SAFEWALK back on track

Students and faculty in US residence halls will be able to walk home from parties late at night now that SAFEWALK is back on track. SAFEWALK, a student-run program that provides an alternative to public transportation, will begin its nightly service between 7 p.m. and 2 a.m. once again.

“SAFEWALK really brings a sense of security and convenience to the students. It’s important to have a program like this at UI that provides an alternative to public transportation,” said SAFEWALK Coordinator Sara Greenwalt.

Despite meager turnout, juniors win in landslide

Gathering more of the vote than the three opposition candidates combined, juniors Willi Johnson and Jeremy Greenwalt were elected US Student Government president and vice president Tuesday night. The Williams-Johnson ticket won the election with 901 votes, or 57.8 percent. Their closest competitors, senior Christopher Styles and freshman Nicole Ungar, received 249 votes. Aaron Bonite and Laura Castrum were next with 148 votes, followed by sophomores Mark Sands and junior Lucas Greenwalt, who received 81 votes.

There was a 9 percent voter turnout. In all, 1,648 votes were cast — 355 more than last year’s total. Their campaign was the outcome of the movement and the growth of SAFEWALK.

“Some things are moving in the right direction,” Styles said. “It might not be the fast or the great, but it’s moving in the right direction.

Student involvement will be vital to the new administration,

"Our philosophy is that someone will be less likely to attack a group of students as opposed to a single person," said Dave Howard, SAFEWALK organiser.

SAFEWALK offers security and convenience to students who would otherwise be forced to walk alone late at night, Howard said. "What we’re doing is providing a safe way for students to get from place to place after hours without having to rely on public transportation.

Despite recent opposition from university and student groups, the fiscal year 1996 proposed budget for the Iowa State University Appropriations Group, which serves several student groups, was approved by the University Senate Tuesday.

“I was surprised to hear the council reject SAFEWALK,” Styles said. "It’s a great shame. If SAFEWALK were not present on our campus, many students would be forced to walk alone late at night and risk their safety.

“I think SAFEWALK is a great program for students and it serves a real need,” Howard said. "We’re going to continue to provide a service that students need and want.

Budget amendment vote put off

LEGISLATION SHY OF PASSAGE AS PARTIES WOO SWING DEMOCRATS

RACHEL MURPHY

WASHINGTON - In a struggle between the two major parties in Congress over a $225 billion, year-end Omnibus Appropriations Bill, the Senate voted Thursday night to defer debate on amendments to the legislation's spending ceilings and other provisions.

The House, however, voted to resolve the disagreement in the Senate before the bill could be sent to President Clinton, who has threatened to veto the measure if it contains provisions seeking to reduce the size of the federal budget.

The Senate by a vote of 50-49 refused to allow amendments, including one by Sen. Pat Robertson, R-Va., to cut social security payments.

The bill had been expected to pass the Senate by a 60-vote majority, but the amendment vote was delayed.

Larry Haddad drives the streets of Iowa City for a living. He drives a yellow cab with stainless steel on the roof, the kind regarded as the best in the business. Haddad, 36, lives in Coralville with his wife, Susan, and two daughters.

Haddad has been driving a cab for eight years. He says he enjoys the job because he can see the city from a different perspective.

"I love being out and about in the city," Haddad said. "I get to see all the different neighborhoods and meet people."

Haddad says he enjoys the challenge of driving in the city, especially during busy times like rush hour.

"It's not always easy," Haddad said. "But it's worth it to see the city from a different angle."

Haddad says he enjoys the freedom of being his own boss and making his own decisions.

"I like being my own boss," Haddad said. "I can make my own schedule and do what I want."

Interactive fiber optic networks hindered by lack of finances

The Iowa City area education community is estimated at $10,000, the total cost of outfitting classrooms at each of the 32 schools is estimated at $5.5 million. At these kinds of costs, we would need state aid with no classroom in each school, even the high schools. Given said.

Through fiber optic, high school students will be able to take courses not offered in their schools. They will all be able to take upper level coursework and college credits. High school students may be able to participate in classes from different school districts. Interdistrict communication fiber optic program could mean access through the interactive communication fiber optic program. Unlike courses offered through televisions in the schools, which would be viewed by the professor of teaching the class, the professor of teaching the class would be viewing the professor through the television.

Special equipment is needed to transmit the courses. Districts would need to purchase equipment for special classes, including two television sets, two transmitters, and two receivers. As little as $20,000 to $50,000 in distance telephone fare, it is of little value to districts. Districts with more than one high school are having difficulty finding the money to support them to get to the network.

"I found it to be useful for us in the last three years of our secondary school enrollment. We have a Community School District Superintendent, the West Branch district, which has 500 students, is interested in the interactive communication fiber optic program. We have work going on to allow people to take night courses. Dawson said.

"In order to get to be a person in the community, we have to provide services, to be working through the state with the governor through the proposed bill. I don't think the governor will say, 'We will not have in Iowa for the project. cable television is the Iowa City School District. I know there are some people who are worried about fiber optics being connected to the network.

The first phase involved connecting each of the Iowa City schools to the network. Two phases were estimated at $500,000 for both the Iowa City School District and the three county school districts. Phase three also included libraries, education agencies and schools districts. We are looking for contract money to make the project work.

Last fall, the Iowa Legislature approved a letter of intent for Phase one of the Iowa City School District. The proposal would increase the number of students able to participate, in work by allowing people to take night courses, Dawson said.

"We are looking for $40,000 for Iowa City for the project. We could do with the funds, but we don't want to make a decision. There is a lot of money that is being solicited for fiber optics, not just in Iowa, but we don't want to make a decision to go with it. We are looking for contract money to make the project work. Republican presidential candidate Lamar Alexander not only-wave to supporters in Hookton, N.H., Tuesday after announcing his plans to run for president in 1996. Alexander, a moderate who has long been considered aitetive to the right, is the second Republican to enter the race.

"We need a president who is a part of the people's revolution."

Alexander's campaign stressed unity, with many national leaders, in the aims of his presidential campaign. But while it would still require hundreds of millions to win, the move is a significant opportunity but not special privilege for the U.S. president.

He entered the race with the public still divided over his handling of the national security flaws, with job approval ratings and the economy, and for many voters, the size of the president's job.

Alexander suggested another theme, "the American Dream," and to keep his 1994 promise to make the White House a haven for the American people, to keep it.

As the Republican House members, Alexander said, "Put the efficient and efficient people in charge of the White House and make everything work for the American people."

But Alexander's campaign will have to be more than just a dream, the Washington Post reported Monday night and Tuesday morning.

They and others have been worrying about a good time when they leave. It said the White House and the national security flaws, with job approval ratings and the economy, and for many voters, the size of the president's job.

"They are no longer just having a good time when they leave," the Post noted. "The White House, the nation's most special place, is no longer just a dream."

The death penalty: another Samantha in spurs

When I was 1 year old, my mother took my father to a movie in which a Japanese woman named Samantha was shot to death. My mother was 21 years old. My father was 27 years old. Samantha was shot 15 times on the movie's set in what has been called the "Death Row Theatre." My mother was not present during the filming of the movie. My father was not present during the filming of the movie.

The movie was "The Klansman," released in 1949. Samantha's death was depicted as a symbolic representation of the brutality and violence of the Ku Klux Klan, a group that was active in the United States during that time period. The film's depiction of Samantha's murder was intended to be a commentary on the anti-black sentiment prevalent in the United States during the 1940s.

In the 1970s and 1980s, the film was also used as a teaching tool in schools and colleges to illustrate the dangers of hatred and prejudice. The film's depiction of Samantha's murder was often used as an example of the consequences of racism and prejudice.

SAFEWALK Contained from Page 1A...January 10th. He said, "I don't wish to comment further on this subject," and hung up.

"It is very important that we keep our options open," said Supervisor Bob Johnson. "There is no need for panic."

The Safewalk program was developed in response to a string of sexual assaults on women in the area. The program provides a free, 24-hour service to women who feel threatened or who are being followed. It was initiated last year by the Iowa City Police Department.

Superintendent Johnson added, "We have received many positive responses from the community." He said that the program has helped to reduce the number of sexual assaults in the area.

The Safewalk program is staffed by volunteer women who are trained in providing assistance to women in危急 situations. They can be reached by calling the Iowa City Police Department at 452-3333. The program is funded by donations from local individuals and organizations.

The Safewalk program is a valuable resource for women in the community and is an important part of our overall approach to preventing sexual assaults.

ELECTION

Continued from Page 1...we were discussing the problems and issues involved. We both agreed that the situation is serious and that we need to take action."

"We need to rally the troops and fight for what we believe in," said Sister Mary. "We can't afford to lose this election."

The two women then went on to discuss other topics, including the importance of education and healthcare. They agreed that these issues are critical to the future of the country and that we must work together to find solutions.

The election is coming up quickly, and we all need to be prepared. Let's make sure we vote and encourage others to vote as well. Together, we can make a difference.

Iowa seeks revenge at Purdue

JACKSON BATTLES PAINFUL SEASON

Jacek Tiedtke

The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women’s basketball team hosted fifth-ranked Purdue at Carver-Hawkeye Arena Tuesday night and was defeated by the Boilermakers, 85-74. The loss drops the Hawkeyes to 12-12 overall and 6-7 in Big Ten play.

"I think the game we played tonight was our best game of the season," senior guard Whitney Jennings said after the game.

Whitney, who scored 14 points for the Hawkeyes, said the team played with urgency and pushed the ball down the court. However, Purdue had the upper hand throughout the game, holding the Hawkeyes to just 33 percent shooting.

Jennings, who was held to nine points, said the team struggled to get into its offense.

"We have a lot of different players that can play," Jennings said. "I think the game tonight was a good game for us because we battled and fought."

JACKSON, who has been nursing a sore thumb, said she will have scans on her hand on Friday. She said she will not play when Arkansas faces Texas on Sunday.

Holcomb said that Jackson's thumb is not a concern because it is the same thumb she hurt in college and she had scans on it. Holcomb said Jackson has been getting treatments on her hand and is expected to be ready for the Tennessee game on Sunday.

The Ladybacks (13-4) are currently ranked No. 1 in the country and are looking to extend their winning streak to 12 games.

AMES — Iowa State had the misfortune of playing at No. 1 Oklahoma on senior night and got blown out, Wednesday night, the 10th straight loss at No. 1.

No. 18 Oklahoma will visit for the final home game on Saturday.

Senior forward Bill Cartwright and seniors Mike Martin and Matt Becknum have been bound for California this winter.

The Cyclones are 5-1 at home and 1-2 in the Big Eight and 1-2 favored.

A 5-1 league record probably means No. 18 Oklahoma is the Big Eight's team of the year.

Iowa State has no home record for its first game against No. 15 Idaho at Tuesday night at Nebraska.

"We need to win this basketball game in the worst way for NCAA tournament reasons," Tim Floyd, Iowa State basketball coach said.

"It will be an emotional night at our place," Floyd said. "We've got some预案 against this game. We need to win this basketball game in the worst way for NCAA tournament reasons. We have to do the job of winning the first game and then we'll worry about the next game after that."

The seniors certainly would like to be, especially Mike Martin and Matt Becknum. These seniors from the freshmen that have already been able to accept them through the years. They are a big part of this team, my every big part of this team. They all played great minutes, and we're glad to have them as part of the team."

"It's a special group, we always try to do the best we can with them." Floyd said.

The senior night is a special group, too. Iowa State's career list, senior night, and in the last four years, they've got 80 percent of Iowa State's points and 85 percent of the minutes.

History in Iowa State and its popular top five career scores, while Murray in 18th with 1,339 points, Iowa State has gone 50-9 at home during their careers and 50-9.

Slugeplow to take Metro stage, continues quest for drummer

Clint March

The Iowa City Press-Citizen

Said Duggan, the band's frontman, "We have always felt there has been an audience for our music in Iowa City. However, inconsistency in sound and a strong for- mation have kept us from finding that audience." Pointing to the crowd, Duggan said, "I think the crowd tonight has heard us and he has missed us. The audience tonight has been able to see the band's full potential."

Duggan said he hopes the band's recent performances in Iowa City will help them gain a following in the area. The band has performed several times in the city over the past year and has gained a reputation for their energetic and engaging performances.

The band's next performance will be at the Metro, a popular music venue in Iowa City. Duggan said he is excited about the show and hopes to draw a large crowd.

Duggan also discussed the band's upcoming album, which is tentatively titled "Singular." He said the album will feature a mix of acoustic and electric sounds and will showcase the band's range as musicians.

The band's goal is to continue to grow and develop as a band, and Duggan said he is optimistic about the future. He said he looks forward to performing in Iowa City and connecting with fans in the area.

Country music fans entranced by The The's new tribute album

Stuart Reid

The Daily Iowan

The new tribute album to country music legend Loretta Lynn has been released, and fans are raving about it. The album, titled "Singular," features covers of some of Lynn's most popular songs by a variety of artists, including Dolly Parton, Garth Brooks, and Trisha Yearwood.

The album has received glowing reviews, with critics praising the artists' interpretations and the album's overall sound. One reviewer wrote, "The album is a true celebration of Lynn's music and it's hard to imagine any of these artists filling her shoes."

The album's opener, "You Ain't Woman Enough," is performed by Trisha Yearwood, who is a long-time fan of Lynn's music. Yearwood's version features a modern production and is a perfect tribute to the original. Another standout is "Coal Miner's Daughter," performed by Dolly Parton. Parton's voice is spot-on, and her interpretation of the song is true to Lynn's original.

This album is a must-listen for any country music fan, and it's clear that these artists have done Lynn's music justice.

The infant gnp bottle is a great item. When my son was old enough to hold objects in his hand, I attempted to teach him how to hold his own bottle. After several tries with a regular bottle, and hearing from my customers how wonderful the infant grip was, I tried it. The infant grip is shaped in a way that infants drink with ease and I highly recommend it!
"Listen to Everyone in Your Company"

Once a week, I have a special town hall meeting in my department for managers and new employees. In the past, the meetings were aimed at explaining our products and answering customers' questions to get their feedback on Wal-Mart's items. I carry our customers as an important part of our company. The more we listen, the more we will learn to better serve them.

"Exceed Expectations"

I've had sign language training to talk easily with my deaf friend. One day, on a slow day at work, I was helping a customer at the checkout, and a deaf gentleman walked up to the counter. I realized I could help him. He signed to me and said, "Can you help me?" Suddenly, a big smile came across his face and he said, "Yes, you can help me." I asked him if he needed help. He signed, "Yes, I'm looking for a shirt." I signed the price to him and helped him make his purchase. He has returned many times and each time he comes to sign with me.

My favorite item is Hanes socks. I love Hanes for my sons and grandsons. I find they last longer than other brands. I have recommended them to my customers, and they've been happy. I tell them of my experience with Hanes and that for the money, it's a very good buy!
