Hurricane warnings were posted from Edwin Beach, S.C., to the Virginias. People living as far inland as West Virginia were warned that winds of 8-10 inches of rain. People were cracking their heads high along the shore at Myrtle Beach, S.C., where the angrily burning ocean breached and deserting and retaining was all but impossible with sheets of rain blown horizontal by gusting winds.

In North Topsail Beach, one of the beach towns hit by Hurricane Bertha in July, a darkened, wide-milewide bands bearing the town hall and police station either wadded or were blown away. Even 10 inches in the boat, Hurricane Ida hit a new level in Wilmington, N.C., Thursday. People sitting in their homes, riding out the storm with their heads buried in the sand, began to wonder how they wouldn't be able to survive.

"In the last 10 years, I've seen a storm equivalent to a hurricane," says Derek Walling, owner of the Hurricane House. "It's been a real storm, and we've had a lot of damage."

In Carolina Beach, N.C., people were in their homes, riding out the storm with their heads buried in the sand, wondering how they wouldn't be able to survive.

"If you're going to stay, you're going to stay," says Derek Walling, owner of the Hurricane House. "It's been a real storm, and we've had a lot of damage."

‘Superman’ actor returns from psychiatric problems

NEW YORK (AP) - Actor Christopher Reeve, who has been hospitalized since a fall on April 10 that left him aparalytic, said he is “very happy” and is “on the mend” after his release.

Reeve, 45, suffered a complete spinal cord injury when horses he was riding on the set of the movie ‘Superman IV’ fell on him. He was airlifted to a hospital in Arizona, where he underwent surgery.

“I was very happy,” Reeve said in a statement released Tuesday. “I feel very well and am doing much better. I plan to continue my recovery at home.”

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) - The National Academy of Design announced Tuesday that it has given its highest honor, the Gold Medal, to sculptor Frank Stella.

Stella, 75, is best known for his abstract works, which often feature bold, geometric shapes. He has been a member of the academy since 1961.

“I am honored and humbled by this recognition,” Stella said in a statement. “It is a great honor to be included among the ranks of such distinguished artists.”

The Gold Medal is given every three years to an artist who has made a significant contribution to American art.

Oakdale inmate stabbed by fellow prisoner

Oakdale Prison inmate Jason Brewer was stabbed in the back with a kitchen knife by another inmate around 10 a.m. Thursday morning.

Brewer, 20, who underwent surgery at the UI Hospitals and Clinics, is listed in serious condition, and is expected to remain in the hospital for four to five days.

The stabbing occurred in the reception inmates yard at Oakdale Prison. The incident remains under investigation by the Coralville Police Department and Iowa Medical and Classification Center staff.

Brewer was admitted to Oakdale Wednesday from Scott County on a conviction of third-degree burglary.

According to a report issued by the investigating team, the incident occurred during the regular midday time for reception inmates.

Reports indicate that this was an isolated event. One inmate is in police custody at a possible suspect.

The facility is under lockdown as the investigation continues.

The report said the facility will be under lockdown for one to two days, but could resume normal operations by the weekend.

Coralville Police Chief Kay Redmond said he hopes to have the investigation done in about a day.

Officials tighten airport security

Richard Klug
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Computer screens once affiliated with the Transportation Security Administration show that the red lights that once lit up at airports and commercial buildings have been turned off. The scene is part of a national problem, the federal government should pay once and for all for the cost of new equipment and technology.

The initial purchase of these machines should be financed by the airlines, according to Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee Chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Sens. Zell Miller, D-Ga., and Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., who said the administration has failed to provide the government with the funds.

The chairman of the Senate Committee on Transportation, Commerce, and related agencies, administration officials repeatedly explained, each agency will be a continuing threat, regardless of new measures being taken to combat them.

"There is no other bullet," Vice President Al Gore said at a news conference Thursday.

At such a press conference, administration officials told of the administration's plans to tighten airport security.

"I am confident that we will have to work on this issue for a long time," Mr. Gore said.

Clinton’s liberal slip is showing

My first impression of the Democratic National Convention was “Bill and Al” — and, for all intents and purposes, that’s what the convention seemed to be. A political convention with all the organizational and panoply that goes with it. Even the keynote address by Gov. Madeleine Kunin of Vermont seemed to echo the earlier opening remarks by Vice President Al Gore.

The keynote address was the first time I’ve seen a political convention in which the United States is at the center of attention. All the political talk has focused on the issues that are affecting the United States. The keynote address was the first time I’ve heard a political convention that is truly about the United States.

In the keynote address, Governor Kunin spoke about the need for bipartisanship and that we should all work together to find solutions to the problems that we face.

She also spoke about the importance of education and the need to invest in our children and their future. She talked about the need for investment in infrastructure and the need to work together to create jobs.

Governor Kunin also spoke about the importance of health care and the need to make sure that everyone has access to quality health care.

She also spoke about the need to protect the environment and the need to work together to create a sustainable future for our children and their children.

Governor Kunin ended her keynote address by saying that we all have a responsibility to work together to find solutions to the problems that we face.

The keynote address was a reminder that we all need to work together to find solutions to the problems that we face.

Fresca for president

O uring the presidential candidates, try to set your priorities — but just think of Fresca — a drink which you will enjoy.

For the past several years, I have been thinking about the idea of Fresca as a presidential candidate. Fresca is a drink that has been around for a long time and has been popular with many people. It is a drink that has a distinctive flavor that is not found in any other drink.

I believe that Fresca has many qualities that make it a suitable candidate for the presidency. It is a drink that is popular with many people and it is a drink that has a distinctive flavor. It is a drink that is easy to understand and it is a drink that is easy to serve.

Teaching can be taught

To the Editor:

(17th floor, 4th floor)

F. Peter Kline made fully articulate arguments about teaching being taught. "Rapped your Talk?"

As teaching is a skill, as the ability to teach is a skill, the ability to teach can be taught.

It is true, the statement "If you can't teach something, you don't know it" has truth to it, but it is not a full picture. It is not a full picture of teaching. The real truth is that teaching is a skill, and like any skill, it can be taught. The skill of teaching involves not only imparting knowledge, but also motivating the student to learn. This requires a variety of techniques, including lecture, discussion, and hands-on activities. Furthermore, it requires the ability to adapt to different learning styles and to create an engaging and inclusive learning environment.

CoGS raised my raise

To the Editor:

As a CoGS member, I am writing to express my disappointment with the recent raise announcement. The CoGS administration has proposed a raise of 3%, which is far below the current inflation rate and the living costs in Iowa City. This raise does not reflect the hard work and dedication that CoGS members put into their jobs.

CoGS members have been working hard to improve the lives of students, faculty, and staff at the University of Iowa. We have been active in advocating for better working conditions, higher wages, and improved benefits. Despite our efforts, the raise proposed by CoGS is simply not enough to keep up with the rising costs of living.

I urge CoGS members to continue to negotiate for a fair and equitable raise. It is important that we stand together to demand better working conditions and fair compensation for our efforts.

Miss of 'Family'

To the Editor:

In a recent article in the Register (S. J. S., “A socialist study questions the concept of a ‘full family’”), the term “family” was defined as consisting of a married couple and their children. This definition ignores the diversity of family structures and the importance of recognizing the different ways in which families can exist.

The concept of a family is complex and diverse, and cannot be defined by a single rigid structure. Families come in many forms, and the idea of a “full family” is a limiting and outdated concept.

It is important to recognize and support the diverse ways in which families can exist. This includes recognizing the importance of non-traditional families, such as single-parent families, same-sex families, and blended families, as well as the importance of recognizing the role of extended family members and friends in providing support and care.

White House drug use

Recently, the Clinton administration has been accused of drug use by several White House staff members. Despite the administration's denial, there is growing evidence that drug use is a problem at the highest levels of government.

Drug use by government officials is concerning for several reasons. First, it undermines the image of the government as a whole. It also raises questions about the ability of government officials to lead by example. Finally, drug use by government officials can have serious consequences, such as compromised decision-making and increased risk of corruption.

While the administration has denied these allegations, it is important for government officials to take drug use seriously and ensure that they are role models for the public. This includes acknowledging any drug use and taking steps to address it.

Prison is no vacation

If I were to believe Michelle Lemon, former White House social worker, the prisoners in the United States (as well as in the White House) have it easy. Lemon, in an interview with the Daily Iowan, claimed that prisoners in the United States are not being treated fairly. She stated that prisoners are not provided with the same rights and privileges as employees of the White House.

This is a grievous mistake. Prisoners in the United States, just like employees of the White House, should be provided with the same rights and privileges. If Lemon truly believes that prisoners are being treated fairly, then she should consider working for the White House, where she would have free access to the gym, the library, and even the White House chefs. If she truly believes that prisoners are not being treated fairly, then she should consider working for the U.S. government, where prisoners are provided with the same rights and privileges as employees.

Lightfoot warning us

I, a proud member of the LGBTQ community, write in response to a recent article by Lightfoot. Lightfoot, in his article, claimed that the LGBTQ community has been given a raise. However, this is not true. The LGBTQ community has been given a raise in terms of increased visibility and recognition, but not in terms of financial compensation.

I urge Lightfoot to look to the future and not to the past. The LGBTQ community has made significant progress in recent years, but there is still much work to be done. We must continue to fight for equality and justice, and not become complacent with the progress that has been made.

President Clinton touches health care in Fla.

Terence Hunt
Associated Press

SUNOCO, Fla. — Switching back to health care, President Clinton confronted Florida residents Thursday in a town meeting in his first campaign stop since late June.

"I want you to support me in trying to build a bridge to the next century where every child in America can build a bridge to the next century," Clinton said. "The bridge I want to build is an economic bridge that will take you out of poverty."

The embryo, valued at $30 million in January, developed rapidly and within four weeks showed signs of being in the seventh to eighth week of development. It was then transferred into a uterus, where it grew successfully.

"We're in a little cove here, surrounded by water on all sides," said the expectant mother. "It's amazing how water and wind can affect an embryo's development."

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates - Saudi authorities are holding 40 Iranian Muslime in connection with the recent terrorist attack on the U.S. Embassy in Riyadh.

"We have found a claim by an organization group, the London-based Movement for Islamic Reform in Arabia, that an act was perpetrated," said the spokesperson for the Saudi authorities.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said thekhane were among 15 suspected individuals and were suspected for a stabbing attack.

"They are believed to be members of the Iranian group," said the spokesperson for the Saudi authorities.

"We are still uncertain how they have been operating," said the spokesperson for the Saudi authorities.

Tobacco foes push for FDA crackdown
Laurer Newson
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Smoke-free bars and restaurants may win the support of millions of Americans if they agree to take a stand against smoking during the congressional election season.

"When it comes to tobacco, will these [future] Food and Drug Administration (FDA) rules push for FDA to save lives?" asks a spokesman for the tobacco industry.

Associated Press (Chris) Dodd and (Joseph) Lieberman, the two prominent Democrats in Congress, are pushing for FDA rules that would ban tobacco advertising and limit tobacco use in the United States.

Pressler has battled criticism that he is not fighting enough to stop the tobacco industry from making tobacco more of an issue in the campaign. He says he is not fighting enough to stop the tobacco industry from making tobacco more of an issue in the campaign.

"I have been fighting for the last 15 years to make America's children the top priority," Pressler said. "It's time to stand up for America's children and make tobacco less of an issue in this election."

From an Arizona reporter asking "What are you guys as good as advertised?" to Wildcat Mark Dubois, "The best thing I can say about our pro team is we play all over the place." The most important thing is that we don't have a group of players who know the game. My limited knowledge of Arizona football program led me to believe they were a few minutes, just to release the pressure, and the team got over it. Having the wildcats be the 10-0-something that they are from the mind.

Dunlap takes lead with 8-Woods fires 70

OAKVILLE, Ontario — Scott Dunlap fired a 6-under-par 65 on Thursday to take the lead after the first round of the Canadian Open, the 11th annual pro golf event in Canada.

The 11th annual was played at Oakville Golf Club ranked 139th on the money list, earning $28,000 for each of the 28 players below par.

"It would be an understatement to say that I am excited," Dunlap said. "But the reality of it is that you have to put it back on the game."

Dunlap tied for 6th with 10 others, including the only Canadian to make the cut, Mike Weir, who shot 70.

Dunlap said both of his birdie putts on the 17th and 18th holes on Thursday were key to his 7-under-par 65.

The 11th annual was played at Oakville Golf Club ranked 139th on the money list, earning $28,000 for each of the 28 players below par.

"I thought the greens were a lot faster than yesterday," Dunlap said. "But there were a lot of big putts that were missed."
McNabb more mature, talented since last Syracuse-North Carolina match-up

NEW YORK — Exhausted to the point of audibility, Sampras tried to look forward, and he couldn’t.

Sampras waited on court in the middle of the fifth-set tiebreaker and looked as if he would pass out. After a moment in conversation with the chair umpire, he took a 16-second break, with one of his teammates, for an official medical timeout.

He then waited an extra five seconds before the Spanish double-handed backhand called stymied one of the most dramatic matches in U.S. Open history.

The match ended 6-4, 6-7 (8-6), 6-3, 6-7 (10-8), 7-6 (9-7).

Corretja collapsed to his knees and Sampras dropped to the net before the conclusion of the longest match in U.S. Open history.

Everyone who watched this match had to be trudging off the court at 1-1 in the fifth tiebreaker.

Pet Sampras, hands now on knees during the quarterfinal match against Spain’s Alex Corretja at the U.S. Open in New York Thursday.

Sampras went on to defeat Corretja 7-6 (7-4), 6-7 (6-4), 6-7 (9-7).

Sampras survived an 4-hour, 9-minute struggle to keep going and set up a second Open showdown with world No. 1 Pete Sampras, scheduled for Monday.

The Dallas Cowboys opened the week at Lone Star Stadium.

Then the Cowboys bandwagon?

But that’s exactly what Corretja should have done.

"I don’t know how each other thinks. And that’s the reason why I don’t really want to play," Sampras’s current coach, said.

"Then the Cowboys took on the Chicago Bears Saturday night at 3Com.

"I am in the semis now. I have played well, but I lost on grass at Wimbledon," Corretja said.

"I didn’t play good at all."

"I don’t know why. I didn’t want to play, and I just played not at all."

Hawks look for tourney revenge

There will be a brief in Baton Rouge the Saturday when the Iowa football team heads to the Superdome to face Kentucky on Saturday.

"We are definitely looking forward to facing Kentucky," said Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz.

Iowa will be up against the Wildcats for the first time in program history as the two teams of the same Big Ten Conference.

"It's an exciting game for us," said Ferentz. "We are very much looking forward to it."

The game will be played at 8 p.m. CST on Saturday, and will be televised nationally on ESPN.

Iowa enters the game with a 4-0 record, while Kentucky is 2-2. The Hawkeyes have won three of their four games, while the Wildcats have won one.

The game will be played in front of a packed stadium of over 70,000 fans.

"I am really excited about this game," said Ferentz. "It's a great opportunity for our team to showcase our skills on a national stage."

Iowa has faced Kentucky in the past, but not in a football game. The two teams have only played once, in 1928.

Ferentz said that the game will be a good opportunity for the Hawkeyes to test their skills against a ranked opponent.

"I believe we have a great chance to come out on top in this game," said Ferentz. "We are very much looking forward to the challenge."

Big Ten title well up for grabs

Conference teams looking to duplicate Northwestern's 1995 title run

Chris Snider

The Daily Iowan

Last season, Northwestern opened a lot of eyes around the world of college football when they made a dramatic run to the Rose Bowl. More importantly, they opened a lot of eyes in the Big Ten conference. No longer is the Big Ten the "big two or three." It now appears that at any time, any team can jump up and have a great season. Eleven teams come into 1996 hoping this is their turn. Here is a quick look at the ten that don't reside in Iowa City.

Minnesota

Last year, the Minnesota Golden Gophers lost their final seven games of the season, giving up an average of over 40 points in those games. To make sure that doesn't happen again, Head Coach Jim Wacker went out and hired one of the best in the business, defensive coordinator Tim Rose. Rose, who coached the Memphis defense to a No. 3 finish in the nation in team defense twice in three years, will try to do the same for the Gophers.

"We move the ball pretty good. We throw the ball pretty good and we score a pretty good amount of points," Wacker said. "We've got to do a better job with our defense to that name of the game." To do that, the Gophers will rely on a defense that even Wacker admits he can't figure out at times.

"We're bringing linebackers from everywhere and every which way, running every coverage that's ever been drawn on paper," Wacker said. "Our theory is very simple, if we don't know what we're doing, they can't know what we're doing. I hope it works."

Jim Wacker, Minnesota head football coach

Gopher Golden Boy: Minnesota returns starting quarterback Cory Sauter, one of the best Golden Gopher signal callers ever. Sauter was fourth in the Big Ten in passing efficiency last season.

"Our theory is very simple, if we don't know what we're doing, they can't know what we're doing. I hope it works."

Michigan State

Last season, the Spartans came one play away from beating Penn State and taking third place in the Big Ten conference. Thirteen starters return from that team, including tailback Marc Renaud.

"We're not very deep, but we have some talented players," second year coach Nick Saben said. Saben's biggest challenge will be replacing quarterback Tony Banks and receiver Muhsin Muhammad, both second round NFL picks.

"For us to improve on offense, we're going to have to run the ball effectively," Saben said. When they do try to pass, quarterback Todd Schultz will have two marquee receivers in Derrick Mason and Nigea Carter.

The defense will be led by linebacker Reggie Barnett and Ike Reese, as well as safety Marvin Wright.

"We have more experienced returning players, more confidence and more maturity on the offensive side of the ball," Saben said.

The Spartans, who opened their 1996 season with an impressive win over Purdue, are hoping to come one step closer to their goal of becoming a national power on the gridiron. "At some point and time in the near future, we would like to be able to build a team that is capable of being in the top 25 in the country," Saben said.

Ohio State

Despite the loss of Eddie
as 1996 season gets into gear

George, Bobby Huying, Terry Glenn and Rickey Dudley, Ohio State will remain one of the elite programs in the Big Ten and the nation this season.

"I expect us to be very competitive," Coach John Cooper said. "This is a senior dominated team and our players know what it takes to get the job done."

The Buckeyes return 16 starters, including 10 on the defensive side of the ball.

First year defensive coordinator Fred Pagac will have plenty of talent to work with, including star defensive ends Mike Vrabel and Matt Finkes.

On the offensive side of the ball, the road to the Rose Bowl starts behind linemen Orlando Pace, Pacey is arguable the best college football player in the country at any position and is a Heisman candidate.

Pace Pearson should fill the void left by George at running back and Cooper will look for Stanley Jackson, Mark Garcia or Joe Germaine to fill the quarterback spot.

"There are still some questions that are unanswered, including quarterback," Cooper said coming into the season. "Replacing Bobby will be our No. 1 question in the fall. One of them has to step forward in the fall and show us he can get the job done."

Indiana

1995 was by no means a happy year at Indiana. The Hoosiers struggles to a 2-9 overall record and an 0-8 last place finish in the Big Ten.

"Last year, we allowed ourselves to fall flat on our face," Coach Bill Mallory said. "We just didn't get the job done."

Key to a Hoosier resurgence will be the return of junior running back Alex Smith. Smith missed much of last season with hamstring and rib injuries. He has amassed 2,244 yards in only 17 career games.

"The big key is our offense," Mallory said. "We've struggled. Our line seems to have trouble controlling the line of scrimmage. I like their attitude, the way these guys have been working. I'm expecting to see improvements."

Defensively, Mallory will look for leadership from senior defensive end Nathan Davis, a second team all Big Ten selection last year, and junior cornerback Joey Elongs, who picked off three passes in IU's spring game.

Kicker Bill Manolopoulos will try to return to the level of play that earned him 1995 first team all Big Ten honors.

"You've just got to crank it up each week and get ready to play," Mallory said.

Michigan

After a 9-3 season last year, the Michigan Wolverines are looking to return to the top of the Big Ten conference.

Mallory's defense led the Big Ten and was No. 3 in the nation against the rush last season and returns seven starters this year.

Leading the way will be nose tackle William Carr, tackle Ben Huff and ends Glenn Steele and Jaquinn Feazell.

Add in Jarrett Irons and Sam Sword, the Wolverine defense seemingly can't go wrong in 1996.

On offense, only four starters return, but three of them are on the offensive line. Tackle Jon Jansen, guard Zach Adami and center Rod Payne will look to lead the Wolverines this season.

Penn State

The Nittany Lions finished fourth in the Big Ten last season, that after a year in which they were 12-0 and nearly won a national title.

You can rest assured coach Joe Paterno isn't about to let his team slip any further.

"We have a challenge ahead of us," Paterno said. "We have a lot of good young players that have to learn how to play. There were some whom appeared a little immature, but through the winter program and spring have grown up and are ready."

Leading the charge will be quarterback Wally Richardson and tailback Curtis Enis. The offensive line is the only offensive question mark.

Eight starters return on defense, but all three newcomers will be on the front line.

"I worry a little bit about our size defensively," Paterno said.

"We will not be very big around the football."

Wisconsin

With 18 starters returning, Coach Barry Alvarez is hoping for big things from his 1996 Badger team.

"We have a good nucleus of players returning and I like their sense of urgency and work ethic," Alvarez said.

Wisconsin finished 4-5-2 last season against the second toughest schedule in the nation.

Offensively, quarterback Darel Bevell and top pass catchers Michael London and Matt Nyquist are gone, but a number of top players return, including fullback Cecil Martin and tailback Carl McCullough.

Defensively, the No. 1 priority is to stop the run. Trying to do that will be returning starters tackle Bryan Juriewicz, end Tarek Saleh, and linebackers Daryl Smith.

Northwestern

Northwestern faces probably the most difficult task of any Division I-A football program in 1996. The Wildcats will try to show that 1995's Cinderella story was not just a fluke.

Coach Gary Barnett returns nine starters on offense including Darnell Autry, who finished fourth in the Heisman voting last season.

Schnur will have a talented group of receivers that is led by junior D'Wayne Bates.

"We probably have as solid of a receiving group as there is in the Big Ten," Barnett said. "We have six fifth-year players back on the offensive line, so I like our experience."

On defense, Northwestern lost three solid defensive backs in William Bennett, Chris Martin and Rodney Ray, all of whom signed NFL contracts.

"Although we had to replace the outstanding contributions of William, Chris and Rodney, I was not as concerned as people would expect because I like our youthful talent," Barnett said.

Returning to the defense will be National Defensive Player of the Year Pat Fitzgerald, who missed the end of last season with an injury.

"I'm really looking forward to the challenges that come with defending the Big Ten Championship," Barnett said. "In 1996, I think you will find us more diverse."

Hawkeye senior
Bill Ennis-Inge has had to come to grips with the death of his father

Chris Snider
THE DAILY IOWAN

In April of this year, two weeks before the spring football game, Iowa defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge was faced with one of life's biggest tragedies. Ennis-Inge's father, Bill Inge, passed away from a heart attack suffered in the family's home in Kirkwood, Mo. He was 48.

"He was my dad," Ennis-Inge said. "I learned from him. I loved him so much. When you lose your father, you have to see what you've got after that. It's kind of tough."

For Bill, Jr., what he had was strong support from his friends and family, as well as a strong religious background.

"I really think that's probably one of the only things that pulled me through," he said. "When you lose a relative, you really don't know what to say. It's someone that you love and that you've been with for your whole life and they're not there, it hurts."

Ennis-Inge's father had never seen his son play football in person since Bill Jr. came to Iowa in 1992. He was planning to attend his son's graduation last spring.

"The good thing is that I know now he's watching me all the time, so I really have to take care of business," Ennis-Inge said.

With his father watching from above, Ennis-Inge plans to do just that — take care of business.

"That's pretty much my goal, for him, is to be a great player and to give it all I have every play because in this game, you can never take things for granted," Ennis-Inge said. "You can never say, I'm gonna go 50 percent so I can be ready for next play after that, because that time you go 50 percent may be the time that you get hurt and never be able to play again."

While Ennis-Inge was coming to grapple with the loss of his father, he was also welcoming back a father-figure in defensive coordinator Bob Elliott. Elliott returned to the Hawkeyes for this season after a year off from coaching.

"Coach Elliott was pretty much one of my fathers when I first got coached by him. I know that all the expectations that he has are on myself, but that's something that I'm willing to step up to," Elliott has taken it upon himself to make sure Ennis-Inge lives up to those expectations. "Bill Ennis-Inge is blessed with a lot of talent," Elliott said. "That's a double-edged sword. It's good and it's bad because there's high expectations. I expect a lot out of Bill. I expect Bill to be an excellent football player for us everyday, in every practice, every drill."

After a somewhat shaky sophomore campaign in 1994, Ennis-Inge emerged as one of Iowa's top defenders last season.

"Bill plans to make sure Ennis-Inge continues to improve this season. "Bill wants to be challenged," Elliott said. "He wants to get the most out of his ability. He doesn't want to get to the end of his senior year and feel like he had a little more to give. So, I'm going to be all over Bill to fulfill that potential." And Elliott is confident his defensive end will respond.

"He's a champion," Elliott said. "Guys that are winners always respond to that kind of pressure." As one of four captains on this year's Iowa team, Ennis-Inge has taken on a big brother role with some of the younger players.

"I think that's one of the jobs of the captains," he said. "You really must take those freshmen and newcomers in your hand and really mold those guys because they are the future of the program. The program has helped you, you must help the other people that are behind you."

Players like Danan Hughes, Lew Montgomery, Al Cross and Larry Blue did the same for Ennis-Inge when he was a freshman.

"When I was on the scout team, we were getting killed every day, but at that time, you learn," Ennis-Inge said. "You learn why you are doing this and what you are doing this for. All the guys love you. It might not seem that way in practice, but the guys know that you are the (future) of the program."

Ennis-Inge said that mentality is simply a reflection of a Hayden Fry coached team.

"I think that's why (Fry's) relationship with the players is so great," Ennis-Inge said. "He makes sure the players are people first. Playing, of course, is the number one thing, but you have to be a great person and a character off the field as well. They recruit players like that."

As one of several Christian athletes on this year's Hawkeyes squad, Ennis-Inge takes special pride every time he steps on the field.

"That means going 100 percent for the Lord," he said. "I know that if I stay with him one hundred percent of the time that he's going to stay with me one hundred percent of the time. He's not going to let me down and I know then that I won't let myself down and I can do anything possible to help us win."

Ennis-Inge's father wouldn't have it any other way.

Breaking from tradition

Nick Gallery is hardly the stereotypical college punter

Wayne Drehs
THE DAILY IOWAN

Iowa punter Nick Gallery can kick the football 75 yards, but he'd rather hit somebody.

The senior from Masonville, Iowa, doesn't fit the mold of a stereotypical punter. His 6-4, 250-pound frame is more suitable for a linebacker.

Ironically, it was that position, linebacker, that Iowa recruited Gallery to play for the Hawkeyes back in 1992.

"I like to hit people," Gallery said. "It's my favorite part of the game. I wish I could play other positions more, but I know my position now and know what I have to do to help the team most."

Gallery's enjoyment of contact sends cringes down the coaching staffs back, especially special teams and tight ends coach Mark Hendrickson.

"Nick is one of the better athletes on the football team, and yes, he could play other positions for us," Hendrickson said.

"But we feel he is too valuable, so at this point he understands his responsibility. But he would love to be out there playing what he calls 'real football.'"

Gallery's hitting instincts and flexibility with different positions comes from his high school days, where he played ten positions, earning various honors in his years at East Buchanan High.

He was all-state as a punter, all-district as a running back, punter, and kicker, and all-conference as a defensive end as well as a defensive back.

"Anytime we asked him to play something, Nick wouldn't hesitate and he'd go ahead and play what we asked him to play and do it well," Gallery's high school coach Mike Stafford said. "He'd do anything for the good of the team."

It's that unselfish attitude that Gallery has brought to kicking at Iowa. Last year, he fell four kicks short of the minimum number necessary to rank No. 2 in the nation in punting with a 45.3-yard average. Gallery's attempts weren't enough because teammate Brian Hurley did the shorter punts for Iowa.

"That really doesn't bother me," Gallery said. "We ended up winning the Sun Bowl with an 8-4 record and having a good season. I try to look at the positive for the team."

Hendrickson doesn't see any problem with using two punters, and added that the same platoon will probably take place this year as well.

"It's very possible that we are going to use Hurley in pooches and short kicks once we reach midfield," Hendrickson said.

"Then we'll let Nick boom it away on a normal punt. They are both excellent young men who just want to win football games."

When Gallery's foot did get a hold of the ball, 13 of his kicks were at least 70 yards, with a long of 75 yards against Indiana. At Ohio State, he kicked back-to-back punts of 71 and 70 yards, finishing the afternoon with a 51.8-yard average on six kicks.

"Sometimes you can just feel it and you know you've kicked a pretty good one," Gallery said.

"I wish I knew how one kick goes 40 yards and the next one 70, though."

The 1996 Big Ten All-Conference punter attributes success in punting to mental more than physical strength.

"You have to have a strong leg and get your technique down, but most of it is mental," Gallery said. "You can hurt yourself or help yourself with a lot mentally."

Coach Hendrickson agrees.

"A great deal of what Nick does is mental," Hendrickson said. "You have to believe in yourself, and of course Nick believes in abilities, which he should. He always believes he can go out and get a good punt.

"The most difficult part mentally for a punter is waiting for the ball to be snapped to you knowing that you only have two seconds to get a kick away before ten guys are in your face."

"A lot of that is focus," Gallery said. "I pretty much try to block everybody out except for me and the snapper. In fact, I stepped over a guy once, and didn't even know he was there."

Gallery is not a public relations-oriented guy, but this year he hasn't gone unnoticed, being named to various preseason All-Big Ten teams, and Street and Smith's honorable mention All-American team. If these honors hold true come seasons end, professional football will be next on Gallery's agenda.

"I'd like to go to the next level, but you never know," Gallery said. "You just try to hope for the best. It's a pretty tough road to make it so I'm not going to bank on anything."

Hendrickson hopes that following this year Gallery will be able to continue his career, but also agrees nothing is guaranteed.

"Because of his leg strength, there is going to be interest in him," Hendrickson said. "I'll say that."
"I was introduced to Macs in high school. Since then I've preferred Macintosh over other computers."

"I use a PowerMac for a range of functions... build programs, graph various designs for mathematics and write papers and letters. After I graduate, I plan to use a Mac for everything from statistical research to balancing my budget. Macintosh is more user friendly than other computers. Macs are extremely easy to use. In fact, they are so user-friendly that you can jump on a Mac with little knowledge of computers and understand how to manipulate the general functions in no time."

In the shadows

Once a starter, Iowa senior Ryan Driscoll has had to accept his new role as the No. 2 quarterback.

Chris Snider
The Daily Iowan

1996 was supposed to be Iowa senior quarterback Ryan Driscoll’s year. Two seasons ago, Driscoll was named Iowa’s starting quarterback and appeared to be on his way to becoming the next in a long line of great Iowa signal callers.

But long before the comparisons to Chuck Long and Chuck Hartlieb could come rolling in, Driscoll was down, suffering a broken collarbone in the seventh game of the 1994 season.

The Cedar Rapids native could only watch as the Hawkeyes played quarterback shuffle before Matt Sherman finally emerged as the starter. Sherman threw for more than 700 yards in the final two games of the 1994 season, solidifying his role as Iowa’s new starting quarterback.

Driscoll returned healthy the next season, but only to see Sherman continue his role as the starter.

“It was very difficult,” Driscoll said. “It wasn’t a very fun season for me. I thought I would get a lot more snaps than I did.”

This season, Driscoll once again enters the year as the No. 2 quarterback behind Sherman.

“You could just about flip a coin between who is No. 1 and who is No. 2,” Iowa Coach Hayden Fry insists. “Ryan had a real good fall camp. He will definitely play in the ball game (this Saturday).”

But Driscoll thought the same things would happen last year, and despite being healthy for the entire year, he threw just 12 passes all year long, completing six for 67 yards — that, after throwing for more than 1,000 yards in seven games as a sophomore.

“I still take the role of a starter because I know that at any time, I’ll be playing,” Driscoll said. “I’m just one play away. I still have the same attitude as far as preparing myself, but mentally it’s still different knowing I’m not going to start, and you’re not the true leader.”

Although he has relived the moment in his head numerous times in the past two years, Driscoll finally saw the tape of his injury for the first time last Sunday night while watching an Iowa highlight show on television.

“I’ve tried to put it in the back of my mind and move forward, but it’s tough,” he said.

Iowa’s rule is that when a player is injured, they have to earn their starting role back. But Driscoll said he isn’t sure he was given a fair shot at winning back his starting position.

“I don’t really know if it was fair or not because Matt earned his spot those last two games his freshman year and played well at times last year and had a decent season,” Driscoll said. “But I think I should get more of a chance here.”

Had he never gone down with the injury, Driscoll is certain he would be Iowa’s starting quarterback this season.

“Definitely, because I think I would have kept improving with more games under my belt, just as Matt has,” he said. “Unfortunately, I didn’t get that chance.”

Instead, Driscoll has been forced to change his role with the team. As the No. 2 quarterback, he acts as a sideline communicator between the Iowa receivers and Coach Hayden Fry, as well as between offensive coordinator Don Patterson and Fry.

“Last year was the first time in any sport I’ve ever sat on the sidelines or been second string,” Driscoll said. “It’s kind of different to see how coaches work throughout the game. I enjoyed seeing the coaches perspective.”

While he’s learned to live with his new role and admits it has opened his eyes to a possible career as a coach, Driscoll would much rather be playing.

“I’ve learned to grow with (the new role) and accept it, sort of,” Driscoll said. “I still feel like I’m good enough to be playing and the coaches feel that way too. I’m confident they have all the faith in the world in me. It’s a difficult role.”

What makes it even more difficult is watching other teams on television, teams that could possibly use a quarterback with Driscoll’s abilities.

“Watching games last weekend, some of those quarterbacks are pretty bad,” he said. “It’s nice to know that I’m good enough to play other places, but I don’t have any aspirations to play anywhere else.”

Driscoll knows just as easily as he went down, Sherman could go down, and the job will once again be his. But Driscoll would never wish that upon Sherman, who he maintains a good relationship with.

“I respect what he does and he respects what I do,” Driscoll said. “We get along great.”

Despite his hardship, Driscoll has not just sat back and watched his athletic career go by the boards. He went out for the Iowa baseball team last spring, although a back injury cut his season short.

“I practiced for about a month and got back into the swing of things a little bit,” Driscoll said. “I was having a great time. Coach (Duane) Banks is a riot. I just wish I wouldn’t have gotten hurt and could have helped the team.”

SECOND FIDDLE: After earning the starting position coming into the 1994 season, Iowa quarterback Ryan Driscoll (left) suffered a broken collarbone. He returned the next season, but failed to take the starting position from Matt Sherman.

GAME NOTES

Three Iowa sophomore linemen have been forced to end their football careers due to injury.

Terry Mueller, a 6-5, 290-pound offensive lineman from Belle Mead, N.J.; Matt Redman, a 6-7, 300-pound offensive lineman from Palos Verdes, Calif.; and Chris Zidzinski, a 6-2, 230-pound defensive lineman from Willowdale, Ontario, Canada, will all receive medical redshirts for 1996 and will not return to the Hawkeyes.

“They’ll all stay here until they graduate on scholarship, and help us as much as they can,” Fry said. Once approved by the NCAA, those three scholarships will not count against Iowa’s limit of 85 football scholarships.

LAFLER AND FILER WILL PLAY.

Junior Jon LaFler and senior Rodney Filer, both of whom were starters for the Hawkeyes last season and both of whom missed spring practice with injuries, have been cleared to play in Iowa’s season opener against Arizona.

Filer will back up Mike Burger at fullback and LaFler will back up Jon Orttibie at right tackle.

“I think that both will play. However, much I don’t know,” Fry said. “They’re both excellent football players. Right now, the doctors have given permission for both of them to play.”

SHAW CONTINUES RUN TOWARD GREATNESS.

Sedrick Shaw, who already holds Iowa career records for attempts (613) and rushing yards (3,040), has a chance to...

Wildcats prepare to invade Iowa city

Mike Trippett
THE DAILY IOWAN

First of all, the Wildcats had to spend the holiday season with their families. Stuck without a bowl bid, the 6-5 Wildcats were forced to sit at home and watch their Pac-10 foes.

They watched UCLA and dreamed of Hawaii. They watched USC and smelled the roses. And they watched Iowa

"Dreamed of Hawaii. They lopped Washington, 38-18, in the season a week ago with a 23-3 victory over UTEP — Tomey's school-record 51st win with the Wildcats. Ironically, Tomey's first win at Arizona came against the Hawkeyes in 1987, the last time the two teams met.

Nine years later, Batten admits that his Wildcats are the underdogs, coming into the hometown of the No. 22-ranked Hawkeyes. Arizona didn't even receive a vote in the last Associated Press poll.

"Sure, from what I've heard, we're the underdogs. And that's probably to be expected," Batten said. "I know Hayden (Fry) has, over the years, done a great job of coaching and this certainly looks like one of his better teams, if not the best," Tomey said of the 1996 Hawkeyes. But what will Iowa be facing? Arizona coach Dick Tomey

"Manhandle a team like Washington, that really opens your eyes. It makes you look at a team a few more times."

The Sun Bowl is about all Arizona and Iowa have when it comes to getting a feel for one another. And that has the Wildcats on their toes.

Arizona coach Dick Tomey said he's never seen anyone handle Washington with the ease that Iowa did — and Tomey's been coaching in the Pac-10 for over eight seasons.

"I know Hayden (Fry) has, over the years, done a great job of coaching and this certainly looks like one of his better teams, if not the best," Tomey said of the 1996 Hawkeyes. But what will Iowa be facing? The Wildcats kicked off their season a week ago with a 23-3 victory over UTEP — Tomey's school-record 51st win with the Wildcats. Iowa has built a dominant field hockey program in a state that knows little about the sport

Chris James
THE DAILY IOWAN

They are the other warriors of fall. They come from the rugged hills of the Northeast to the rolling plains of the Midwest. They are a blend of speed, skill and power. They are field hockey players.

But one thing's for sure, they ain't from Iowa.

While the warriors who wear the black and gold every weekend from September to November weren't born Hawkeye, they have left a legacy at Iowa that is a permanent part of collegiate field hockey history.

Since 1977 Iowa's field hockey program has amassed 348 wins, a 786 winning percentage, six NCAA Final Four appearances in the past four seasons and has never finished worse than No. 8 in the nation to date. Recruiting is done completely put of state. The state of Iowa has no high school prospects to count.

The Hawkeyes are a mix of experience, talent and youth. After convincing victories over Ball State and Southwest Missouri State last weekend, Iowa is again poised to make a run for its fourth final four appearance in five years. The Hawkeyes are currently ranked No. 3 in the nation.

The brains behind the operation is head coach Beth Beglin who enters her ninth year at Iowa. Beglin has compiled an 182-59-7 mark over her 11 year career. She is 146-31-3 at Iowa.

Beglin, Iowa field hockey coach

"When opponents come in here they know what they are up against and how dominating we are at home. It's intimidating."

“The state of Iowa has no sanctioned field hockey programs at the high school level. Recruiting is done completely put of state. But according to Beglin, recruiting top high school prospects is never a problem because of Iowa's tradition."

"We can compete with the Maryland's and the North Carolina's because the athlete knows the kind of program we run and knows that the team is going to be successful," she said. "The athletes know they're going to have to work hard but I think they like the challenge and the rewards that come with it."

Former Iowa player Ann Pare, who hails from Southbury, Conn., said she just knew that Iowa was the right place for her.

"I came out to Iowa for a recruiting trip and after watching the team play I knew that Iowa was the best choice. I liked the coaches, I love Iowa City. It was just a feeling. After that trip to Iowa was the right place for her."

Key Losses: Ann Pare, Nancy McInden, Jessica Easch

Home Field/Capacity: Grant Field/1,000

I knew I would play field hockey at Iowa," Pare said.

"Senior Diane DeMiro also spoke about her decision to come to Iowa. "The excellent reputations of the athletics and the academics were big factors," DeMiro said. "I was very impressed with the coaches and the class of the program. That, mixed in with the atmosphere of Iowa City, made the decision relatively easy."

"Perhaps what makes the Iowa field hockey program so special is the hard work that is put in during the off-season. Many of the Hawkeye players participate in camps and tour with all-star teams to work on and improve their games."

Iowa has traveled to Canada and England to play some of the world's best teams. Senior Emily Smith said field hockey is not just a fall sport."

"We work hard all year," Smith said. "That's what separates the elite programs from everyone else. All of us work hard in the off season and tour with various teams or attend camps. That's where the true champions are made."

Two season's ago, Sports Illustrated ran on the cover of its college football preview a photo of some Arizona football players and four simple words: "Arizona is No. 1." However, the Wildcats ended up 7-4 and ranked 14th in the nation before meeting Utah in the Freedom Bowl.

Then Arizona, ranked No. 1 in the preseason, was upset by Utah, 16-13, to end its season of unfulfilled expectations and tied for second in the Pac-10.

Last season, Arizona — seeking to avenge the previous season's performance and return to glory — finished 6-5, well behind Pac-10 powers USC, Washington and Oregon.

Needless to say, Arizona will be motivated this season. However, motivation means very little when your offense looks like Vermont and of fense is bound to break open. Consider Iowa's weapons.

Arizona scored just 23 points against UTEP. No mincing words, that's pathetic. Just imagine what'll happen when the Arizona offense meets up with Ennis-Inge, Plex and DeVries.

We're supportive, loyal, loud and — as of game time — sober. But enough complaining about Bob Bowlsby and his 700 Club. Iowa has a game to win Saturday.

And the Hawkeyes will win in a big way. The way I see it, Arizona's defense will keep the Wildcats in the game for about 2 1/2 quarters, then Iowa's offense is bound to break open. Consider Iowa's weapons.

A running back with the strongest combination of speed and power of any back in the Big Ten Conference.

A quarterback who, if consistent throughout the season, will be Iowa's next QB in the NFL.

Ross Verba. 'Nuff said.

The Wildcats defense may be impressive, but it can't hold out for four quarters against Iowa. Not this season. If Arizona does win (Translation: If the sun is made out of balsa wood), Shaw will have to over sleep and Hayden Fry will have to replace his defense with the golf team.

Arizona scored just 23 points against UTEP. No mincing words, that's pathetic. Just imagine what'll happen when the Arizona offense meets up with Ennis-Inge, Plex and DeVries.

It's not going to be pretty, except to hundreds of thousands of screaming Hawkeye fans across the country.

The outcome is simple: If you can't score in Kinnick Stadium, you can't win in Kinnick Stadium. Unless it's snowing, of course — and this IS Iowa — but I don't think Iowa fans have a reason to worry.

First or second game of the season; it just doesn't matter. Iowa's defense is strong. Arizona's defense is weak. Iowa's offense is explosive. Arizona's "O" is scared of the football.

Sorry, Arizona, your squad is the first of two Wildcat teams Iowa's gonna rock this season.

Badgers and Lions roll; Illini fall to 0-2

Chris James

Michigan State at Nebraska.

Nick Saban's Spartans looked impressive in their 52-14 win over Purdue last week. But Michigan State freshman Sedrick Irvin will wish he was back in freshman orientation after this game.

His four touchdown performance last week will be just a memory against a Cornhusker defense that fed their opponents the hogs, allowing a mere 78 yards per game on the ground last season.

Nebraska, 45-10.

Rice at Ohio State.

No Eddie George. No Bobby Hoying. No big deal.

The Buckeyes have Mount Orlando Pace on offense leading the way. On defense they have two, not one, of the best defensive linemen in the nation in Matt Finkes and Mike Vrabel. Rice will feel stepped on in the horseshoe.

Ohio State, 38-3.

Minnesota at NF. Louisiana.

Big Ten power Minnesota collides with independent North east Louisiana in this early season clash that could affect the national championship picture.

This is the first meeting between the teams and who cares. Minnesota will have to contain Louisiana quarterback Raymond Philayw, who threw for 2,600 yards and 22 touchdowns in '95 while the Illini will try to stop Minnesota's QB Cory Sauter who ranked second in the Big Ten in total offense last year.

Yada, yada, yada, yada......Minnesota, 20-7.

Louisville at Penn State.
The Cardinals will be seeing red after this visit to Beaver Stadium.

Second year coach Ron Cooper will have to rely on wide receiver Miguel Montano, who caught 50 passes for 700 yards, to carry the load for Louisville. Nittany Lion quarterback Wally Richardson is one of the Big Ten's best and running back Curtis Enis will look to top his season opening 241 yard performance.

Penn State, 32-10
