braves broke through for three runs in the fourth off rookie right-hander Pedro Astacio (2-3) after two outs and nobody on with four consecutive singles and the Dodgers' 147th error of the year.
Cubs 6, Pirates 5, (11)
 PITTSBURGH — Derrick May hit a three-run homer on reliever Bob Patterson's first pitch in the 11th inning and Alex Arias went 5 for 5 in his second major league start.
 The Cubs outthit the Pirates 21-8, but were shut out for 7 1/2 innings by four Pittsburgh relievers until May's drive, the second first-pitch homer allowed by Patterson in as many appearances.

 Stan Belinda (5-4), who had pitched two scoreless innings, immediately got into trouble in the 11th by allowing singles to Ryne Sandberg and Mark Grace, who had three hits apiece.
 Andre Dawson bounced into a force play before Patterson replaced Belinda and May hit his seventh homer.
 Paul Assenmacher (4-2) pitched a scoreless 10th for the victory before Bob Scanlan got his 13th save despite allowing run-scoring singles by Jose Lind and John Wehner in the 11th.
Cardinals 8, Expos 7, (10)
 MONTREAL — Bernard Gilkey's solo homer leading off the 10th inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals the victory.
 The Expos, who have lost three straight, remained four games behind Pittsburgh in the NL East.
 Gilkey lined a 2-0 pitch from John Wetteland (3-4) over the left-field fence for his fifth homer of the season.
 Bryn Smith (1-0) pitched one inning for the win and Lee Smith pitched the 10th for his 38th save.
 St. Louis starter Donovan Osborne allowed six hits and two earned runs in 3 1/2 innings.
Reds 10, Astros 0
 HOUSTON — Jose Rijo held Houston to three hits over seven innings.
 Rijo (11-9) escaped a bases-loaded jam in the second inning by striking out Brian Williams and then retired the next eight batters in a row. He struck out six and walked four.
 Greg Swindell relieved Rijo and pitched one inning while striking out two. It was his first relief appearance since April 15, 1987.

Arkansas sacks football coach

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — After Saturday's 10-3 loss to The Citadel, a Division I-AA school, Arkansas wasted little time in announcing a coaching change.
 Athletic director Frank Broyles called a meeting with the Arkansas hierarchy Saturday night to discuss the future of head coach Jack Crowe. The meeting was called late and resumed Sunday morning until noon.
 Soon after, Broyles announced Joe Kines as the Razorbacks' new interim head coach.
 When asked if Crowe was fired, Broyles said, "We both agreed that we weren't at the point that we should be. The decision was made mutually."
 He gave another rambling answer to a similar question, but slipped up when he said the Razorback Foundation would pay Crowe's $84,000-a-year contract.
 "The Foundation is, by contract, committed to fulfilling contracts in the case of dismissals," he said.
 "It is obvious the program is not where we want it to be and not where it should be," Crowe said in a one-paragraph statement. "It is in the best interests of the program that the head coaching responsibility be turned over to someone else."

College stars add to resumes

Associated Press
 Marshall Faulk and Russell White added to their resumes. Kordell Stewart began his.
 It was the first full Saturday of the college football season, and some familiar names quickly re-established their reputations, while newcomers made strong opening impressions.
 Faulk, the first freshman to lead the nation in rushing and scoring last season, had his seventh straight 100-yard game for San Diego State, carrying 27 times for 220 yards and three touchdowns as the Aztecs tied Southern Cal 31-31.
 White, seeking his third consecutive 1,000-yard rushing season, ran for 216 yards and a TD, leading 17th-ranked California to a 46-16 rout over San Jose State.
 Stewart, a sophomore making his first start for Colorado, threw for a school record 409 yards and four TDs as the No. 12 Buffaloes, employing a new one-back, pass-oriented offense, beat Colorado State 37-17.
No. 2 Washington 31, Arizona St. 7
 Napoleon Kaufman ran 63 yards for a TD on his first carry and went 79 on his second to set up another score as Washington won its 15th consecutive game.
No. 3 Notre Dame 42, Northwestern 7
 Northwestern entertained 65,000 fans at Soldier Field by staying close into the third quarter before the Irish pulled away with three big plays — Rick Mirer's 70-yard TD pass to Mike Miller, a 72-yard scoring run by Reggie Brooks and a 24-yard TD run by Jerome Bettis.
No. 5 Florida State 48, Duke 21
 Charlie Ward's scoring strikes went 6, 19 and 20 yards to Kez

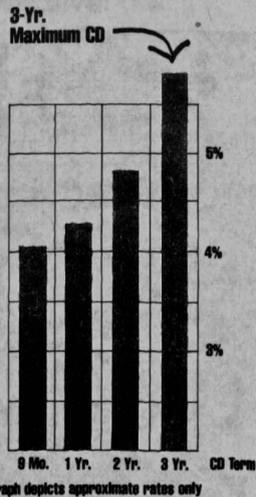

McCorvey and 68 yards to Matt Frier. He also finished with a game-high 84 yards on nine carries, including a 6-yard TD run. But he balanced his five touchdowns with five turnovers — four interceptions and a fumble.
No. 7 Texas A&M 31, LSU 22
 Jeff Granger passed for 196 yards and one touchdown and ran for another score for the Aggies. Freshman Robert Davis had 134 yards for LSU.
No. 8 Alabama 25, Vanderbilt 8
 Freshman Michael Proctor kicked field goals of 46, 43, 42 and 32 yards in his college debut for Alabama. The Crimson Tide played without suspended star flanker David Palmer.
No. 9 Syracuse 42, East Carolina 21
 Qadry Ismail, brother of Rocket Ismail, ran 64 yards for a TD as the Orangemen totaled 634 yards against the Pirates.
No. 10 Penn State 24, Cincinnati 20
 Cincinnati was 77 points better than last year against Penn State, when the Nittany Lions won 81-0, but fell just short of a major upset. Brian O'Neal ran for his second TD with 7:36 left as Penn State withstood a scare.
No. 11 Nebraska 49, Utah 22
 Mike Grant, quarterbacking Nebraska for the first time since 1990, threw for two TDs and rushed for two scores as the Cornhuskers opened a 35-0 halftime lead and coasted.
No. 12 Colorado 37, Colorado State 17
 Stewart completed 21 of 36 passes in his debut, and his 409 yards passing broke the Colorado record of 361 set by Randy Essington against Nebraska in 1982.

No. 14 Georgia 28, South Carolina 6
 Garrison Hearst and Mack Strong ran for TDs of 49 and 59 yards as Georgia got its game in gear in the second half. The Bulldogs trailed 6-0 at halftime.
No. 15 Clemson 24, Ball State 10
 Tim Jones' fourth-quarter interception set up Howard Hall's go-ahead 1-yard TD run for Clemson. Mike Neu passed for 208 yards and Corey Croom ran for 135 yards against a Tigers defense that ranked fourth in the nation last year.
No. 17 California 46, San Jose State 16
 White, who ripped through San Jose State's defense for runs of 48 and 40 yards, plus a 17-yard scoring burst, got help from sophomore quarterback Dave Barr. Making his first start, Barr completed 18 of 27 passes for 175 yards and three TDs.
No. 18 Mississippi State 28, Texas 10
 Mississippi State spoiled John Mackovic's coaching debut at Texas, beating the Longhorns as quarterbacks Sleepy Robinson and Greg Plump ran for two TDs and threw for another.
No. 19 N.C. State 35, Appalachian St. 10
 Gary Downs had two first-half scoring runs and Ledel George returned a punt for another touchdown as N.C. State improved to 2-0.
No. 20 Tennessee 38, SW Louisiana 3
 Heath Shuler and Jerry Colquitt, competing for Tennessee's starting job, each connected on a long touchdown pass for the Vols, who pulled away with 24 second-half points.

NFL

Star players get off to rip-roaring and familiar start in Week 1

Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

Does this sound familiar? Bruce Smith: Two sacks, two pass deflections, four quarterback hurries and two tackles behind the line of scrimmage.

Thurman Thomas: 22 carries, 103 yards and four touchdowns.

Steve Bono: 15 of 22 for 187 yards imitating Joe Montana.

Ricky Watters: 13 carries for 100 yards as one half of the new Roger Craig.

Tom Rathman: 3 TD receptions as Craig's other half.

Tim Harris: 2 sacks as Charles Haley.

John Johnson: a TD interception return as Keena Turner.

Off the opening week of the NFL season, why not have Buffalo try its hand against San Francisco in next January's Super Bowl? Better yet, why not make the Bills' game at Candlestick next week the obligatory SUPER BOWL PREVIEW.

Of course it's premature.

Of course John Elway pulled another game out for Denver.

Of course the Bears won on opening day for the ninth straight year and the Redskins and Cowboys didn't play until Monday night.

Of course, Herschel Walker (114 yards) gave Philadelphia a running game and Randall Cunningham is back.

And of course (this IS a joke), the Colts had 11 sacks against the Browns and Sam Wyche has Tampa Bay off to a Super start, a 23-7 win over Phoenix.

But Sunday looked like a good day to hand the Bills their third straight trip to the NFL's title game. And the worst George Seifert could say about his 49ers after the 31-14 win over the Giants was "we weren't perfect. We made enough mistakes to keep it close."

The Bills' 40-7 win over the Rams was notable for two things.

1—Smith jumped over people, crashed into people and demonstrated that it was a good idea to hold him out of preseason to allow his knee to heal.

2—The grumpy Thomas ("I guess I'll have to settle for being MVP," he said at the Super Bowl, complaining about his alleged lack of recognition), was un-grumpy because he was allowed to score four touchdowns against the Rams.

"Last year, we used to give it to Kenneth Davis when we got down near the goal line," he exulted.

Other reasons for anointing the Bills and 49ers:

1—Houston, consensus favorite to beat the Bills for the AFC title, showed it may not even be a consensus favorite to win the weak AFC Central, losing to Pittsburgh on Sunday in the Astrodome, the FORMER House of Pain.

"I stunk," said Warren Moon, who threw five interceptions.

2—Cunningham was sacked six times by the Saints, an indication of the Eagles' offensive line problems. Philadelphia sacked Bobby Hebert only once, a sign of how much they miss Jerome Brown.

WHY DENVER GOES TO SUPER BOWLS: The two-minute drill that gave the Broncos a 17-13 win over the Raiders marked the 20th time in his nine-plus seasons that John Elway has pulled out a game in the final quarter. And this is one in which he finished 10 of 24 for 171 yards, just 7 of 21 for 99 yards before the final drive.

Moreover, it doesn't matter who the supporting cast is — last night it was two guys named Arthur Marshall (free-agent rookie) and Reggie Rivers (free-agent rookie last year) who did the damage at the end.

"It's all reaction," Elway says of his last-minute heroics.

NEW KIDS ON THE BLOCK: New coaches went 5-4 Sunday, 3-2 if you discount games against each other.

And 3-2 for the guys who had never coached in the NFL before — wins for Dennis Green (Minnesota), Dave Shula (Cincinnati) and Bill Cowher (Pittsburgh); losses by Mike Holmgren (Green Bay) and Bobby Ross (San Diego).

Holmgren's Packers lost to Green's Vikings in a game of former 49ers assistants that made some sociological history. Four of the six principal coaches were black — Green and defensive coordinator Tony Dungy for the Vikings; offensive coordinator Sherman Lewis and defensive coordinator Ray Rhodes for the Packers.

The other winners were Wyche with the Bucs and Ted Marchibroda with the Colts.

SACKS: The Indianapolis Colts had 29 sacks last season.

On Sunday, they had 11 in the 14-3 win over Cleveland, including three from their 1-2 draft picks, Steve Emtman (one) and Quentin Coryatt (two). They also got four from 33-year-old Chip Banks.

U.S. OPEN

Associated Press

Top-seeded Jim Courier returns a shot en route to a straight set victory over No. 16 John McEnroe at Flushing Meadow, N.Y. Monday.

Mac Attack grounded by top-seeded Courier

Bob Greene
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Top-seeded Jim Courier unleashed his thunderbolt serves and overpowering groundstrokes Monday, crushing John McEnroe to move into the quarterfinals of the U.S. Open.

Courier buried McEnroe's artistic touch game under the baseline barrage, 6-2, 6-2, 7-6 (7-1).

It was a battle of styles — power vs. touch — and of eras — the past vs. the present. McEnroe, at 33 an aging but dangerous warrior, had no answers to the various problems presented by the world's top-ranked player.

Then, to show that the teachings of McEnroe have been appreciated and absorbed, Courier even showed his deft touch with a drop volley, a shot that brought a smile to McEnroe's face.

Courier, winner of the Australian and French Opens and a finalist here last year, goes into the quarterfinals against the winner of Monday night's Andre Agassi-Carlos Costa match.

Maliq Washington won two games Monday to reach the fourth round as he completed a 6-4, 6-7 (7-2), 6-4, 6-3 victory over Henri Leconte. The match began Sunday night and was suspended by rain at 12:40 a.m. with Washington, the 14th seed, serving with a 4-3 lead in the fourth set.

Washington needed only 10 points to wrap up his third-round victory over Leconte. The 14th seed broke his French opponent in the opening game played Monday, then held at love to complete a 6-4, 6-7 (2-7), 6-4, 6-3 victory.

Steffi Graf, the women's No. 2 seed, advanced to the quarters by beating Florencia Labat 6-2, 6-2. Graf will play Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, No. 5, a 6-0, 6-1 winner over No. 14 Zina Garrison. Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere, No. 9, also made it to the quarters, beating Carrie Cunningham 6-3, 7-5. McEnroe didn't go quietly. Known for his on-court outbursts, McEnroe complained about a photographer during the third game of the final set, and referee Tom Barnes eventually ejected Mark Cardwell, a Reuters photographer, from court.

"I played as hard as I could. He just outplayed me. . . I'm just not as good as the top players."

John McEnroe

While McEnroe was ousted, 32-year-old Ivan Lendl, a part of Johnny Mac's era, continued to show that tennis doesn't have to be all that complicated.

Lendl reached the fourth round of the U.S. Open for the 13th consecutive year Sunday by stopping Chuck Adams 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Lendl's fourth-round opponent will be another former U.S. Open winner, seventh-seeded Boris Becker, who advanced with a 6-1, 4-6, 7-6 (7-1), 6-3 victory over fellow German Carl-Uwe Steeb.

Other winners Sunday were defending champion and No. 2 seed Stefan Edberg, No. 4 Michael Chang, No. 12 Wayne Ferreira of South Africa, No. 15 Richard Krajicek of the Netherlands and Spain's Emilio Sanchez.

In women's singles, advancing into the quarterfinals were top-seeded and defending champion Monica Seles, No. 4 Gabriela Sabatini, No. 7 Mary Joe Fernandez and surprising Patricia Hy of Canada, who pulled off her second consecutive shocker, eliminating No. 13 Helena Sukova 6-1, 7-6 (7-2).

BANDS

Even a well-liquored Jagger likes Red Devils

Kevin Ruby
The Daily Iowan

Wah-WAH-wah-WAH-WAH!! (ba-dump, ba-dump) wah-WAH-wah-WAH-WAH!! (ba-dump, ba-dump). Even the mere uttering of this all-too clichéd riff immediately conjures up images of sad, dark-throated guitarists and empty tables oppressed by clouds of smoke. The music is simple, but soulful; the lyrics are sad and simple, but frequently poignant.

The Red Devils are a fresh addition to the blues scene by way of Los Angeles. Consisting of harpist/vocalist Les Butler, guitarists Paul Size and Dave Lee Bartel, bassist Johnny Ray Bartel, and drummer Bill Bateman, the Devils were recently signed and recorded by Def American records after four years of West Coast jams. They will be performing in Iowa City tonight after enjoying a brief East U.S. tour as opening band for the Allman Brothers and Bob Dylan, alternately.

Previously to their label-signing, the group's original members — Butler, Bartel and Bateman — fine-tuned their style at the Los Angeles club King King, performing every Monday night for four years with a wheel of session musicians.

A reputation eventually established itself, and big-name music celebs such as Mick Jagger, Peter Wolf and members of the Black Crowes could be seen in the audience at the Red Devils' gigs. The

Red Devils probably might have gotten earlier studio work as a band, but apparently Jagger, Wolf et al. were too busy nursing their Thunderbird Ripple daiquiris and fermenting their own narcissistic/phallic anxieties.

The Red Devils will play tonight at the Yacht Club, starting around 10 p.m. Cover is $3. Definitely a must for those who just can't get enough of sad ballads.

ANTIQUITY & MODERNITY

'A little learning is a dangerous thing...'

EB Holtmark
The Daily Iowan

"homo sum: humani nil a me alienum puto"
I am man: man-y a man's business I deem my own.
— Terence, "Heauton timoroumenos" 77 (163 B.C.)

In review of Marguerite Yourcenar's "That Mighty Sculptor, Time," Richard Locke in The Wall Street Journal (Aug. 11, 1992: A12) makes the following observation:

"Nothing human is alien to me: This quintessentially tolerant epigram by the Roman comic playwright Terence could well serve as Yourcenar's credo."

I would like to cite a quintessentially monitory couplet by the English comic versifier Alexander Pope that might well give pause: "A little learning is a dangerous thing; / Drink deep or drink not from the Pierian spring.

There is a high irony to Locke's misuse of Terence's line in an essay dealing in part with the classical learning that lay behind Yourcenar's writings. In fairness to Locke, however, one should exculpate and note that he merely wanders a well-trodden path of error through the traditional thickets of classical half-learning. By some curious process of notional metathesis the catchy line from Terence has come to represent, in the minds of the classically deprived, just about exactly the opposite of what Terence meant.

The play, whose Greek title can be roughly translated as "The Masochist," is just incidentally a study of how fathers should handle the education of their young: with discipline or leniency? This is a debate, it will be recognized, that somewhat antedates its contemporary currency in various educational bureaucracies. Perhaps these functionaries believe they have discovered something new to add to the instructional controversies now raging in America, but it may interest them to know that this same Terence observed some 2,200 years ago in a different play that "nullumst iam dictum quod non dictum sit prius" or "it's all been said before" ("Phormio" 40). But I digress.

In any event, the smug father named Chremes uttered that immortal line, and what he really meant was that he just had to find out what the other father, Menedemus, had been up to, tormented as he was at the "loss" of his son. Hence, this is a crass statement of intent by Chremes at the start of the play to turn himself into an insuffer-able meddler, which is exactly what he proceeds to do.

Of course, Terence is punning on the Latin "homo" and "humanus," words which are in fact etymologically related to each other and were so perceived by the ancients because of the close homophony. And, as if to throw more mud on the allegedly ennobling sentiment with which generations of careless citers have invested this famous line of Latin, an accepted etymology of "homo," or man, and "humanus," or human, from a root meaning "earth, dirt." In short, since Chremes is a humble earth-ling as it were, he thinks it proper to get the dirt on everybody.

Is there anything new under the sun?

Well, so much for quintessential tolerance.

RIVERSIDE THEATRE

Expanded schedule results in sword fight

Michelle-Therese Forcier
The Daily Iowan

Leave it to a theater group to turn a boring press conference into a one-act play titled "Risky Business, or Will the Show Go On?"

On Thursday, the Riverside Theatre presented a cutesy play featuring theater employees (as themselves) questioning the 40 percent increase in the number of shows the company will perform.

"That's a really big gamble because of the recession," said Rusty Martin, publicist for the theater.

The play began with Ron Clark, co-founder of the theater, anticipating what a great season they will see this year. It continued with various other characters, from lead actor to office manager, questioning the decision through realistic dialogue, giving out facts to the audience. They emphasized that 22 more shows will be included this year.

There will be 18 performances of "Gift of the Magi," to which Tim Budd, playing lead man, responded overdramatically and began a sword fight (fortunately, the fight was quelled when the 25 percent raise for actors was mentioned). The play ended when the lead actor walked off the stage discussing a paternity suit against him with Jay Stein, an Iowa City attorney and member of the board of directors for the theater.

Ron Clark's soliloquy and question-and-answer period following the play included the announcement that playwright Frank Higgins has been commissioned to write a play about gun control.

The first play, "Villains," about an AIDS patient, his companion and his mother will begin Sept. 17.

WATERLOO (AP) — A Waterloo man who was pulled into the undercurrent of the Cedar River Sunday has died.

Daredevils rescued from Iowa River

Local authorities rescued five persons from the Iowa River Sunday morning after they had fallen in what Johnson County Sheriff Robert Carpenter called "stupid stunt."

A sheriff's boat rescued 20-year-old UI student Wayne Anthony Burkhart and Tonya Michelle O'Callaghan, also 20, of Donahue, Iowa, at just after Sunday morning.

Witnesses said Burkhart was holding O'Callaghan over the bridge when she slipped and fell into the river. Burkhart then jumped in after her.

Both O'Callaghan and Burkhart have been charged with public intoxication.

Guilty plea returned in Reso murder case

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A former Exxon security official pleaded guilty Tuesday to federal charges in the kidnapping death of company executive Sidney J. Reso, saying he never meant to kill Reso and Reso died in his arms.

Arthur D. Seale said he actually shot Reso after abducting him in an attempt to extort $18 million from Exxon Corp.

He said Reso, president of International, died four days after the April 29 kidnapping. Seale admitted he tried to extort the money even after Reso's death.

Armed man kills 4, wounds 2 at clinic

JERUSALEM, Israel (AP) — A man armed with a submachine gun and pistol stormed a mental clinic where he was treated, killing four women Tuesday before being gunned down by sharpshooters, police and media reports said.

Two women also were wounded in the attack by Eitan Mor, a 25-year-old Jew who police described as mentally disturbed.

The shooting in the Kiryat Menashe district appeared unrelated to Arab-Israeli violence.

Mor was a patient at the clinic and had been treated by one of the women he shot, Israel television reported. It was not immediately known if Mor was still a patient.
