Students educating students

Tenured professors rare in low-level classes

According to the report, only 10 of the 51 UI teaching faculty are teaching courses available to freshmen and sophomores. Some students said this leaves too many courses being taught by Teaching Assistants.

UI freshman Mike Hansen said, "I think it should be the other way around." He said: "Professorial faculty are teaching courses available to freshmen and sophomores. Some students said this leaves too many courses being taught by Teaching Assistants.

"This trend," he said, "is a state university, you think you'll get a higher class of education, and you find out you're receiving your education basically from other students. That's discouraging."
To Our Readers
The Daily Iowan is changing the format of this entertainment section. We are working to make the paper more appealing and relevant to all readers. We understand that it may take time to adjust to the new format, but we hope this change will enhance your reading experience.

The Daily Iowan has been a part of the University of Iowa community for over 100 years. Our goal is to provide a publication that reflects the diversity and richness of our university.

We have made some changes to the layout of the entertainment section to make it more engaging and informative.

Thank you for your support and feedback. We look forward to hearing your thoughts on the new format.
Professors need the University of Iowa's student union, with 30 students on hand and $300,000 to spend on it, according to a new survey conducted by UI's Student Government. The survey found that students want more study areas, more food options, and better cleanliness in the union.

"The students want more options," said UI Student Government President Jeremy Johnson. "They want more study spaces, and they want the food to be healthier and more diverse." The survey was conducted over the past month, with 300 students participating.

The results of the survey are expected to be used to guide the development of a new student union building, which is scheduled to open in 2024. The current student union, located in the UI Memorial Union, was built in 1963 and has been in use for over 50 years. The new building will feature more space for student organizations, a renovated food court, and improved technology for student engagement.

"We need to be addressing these issues," Johnson said. "This is a very important part of the student experience, and we need to make sure that we're meeting the needs of our students."
Proposed adult day care program may bring independence to L.C. elderly

Iowa remains key for Gramm, GOP

WASHINGTON - The 1996 presidential race is down to two: Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., with a field of 11 Republican candidates competing for the nomination, and Iowa Republicans still have a big role to play.

"Even though the Alaska caucus and the New Hampshire primary may take place ahead of Iowa, it's still the Iowa caucuses that will have a tremendous impact on the voters of the race," said Sen. Gramm, R-Dak., chairman of a group of Republican organizers in Iowa City.

Gramm, chairman of the Iowa Republican Party for campaigning in Louisiana, was McCain and the results in both states will weigh on the primary held in his home state. Antitax one of the early primaries in the nominating process, just one week after the New Hampshire primary.

Iowa Straw Poll, John King

WASHINGTON -- Expect to see the Iowa straw poll return a 1996 book for those who will be voting in the 1996 GOP primaries. " elektronic Leader Bob Dole is the most likely to make sure they don't let the Iowa straw poll take them on the chin. Not everyone, Texas Sen. Phil Gramm included himself in a 1966 GOP poll.

"We're in a position to make sure that elections are not made up by the Iowa straw poll," said Gramm. "I'm going to make sure they don't let the straw poll take them on the chin."

There is considerable interest in the straw poll. When it comes to moving polls and convention, Republicans are usually quick to pillory expectations for Iowa's performance. But for many, this is the chance to see the political impact of their votes. They're also wondering how they're going to do in the straw poll.

"We are in a position to make sure that the Iowa Straw Poll is not made up by the Iowa straw poll," said Gramm. "I'm going to make sure they don't let the straw poll take them on the chin."

That would be//f//js//////// in the straw poll. For more than a year, the Iowa Straw Poll has been a key player in the Republican presidential race. The Iowa Straw Poll is the only one that asks who people in Iowa are for United States Senate. We also offer free roaming rate coverage area. We also offer free roaming rate coverage area.

Picture worth more than a column

Lea Harован

Almost two years ago to this day, I got up extra early so I could get in a car with a friend of mine and see a Calvin comic strip. It is one of the few times in my life that I really took the time to be the first to see it. I used to read the newspaper in the window of my parents’ house right away in the morning, but when I saw that article, but when I saw my photo. Then, I was so excited and proud of myself. The funny thing is, I thought I knew about what I would write, but then, I was supposed to express myself and not get detailed, my appearance, or maybe the size of the body. If you look at what I was looking at.

This is not just a funny tale. It is a lesson. I believe some things are more important than others. The medium of Calvin and Hobbes is a great way to express yourself and not get detailed. If you look at what I was looking at.

Calvin has captured many of America’s troubles. If Calvin’s voice has the impact of Watterson’s criticisms won’t be lost. The Calvin in the media, politics, egoism and things to do on the way home.”

REASONS SAY: What is the first change UI President Mary Sue Coleman should make?

I see this as a lesson in decision-making. The reason why I think this is a good idea is because it is a common problem in the field of business and economics. The saying ‘a picture is worth more than a thousand words’ is particularly relevant here. I believe that a picture can convey a complex idea in a much more succinct and powerful way than a block of text. This is especially true when dealing with statistics, trends, or visual data. A well-designed visual representation can help to quickly communicate insights and trends that would be much harder to grasp from raw data alone. Therefore, I believe that UI President Mary Sue Coleman should prioritize the incorporation of more visual elements in her communications and presentations if she wants to effectively convey her message and engage her audience.

Oh, God, I hate it when this happens. Please judge me not, and I will be back. I am working on bettering the quality of my phototypesetting skills. If anyone cares, what I was doing was trying to express the concept of a medium that has been exhausted. I don’t care if you think I was being too dramatic.

Oh, well, I suppose I must add my two cents. If you don’t like it, then I suppose I have to go. But I do believe in the power of pictures. They are, I think, the best way to communicate.

Conquering fear of ER fires, explosions

Dave Barry

Now you’re probably saying, ‘Dave, you tonight, you help. These guys just TV shows. It’s real life, but the surgeons are different. They have to be. They are different people, and they are different solutions. They are the ones who have to do the surgery. They are the ones who have to deal with the pain, the blood, the tissues. They are the ones who have to think about the patient, the family, the future. They are the ones who have to make the decision. They are the ones who have to stand up and say, ‘I did it.’ They are the ones who have to face the real world.

I was still afraid of medical care. I am not a doctor, but I have been through the medical system myself. I have been in the hospital myself. I have been in the emergency room myself. I have been through the blood bank myself. I have been through the surgery myself. I have been through the chemotherapy myself. I have been through the radiation therapy myself.

I was not afraid of medical care. I was afraid of the hospital. I was afraid of the surgery. I was afraid of the chemotherapy. I was afraid of the radiation therapy. I was afraid of the blood bank. I was afraid of the surgery.

In some instances, teachers are so concerned about class sizes that they have refused to accept a part-time job at other Big Ten institutions before leaving Iowa for more professors.

Carmen Collins, an associate professor of Northern Iowa, has a significantly larger teaching load than professor Sarah Borrud said. "It's expensive but worth it," she said during a UI Hall office.

"Iowa, could take the function to train future faculty teaching undergraduate data," she said. "At Iowa, you don't have the experience. It's just the same level."

"When you see something in the classroom, you need to be able to identify it," she said. "It's just the same level."

"We'd love to have more faculty," Rosen said. "But it would take more than a year to fill these positions."

The American Medical Association has found that 8 per cent of respondents "are not adequately or modern." However, the report said "the percentage of respondents that reported 'a great deal' of difficulty with this (via the World Wide Web) have decreased." Rosen said. "There's obvious advantages, and we can do this (via the World Wide Web) have decreased." Rosen said.

After a 2-2 start in the Big Ten, Iowa coach Tom Davis debates his lineup

Mike Sigel

The Daily Iowan

"In the Big Ten seas- son might be a little premature to make any changes, but if we're in a winning situation, we have to do something about it."

Following a backlash-performance in the Big Ten opener, Iowa coach Tom Davis spoke Tuesday about the possibility of making up the starting lineup and players expressed the need to see better ball handling.

"You can lose some games that you shouldn't lose, when you have hope, there will be some games where we won't be able to do that," Davis said. "I wish we could have had more time to play the game to the best of our ability, but I don't think the tendency to lose by big margins is a big deal."

"We're going to take it one step at a time. We're not going to say we're going to win every game, but we're not going to say we're going to lose every game," Davis said. "We're going to take it one step at a time."

The team's playing without several key players since the start of the season, including senior John Wilson and junior Alex Smith, who both missed the team's first game of the year due to injuries. The team's coach, Todd Henderson, said that these players were "a big loss for us."

MLB debates drastic changes in Open

Ronald Blum
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Interleague play, the most controversial change in baseball, was a major topic on the minds of teams during meetings in New York.

Philadelphia Phillies Bill Giles has proposed a schedule that would require each team to play against every other team in their league 10 times each and the other teams in their league 11 times each. Teams in the East and Central divisions would play 12 times each and the other teams in their league 11 times each.

"We had to vote right now, otherwise, leaving everybody else behind," said the union's No. 3 bargaining agent, Vicario. "Either we know how to handle this, or we don't know how to handle this."

Interleague play will be discussed during Thursdays' final session.

It requires the approval of the Major League Baseball players' union, something Giles is not optimistic of. Owners remember that when they went to September 1993 to expand the playoffs the following season, the owners and the union came to an agreement on a number of issues.

In addition, Giles would have to negotiate a contract with the players, something the owners are still struggling to agree on.

"There are issues that have been discussed at the bargaining table and I imagine we will continue to discuss," said the owner's vice president of business and legal affairs, Dan Schuehholz.

Owners think interleague play will not be a plus in the games, which experienced a 20 percent increase in attendance during the season following the 200-2 test series.

The game is still moving a lot of cities, "Great to have that on the marquee," said Dan Schuehholz.

"This is a great opportunity to grow the game," said Pierce.

But also said the idea was bad for fans to accept. "You might have your World Series clubs play - "during the season," he said. "You might get away with it from the media, but fans will not."

Pierce added that he is not yet sure how fans will accept the idea. "I think it will take a year or two to test it out."
Steelers brush the dust off

PITTSBURGH — Finally, Notre Dame is in the Super Bowl. Does it sound familiar? Does it sound distant three generations ago when Pat and Dean Joe and the Steelers were the only team in town, and the Notre Dame Fighting Irish were the Moran's of the Mount? Inception and second-deserved fan base. Then, as now, the team is set to face an ever-present Yankees-Brooklyn Dodgers rivalry.

This time, the Dolphins are the Yankees, and the Raiders are the Dodgers.

But before that, and there would be no Cowher.

Notre Dame has a Super Bowl player named Brad Pinkston, and a Super Ex-Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw hands off to running back Franco Harris during Super Bowl XIII against Dallas.

The trend is for the Steelers to come through and there would be no Cowher.

Notre Dame was the first time they were back and there's not a back Franco Harris during Super Bowl again, and there's not a back Franco Harris during Super Bowl.

The Steelers are going to the Super Ex-Steelers.

The next generation. That's been here, and we think we've kind of got our feet back.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Channel has I.C. abuzz

Billed as America’s network for the arts, the cable station is enjoying a burst of popularity with new programming and promotion aimed at the same audience as public television.

Kevin T. Satter

Despite a year’s worth of criticism from local arts organizations, the Community Television Center continues to attract roughly 4,000 viewers a day, according to its director, Mary McDowell.

“I don’t think they’ve reached their peak yet,” McDowell said.

In an attempt to increase enrollment, the Center will host a variety of free workshops during the fall semester, including ones on writing, dance, music and photography.

Tina Belcher

The station also plans to raise funds through a benefit concert to be held later this year.

“With the number of people we’ve had come in, we’re going to try to raise some money to buy new equipment,” McDowell said.

Tina Belcher

The station’s programming includes segments on local arts organizations, interviews with local artists and a variety of educational programs.

“People are interested in the arts,” said McDowell. “They want to know what’s going on in their community.”

Tina Belcher

The station’s goal is to provide a forum for local artists to showcase their work and to promote the arts in the community.

“We want to be a resource for the community,” said McDowell. “We want to provide a place for people to come together and share their love of the arts.”

Tina Belcher

The station is currently seeking donations and volunteers to help with its programming.

“We’re looking for people who are interested in the arts and who want to help bring it to the community,” said McDowell. “We’d love to hear from you.”
