Coleman ready to tackle athletic issues as UI leader

Kirsten Scharnberg

The Daily Iowan

Editor's note: This is the first in a three-part series about new UI president Mary Sue Coleman's first month in office.

The UI's new president is a huge sports fan - and the pressure's on the Hawkeye basketball players to not lose a game at home.

"I've yet to go to a game at Carver-Hawkeye where we've lost, so I'll just be devastated if we do," said Mary Sue Coleman, who took over the president's reins Dec. 27.

Civil rights legend kicks off week's celebrations

Kristen Mullin The Daily Iowan

Weaving his speech Monday night with warm and passionate words, civil rights activist and UI guest speaker Julian Bond offered words of hope to those battling racism.

The dream is still alive," he said. "The majority of African-Americans still believe in this dream. However, it is difficult when many things in your life indicate that this dream is unachievable."

Bond set a spirited tone for Martin Luther King Jr. Human Rights Week in his speech titled "Civil Rights, Then and Now," in which he said Americans must refocus their thoughts on civil rights.

"Martin Luther King was more than a movement - and the movement is more than Martin Luther King," Bond said.

The Daily Iowan

Beginning today, readers of The Daily Iowan will no longer need to venture out into the cold for their The DI's news, photos and graphics now are available on the World Wide Web at http://www.uiowa.edu/~dlyiowan/. "Our goal was to get The Daily Iowan on the World Wide Web and to improve it over time," Publisher Bill Casey said. "First, we will have editorial info and eventually we want to add advertising and things not in the daily issue. The sky's the limit.

The site, developed by Matt Ericson, DI graphics editor; Joanne Higgins, DI day production manager; and Casey, includes six sections: the front page, Metro/Iowa, Nation & World, Viewpoints, Sports and Arts & Entertainment.

Ericson, a UI junior, said 'Net surfers will be able browse each day's paper or search back issues of the DI to look up specific articles. Anything from a "Fairgrounds" comic strip to an article about Newt Gingrich can be found.

"There's a lot of things we wanted to include," Ericson said. "To start with, we'll have daily articles and nationwide news. We want the Web site to be easily accessible and usable.'

The Web site is a logical move, Casey said. The DI created the site to keep up with technology, give students experience working with the World Wide Web and allow people without regular access to the DI a chance to read the paper.

"In today's society, technology makes it possible for more people to have access to the DI," Casey said. "Many people - especially UI alumni - have fewer opportunities to read the DI and the Web page makes it accessible to them."

The Web site will compliment the DI, not replace it, Casey said, and he hopes the paper's circulation will increase 5,000 to 10,000 people a day with the access to the Web site, he said.

Faculty members pen books

A UI faculty member has authored a new text book concerning leadership and management by nurses.

"Leadership and Nursing Care Management," by Diane Huber, has been published by the W.B. Saunders Company.

An associate professor in the UI College of Nursing, Huber also serves as adjunct director of nursing at Mercy Hospital.

"It can be argued that nursing is a unique profession whose primary focus is on caring: giving care and managing care," Huber said. "Thus, nurses are both health-care providers and health-care coordinators. Since all nurses are involved in coordinating client care, leadership and management principles are part of the core competencies needed by nurses to func-tion in a complex health care environment."

Spotlight on Student Groups

UI STUDENT GOVERNMENT

"Our big focus this year is to try to get people involved. Elections are held in February. I encourage anyone interested in being a senator to run."

Jeremy Johnson, UISG President

NUMBER OF MEMBERS: Eight members on the executive council and 75 senators.

MISSION STATEMENT: To serve students and student groups. UISG's primary focus is to serve student groups. They also focus on implementing their programming and providing support for students on cam-

THE BENEFIT TO UI STUDENTS: UISG is working to facilitate student groups. They fund all student groups on campus and represent the student body to the Iowa state Board of Regents, the Iowa Legislature and to other schools. In addition, UISG works on students' behalf and provides its members with experience.

LONG-TERM GOALS: UISG changes from year to year, along with the concerns of students. UISG is currently working on safety issues and a reformation of course evaluations. The group has been sponsoring free movie nights, with one on Jan. 26 featuring "First Knight." UISG continually tries to bring the government closer to the students.

KEY ACCOMPLISHMENTS: UISG worked with the regents on the tuition issue. The group also is trying to make it possible to publish the results of course evaluations. As a result, students will be able to see what others think of a particular class. UISG also sponsored "Home for the Holidays," a program providing $10 bus rides for students to various destinations for semester break. They also distribute about $30,000 in scholarships to students.

MEETING TIMES & PLACES: UISG meets every other Tuesday in the Illinois Room of the Union at 6:30 p.m. Meetings may last from one hour to four hours and are open to any UI student. Johnson encourages student group leaders to attend, as well as any students who are interested in seeing how UISG works.

HOW TO JOIN: Anyone interested in UISG should stop by the UISG office in Room 48 of the Union, or call the office at 335-3860. Applications will be available Feb. 1 for senator positions, which require attending two meetings a week and being on a committee. Interested students must fill a petition with 75 signatures. The offices of president and vice president also will be open for next year. These positions require students to form a team, obtain 500 signatures and develop a campaign.

UI linebacker Marcus "Tex" Montgomery could face a variety of academic sanctions from the UI for an alleged assault on a former girlfriend, which violates university

The sanctions range from a nocontact order between Montgomery and the woman, to suspension or expulsion from the university, said Ann Rhodes, UI vice president for University Relations.

Montgomery was suspended from play before his final football game - the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas - on Dec. 29.

Johnson County court records say Montgomery, 25, was charged with assault causing bodily injury after he allegedly hit an ex-girlfriend several times in the face. dragged her down a flight of stairs and kicked her repeatedly in the Chemistry Building on Dec. 4. He was then arrested by UI security

The maximum penalty Montgomery could face is one year in ail and a $1,000 fine.

UI Dean of Students Phillip Jones and Tom Baker, with Student Services, will decide what sanctions the UI will take against Montgomery, Rhodes said. The decision may be independent of the court's decision in April.

Jones could not comment on Montgomery's case directly because of a student's right to privacy and would not comment on when a decision for Montgomery's status at the UI would be made.

Rhodes said she is unsure of what will result from Montgomery's case, since charges were dismissed on Dec. 22 and the victim later recanted her story. However, evidence to support that the incident took place, forced Johnson County courts to refile.

"It's hard to predict what will happen," she said. "In these kind of cases, it's not uncommon for the victim to change the story. It's hard to sort these things out."

In a similar case, Nebraska Cornhusker star Lawrence Phillips, a junior tailback who was a Heisman Trophy nominee, was arrested for assaulting his ex-girlfriend on Sept. 10. Within two hours of the arrest, Coach Tom Osborne kicked Phillips off the

Blood drive bolsters supply at UIHC

Tammi Mincemoyer

The Daily Iowan

A call for blood donors late last week has helped boost the depleted blood supply at UI Hospitals and Clinics, but it will take three to four weeks for the supply to return to normal.

The response from the Iowa City community was strong last weekend, with donation time slots completely filled, said Crystal Meier, a representative for the Elmer DeGowin Blood Donor Center at UIHC.

Over the past few weeks, a combination of local and national events dramatically affected the blood supply at the UIHC blood bank, Meier said. By Thursday, the amount of blood units, normally from 120 to 180 units, dropped to seven units of 0+ blood, the most common blood type.

Meier was unsure how many units were collected as of Monday, because of the increased number of donors and the consequent use of blood.

She said four factors contributed to the deple-

· The number of critically ill patients at UIHC requiring blood transfusions. For example, a liver transplant may use up to 40 units of blood.

· The snow storms on the East Coast drained

"The blood supplies are sometimes controlled by emergency situations, such as the winter storm in the East last week," said Doug Stahl, health promotions representative for Mercy Hospital, 500 E. Market St. "When disasters happen, our suppliers often take their surplus to other regions of the United States or locally, to whatever hospital is in need of it."

In addition to increased efforts at UIHC, Mercy Hospital and the Veterans Affairs Medical Center of Iowa City have had portions of their blood supplies transferred to DeGowin. Local businesses, including National Computer Systems and Rockwell International Corporation, also held blood drives to help increase the blood Rockwell hosts blood drives annually, but decided to help UIHC when it heard that the supply was low, said Gerrie Campbell, a human resources representative for Rockwell.

At one point, the blood clinic considered canceling elective surgery for UIHC, but such action was avoided by help from the community.

"The hospitals in the community have been amazing in their effort to aid us," Meier said.

Even though some UI students have donated blood, if 10 percent of the UI student body helped out, the supply could return to normal, Meier

The hours for the DeGowin Donor Bank, located at UIHC, are Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. A visit lasts approximately 45 minutes and appointments are usually scheduled in advance.

Clinton evokes King's legacy

Ron Fournier Associated Press

ATLANTA — Preaching racial unity from Martin Luther King Jr.'s pulpit, President Clinton said Monday the slain civil rights leader would find his dream unfulfilled today. "He would say to us, 'You've still got a ways to go," the president said.

"We have to continue to heal the racial divisions that still tear at our nation," Clinton said during the pre-eminent ceremony for King.

The president waited three hours to speak, visibly enjoying the lengthy, lively memorial to the civil rights activist and Nobel Peace Prize laureate who would have turned 67 Monday. King was killed April 4, 1968

Linking arms with King's son, Dexter, and wife, Coretta Scott King, the president puffed out his thest and sang "We Shall Overcome" and "Lift Every Heart and

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., front-runner for the Republican nomination, issued a statement in Washington, denying that U.S. society is racist but urging Americans to "swing open the doors of opportunity" for all. "As we begin the second half of the last decade in this great American century, let us dream a dream together, once again," Dole said.

A rally at Iowa's Capitol in Des Moines, which drew about 200 to hear speeches and the ringing of the state's Liberty Bell, was typical of others around the country.

But in Concord, N.H., four white supremacists rallied at the Statehouse to "congratulate" New Hamp-

Clinton was keynote speaker at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King, his father, and maternal grandfather preached for 81 years. King landmarks surround the church: the house where he was born and reared; the office where he plotted civil rights strategy; the church where he preached; and his crypt, which draws millions of visitors each year.

The visit was important politically for Clinton, who hopes to mobilize black voters in large numbers this year to help win re-election without abandoning the multiracial coalition that forged his victory in 1992. The crowd of several hundred chanted "Four more years!" as Clinton walked into the church.

crypt, Clinton stood at the Ebenezer podium and tried to imagine what King would say "if he sort of showed up, sidled down the aisle."

"He would say to us, 'You've still got a ways to go yourselves,' " Clinton said. "Here's what I think Dr. King would say if he were giving this sermon - in far more powerful and eloquent ways: 'You're doing better, but that's not good enough,' " the president said.

"He would say, 'Ask yourself this question as you walk out of this church today: How can it be that the crime rate in America is down, but the crime rate among young people ... is up? Are they still out there raising themselves? What are you going to do about that?" " Clinton said, at times adopting the cadence and style of a Southern preacher.

"What are you going to do about that?" he asked again.

Sen. Phil Gramm, who has a flat tax plan of his own, said Forbes' plan would be ineffective without a balanced budget amendment.

Gramm said Forbes opposes the constitutional amendment to balance the budget.

"If all we do is change the way we collect taxes, we could have a flat tax," he said. "But if spending keeps growing, we'll have a 100 percent rate."

Forbes said he was not surprised by the attacks and defended his plan as a way to spur the economy and solve social problems.

"It doesn't surprise me that now that my message of hope, growth and opportunity is taking root that the politicians are starting to snipe at me," he said.

The politicians were also sniping at Dole, the Senate majority leader who has been involved in budget negotiations with the White House. Gramm accused Dole of being too willing to compromise with Clinton on Republican principles, such as the amount of the GOP tax cut.

"Bob, is there some kind of secret deal you're cutting with Bill Clinton, and can you share it with us while we're here?" Gramm asked.

"Next time you're in town, look me up," Dole replied, referring to Gramm's absence from the Senate.

Buchanan ballot tested in N.Y.

Fred Bayles

Associated Press

CONCORD, N.H. - Republican presidential candidate Pat Buchanan skirmished Monday with Sen. Bob Dole's supporters as he accused Dole of "Soviet-style politics" for challenging his New York state ballot petitions.

Buchanan scheduled a news conference in front of Dole's campaign offices in Concord. But his van was surrounded by Dole backers as it drove into the parking lot.

Chants of "Dole '96!" and the soundtrack of a Dole campaign film nearly drowned out the conservative commentator as he tried to talk to television camerapeople.

Buchanan countered with his own symbol, cradling newborn Ian Glenney in his arms as he spoke. The child is the son of a New York supporter whose ballot petitions are being chal-

"Bob Dole has been my friend for 30 years and I thought it was wrong when his right to appear on the 1988 ballot was challenged," Buchanan said as the shouting ebbed. "I don't think he or you would want me to be kicked off the ballot."

Peggy Glenney, a Buchanan support-er from Wellsville, N.Y., said she traveled from house to house a month after Ian's birth, collecting signatures to get Buchanan's name on the ballot of New York's 31st Congressional District.

Those signatures, and petitions in 16 other New York districts, are being challenged by Dole's New York staff.

The New York ballot process is technical and often challenged. The deadline for challenges is midnight Tues-

Jeff Buley, counsel to the Dole campaign in New York, confirmed Buchanan's petitions were being scrutinized.

"The question is, are they valid?" he said. "One ballot in the 18th Congressional District has the same handwriting for hundreds of names."

IMMUNE SYSTEM MAY BE INVOLVED

Study: Men with previously born brothers are more likely to be gay

Malcolm Ritter

Associated Press NEW YORK - The more boys a mother has produced, the greater the chance that the next son will be gay, a study says.

The reason may involve the mother's immune system acting on the developing male fetus, researchers speculated. Or, they said, it could be a psychological effect on a boy of growing up with older brothers. Several earlier studies found that gay men tended to have more previously born siblings than heterosexual men did. The new study says this effect comes only from brothers, not sisters. Previously born brothers are not necessarily older brothers because the study also counted brothers who died before study participants were

Psychologist Ray Blanchard, head of the clinical sexology program at the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry in Toronto, reported the work in the January issue of the American Journal of Psychiatry with Anthony Bogaert, who has since left the insti-

The study used questionnaires filled out by 302 gay men and 302 heterosexual men. Each gay man was matched for year of birth to a heterosexual man. Both groups were about 39 years old on average. The men were asked to record all siblings born to their mothers.

Previously born sisters made no difference in a participant's chance of being gay, nor did siblings born after the participant.

But previously born brothers did. While 50 percent of the overall sample was gay, the rate was 45 percent for men with no previously born brothers, 53 percent for men with one such brother and 64 percent for men with two such brothers. Five of the seven men with four or more such brothers were gay.

Blanchard said those rates pertain to the sample and not the general population. The researchers did not calculate what the corresponding figures would be in the general population, he said, but the study shows each previously born brother would raise the probability of being gay.

The prior studies have spurred a variety of psychological and social explanations for the sibling effect. The leading one is that the effect was caused by sex play between brothers in childhood, with younger brothers more likely to be affected, Blanchard

Blanchard said he does not favor that view. He and Bogaert proposed the immune-system hypothesis. The immune system recognizes one or two particular proteins that males but not females have on cell surfaces, Blanchard said. Maybe these proteins progressively alter the mother's immune system response to male fetuses, and this somehow affects the fetal brain in a way that predisposes to homosexuality, Blanchard and Bogaert wrote

Blanchard said he could not be confident that the immune system explanation is accurate. In any case, the effect of previously born brothers would not explain homosexuality by itself, he said. Other factors, including genetics, are involved, he said. Michael Bailey, a Northwestern University psychologist who studies homosexuality, said the finding that gay men have more previously born siblings than heterosexual men has been shown "beyond a shadow of a PHILADELPHIA (AP) — As a fire killed his sister and cousin, Kenneth James was robbing the home of next-door neighbors who were trying to save them, police said.

When the James house erupted in flames Saturday night, Don and Cynthia Stephens opened their own front door and windows to clear out the smoke, then ran to help their neighbors.

James was charged with burglary, theft, criminal trespass, receiving stolen property and conspiracy and was held on $4,500 bail.

ARLINGTON, Texas - The streets where 9-year-old Amber Hagerman and her friends play were unusually quiet Monday. Two days earlier, they had echoed with her screams as she fought a man who dragged her into his truck.

The girl hasn't been seen since. "The streets are always full of kids playing. They aren't now," said neighbor Bruce Seybert, whose daughter is in Girl Scouts with Amber. "This is their time to sell cookies - I can't go out and let them do that.'

How can I add a CD-changer to my car's factory sound system?

The easiest way to listen to compact discs through your existing factory sound system is through an FM-modulator CD-changer. The sound of your CDs will be modulated and retransmitted over an FM frequency. You merely tune your factory radio to this frequency to hear the sound of your CDs. A small infrared sensor with digital read-out and a wireless remote control give you complete control over the six CDs loaded in the changer.

PRESIDENT'S VIEW

Opening the door

People of my generation know precisely where we were when we heard of the assassination of Martin Luther King Jr. in Memphis on the night of April 4, 1968.

My husband and I awoke to the news on our clock radio in Chapel Hill, N.C., where we were graduate students. We were shocked, sickened, grief-stricken, and almost in the same moment concerned about the conflict that might be unleashed within our own community.

The people of Orange County, N.C., had just emerged from a hard struggle with desegregation, as chronicled by John Ehle in his 1965 book, "The Free Men." Ugliness had a face in Chapel Hill. We all knew the gas station where the most embarrassing incidents of resistance to desegregation had occurred.

But now the community had come to grips with its diversity and had begun to exercise some civic maturity. Downtown restaurants were serving all customers. Howard Lee was mayor of Chapel Hill the first African-American elected to that office in the South.

We were proud of Chapel Hill's progress. But we knew how tense the community had been, and how dangerous the still-smoldering forces of resistance might be.

It was a time that called for personal witness to one's fundamental values. It seemed of paramount importance that all of good faith join in a public expression of sorrow, at the nation's loss of a great moral leader who spoke so eloquently to all of us and acted with gentle but firm insistence to assert a claim to universal human rights - rights denied in the very country that proclaimed so boldly their universality.

The next day Ken and I joined a large group of mourners — black and white - in front of the the post office, the traditional starting point for demonstrations in the college community. In silence, our group marched the two miles from East Franklin Street through the heart of Chapel Hill to West Franklin Street, where the memorial service was to be held at the center of the African-American community. It was an eerily quiet march through a university town known for its propensity to protest

The First Baptist Church on West Franklin Street was not large. It had been filled to capacity for hours. No one in our group expected to go in. Our purpose was simply to stand outside and show by our presence our respect for Dr. King. But within moments, the crowd at the door of the church parted, and members of the congregation began to beckon, inviting many whites in our group to sit with them. In that overflowing church, they were making room for us to participate in the service and share in mourning our collective loss.

Sunday morning at 11 a.m. was then, as now, among the more segregated hours in American life. Why was it that only grief could bring us together - frankly, could bring me to that door? I have never felt quite so humbled in my life as I did at that moment. A white man gunned down perhaps the greatest religious leader our nation had ever known, an African-American. This was a time at which anger, or at least resentment, might well have been expressed. For this congregation to extend, instead, a welcome to mourners of all races was an act of graciousness, of recognition that inspires by moral example.

The members of the First Baptist Church recognized, even in such trying circumstances, that white America had lost a moral leader also. And that some of white America did grieve.

And so with that congregation's act of witness - a gesture of kindness that assumed the best about others - I came to comprehend a bit more fully that for which Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. stood. Dr. King's life reveals that we must take risks on behalf of the attainment of justice and extend respect to all communities.

It is to those lessons that I seek to rededicate myself on this annual holiday. And it is to those principles that I urge the UI, as a community, to pledge a renewed commitment.

Mary Sue Coleman assumed the UI presidency Dec. 27, 1995.

Heeding his words

Martin Luther King Jr. would have been 67 Monday. If an assassin had not robbed him of his life on April 4, 1968, we probably would not yet be celebrating his birth. His assassination did not propel him to the status of a hero; it prevented him from continuing his heroism.

In the last year we have seen a further deterioration in race relations in this country. Louis Farrakhan's Million Man March on Oct. 16 ripped at the fabric of the African-American community and made whites uneasy. While the march contained a positive message of personal and familial responsibility for black men, its exclusion of women and the reputation of its controversial organizer diluted those good aspects. The Oct. 3 verdict of the O.J. Simpson trial divided the nation along the racial border. Instead of skirmishing fitfully along it, blacks and whites dug deeper trenches, widening the gap between understanding and community.

What's happening in this country? The legacy of Martin Luther King Jr. now seems to be little more than a fond memory of a man who led the struggle for civil rights for African-Americans. His message of unity and understanding has divided itself along racial lines. America is edging toward becoming a nation of separate nationalities living an uneasy co-existence, much as Yugoslavia did under communist rule.

Or is that only a white perspective? Was there ever really a sense of community in the United States? Did whites ever truly welcome blacks? It may be that we only think things were OK and race relations were progressing nicely. And now that people such as Farrakhan are organizing new marches and speaking of black pride again, whites are becoming nervous, seeing it as a fracturing of our society. The repeals of affirmative action laws and quota systems across the country are evidence of this. The white perception is that progress has been made. Case closed. In fact, progress cannot have a stopping point, and the words of Martin Luther King Jr. need to be heeded now as much as they ever were. Perhaps they need to be heeded more, by more people and on both sides of the racial divide.

In addition to welcoming Mary Sue Coleman as the new president of the UI, I suggest Martin Luther King Jr. Day be more than just the day off before the beginning of the spring semester. It should be a day of reflection on how far we have come in settling our differences and how far we have not come. And it should be an annual renewal of purpose in that cause. Don't let it whither away into obscurity. Without a remembrance of our history, this country has no future.

Coleman needs sharp eye at UI

I was asked to use this space to welcome our new president. Just after I accepted with all due enthusiasm, I began to think of other topics to address here instead. My fancy carried me to the streets of Sarajevo, the desk of Hillary Rodham Clinton and the brain of Iowa Governor Terry Branstad (which I believe retired early to live quietly on a farm outside of Ames). There is so much happening elsewhere, it becomes hard to focus here, where we play out our professional lives.

Words of advice for Coleman:

1) Begin each day by reminding yourself why it was you wanted this job. Trust me, if you wait long enough it will come to you, even amidst controversy.

2) Never leave a Hancher performance early just to avoid traffic snarls. (I saw Hunter Rawlings actually try to fold himself in two and duck out of Hancher one night before an encore. It didn't work, but it sure was fun to watch.)

3) Oh, yes. There is a hospital around here somewhere. I believe it is located in a separate nation-state. If you can, thump the upper tiers of its administration soundly now and then just to inspire some humility. It would make the rest of us feel a lot better.

New beginnings provide a wonderful opportunity to produce what I call constructive amnesia. You can use this tool to benefit the institution. In fact, if I could have any wish, it would be for everyone to forget their title and hierarchical position for 24 hours. I'm not sure what this would accomplish, but I have a long list of people I'd like to stand and watch for a few minutes if it ever happens - just to see how they move without an ill-placed 2-by-4 stiffening both their anatomies and attitudes.

That brings up one ongoing threat to our vitality. People tend to calcify, and few people are more like mollusks than those who selfselect into administrative posts. New leadership provides a chance to inject some liveliness into our daily patterns of existence. This may shelp us believe in our own best instincts for ecent management.

There are a lot of management theories afoot. Everyone claims to believe in them these days, but in reality they believe only until the theories knock on their office doors. Then, of course, things have gotten out of hand because no one least of all the people actually doing the work - can tell managers how to run their press all but the so-called "traditional values" at the UI the most frightening phenomenon I have witnessed in my 15 years here. This pressure will not evaporate without savvy, stout resistance that is both politic and firm.

It is your happy chore, President Coleman, to provide that leadership. My hunch is you will meet many defenders of academic freedom along the way. Marvin Pomerantz, president of the Iowa state Board of Regents, is usually a strong voice in support of our academic freedom. (As background you should review coverage of the meeting in the spring of 1993 where Pomerantz responded to Hunter Rawlings' passionate defense of academic freedom roughly as follows: "This makes two strikes. One more and somebody's gonna get fired around here." We think he might have been having a bad hair

It isn't my intent to be the bearer of bad news. Our news is not that bad. What you'veread here is probably the worst of it. The good news you already know. You have joined a remarkably capable and enthusiastic community - full of ideas, character and drive. We will continue to represent the university well as weexpand the boundaries of existing knowledge, make new discoveries, create new forms and structures for our administrative centers and help students reach new understandings to illuminate old truths. We often display the best traits of Iowans. It is both a weakness of our institution and a frustration for us that so few Iowans see themselves in us

While we may occasionally exhibit signs of war-weariness, we are also primed for optimism. You find us at the beginning of belief, the very best meeting place imaginable. Welcy," but last year was a nasty one in Des come to you and yours, and best wishes in all

Dreams of allure: It's in the cards

Kelly and I played cards one afternoon while drinking strange combinations of hard liquor, Boone's wine, and Mountain Dew. After a few drunken rounds of hearts, during which Kelly gets the Punta on every hand ("punta," the Spanish term for bitch, is a family nickname for the Queen of Spades who adds 13 horrible points to a score), she throws down her cards and proclaims loudly, "Steph, I want to move to "Please Kelly, tell me you weren't inspired by 'Showgirls.

"No, no, I didn't even see 'Showgirls' - but I have seen 'Flashdance' three or four times." "What's in Vegas, Kelly, besides tits and ass

"Why? What's wrong with working the Karaoke machine on Thursday nights? I thought you loved that job."

"I do, but it's not glamorous enough. I need more.

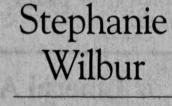

"More what? More hairy guys wearing Mr. T jewelry with socks stuffed down their pants who say to you after the show, 'Hey baby, I got a stack of blue chips and a free gift certificate to the White Castle'?"

"Well ... yeah."

"Where, may I ask, is the glamour in that?" "It's in a lot of places. It's in the costumes. And ... and ... the makeup. It's in a seedy audience of balding men with bad cigar-stained teeth who listen to me and think about what I'd look like singing naked; who wonder if my boobs have a pleasurable perkiness when I take a deep breath."

"That's not glamour. That's gross."

'Yeah, but it has it's own glamour. It's more of a power, you know. There's me - in the spotlight - wearing a gold sequined strapless gown and black stockings with a French seam up the middle. My hair is pulled all the way to one side and held there by Aqua Net and a comb with a big plastic orchid glued to it. I am wearing the deepest blue eye shadow and shiny red lipstick and I am absolutely dazzling. Oh, and my boobs are HUGE!" "But Kelly, your boobs aren't huge."

"Ahhh, but Steph, they will be after the breast augmentation.'

"When all the men come up to me after the show and fight to light my cigarettes. When all the cheating husbands with white rings of skin around their fingers instead of shiny gold bands tell me I've 'moved them.' There lies the real power."

"And I will sing Ella Fitzgerald songs, but I won't belt them out and scat them like Ella does. I will sing them in sexy whispers while I drape myself over a piano." "And the power in this is ..."

"But Kelly, that's not power. That's sad. You haven't moved them at all, only a small part of their anatomy."

"Oh, but it is power because you see, Steph, it's all a joke. The joke's on them.

"What's the joke?"

"The joke is me. I'm not sexy or attractive. They've been duped! I can sit there the whole time while they buy me Jim Beam and Cokes and think, 'You like me? Well you must be an idiot! Ha! Ha! You silly men duped again by one more plain Jane with a flat chest! You silly Cro-Magnon apes. You fell for my dirty plan. Attracted to me? That just shows me how little you know.'

WASHINGTON - Hillary Rodham Clinton said Monday that her conversations with presidential aides on reported financial mismanagement at the White House travel office could have unintentionally prompted the mass firings there.

While continuing to maintain that she didn't order the travel office purge, the first lady said that aides could have misconstrued her remarks to mean she wanted the seven employees dismissed.

"The mere expression of concern could be, I guess, taken to mean something more than ... was

Prisoner exchange fails as Dayton deadline nears

BOCAC, Bosnia-Herzegovina -A prisoner swap meant to demonstrate the will for reconciliation among Bosnia's hostile factions fizzled Monday. Only nine people were freed instead of the hundreds expected.

The failure, four days before the Jan. 19 deadline for all prisoners of war to be freed under the Dayton peace agreement, displayed the lingering enmity and mistrust that threatens the peace pact.

As in the past, the main stumbling block was government insistence that Serbs account for thousands of missing people.

"No agreement has been made about the release with the Serb side" because the Serbs refuse to say what happened to 24,742 people whose names have been handed to them, said Amor Masovic, the Bosnian government official charged with overseeing POW exchanges. Masovic said 4,000 of those are thought to be prisoners. The fate of others is unknown. They include thousands of people who disappeared in 1992 as the Serbs swept through northern and eastern Bosnia, expelling, imprisoning and killing Muslims. wants to know what happened to ers had been held since 1993. the Serbs after the fall of the eastern enclave of Srebrenica in July. Human-rights organizations, the United States and other governments have evidence that thousands of detainees were massacred. The Serbs deny it.

The International Committee of the Red Cross, which mediates prisoner releases, says it understands Bosnian government concerns but considers those missing from Srebrenica to be a separate

The Serbs have listed only 123 prisoners to be released to the government, Masovic said.

The government appears unlikely to drop the issue of the missing without an admission from the Serbs that the people are imprisoned, or — as most believe — dead. The Red Cross and the NATO-led force implementing the peace had expected nearly 500 Bosnian Serbs,

Brashier steps down from Hawkeye staff

Iowa Ássistant Head Coach and defensive coordinator Bill Brashier decided to end a 17year relationship with the Hawkeyes when he announced his retirement on Jan. 5.

Brashier, 66, began his career at the high school level in 1954 and has been a college defensive coach for 27 seasons. He has spent the last 23 of those seasons work-

Fry said he would miss his

"This is the saddest day of my life," Fry said. "Bill is not only a great coach, but a truly great person and a close personal friend. College football is losing a great coach with his retirement.

Fry also said that he talked Brashier out of retirement a year ago, something he promised he wouldn't try again.

"I'd made up my mind that this would be my last year. I've been in coaching 42 years and I'm going to be 67 years old," Brashier said. "The program is in great hands and the future is

Hawks go out with a bang

Sun Bowl produces respect for Iowa

Chris Snider

The Daily Iowan

EL PASO, Texas - Don't mess with Texas ... or Iowa.

With a roster that features 18 players from the state of Texas, the Hawkeyes appeared to be right at home in the Lone Star state. They beat the Washington Huskies, 38-18, in front of 49,116 at the Sun Bowl Stadium on Dec. 29, less than five hours from head coach Hayden Fry's home town of

"That was one fine effort by a group of fine young men, and they whipped, put that in capital letters, a very fine Washington football team," said Fry. "It seemed like every phase of the game was outstanding."

Iowa was motivated by the lack of respect shown them by the media, who basically picked the Hawkeyes to lose, and the Husky players.

"They didn't have any respect for us," tight end Scott Slutzker said. "It was obvious from the things they said in the paper. It was obvious from the way they acted when we were around. It was arrogance and a general lack of respect for our program."

Leading the way for Iowa was the kicking game. Junior placekicker Brion Hurley split the uprights from distances of 49, 47 and 50 yards, each time easily making the yardage. Zach Bromert added a pair of chip shots from 34 yards in addition to all of his extra

"The kicking game was probably as good as any bowl game you're going to see," Fry said.

Hawkeyes sizzle against Spartans

Michigan State coach Karen Langeland saw her worst nightmare come true Sunday afternoon at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

And the Iowa Hawkeyes sent a message to the rest of the Big Ten.

The No. 9 Hawkeyes set season highs in three offensive categories and overcame injuries to two key players in a 75-56 victory over Michigan State.

Iowa shot a sizzling 66 percent from the 3-point arc, making six-ofnine 3-pointers, both season bests. The 75 points were also a season high. It wasn't something that Langeland expected.

"Who was this team and where did they come from?," Langeland said of Iowa. "From the tapes that I had seen, I thought if there was a weakness, it was their outside shooting. But they did a great job of getting a good shot and making

Iowa didn't waste any time taking control of the game early. The Hawkeyes jumped out to a 9-0 lead and Michigan State didn't score for the first four minutes. Iowa's Tiffany Gooden buried a 3-pointer to stretch the Hawkeyes' lead to 17-2 at the 14:23 mark. A Nadine Domond tip-in gave Iowa its biggest lead of the half at 24-8 with nine minutes left. Michigan State managed to bring the lead down to 11 at halftime, but Langeland said it was a tough hole to climb out of.

didn't. Iowa has a lot of weapons and it's tough to win on the road when you aren't playing your best basketball," Langeland said.

For all of Iowa's offensive dominance in the first half, the Spartans out-rebounded the Hawkeyes 22-13. Iowa coach Angie Lee said she was not happy with her team's effort on the boards during the first 20 minutes.

"It was very clear where the damage was being done," Lee said. 'I didn't think we were getting back on defense or getting after the ball. I'm glad that in the second half the team addressed the issue of rebounding better and they did." Iowa received a major scare just two minutes into the second half when senior point guard Karen Clayton was left writhing on the floor after a scramble for a rebound. Clayton later had to be carried from the floor with what turned out to be a sprained ankle and the point guard duties were left to freshman Stacy Frese. Lee said she was concerned for Clayton but knew that Frese could get the

"Reading the newspaper this morning, I guess there was like 16 newspapers and only two of them picked us to win," Tavian Banks said after the game.

He wasn't the only one that mentioned that article. But make no mistake, Iowa gained some respect.

Washington may not equal USC's talent, but the teams did tie headto-head in '95 and they did share a PAC 10 Championship. USC, by the way, had little problem handling the Big Ten champs in the Rose Bowl.

As a matter of fact, four out of the six Big Ten bowl participants came up empty. Only Iowa and Penn State brought home victories. THE MONKEY

"I grew up in Iowa and I can't even remember the last time Iowa won a bowl game," Mike Burger said. "It feels so good to get the

"And on the other hand," Burger continued, "it's such a good confidence builder going into next season. We couldn't ask for anything Hawkeyes were a team to worry more."

Hawkeyes were a team to worry about in '96.

Iowa has to kick off 1996 with a home game against Arizona. But no way, no how will the Hawkeyes be intimidated by a PAC Ten powerhouse anymore. The "monkey" is gone, remember?

Another thing that has to keep the Hawks confident is the way they prevailed despite a four-game losing streak. Say what you will about the Sun Bowl, but I say the game of the year took place in Madison, Wisc.

LANDOVER, Md. - Michael Jordan scored 19 of his 46 points in the fourth quarter as the Chicago Bulls won their eighth straight Monday, 116-109 over the shorthanded Washington Bullets.

Chicago trailed after three quarters before rallying behind Jordan, who had his second straight 40plus game. He scored 48 Saturday n Philadelphia.

Scottie Pippen scored 27 points and Dennis Rodman had 15 rebounds for the Bulls, who improved to 31-3 with their 21st win in 22 games.

Brent Price scored a career-high 30 for the Bullets, who dressed only 10 players because Chris Webber, Calbert Cheaney, Robert Pack and Mark Price were all sidelined with injuries.

Jeff Donn Associated Press

AMHERST, Mass. - Massachusetts center Marcus Camby will be sidelined at least two weeks for further tests, which so far show no heart abnormalities, the team doctor said Monday.

Dr. James Ralph said the star center, who collapsed Sunday minutes before a game against St. Bonaventure, likely will remain at the hospital until the battery of tests is completed.

Camby returned to Massachusetts on Monday, saying he felt "100 percent" and was "anxious to get back on the court."

"I'm fine, I feel great," Camby said upon leaving Olean (N.Y.) General Hospital.

Ralph said doctors were still uncertain about what caused Camby to collapse based on preliminary tests that included an echo cardiogram, blood work, CAT scan, brain MRI and spinal tap.

The 21-year-old Camby was admitted to the University of Massachusetts Medical Center in Worcester on Monday for more extensive heart testing.

"Any circumstance like this is unsettling to everyone, that's why they are going to do every conceivable test," Ralph said, adding he was particularly troubled Camby was unresponsive for 10 minutes

Camby had been taking medicine to fight a cough and felt lighthead-

Packers unable to shake Dallas jinx

Arnie Stapleton Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. - The Green Bay Packers' best season in 28 years ended the same way the previous two did, with a disheartening loss to the star-studded Dallas Cowboys at Texas Stadium.

The Packers were so sure that they'd finally reached the Cowboys' level that they brought cases of champagne to celebrate with on the flight home.

They toasted their surprising season instead, one in which they got within 15 minutes of their first Super Bowl since 1968.

The Steelers, by contrast, talked respectfully of the Cowboys, but showed no outward trepidation in playing the team that will be making a record eighth Super Bowl appearance. "I don't know if they're in their

The Steelers have an enviable Super Bowl report card of their own: 4-0, with two victories over Dallas. But those 1970s-era games came when most of the current Steelers were in grade school.

"This team won't be intimidated by anybody," coach Bill Cowher said. "... The Cowboys are (confident), and they have every reason to be. They've backed up their talk in recent years. But, at the same time, we've played good football for the last three months, and we want to finish it off right. It's like I told the team, people don't remember the losing team.

"Twelve points? Already?" Pegram said. "That's just another challenge to us. The truth is, it's the best team on game day that wins. It's the Super Bowl, but it's still a game."

It's also a game that, for the first time in their five trips there, the Steelers aren't favored to win.

Still, they talked as if that would be to their advantage, as the nation focuses its attention again on Deion, Troy, Emmitt and the Jimmy Johnson-less Cowboys and basically ignores the Steelers.

What is real?

In 1962, French filmmaker Chris Marker created a haunting short film titled "La Jetee," which explored the fine line between reality and insanity. Almost 25 years later, "La Jetee" served as the basis for a new venture into the depths of our minds. The result is "12 Monkeys," a thought provoking and visually dazzling

The year is 2035 and humanity subsists in a grungy, desolate underworld following a holocaust that has made the planet's surface uninhabitable and mankind's destiny uncertain. In order to preserve their fate in this grave new world, a group of desperate scientists secure a volunteer to travel back in time in hope to unravel the mystery of the apocalyptic nightmare before it completely erases humankind from the planet.

When Cole (Bruce Willis), the reluctant volunteer, arrives in 1990, he meets Jeffrey Goines (Brad Pitt), the unstable son of a renowned scientist, and Dr. Kathryn Railly (Madeleine Stowe), a psychiatrist whose expertise lies in the study of madness and prophecy. Railly first diagnoses Cole as delusional, a madman. The fine line between sanity and insanity, dreams and reality soon blurs as Cole struggles to unravel the mystery with his only two clues: a haunting childhood memory and a series of puzzling symbols from a group known only as The Army of the Twelve Monkeys.

The captivating element of "12 Monkeys" is its intriguing, intelligent script from David and Janet Peoples ("Unforgiven"). The story keeps the audience enthralled and involved with the plot by turning

When you get down to it, the best aspect of "12 Monkeys" is that it requires you to think. Which character knows the truth? Which one is delusional? And how does any of this relate to the central story? The film offers many enticing questions and keeps the audience guessing until the conclusion.

With solid performances from Pitt, Willis and Stowe, a creative script and some inspired work from director Gilliam, "12 Monkeys" turns out to be a thoroughly engaging and enjoyable film. It's more fun than a barrel of ... well, you get the idea.

Homosexual characters populate TV programs

LOS ANGELES - Television has discovered safe sex: Gay and lesbian characters are just dandy as long as you leave out the passion and substitute punch lines instead.

Howls of protest once greeted homosexual story lines. Now a growing number of gay characters populate TV series, especially sitcoms, but are drawing scant fire from conservative critics.

And they are provoking little apparent skittishness among advertisers or station owners.

The secret? Keep it light and try to avoid the physical stuff. And, just maybe, count on familiarity to breed viewer acceptance. In 1990, ABC lost half its advertisers and $1 million for an episode of the drama "thirtysomething" showing two men in bed. More recently, Roseanne was slammed for smoothing with Mariel Hemingway and Fox, under pressure, cut a gay kiss from "Melrose Place."

If there's one thing that makes a network lose its vertical hold, it's controversy. Yet, the gay and lesbian presence on television is greater this season than ever

On Thursday, "Friends" celebrates the marriage of Ross' lesbian ex-wife to her partner. Lesbian activist Candace Gingrich - sibling of House Speaker Newt Gingrich — officiates as minister.
Tonight, over on "Wings," the estranged gay son of Roy Biggins (David Schramm) returns for his father's birthday party and a chance to re-establish their rela-Chandler and Joey (Matthew Perry, Matt LeBlanc) of "Friends" are baby-sitting Ross' infant for a day and are mistaken as an adoptive gay couple by a bystander.

On "Roseanne," the star talks her former boss Leon (Martin Mull) through wedding cold feet when he questions his homosexuality:

"You couldn't be any gayer if your name was Gay Gayerson," Roseanne assures him. The celebratory kiss was more suggested than shown; on "Friends" Thursday there will be

For potential critics, the muted outcry does not mean they are content with the situation. One group suggests the restraint, in part, reflects the fact that protest equals publicity for television.

The conservative watchdog Free Enterprise & Media Institute has been keeping an eye on the increase in gay depictions. It says viewer rebellion at more graphic sexual displays forced the networks to retreat, but only

"I think the entertainment industry collectively thinks the rest of the world needs to accept this lifestyle," said Sandy Crawford, who monitors Hollywood as the institute's entertainment division director.

"They realized they couldn't make the lifestyle palatable by shocking people" so they turned up the volume, she said. Political pressure from gay activists has been a factor, Crawford contend-

Wrong, respond "Wings" pro-ducers Mark Reisman and Howard Gewirtz.

"I don't know any producer who would either do an episode or not do an episode because they're lobbied," said Gewirtz. Of this week's "Wings": "We're just proud of it as an episode that deals with a father and a son, and we think it's touching and

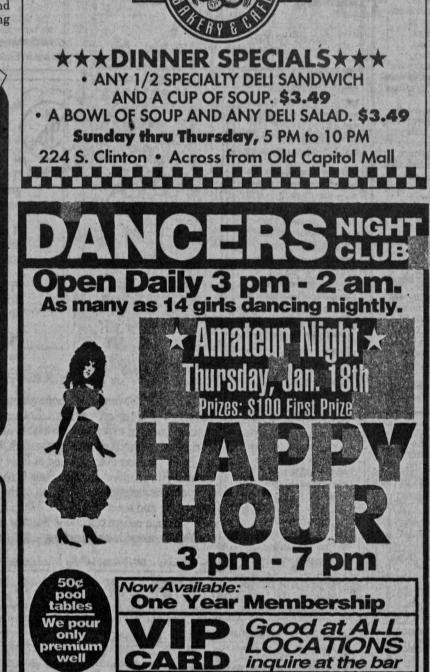

While the gay and lesbian community welcomes its increasingly high TV profile, members have their own complaints.

The picture "is brighter, but there's an asterisk there," said Tamra King of the Los Angeles chapter of the Gay & Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation.
