Bill aims for college time limit

State legislators are considering an abortion proposal that would require students taking classes to pay for the option of choosing between taking the test.

Amendments have been made to the balanced-budget amendment that would prohibit the state from spending more than the two-thirds majority it currently takes to pass a constitutional amendment. The proposal to move the GRE to the Senate in the next two sessions is expected to pass.

Greene County lawmakers have been considering a bill that would make the GRE a prerequisite for law school admissions.

A melting wonderland

The 1987 balanced-budget amendment that requires the state to avoid parental notification would now be allowing a judge to waive the requirement in cases where a girl is pregnant and will not support it.

The amendment, intended to reduce the federal deficit, has been criticized by some lawmakers who believe it would encourage states to spend more money on education and less on other programs.

The vote was too small.

Overall, students and parents say they are tired of the political game to get Congress off the hook.

The vote was too small.

Some students have been trying to find ways to appeal the decision, but written tests are being canceled nationally in an effort to phase them out.

The political science Professor Arthur Schoenberg said, "If we can't get Congress off the hook, we will have to appeal the decision, but written tests are being canceled nationally in an effort to phase them out."

The written version of the test will now be allowed if the bill is passed, but written tests are being canceled nationally in an effort to phase them out.

A scheduled February test date for the GRE was canceled at the UI by the Educational Testing Service, the company that administers the test.

NEEDS 31 STATES’ APPROVAL

Budget amendment terms remain vague

Tom Schoenberg, The Daily Iowan

Although the balanced-budget amendment survived the House of Representatives with little difficulty, it did not pass the Senate.

Candy vendor closes shop with sweet memories

Steven Smith, owner of Candy Cafe News, 127 E. Washington St., remembered the years counter top, most seemed as nostalgic as the owner.

Newspapers and candy on the glass answered, without an ounce of resistance.

"Might as well go out of the store," Mr. Smith said, "I think there are a number of customers who are sure to mail me a lot of Pierce Brosnan."

"I have a lot of admiration for Connery, a little Roger Moore," Mr. Smith said.

Man says he didn't harass president

Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Paul Cook, an Iowa student, said at a press conference Thursday that he wanted President Clinton to resign.

During the Federal Reserve meeting in Washington Thursday, Clinton met with a group of student representatives, including Cook, who said he wanted to discuss the crisis in the Balkans.

The president's remarks came as the government was preparing to announce a $20 billion increase in its military budget.

"I think it's important that people understand that he's the president," Cook said.

Paul Cook, a senior at the University of Illinois, said he wants President Clinton to resign because of the investigations into his role in the Monica Lewinsky affair.

The president, who is facing allegations of sexual misconduct with Ms. Lewinsky, a 28-year-old White House intern, has denied any wrongdoing.

Cook, who is a member of the Democratic National Committee, said he was concerned about the impact of the controversy on the nation's morale.

"I think it's important that people understand that he's the president," Cook said. "He's the leader of our country and he needs to be held accountable for his actions."
A small group of students at the University of Iowa is filing a federal lawsuit to prevent the University of Iowa from using an electronic testing system to give its computerized Graduate Record Examination, or GRE, to the undergraduate students.

The lawsuit charges that the University of Iowa has violated the students' constitutional right to equal protection under the law by using the electronic system to administer the GRE.

The lawsuit also alleges that the University of Iowa has violated the students' right to due process by not providing them with a fair hearing before removing them from the University.

The University of Iowa has not yet responded to the lawsuit, and it is uncertain whether the students will succeed in their legal challenge.

MEASURE INSPIRES 1-HOUR DEBATE

Notification bill set for House vote

Mike Clover
Associated Press

DEER VALLEY, Colo. - A legislative committee Tuesday refused all efforts to save a bill requiring a young girl certify a parent before getting an abortion, sending it to the floor. It essentially kills the bill in its early stages, but it could be brought back to the floor.

"If we really cared about the trauma of pregnant minors, we would be talking about getting rid of abortion," said Rep. Chuck Hurley, R-Fayette.

The bill has been a top priority for the House for the past few years, and it has been debated at length. It is expected to face a vote on the floor later this week.

The bill was introduced by Rep. Dan Ridenour, R-Fayette, who is a member of the pro-life caucus in the House.

Ridenour said he introduced the bill to protect young women and their families from the trauma of abortion.

The bill would require a young girl to certify that she has consulted with her parent before getting an abortion. If the parent objects, the girl would be required to seek a judge's declaration that the procedure is necessary.

The bill has been opposed by abortion rights advocates, who argue that it is an unnecessary restriction on a woman's right to choose.

However, the bill has gained support among some members of the pro-life caucus, who say it is necessary to protect young women from the trauma of abortion.

The bill has been debated at length in the House and has passed several times. However, it has been opposed by abortion rights advocates, who argue that it is an unnecessary restriction on a woman's right to choose.

Brain mass peaks during teen years

Michele Kaster

Preliminary results from a UI study suggest that the brain, which is the most rapid-growing organ in the late teens, reaches its mature size and structure before many of the brain's functions as a person grows older should be given attention earlier in life.

Daily News - Friday, September 23, 1994

Bone mass hadn't been thought to increase in bone mass. But a recent study showed after age 17, bone mass and function declined.

Author slaps Grisham with plagiarism lawsuit

Harry R. Rosenfeld
Associated Press
WASHINGTON — A lawyer who represented convicted serial killer Ted Bundy and wrote "The Chamber," a fictional account based on the trial of an American Nazi defendant, has sued best-selling novelist John Grisham claiming "The Chamber," published in August, was directly copied from his book.

The lawyer representing both Grisham and the publisher, Doubleday, called the lawsuit "unenuined and an abuse of the law" after Mr. Rosenfeld identified six points "striking similarities" in the two books.

"Tell each exactly the same story," "The name of a new lawyer is an embryonic law firm who, to deter her from his own personal needs, minimum stretches of time, etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., e

Abusing the 'N word'

I start with the letter N and end in a cliche. The word is used honorably in rap songs but abused by a race to which it does not belong. It is a word that averages a new shock every once in a while, but it seems to be a topic of discussion just about every year when Washington, D.C., is the backdrop of some major event. There are those who claim we are overreacting to its use, and I agree. It seems to be a bit of a cliche, but I believe the issue is important.

The word dates back to the days of slavery and is still kept by some as an ingredient in their political milk shake. It hasn't caught on yet, the commonly misused word is 'nigger.' The word dates back to the days of slavery and is still kept by some as an ingredient in their political milk shake. It hasn't caught on yet, the commonly misused word is 'nigger.'

There is also the problem of welfare reform and the policy of going to Congress every year to renew the policy. The President signs the extension every year and then gets into it when he's out of office and wants to be re-elected. The word dates back to the days of slavery and is still kept by some as an ingredient in their political milk shake. It hasn't caught on yet, the commonly misused word is 'nigger.'

It is, however, a cultural reference to the idea of slavery and the dehumanization of African Americans. The word is used in a variety of contexts, from slang to formal language, and it has been a source of controversy for many years. It is considered by many to be a derogatory term, and it is not uncommon to hear it used in a negative context.

Country is in need of a defining moment

We are a nation with a penchant for labeling events, usually so as to ascribe little or no allegiance to the middle ground. One is either Republican or Independent, gay or straight, ethnic or Caucasian. Permutations like these are perpetuated endlessly and consistently. We are, as a result, an overabundant society of extremes. To everyone else also an extreme or a scene.

What this country is in dire need of, then, is a defining moment — an event that brings us to a unanimous understanding that transcends all our divisions of difference. One that truly makes a difference.

We’re in this together.

This is not new. Indeed, we’ve been here before.

What do we mean? Why is this country in dire need of something that brings us to a unanimous understanding that transcends all our divisions of difference? One that truly makes a difference.

One answer is that this country has always been in need of something that brings us to a unanimous understanding that transcends all our divisions of difference. One that truly makes a difference.

The reason is simple: the country is in dire need of a defining moment.

In the past, defining moments have been used to bring about change. In the 1930s, the Great Depression brought about the New Deal. In the 1960s, the civil rights movement brought about the Civil Rights Act. In the 1980s, the Reagan revolution brought about the economic growth.

Barros, Hill rise from obscurity to All-Stars

Astonished Press

NEW YORK — Dana Barros of the Philadelphia 76ers and Theresa Hill of the Cleveland Cavaliers were among the 14 reserves selected to the All-NBA team today for next month’s game.

Barros, 22, and Hill, 21, were two of the first All-Star reserves.

Barros, a 5-foot-10 guard, and Hill, a 6-foot-1 forward, were both selected in their first season in the NBA.

For Barros, it was a shock, but he was happy.

"It was the world of Demetr," Barros said. "I was off the court, off the court. I didn’t know what to do."

Barros reportedly has offered to guard "the Jew" for 15 million dollars.

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Connie Muffin redeemed herself at the three-throw line.

The Purdue senior was perfect on 10 of 10 shots and scored 20 points to lead the Boilermakers to a 76-66 victory over Indiana.

"I’m not voting for anything," Muffin said. "I don’t need to vote for anything."

Stockton moves in on Magic record

Bob Mims

SALT LAKE CITY — John Stockton's pursuit of Magic Johnson's career assist record at least temporarily took a back seat Tuesday night in Salt Lake City.

Utah's point guard, who ranks behind only Magic Johnson and the Chicago Bulls' assist specialist, is currently third in the league in assists. On Thursday, he passed Stockton and became Utah's all-time assist leader.

According to Stockton, who has 9,983 assists, the assist record is "something that's not going to make you the best player. It's just going to make you better."

"If we are talking about a point guard, I think that has been my best thing," said Utah coach Jerry Sloan.

Assistant Jeff Hornacek, who recently played against Stockton in the past, also voiced his belief in his former teammate.

"I don't think he has a shot at it. It's just a nice thing to have."

"I think you have to have a lot of other teammates and a lot of other things to go on."

"It's something," said Tim Floyd, currently with the Chicago Bulls. "It's just a nice thing to have. It's something you can build around."

"It's just a nice thing to have, but it's not going to make you the best player," said Tim Green, another former point guard. "You have to have a lot of other things to go on."

"It's not going to make you the best player," said John Stockton. "It's just nice to have."
Boyz II Men dominates with 3 wins at 22nd American Music Awards

LOS ANGELES — Boyz II Men explained as an entertainment figure at the 22nd annual American Music Awards, ARE Ass of R&B, Michael Jackson and the Beatles, with a top honor for pop and rock categories.

"I'd like to say thanks to all the people who voted for Boyz II Men," said Shawn Stockman at a news conference.

Monday night's awards show honored the best in American music, with performances from Def Leppard and the Eagles and performances at the 22nd annual American Music Awards.

But the biggest news was the debut of pop and rock categories. The award for the best contemporary artist went to Michael Jackson, the R&B superstar, and the Eagles, the pop-rock group.

As dozens of singers performed on Monday night, fans could hear the music of Def Leppard, the Eagles and various other artists, but the biggest news was the debut of pop and rock categories.

Jackson was the top contemporary artist, with the Eagles coming in second. Various artists, including Pink Floyd and the Eagles, won awards for their performances.

Jackson's victory was the first for an R&B artist at the American Music Awards, and he followed up his first win with another in the pop and rock categories.

"We Are the World," the benefit single for AARP and United Nations, was released in an all-night recording session that included Tom Steger, Turner Stone and Diane Bevans.

The Blue Kite plunges depths of China's Cultural Revolution

Tian Zhuangzhuang

New York Times

Quietly, fiercely, Chinese director Tian Zhuangzhuang’s “The Blue Kite” dives into the emotions of China’s Cultural Revolution, the period of 1953-65, the film is set in Beijing during the tumultuous period of a young boy, Tietou. The family follows them from the heady days of a young new country with a purpose to the chaos and horror of the Cultural Revolution.

Chen Kaige’s “Farewell My Concubine” may have been the same director’s处理 of the same general subject matter, the same story that took power away from the family, Zhuangzhuang took a different approach with his material, treating the story with complete reality and sincerity.

The stories told in “The Blue Kite” are real. Young women forced to go to “Suicides” with powerful cadres, school principals hounded before the show trials and interrogations, literal revolutions next door, parents have to live under the constant threat of the “Cultural Revolution Movement.”

“I think it is realistic approach that Zhuangzhuang took in his film,” said Brad Frieden, “The film was shot in 1989 and then went before a review board which blocked its completion. The film was set in Beijing during the tumultuous period of a young boy, Tietou. The family follows them from the heady days of a young new country with a purpose to the chaos and horror of the Cultural Revolution.”

The story centers on the family of China’s Cultural Revolution, the emotions of which would cram the movie. The film is banned in China, and Zhuangzhuang is barred from showing it in China, and instead in the Netherlands, using his mother and a full blown epic, a weeklong completion. The film sat in limbo for a year before finally being completed. The film was shot in Europe, using 1992 and then went before a review board which blocked its completion.
