"It is my conclusion that the action of officer Jeffrey Gillaspie shooting Eric Shaw was not justified," County Attorney J. Patrick White, Tuesday, Sept. 17.

"The investigative report of the Division of Criminal Investigation and a lot of the evidence that it produced and all of my analysis and research have led me to conclude that no criminal charges will be filed against Jeffrey Gillaspie," White, Thursday, Oct. 3.

Gillaspie free of criminal charges

Officer's frame of mind considered in decision

The Daily Iowan

No criminal charges will be filed against Iowa State University Police Officer Jeffrey Gillaspie for the Aug. 30 shooting death of Eric Shaw, Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White announced Thursday.

After much internal investigation and reflection, White said no criminal charges will be filed against Gillaspie, which "White felt" was caused by "egregious negligence." Where damage is not to the extent where it would be considered fatalities, White compared the case to the negligence for individual charges. The five charges were murder, voluntary manslaughter, involuntary manslaughter, negligence, and reckless use of a firearm. White said murder charges were not applicable because, in law, the charge requires malice aforethought, which is defined as

"fixed purpose or design to do a thing which is directly likely to cause death, which is what the evidence that the Division of Criminal Investigation and me led me to believe was not the case," White said.

Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White (left) and Rick Mesaros, DCI Special Agent, release the contents of the DCI report released to the public Thursday afternoon in the Johnson County Administration Building.

Shaw's mother, Jeff White, released publicly for the first time her reaction to J. Patrick White's decision not to press charges in the death of Eric Shaw.

"I think I've done my job...I feel like I'm living in a reverse universe, the world has gone crazy," White said.

Waller said the only justification for not pressing charges was caused Gillaspie's negligence.

"I do feel Pat White is a good person," White said. "I do feel Eric Shaw was a good person, but I don't think he thought he was doing the right thing."

Satellite Voting

Satellite early voting for the Nov. 7, 1984 general election will be available at the locations shown below:

- Iowa City Public Library, 1225 Iowa Ave., Iowa City, Mon.-Thurs. 3-9 p.m., Fri. 9-6 p.m., Sat. 9-1 p.m.
- Coralville Public Library, 1838 1st Ave. N., Coralville, Mon.-Thurs. 3-9 p.m., Fri. 9-6 p.m.

Voters must register to vote in person at the location of their choice, complete their ballots, and cast their ballots.

This increase in early voting is occurring in the presence of the growing number of students who have the opportunity to vote in a community where they may not have been eligible to register when they were younger. At the UI, 15 percent of the total number of students in the Union and in 1984, 24 percent of the votes cast were by students.

The increase in early voting reflects an increase in voter registration drives through the Union, and vote here, we go and collect the registration forms can be obtained at the Union from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Nov. 1-2, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Nov. 3-4, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; Nov. 5-6, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Nov. 7, 5 a.m. to 9 p.m.

In Iowa City, a brass ensemble, UI Noon Hour, will perform at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 6, in the Union, and those eligible for voting in the general election are invited to attend. The service will probably raise the voter turnout, translated into an increase of over 210,000 in the number of eligible voters. The increase in student voting is occurring in the presence of the growing number of students who have the opportunity to vote in a community where they may not have been eligible to register when they were younger.

Son of executed parents to discuss death penalty

Fred Lyon

The Daily Iowan

The youngest son of the first American couple convicted for espionage, Robert Meeropol will be part of panel presentations on the death penalty today at 8:30 a.m. in Shambaugh Auditorium. Meeropol's father, Julius, and brother, Aaron, were executed for espionage in 1951. Meeropol's mother, Anna, is serving a life sentence.

"One of the reasons I really enjoy speaking is that all kinds of people come out. Not just those who are convinced but those who are curious or disagree with me. That's part of the dialogue and that's important. I would urge people to come out and whether they agree with me or not, I look forward to having a discussion," Robert Meeropol, who will speak tonight at a panel presentation about the death penalty at Shambaugh Auditorium, said.

"The death penalty is so different about having a relative executed than having them about the impact that has on society. That's what really has been the focus of our panelists," Meeropol said.

Meeropol's father was a member of the Communist Party. It has been alleged that the Rosenbergs were convicted on their political beliefs rather than evidence. Most expect second Clinton term, but few see progress

Less than half polled feel issues will be solved

Mike McPheters

WASHINGTON - Unfavorably rated voters largely expect President Clinton to win re-election next month, but few expect to see advance on major national problems over the next four years, according to a poll released Thursday.

The Pew Research Center's national survey also found just 49 percent of voters plan to watch the presidential debates this year down from 67 percent in 1992 and 55 percent in the two previous election cycles.

"An overwhelming majority say they will vote or say the same, the people are relatively satisfied," Jeffrey Goldfield, sociology professor at the New York School for Social Research.

The two out of three registered voters say they already, made up their minds about who they will vote for. Debate time is expected to be a non-event as the second presidential debate will be Friday night.

While Clinton held a strong surge lead over Republican challenger Bob Dole, his performance as perceived by registered voters rated grade from 351.9917-354.8023 in the two previous election cycles.

The legal arguments covered

WASHINGTON - "If an overwhelming majority say things will get better after the election, what's the point of voting," Goldfield said. "It's not in extreme simples and difficult.

Many recent polls have found increased satisfaction with the economy giving Clinton a re-election boost.

Polls also found voters increased with satisfaction with the economy giving Clinton a re-election boost.

"What in effect you have is a C grade running against a B candidate, and C is bad," said Walter Dean Burnham, a University of Texas political scientist. "You're running against somebody who's got other qualifications that mean to be large enough to overcome his grade.

Still, Burnham was cautious about Clinton's surge saying nothing to the Pew Research Center's highest approval rating of 46 percent of his presidency in recent months.

The differences may be in opinion wording. Other polls ask similar questions of people approve of President Clinton's job performance. The Pew Research Center asked which, more or less, has approval of Clinton's job performance. They give it only a C-grade.

Overall, 51 percent of registered voters feel Clinton will win re-election, 40 percent believe he will lose ground on those problems, and 1 percent said Dole.

"He's below expectations, yet give it only a C-grade," Goldfield said. "It's not in extreme simples and difficult.

Tuesday morning was quite a rude awakening. Jay Shaw, apparently the first to arrive in the building, then entered the lobby to find Ole Shores sleeping on the floor. Shaw tried to rouse him, but Ole just dreamed of being back in prison. As he reached for his head, Ole's hair flew back and knocked Shaw right over and down the steps.

"I'm a hair stylist," Ole said, "and I think I can do your hair." He began to open the door while Kelsay was still sleeping. He hesitated a moment, then opened the door. As Ole turned around, Ole's hair flew back and hit Jay in the face. Ole then began to brush his face and continued to brush down the hall to the open Old Capitol.

Iowa hopes to rebound from loss

Wayne Devlin

Iowa head coach Wayne Devlin said: "We couldn't have asked for a better week of Big Ten action for the Iowa volleyball team. We are ready to advance to the next round of the Big Ten tournament and our goal is clear - we need to get to 20 wins." Iowa's hopes are not only for themselves, but also for the Big Ten conference as a whole.

St. Louis - After a nine-year absence from the USFL, the St. Louis Cardinals are back, and they're doing everything right.

The Cardinals, who played in the 1987 World Series, have had the key hit in the Cardinals' 5-3 victory over the San Diego Padres on Saturday. The bases-loaded single by outfielder Tom Grieve in the sixth inning helped St. Louis win 9-3.

Cardinals manager Joe Torre said: "We needed to hit and we did. We were aggressive at the plate and that's the way we want to play." The Cardinals have now won four straight games.

NEW YORK - Baseball umpires insist they won't walk out today, despite the threat of a lockout by Major League Baseball. "We are not going to walk out on this game," said umpire John Kruk, who has been with the Cardinals for 15 years.

The Cardinals are facing the St. Louis first baseman John Molitor, who hit a grand slam and added his 20th home run of the season. "They know we will be there," said Molitor.

Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog said: "We need to win this game and we will. The umpires are professionals and they will do their job." Herzog is hoping to win his 20th game of the season.

The Cardinals are currently in 4th place in the National League Central with a record of 76-68.

What Tyson needs is some real challenges

This would be a perfect world, we could win and be champions. Mike Tyson fights every Friday. The only other opportunity you get to fight in 1996 is the Olympic Games. So the next fight is coming only four times a year.

But for fans, the most enjoyable part of a Tyson fight is watching him fight, not the fight itself. Tyson's next opponent will be tough but the better he gets, the more entertaining the fight will be.

"Even when his life has been mixed in some really impossible situations, the moment to step onto the court, he's been able to do that," Jackson said. "He's a winner, he hates to lose, he wants to win. I've heard him say, 'I'll just move over for me. I'll just move over for me.'"

"The truth is that Phil's not upset about how he's been treated," Dennis Rodman said. "He just hates the business aspect of the deal, and television deals, and the day-to-day frustrations," the 35-year-old guard said.

Rodman, who liked his rebounding leader helps the Bulls' "cruise in the present and not play hard during the future," Jackson said.

"We don't have to deal with it now," Jackson said. "But we'll have to deal with it later, when his life has been mired in some really impossible situations and then be treated like he's a golfer or something."

"I think Rodman, he isn't ruling out playing beyond this season. But unlike Phil, he isn't saying he's not playing beyond this season."

"We're going to approach it," Rodman said. "I think the season, over, I won't have to deal with it anymore."

Of course, the Bulls have sought Jordan's原谅. They have and they have learned not to take him too seriously. Not a championship is at stake in this game.

When his wedding cake went on for more than an hour, Dennis Rodman talked about how the Bulls' star "wasn't all that upset about his contract negotiations." But Rodman didn't have enough sugar in his mouth? What, his wedding cake wasn't the last straw?"

"We've got a guy to win four championships and then be treated like he's a golfer or something," Jackson said. "Don't need much over for me. I'll just move over for me. I'll just move over for me."

When it comes to piling on the awards, rare is the actor who is as consistent as Tom Hanks. Whether it is narrating the magic of childhood or playing an intimate, Hanks has developed a career where his movies feel like they are "That Thing You Do." Hanks again captivated the audience with9 unbridled whimsy and heartwarming performances. When the show is over, his work is clearly seen as an enjoyable fantasy that is hard to resist.

Disney town celebrates past

Isa Flores
Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — The Walt Disney Co. showed off an animatronic museum that will be the centerpiece of a planned community for 20,000 people near Los Angeles, a key step in its drive to expand its reaches worldwide.

"There's a fundamental promise that we start with, but what else is that you can't be expected to live next week," said Gail Donofrio, Disney's chief executive. "You have to buy it into it and agree to it if you want to get any entertainment that way.

Disney's new town, called "Hollywoodland," will be a traditional town with a movie theme. It's a place where residents can walk around and see movie-themed attractions, including a giant statue of Mickey Mouse.

The town is planned for a site in the Los Angeles area and will include a movie studio, a theme park, and other attractions. The project is expected to cost $20 billion.

Disney announced the plan in a letter to shareholders, saying it's a way to attract more people to the company's parks and resorts.

Disney's move comes as the film industry is facing a decline in ticket sales and box office revenue. The company has been working to diversify its business and expand into new areas, including theme parks and resort properties.

Disney's chairman, Bob Iger, said the new town will be a "pivotal moment" for the company. "We are committed to bringing together all the elements of our business to create a truly immersive experience that will appeal to people of all ages," he said.

SHAZAM,
Soccer skills lead Hurley to football

Former City High star at long range field goals

Pro career may be next

Chris Snider
THE DAILY IOWAN

Call him the Happy Gilmore of football.

Just as the fictional character Happy Gilmore used his great hockey slapshot to land a spot on the professional golfers tour in the movie Happy Gilmore, Iowa senior Brion Hurley has used his abilities as a soccer player to land him a spot on the Iowa football team.

Hurley's size dictated that he would be a better soccer player than football player at City High School in Iowa City, but he wasn't dedicated enough to the sport with the rounder ball.

"Most of the kids playing soccer were playing all year round," Hurley said. "I was still wanting to play basketball and football. I couldn't specialize like they were doing."

So Hurley made his way over to the football field, where he currently handles kickoffs, long field goals and short-yardage punting duties for the Hawkeyes.

Hurley first recognized the need for a kicker on his junior high team and jumped at the opportunity. While in seventh grade, he used to practice kicking the football before school and after soccer practice.

So far, his hard work has paid off. A senior who has already graduated with a degree in statistics, Hurley is looking at a possible pro career.

"I think he has an excellent chance at the pros because he's also an excellent punter, as well as field goals and kickoffs. He's probably as improved of a football player as we've had here in a long time," Hayden Fry, Iowa football coach on Brion Hurley.

Every hour of practice Hurley spends on the soccer field is paying off on the football field.

"I feel like if someone goes down, I can step up and fill the job," Hurley said.

Hurley said he knows his chances at reaching the pros are slim, but that he would jump at any opportunity, even if it was with the Iowa Barnstormers of the Arena Football League.

"Any chance I can get, anywhere, I'll take it," he said.

But Hurley feels the fact that he isn't kicking short field goals or extra points because Zach Brstrom handles those duties and the fact that he is stuck behind Nick Gallery in punting assignments will hurt his chances at the pros. But he is not ruling out the possibility.

"I know I'd like to try out and see if I can get a shot somewhere," he said. "I don't know what I would do. I'd probably concentrate on my punting. I think that's probably my best shot."

Fry, who said pro scouts have contacted him about Hurley, knows the senior can hit short field goals and extra points, but says other players deserve playing time, too.

"He can hit them for us," Fry said. "We're trying to make everybody happy, kind of like playing Tavian (Banks) and Sedrick (Shaw) in the same backfield. That's a good problem to have.

Hurley accepts this fact.

"You always feel like you want to do more, but I don't feel like I'm any better than the people that are doing the job now," he said. "I feel like if someone goes down, I can step up and fill the job."

"I think he has an excellent chance at the pros because he's also an excellent punter, as well as field goals and kickoffs. He's probably as improved of a football player as we've had here in a long time," Hayden Fry, Iowa football coach on Brion Hurley.
Pumping Iron: Strength program prepares Iowa players to do battle in the Big Ten

Tony Wirt
THE DAILY IOWAN

Every year, NCAA Division I-A football players get bigger, stronger, faster and quicker — and it is the job of Iowa's strength, speed and conditioning department to make sure the Hawkeyes don't fall behind the rest of the country in those areas.

Iowa's head strength and conditioning coach Paul Longo has recognized the effect these qualities have had on the game of college football and has tailored his program to address the areas of agility, flexibility, nutrition, speed development, conditioning and strength.

Although many programs see muscle mass as the only thing they try in those areas.

A workout designed to add bulk to his frame while not losing any quickness.

In Longo's program, players are given one-on-one attention and have their progress recorded by Longo and the strength and conditioning staff. This way, the coaches can help train the players mentally as well as physically. The coaches stress when to push beyond what athletes think they can do and when to hold back.

When an athlete first comes into the program, he is put through a battery of tests to determine and analyze his strengths and weaknesses.

Then it is determined where the player needs to be in order to play football at the Big Ten level. After seeing what the player can handle physically, and those guys have prepared us over the summer with our new equipment and facilities," he said. "Those guys are incredible. They will be there for you.

The players understand what this program is doing for the team. Hawkeye defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge came to Iowa as a freshman at 265 pounds and now tips the scales at 245.

"I can't say enough about how Coach Longo, Parker Wildeman and those guys have prepared us through the system, Wildeman can offer a players perspective to the coaching staff.

"Parker is invaluable to us. To me he is the epitome of Hawkeye football. He was a self-made player," Longo said, "He's been there, he's done it, and our kids really respect and look up to him."

An athlete going through this program can expect to put on up to sixty quality pounds during a five-year stay at Iowa while decreasing his time in the 40-yard dash by two- to three-tenths of a second.

"We always tell the recruit's mother not to buy him clothes before she sends him to school in August," Longo said.

Head Coach Kirk Ferentz had to remind the team of its biggest loss, did last season from a difficult trip to Pasadena.

HAWKEYES TRY TO BOUNCE BACK AFTER LOSS

Wayne Drees
THE DAILY IOWAN

Heading into Big Ten Conference action, the Iowa football team is looking to duplicate what one of its biggest rivals, Northwestern, did last season — rebound from a difficult loss and head to the Rose Bowl.

The Wildcats fell to lowly Miami of Ohio, 30-28, in Evanston last season before rebounding to win their last nine regular season games and earn their first trip to Pasadena since 1946.

Iowa was upset by Tulsa, 20-27, on September 21.

"People forget and they don't remember that Northwestern lost to Miami of Ohio," Iowa defensive end Bill Ennis-Inge said. "They only remember that they went to the Rose Bowl. I remind the team of that and let them know that we are going to be all right, and that the only way you can really taste success is to suffer a little failure."

Ennis-Inge refuses to throw away his hopes of a Big Ten Championship.

"You are not coached to lose and you don't play to lose," Ennis-Inge said. "We go out and work hard every day to be the Big Ten champions and earn the right to go to the Rose Bowl."

"If you don't believe you are preparing for the Rose Bowl, then you are just wasting your time."

The loss against Tulsa was due in part to numerous mental mistakes, a lack of execution and outstanding play by Tulsa. Since the loss, Iowa's confidence entering Saturday's game against Michigan State has come into question.

"We had five dropped passes, and several veteran breakdowns that we don't expect," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. "But I'm not concerned about our team's confidence. We are a good team with good young men and if anything, they'll be highly motivated to bounce back."

Immediately following the loss, senior kicker Brian Hurley admits the team's confidence was not all there though.

"Our confidence was really low after the game," he said. "We had chances to win that game and we felt we let ourselves down. We just wanted to get out of there and get home."

Since Tulsa, the Hawkeyes have had two weeks to work on fundamentals, get key players healthy, and mentally prepare for the Big Ten season ahead.

"It couldn't have been a better time for the off week," quarterback Matt Sherman said. "We were a little shaken by the loss in that we didn't do as well as we could. It really makes you think how you could have helped the team more."

Sherman also believes the Tulsa loss changes the perspective on the season.

"That game really hurt our ego," the junior said. "We have a lot to prove now because we are not picked as one of the top teams anymore."

The loss has also been looked at by Fry as a motivational tool before entering the Big Ten season. The coach claims the response he has seen from the players in practice the last two weeks has been extremely positive.

"We are more intelligent in the past weeks, since we lost the game," Fry said. "It was a great learning experience about execution and other things."

As a captain of the team, Ennis-Inge says one of those other things learned is the feeling a player has after a difficult loss.

"After a game like that, you ask yourself, 'What can I do to not feel this way again,'" Ennis-Inge said. "It really puts it in your heart that yes, you can be beat, and you need to prepare more."

"So now this loss has really made us stronger and closer as a team."

The unity within the Hawkeyes since Tulsa is one factor that keeps the team's confidence up heading into the Michigan State game Saturday. Confidence that Ennis-Inge claims never was or never is in question.

"There is no confidence problem here. We cannot and will not let the loss all us and bring our heads down. This is a really big test to see how the team responds from this adversity. We are all old and mature enough to understand what we have to do to stop this ship from sinking."

"That game really hurt our ego. We have a lot to prove now because we are not picked as one of the top teams anymore."

YOU ARE NOT COACHED TO LOSE

"You are not coached to lose and you don't play to lose. We go out and work hard every day to be the Big Ten champions and earn the right to go to the Rose Bowl. If you don't believe you are preparing for the Rose Bowl, then you are just wasting your time."

Teams have history of close games

All but two games since 1982 have been decided by a seven points or fewer

Andy Hamilton

When fans think of a great Big Ten battle, they think of this series. The Iowa-Michigan game has always been a highly contested clash with a trip to Pasadena quite often at stake.

The Hawkeye offense took a while to get used to playing without Ronnie Harmon, who suffered a broken leg the week before the game ranked No. 1 in the nation.

Chuck Hartlieb took over Harmon and quarterback Tom Poholak, who was impressive in his first Hawkeye start, filling in for Mark Vlasic. Poholak threw for 240 yards and two touchdowns in a game dominated by the defense. Iowa rushed for just 80 yards on the day, but held the Michigan State offense to only 64 yards and limited Lorenzo White to 41 yards, as the Hawkeyes held on for a 24-21 win.

This game proved that when Iowa takes the first half lead, the Spartans rarely come back from a 14-7 deficit. Lorenzo White once again had a big game in Kinnick Stadium, rushing for 166 yards and a touchdown, as the Hawkeyes fell for the only time at home on their way to the Holiday Bowl.

The two teams met up in East Lansing in 1988 in another defensive battle, as the game went into the fourth quarter deadlocked, 10-10. In spite of the defenses, both offenses created plenty of excitement during the final minute.

With 22 seconds to play and the game tied, Michigan State's John Langeloh missed a 24-yard field goal. Iowa came back on the next play with a 38-yard pass from Chuck Hartlieb to Travis Watkins, giving Jeff Hayden Fry the ball rolling for the Hawkeyes, who would go all the way to the Rose Bowl.

The Hawkeyes and Spartans took a break from each other in 1991 and 1992. Even 1993 could be considered a year off under the standards of this series, as Michigan State won 24-10 in its biggest win over Iowa since 1980.

Things got back to normal in 1994 for the two schools. Iowa entered the contest suffering from five consecutive losses.

Iowa's leading passer turned out to be wide receiver Anthony Dean, who completed his only pass for 41 yards to Harold Jasper. With a strong running game provided by Sedrick Shaw and Kent Kahl, the Hawkeyes held the ball for 18 minutes during the second half with scoring drives of 87 and 80 yards.

Michigan State's offense was kept off the field and off the scoreboard in the second half and Iowa pulled out a much needed 18-14 win and the fans stormed the field at Kinnick Stadium.

Iowa won again last season, 21-7, in East Lansing behind Sedrick Shaw's 250-yard performance, but the game was much closer than indicated, as the Spartans drove inside the Iowa 10-yard line twice late in the game.

Larry Putney keeps Kinnick Stadium ready for battle

Chuck Blount
THE DAILY IOWAN

Taking care of a Division I-A college football program is not easy. From dealing with players, equipment, travel plans and the media, there is a lot to take into consideration. However, one of the most obvious links to football often goes unnoticed—the field.

Field conditions for the Iowa State and Arizona games this year were semi-wet even though there had been no rain prior to the contest—a good strategy for a speedy defense and a Heisman Trophy candidate. But Fry insists he would never do that to an opponent.

"We prepare the field the exact same way every day of every week of the year. Besides, we would be hindering the success of our own players." Larry Putney, Iowa football groundskeeper on whether he wets the field to slow down opposing players

In the winter, the field is blanketed with a heat-retaining cover that elevates the field temperature five degrees above the outside temperature. The cover also allows water to permeate onto the field. An underground watering system has been placed under the field to cater to any possible drainage or watering situations. The million dollar project has made inclement weather irrelevant to field conditions. Under the sod lies a layer of sand and a tile system that prevents rain soaking the field.

"I prepare the field the exact same way every day of every week of the year," Putney said. "Besides, we would be hindering the success of our own players."

Normally, the Kinnick turf is watered for one hour three times a day. Whether these rumors are true or not has yet to be determined. What has been determined is that Kinnick Stadium is the Rolls Royce of football fields. Fans believe that, and even coach Fry has expressed the sentiments.

"I think that we have the best college football field in America," he said. "It really does."

Opponents Focus on Haynes

Last season, Iowa wide receiver Tom Dwyer caught 46 passes for 816 yards and was one of the Hawkeyes' top offensive threats. Thus far this season, the Iowa City native has just 56 yards receiving on eight catches.

But Iowa coach Hayden Fry is not worried about the performance of his star receiver, saying teams have been focusing more on shutting down Dwyer.

"Tim's a football player and he sees how people are playing and he knows that there are certain teams that, because of their defensive structure, he is going to have a greater opportunity against," Fry said. "You don't play Tim Dwyer like a normal player, so people do things to shut him down. If they don't, they're crazy."

One area Dwyer has not been contained is the area of hitting, hitting opposing players that is.

Dwyer has been known to lay out opponents on punt and kick returns, although he has two penalties for hitting a punt returner too soon this season.

Fry noticed the penalties haven't seemed to lessen fans views of Dwyer.

"It'd make it a lot easier on the coaches if the fans wouldn't yell and holler when he hits someone like that," Fry said. "He enjoys that."

Fry remembers his high school playing days

Despite having an all-star quarterback, Iowa high school coach Bryce Fry had to miss the 50th season of his team's championship in 1946.

"A little town of about 9,000 people, we won the whole town," Fry said. "We just had a ball club.

The team was honored with a game last Friday, but NCAA rules wouldn't allow Fry to hold the high school game. The team disappointed Fry, who has been some of his old teammates for 50 years.

"They ought to make special privileges for coaches who have been playing high school football for them to see the game," Fry said.

None the less, Fry has heard memories of his team's championship football days.

"They don't let you play games out there," Fry said. "They bet their lives on them.

season for 56 yards. Coach Hayden Fry said opposing teams are focusing more on Dwight after a successful sophomore campaign.

Walk-on players key Iowa success

Becky Gruhn
THE DAILY IOWAN

Imagine working 40 hours a week, lifting weights or watching films without reaping the benefits of an athletic scholarship. That is the scenario faced by walk-on athletes at the University of Iowa.

UI sophomore Zach Bromert, a Hawkeye placekicker and a walk-on player, said he wasn't going to have a scholarship but decided to take a chance and come up.

"I had a few scholarship offers from small schools to play football," said Bromert. "I came up and visited the campus and really liked the program a lot. The coaching staff is great and I was really impressed with the whole situation so I decided to take a chance and come up."

"The scholarships we award yearly are based on how many are available due to the graduation of senior players. On average, between two and three walk-on athletes end up getting a scholarship yearly," said Gene Jones, Iowa recruiting coordinator.

Kinnick Stadium favorite, took a gamble and came all the way from Pensacola, Fla., in order to walk on at Iowa.

"I sent my tape up here and the coaches said they'd like to have me walk on here," Bromert said. "I came up and visited the campus and really liked the program a lot. The coaching staff is great and I was really impressed with the whole situation so I decided to take a chance and come up."

"I had a few scholarship offers from some small schools to play soccer. For football I was being looked at really closely by a lot of big schools after my junior year of high school. But we didn't make the playoffs my senior year and that hurt my chances of getting anywhere as far as Division I is concerned. But in a way, I'm glad things didn't work out in that respect because I ended up here and things have worked out great. I think everything happens for a reason," Bromert said.

Bromert was the only true freshman to play for Iowa in 1995. He has connected on 45-of-46 PATs in his career, including 23 straight, and has hit on 8-of-10 career field goals.

"But his popularity with the crowd is something Bromert never expected," said Gene Jones. "That was an absolute surprise to me," he said. "I just wanted to get a chance to step on the field. I guess once you step on the field, that stuff comes with it."

"Iowa has had a lot of success with their walk-ons, so I thought this was the best place to do it. I felt like I could play at this level," said Jones.

Although the decision to play at Iowa was a relatively easy one for both players, Chambers admits the path to attaining a scholarship wasn't easy.

"It is really tough," he said. "If you talk to any walk-on around here, they'll tell you it's a tough road. You have to have a lot of drive. There are times you feel like it's working good and then there are times you feel like there's no way it is going to work out.

"As a walk-on you're not in a position where it is assumed you can play. You have to prove that you can play. I had a lot of support from my parents, friends, and overall community support from my hometown of Tremont, Iowa. Those people, mostly my parents, were always there encouraging me to stay with it when it didn't look promising," Chambers said.

Chambers attributes being awarded a scholarship his junior year to a lucky break he got during his sophomore season.

"I got a break my sophomore year when John Hartlieb got hurt," he said. "I was still a walk on and they really didn't have a solid No. 2. The whole week in practice after he got hurt I really stepped up and got to start the next week."

House probably won't ever forget the moment he found out he had received a scholarship.

"After my freshman year Coach Fry called me into his office and told me that they were going to put me on scholarship. That was a very good feeling, definitely like a dream come true," he said.

But lack of a scholarship is not a concern to many UI walk-on football players. It's more about playing the sport they love.

"Even if I wouldn't have played in a game last year, I would have worked just as hard as I did," Bromert said. "That's just the kind of person I am. Walk-on or not, I'm going to put in the same amount of work."

FRESHMAN SENSATION: Iowa placekicker Zach Bromert was the only true freshman to see action for the Hawkeyes last season and became a crowd favorite.

Spartans come to Iowa on heels of big win

Chris Snider
THE DAILY IOWAN

Despite a 2-2 record, coach Nick Saban will bring a confident Michigan State football team into Iowa City this weekend, fresh off a 47-0 victory over Eastern Michigan.

"The win over Eastern was a total team win," Saban said. "Every facet of our team came together — the defense with the shutout, the special teams with the punt return for a score and the offense which gained more confidence as the game went along."

Iowa coach Hayden Fry knows his team will have to slow down the Spartans before it can beat them.

"Anytime you have a Goose-Egg quarterback, that's quite an accomplishment," Fry said. "We're going to catch them probably as close to full speed as they can present."

Freshman quarterback Bill Burke, who entered the season as the Spartans' No. 3 quarterback, is listed to start against the Hawkeyes. There is an outside shot senior Todd Schultz could return for the game, but Saban insists Burke is his man.

"Bill Burke is our starting quarterback — period," Saban said. "This is a coaching decision based on a number of factors. You can make it a controversy if you want to, but that's going to be what's best for our team."

Burke was given the first start of his career last week against Eastern Michigan, completing 8-of-22 passes for 166 yards and two touchdowns in the victory.

"Bill Burke, once he settled down in the game after going 0-for-7 in the beginning, showed a little poise, maybe as a guy that has some potential for the future as a quarterback," Saban said.

BLOWOUT: Michigan State's Duane Goulbourne rolls into the end zone over Eastern Michigan's Jermaine Brooks for a touchdown during the first quarter on Saturday, Sept. 28 in East Lansing, Mich. Michigan State won, 47-0.

With junior tailback Marc Renaud academically ineligible this season, senior Duane Goulbourne and true freshman Sedrick Irvin have taken up the slack at running back.

Goulbourne has 62 carries for 263 yards. Irvin has 60 rushes for 261 yards and six touchdowns. Irvin also has 17 receptions for 133 yards and another touchdown.

Junior offensive tackle Flozell Adams, a 6-7, 325 pounder, has led the way for Goulbourne and Irvin. Adams was honorable mention All-Big Ten.

THE DAILY IOWAN

Michigan State linebacker Reggie Garnett has inked some pretty impressive stats in his years with the Spartans. He's also been known to put that ink onto paper when he's not on the field.

Garnett has drawn caricatures of friends, movie characters, celebrities, almost everyone who wants one done, he said. The four-year starter even drew a couple of former MSU coach George Perles before his retirement.

But some of his most famous drawing came during team meeting his freshman season.

Any time a guest speaker came to talk to the team, that person was open game for Garnett's sketch pad. And as a freshman, Garnett's drawings almost got him in trouble when humorous sketches of the coaching staff circulated during a team meeting.

"I'd draw pictures and they'd get passed around, but I never got in trouble for it," Garnett said.

Artistic talent runs in Garnett's family. His mother, Ruby Garnett of Ruby and the Romantics, had a No. 1 song with "Our Day Will Come" in the 1960's.

"I didn't inherit any of her singing talent," Garnett said. "He did inherit some talents from his older brother, Robert, a veteran defensive back in the NFL."

Garnett said extra week was a precautionary method to get him more prepared for Iowa.

"I don't want to bring the rest of the players down because I'm not one hundred percent," he said.

Garnett came to Michigan State after earning Parade Magazine All-American honors at Buchtel High School in Akron, Ohio, immediately stepped into a starting role with the Spartans.

He was just 18 years old when he started his first game for Michigan State.

The 6-1, 230 pound middle linebacker earned Big Ten freshman of the year honors in 1993, and has been honorable mention All-Big Ten the past two seasons.

Garnett has been on the Butkus Award Watch List since his sophomore season and is currently 10th in Michigan State history with 287 tackles. He finished seventh in the Big Ten in tackles last season.

Iowa opens Big Ten season with win

Iowa 27, Michigan State 20

When Iowa and Michigan State meet Saturday in Kinnick Stadium, it could very well be the most important game of 1996 for the Hawkeyes.

A win would get back the confidence of the coaches, players, and fans after the upset loss at Tulsa. Most importantly, a victory against Michigan State would be a great start to the Big Ten season and give the Hawkeyes momentum to finish in the upper half of the conference.

On the other hand, a loss could be devastating. Two losses in a row wasn’t supposed to be possible until the Penn State and Ohio State games.

As it is, Hawkeye fans are starting to wonder where the powerful offense is. This is the game that offense will find itself running the football hasn’t been a problem for the Iowa offense, as Sedrick Shaw and Tavian Banks are sixth and eighth in the Big Ten in rushing respectively. Fullback Michael Burger has been effective when called upon, averaging 6.5 yards per carry.

The passing game is yet to show its potential. Iowa ranks dead last in passing offense in the conference and Matt Sherman has been able to find big play threats Tim Dwight and Demar Odems, as the two wide receivers have combined for just a dozen catches.

While the Hawkeyes had a field day running the football last season in the 21-7 win in East Lansing, the aerial attack was also productive. Sherman’s 213 yards passing, 115 of them to Dwight, were overshadowed by Shaw’s 250-yard performance. Shaw is very capable of having that type of game again this season, but it isn’t likely. The Spartans rank third in the Big Ten in rushing defense after four games, including a loss to the Hawkeyes, feature two very good running backs. Freshman Sedrick Irvin was one of the most highly recruited players in the state of Florida last season. That alone says enough, but Irvin has rushed for six touchdowns and senior Duane Goulbourne has also gave Michigan State a powerful running attack.

The Hawkeye defense will be up to the task to stop the run and the Spartans move the ball, it will be through the air with freshman quarterback Bill Burke throwing to speedy receivers Nigea Carter and Derrick Mason.

When Iowa and Michigan State lock up, a close game is always in order. Since 1982, only two games in the series have been decided by a touchdown or less. Look for the Hawkeyes to come up with a Sun Bowl-type performance and the passing game to give Iowa the all-around offensive attack it will need to finish near the top of the Big Ten.

Michigan at Northwestern

This is an ugly rivalry based on one team stealing the other team's name for their fight song. You know how ugly that gets.

The Wolverines are singing something but "Go You Northwestern" after last year's 19-13, loss in Ann Arbor.
The Wildcats have come back strong after the opening loss to Wake Forest and have the offensive wheels turning behind running back Darnell Autry (8 TD's, 573 yds.) and quarterback Steve Schur (69-percent completion percentage and 8 TD's).
The Wolverines handled UCLA fairly easily last weekend, 38-9. Michigan coach Lloyd Carr said his team needs no motiva-tional speech for the Wildcats.
"We will be ready for Northwestern. The players know what happened last year and how tough of ball game it's going to be. If we play our game and keep the crowd out of it, we'll be successful," Carr said.

13-of-15 winners this season.

If we can execute early and keep the crowd in the game, it will be very tough for Penn State.

The big clash of the week has
Ohio State at Michigan

Right now, this game has more national championship ramifications than conference ramifications. Ohio State looked solid in its win at Notre Dame and Penn State played just well enough to pull off a three point win in Madison. Some times that's what it takes.

This game comes down to who can stop that other teams running game. Penn State grinds out 230.8 yards every contest on the ground and the Buckeyes punish opposing teams for 297 yards per game.

The quarterbacks are the X-factor.

Penn State's Wally Richardson has thrown five interceptions and only three touchdowns.

Joe Germaine and Stanley Jackson of Ohio State have defensive coordinators wettig the bed at night. Both throw for over 12 yards per completion and both have thrown for 5 touchdowns. Buckeye coach John Cooper said the horseshoe should be rocking this Saturday.

"If we can execute early and keep the crowd in the game, it will be very tough for Penn State. Playing at home is something we do very well and other teams know when they come into Columbus, its going to be a challenge," Cooper said.

Ohio State, 31-17.

Minnesota at Purdue

This could be the most intriguing game of the week.

Purdue looked impressive (words rarely seen in the same sentence) in its 42-21 shellacking of N. C. State last week. Boil-ermaker receiver Brian Alford is turning into one of the more dangerous receivers in the conference. Alford averages 15.5
yards per catch and has caught three scores.

The Golden Gophers have their own bronzed animal threat in Tutu Atwell. Atwell averages six catches per game at 14.72 yards per grab.

Minnesota had a huge upset of Syracuse two weeks ago but Golden Gopher coach Jim Wacker said this week's game is ten times more important.

"The Syracuse win gave us a lot of momentum but this is the game we really want to get.

Road wins in the Big Ten are hard to come by so if we can pull this one out it would be huge," Wacker said.

Purdue, 30-24.

Indiana at Illinois

The Hoosiers lost last week against Northwestern, but Bill Mallory's team seems more focused and disciplined than the team that was blown out by 35 points in '95.

TULSA RECAP: Iowa's Mike Burger (top) runs the football against the Golden Hurricane Sept. 21. Matt Sherman (right) tries to get out of the grasp of a Tulsa defender. Iowa lost the game, 27-20.

SEASON OPENER: Iowa tailback Tavian Banks picks up a block from Mike Burger and runs to dayligh against Arizona on Sept. 7.

mention all-Big Ten last year and was named a preseason all-Big Ten selection by Bob Griese's Football Yearbook.

Defensively, senior middle linebacker Reggie Garnett returns after missing the last two games with a knee injury.

Junior linebacker Ike Reese leads the team with 45 tackles.

True freshman Mike Austin is second with 26 stops and sophomore safety Sorie Kanu has 22 tackles. Sophomore linebacker Courtney Ledyard has four sacks and six tackles-for-loss amongst his 20 stops.

After suffering a 21-7 loss to Iowa last season in East Lansing, Saban expects another tough battle this year.

"I think that it is going to be very challenging for us to go to Iowa City and this is going to be a very important game for us," he said.

Sedrick Shaw rushed for 250 yards in Iowa's victory last year.

"Obviously we're going to have to do a much better job of containing, tackling and playing on the line of scrimmage than we did last year, or we're not going to have very good results," Saban said.

The Spartans face Illinois at home next week and Minnesota on the road Oct. 18.
