U.S. bombers prepare for air strikes

With talks breaking down with President Milosevic, U.S. bombers were moved into position in Kosovo.

By Katarina Kratovac
 Associated Press
 BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — U.S. bombers moved into position for possible NATO air strikes on Yugoslavia and a U.S. envoy accelerated talks with President Slobodan Milosevic on Sunday after reporting no change in the leader's tough stand on Kosovo.
 Richard Holbrooke and Milosevic began meeting at midday Sunday and talked until early today with only a 2½ hour break, U.S. sources said on condition of anonymity, adding it was too early to say whether talks would resume later today.

 There was no immediate word on whether the sides were any closer to a deal. It was the sixth time in seven days the two sides had met in search of a peaceful way out of the deadlock.
 A diplomat familiar with the talks, speaking on condition of anonymity, described the meeting as "extremely difficult." It ended hours before a planned NATO meeting in Brussels, Belgium, during which the alliance is expected to issue an "activation order" for air action unless diplomacy produces a breakthrough.

 Holbrooke said early Sunday that he would "continue an intense effort to find a peaceful, acceptable, fully verifiable compliance system as an alternative to the other choice" — meaning the use of force.
 In Washington, national security adviser Sandy Berger told CNN that Milosevic "is not in compliance as of this point."
 The Americans and Europeans are demanding that Milosevic halt the crackdown he launched Feb. 28 against the separatist Kosovo Liberation Army.

 The major obstacle appears to be Holbrooke's demand that Milosevic agree to an expanded international monitoring mission to verify compliance with demands of the U.N. Security Council.
 Those demands include an immediate cease-fire, a withdrawal of special troops in the province, allowing refugees to return home and beginning talks with ethnic Albanians on Kosovo's future.

SUNDAY ACCOUNTING TEST
Alleged cheating prompts retake
 A rescheduled Financial Accounting Reporting midterm cut Homecoming weekend short.
By Elly Wallin
 The Daily Iowan
 More than 70 UI students wrapped up Homecoming weekend with a Financial Accounting Reporting midterm Sunday night.
 And it was the second time they took it.
 A 20-page essay test was re-administered to students at 6:30 p.m., due to alleged cheating on the first examination, which was given on Oct. 6.
 The only proctor issuing the test was not given enough tests for everyone to take the exam at the same time on Oct. 6, said UI senior Geoff Elter.
 The proctor issued all the tests he could, then left the room and went to Kinko's, 14 S. Clinton St., to photocopy more exams for the rest of the class, Elter said. He told the students not to open their booklets until he returned.
 While the proctor was out of the room, however, students allegedly looked at books and notes and began answering questions.
 Elter, who took the test on Oct. 6 in another section, did not have to retake the midterm because there were enough tests issued in that section.
 "It's human nature to try to get an advantage," Elter said. "The TA who left the room should have re-collected the test. No proctor in the room — that's ridiculous."
 The rescheduled test had to be OKed with the dean of the College of Business before it could take place on Sunday night.
 "We felt it was a more fair way to proceed," said Daniel Collins, the head of accounting.
 "I think that (second) test was so much harder," said UI senior Matt Swanson. "I'm screwed. I have two more (exams) next week I have to study for."
 Swanson said cheating is a natural reaction when the professor leaves the room. "I think the school is being completely

Yes, it was (yawn) Homecoming weekend

Parties were plentiful, but Homecoming activities weren't any crazier than those during a typical Iowa City weekend.

By Kelli Otting
 The Daily Iowan

Although it was Homecoming weekend, UI students and alumni weren't partying any more than usual, at least according to police records and the accounts of some students.

UI freshman Melanie Veach said her first UI Homecoming was nothing like she had anticipated, because it seemed low-key, but she added that she and her friends had a great time anyway.

"There seemed to be so many people having fun, but they weren't out of control like I expected," she said.

Veach said she and her friends didn't go to the bars because they didn't think it was worth getting caught and because they knew about some off-campus parties.

"We went to a party on Davenport Street, and it turned out that there were about five parties on one block," she said. "Everywhere you looked, there was a different party and different people getting really drunk."

Despite the number of parties that she noted, Veach said she didn't see very much of the police.

"I saw a couple, but I don't think any came in to the parties we were at," she said. "Actually, the cops weren't as bad as I thought they would be."

This year's Homecoming weekend wasn't any worse than a typical weekend, said Iowa City police Lt. Ron Fort.

There were 56 arrests this weekend. In comparison, there were 23 last week during the weekend of the Michigan game, 70 during the Iowa State game weekend and 75 during the Central Michigan game weekend.

Last year's Homecoming weekend had 84 arrests.

"We didn't see anything out of the ordinary compared with past Homecomings, past Hawkeye home games and even regular weekends," Fort said. "Even the people that we had to

Cigars, bikinis highlight parade

Warm weather lured spectators to an eyebrow-raising Homecoming parade.

By Steven Cook
 The Daily Iowan

Clear skies and relatively warm temperatures brought crowds out in full force to Friday's Homecoming parade.

"It wasn't freezing, and it wasn't raining like it always is," said Christa Clark, executive director of the Homecoming Council. "The crowd was a lot bigger."
 The night wasn't absent of lively moments.

"We were having fun, no one dropped their towel or anything"

— Anne Thimson, Kappa Kappa Gamma float chair

Students dressed in towels, a woman spanking President Clinton with a cigar and bikini-clad participants made for some colorful floats in the parade.

The floats raised questions of what is appropriate, but Clark said the committee didn't find anything offensive, and if it had, there wouldn't be much it could have done.

 "The Homecoming Council is not in the business of censorship," she said.

The pep rally, which featured a speech by former UI basketball player B.J. Armstrong, also had a high turnout. The event culminated in the crowning of Jason Lettmann as Homecoming King and Tanna Frederick as Homecoming Queen.

Prior to the announcement, it was the College Republican float that had the crowd's attention. The float featured various antics, including a

National Coming Out Day sparks emotional response at Pentacrest rally

Residents gathered Sunday to support the 10th annual National Coming Out Day.

Shon Derifield, a Kirkwood College freshman and Iowa City resident, said he realized he was a homosexual two years ago but it wasn't until Sunday that he "came out" to the world.

the date of the first mass gay march on Washington, Derifield spoke about how society and religion have affected him throughout his life.

Sunday was a very emotional day for him, he said, one that he will always look back at positively.
 "Coming out is not easy by any means — there are many obstacles and conflicts throughout the entire process," Derifield said. However, he said, it was worth it to live the life he wanted.

While he was growing up in Waterloo, he said, his family was very involved in church, in which he first learned of homosexuality and that it was viewed as a sin — something abnormal and morally wrong.
 As a result, much of his life was spent denying his sexual orientation.

"I felt like an outsider and never really felt like I belonged," Derifield said. "I rarely remember being happy ... mostly confused and muddled."

With rainbow-colored flags flying, Derifield and about 65 Iowa City residents showed support for one another through songs and speeches.

Jewish-born nun made a saint by Pope
VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II Sunday decreed the first Jewish-born saint of the modern era: Edith Stein, a nun killed in the gas chambers of Auschwitz. From now on, the pope said, Catholics should commemorate all the Holocaust's murdered Jews each year when they mark the day Stein died — Aug. 9.
 "In the martyr Sister Teresa Benedicta of the Cross so many differences meet and are resolved in peace," John Paul said.

Help Me, Harlan

Dear Harlan,
I've recently broken off my engagement with my fiancé of four years. I'm back in the singles' scene and finding it difficult. I'm meeting lots of guys, dating a few and have many guy friends. However, I don't have many "girlfriends." Most of my friends are engaged or married and really have a limited amount of "girlfriends" to go out with. I love hanging out with the guys, but it's not the same as having a few close girlfriends.
So, what's a good way to meet some girls with the same interests?

— Starting over

Dear Starting over,
Yeah, I know the deal. What man isn't looking for guy friends for some heavy shopping, hanging out and gossiping? Just because you're no longer engaged doesn't mean you must isolate yourself from your engaged and married friends.
If anything, try to rekindle those faded friendships. The catch is that you have to get out of the house to do them. It all sounds obvious because it is obvious. You just have to be patient. Give it a good year and find yourself some interesting new friends.

Russian activist to lecture on human rights

Valentin Gefter says human rights shouldn't take a backseat to other issues his country is facing.

By E.C. Fogue
The Daily Iowan

At a time when Russia is confronting economic and political change, activist Valentin Gefter says the importance of human rights should not be discounted. Without consideration of human rights, Russia won't achieve its other goals.

"Since there was not a comprehensive human-rights reform in Russia, the attempt at comprehensive economic reform has failed," said Gefter in an interview with The Daily Iowan, translated by Steven Hoch, director of the UI Center for Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies. "Upon the collapse of the Soviet Union, people tend to think the human-rights problems were resolved," Hoch said. This is not the case, however, as Russia, overwhelmed with its transition to a market economy, has put human rights at the end of its agenda.

In the more than five years since the collapse of the Soviet Union, human rights in the region have deteriorated significantly.

Gefter, a Russian native and executive director of the Human Rights Institute in Moscow, is scheduled to present a lecture titled "Human Rights in Contemporary Russia" in Room 225 of the Boyd Law Building today at 8 p.m.

The United States, as well as the international community as a whole, have a stake in Russia's successful transition to a democratic market society, Hoch said.

"It is essential to the creation of stable world order," he said.

A necessary component of this transition is foreign investment, he added.

The status of human rights in Russia appears to be an important factor in attracting this foreign investment. The European Union, Russia's largest trading partner, has engaged the country in several high-profile human-rights issues.

Other members of the international community, including the United Nations and the United States, have expressed concern about the apparent human-rights abuses occurring in the region.

However, Gefter believes the pressure exerted thus far has not been adequate.

"The United States and Europe are much more interested in the political and economic situation in the region, and much more reluctant to come to the defense of human rights," he said, adding that greater support lies in the non-governmental sector of the international community.

"The Helsinki Watch Group and Amnesty International have been instrumental in the reform which has occurred so far in the region."

Gefter is the director of the Political Repression Program Unit of the Memorial Human Rights Center, the leading human-rights organization in Russia. He has been the director of the unit since 1996.

Non-governmental organizations in Russia, such as Gefter's, are also essential proponents of human rights.

The emphasis of the unit is to monitor a report on human-rights violations and defend the rights of those who have been politically repressed, Gefter said.

He is scheduled to present a second lecture titled "Human Rights Violations in the CIS: Legacy of the Soviet Heritage," on October 14 in Room 225 of the Boyd Law Building.

Gefter has been invited to the UI in conjunction with "Global Focus: Human Rights '98," a year-long commemoration of the U.N. Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

His lectures are co-sponsored by the Center for Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies and the International and Comparative Law Program in cooperation with the UI's International Programs.

NATION BRIEF

Gay college student still unconscious after brutal beating

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — A gay college student was clinging to life Sunday as residents — gay and straight — condemned his brutal beating but defended Wyoming as a safe, fair-minded place to live.

Matthew Shepard was found savagely pistol-whipped and tied to a fence outside town last week. Police have said robbery was the main motive, but the two men accused in the bludgeoning also targeted Shepard because he flirted with one of them at a bar, the Denver Post reported Sunday.

Shepard, 21, was unconscious Sunday at a Fort Collins, Colo., hospital in critical condition with severe head injuries; hospital officials said his condition had deteriorated since the mid-week beating.

Russell Arthur Henderson, 21, and Aaron James McKinney, 22, were charged with attempted murder, kidnapping and aggravated robbery because Shepard's wallet and patent leather shoes were stolen. Police said the two men lured Shepard from a University of Wyoming hangout by telling him they were gay.

Two women who allegedly helped the two men dump their bloody clothing reported them to police, reportedly telling police that the men made anti-gay remarks. Chastity Vera Pasley, 20, and Kristen Leann Price, 18, were charged with being accessories after the fact.

The two men never set out to nearly kill Shepard, but McKinney was embarrassed that Shepard had flirted with him in front of his friends, Price and McKinney's father told the Post.

Price admitted she and Pasley initially lied to police about the whereabouts of their boyfriends Tuesday night but said that none of the four hate gays.

"It wasn't meant to be a hate crime," she said. "They just wanted to rob him."

Journalism School moves forward on new building

The UI School of Journalism moved one step closer to getting a new building when UI President Mary Sue Coleman and administration financial officials outlined fundraising goals to the school's professional advisory board on Oct. 9.

The new building would provide the room needed to offer more general assignment classrooms in a prime campus location, Coleman said.

When Coleman asked Journalism School Director John Soloski to move his entire department to Seashore Hall in 1996, she offered to strike a deal so engineering students could use the building during the construction of their building.

The original plan was to renovate the existing Communications Center, but Linda Maxson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said she realized a new building would be a better idea, considering the deteriorating conditions of the Center.

"When you get the new building it will prove what happens when you're nice to someone," Maxson said.

UI administration has yet to receive funds from the State Legislature and is rallying to gather support from alumni and faculty to help in the process.

Douglas True, UI vice president of finance, said the UI is working to convince residents of the project's importance. He plans to travel to Sioux City and Des Moines this month to push the project to constituents.

At its last meeting in September, the Iowa state Board of Regents approved $12,000 in funds to be spent on the design of the new infrastructure in 2002.

Panel set up on veterans' health care

The Iowa City Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center announced on Oct. 9 the creation of a blue-ribbon panel to start discussions on the best ways to provide health care for veterans in eastern Iowa and western Illinois.

The panel has plans to meet at a November conference — the date is not determined yet — to solicit input from veterans and veteran advocates.

The panel anticipates reviewing the preliminary draft report of six options, which include discussion points and pro and con lists, proposed by the joint VA/UI task force.

The task force was established in early August to explore how the affiliation between Veterans Affairs and the UI College of Medicine can help implement the center's goals of a 30 percent decrease in cost per patient, a 20 percent increase in patient enrollment and a 10 percent increase in non-governmental funding.

Conference representatives will include Veterans leadership, employees, congressional offices, medical school affiliates, union partners, state officials and community leaders.

"It's just the beginning," said Kevin Dellsperger, the center's chief of staff and associate dean for Veterans Affairs. "People expect us to have results right away, but it (will be) a long process."

He hopes "to take their (the conference members') input and some additional options we have not thought of" to come up with ways to improve and enhance health care.

Veterans Affairs is redefining its health-care relationship, shifting from inpatient hospital care to outpatient health care, Dellsperger said.

He added that Veterans Affairs' main goal is to maintain the quality of care for the future. "We will do nothing to change the access or quality of care for veterans," Dellsperger said.

Homecoming turns out to be a typical weekend deal with weren't at all out of hand."

Fort said he knows there will always be parties that the police will miss. Like downtown, off-campus parties were low-key this weekend, he said.

"We didn't receive any calls for loud parties before 11 p.m., which is out of the ordinary even for a regular weekend," he said. "After 11, we only had a couple of calls, so it seemed pretty quiet off-campus."

In the downtown area, 45 officers patrolled the parade route on Oct. 9, and the normal number of officers was scheduled for the late-night shift, Fort said. On Oct. 10, after 11 p.m., there were eight extra officers stationed downtown as a precautionary measure.

"We've noticed from past home games that if we have put extra cops in the downtown area, people seem to keep themselves under control," he said. "Even people who are drunk will try everything to avoid a trip to jail, and having extra officers in high visibility seems to help them out."

Some local bar managers and owners noticed a difference in the crowd and the atmosphere compared with past Homecoming weekends.

Randy Larson, owner of the Airliner, 22 S. Clinton St., said everything downtown seemed normal but it was still the biggest weekend of the year for business.

"Our group is generally out-of-towners coming back to see friends and having a good time," Larson said. "The crowds seem rowdy when you're right in between them. We didn't have any problems, but that may be because our crowd is older and a little bit more under control."

This year's Homecoming was just a little different from the past seven years he's worked in Iowa City, said Lonnie Tolle, general manager of the Vine Tavern and Eatery, 330 E. Prentiss St.

"It's always a given that Homecoming is one of the most exciting weekends of the year, and this year proved to be no different," Tolle said. "Homecoming is historically pretty rowdy, but this year seemed pretty calm."

For UI senior Dana Wilson, Homecoming has definitely lost the charm it had when she first started college; she headed for home instead of the bars.

"I wish it was like other schools, where they have fun and get wasted just because it's Homecoming," Wilson said. "But, here, I never hear people say, 'Yeah, it's Homecoming week!'" club member wearing a mask of President Clinton chasing a member in a bikini with a cigar.

Courtney Brummer, College Republican president, said she thought the float could have been much worse, but the group tried to tone it down because candidates were going to be there.

"Iowa City is a very liberal town; of course we were expecting some negative reaction," she said. "That's just the way politics is."

Another float featuring members of Kappa Kappa Gamma, Beta Theta Pi and Sigma Chi featured 20 to 25 members attired in towels as they braved the night.

The Homecoming council checks Greek floats and found nothing wrong with the towels, Clark said. For non-Greek floats, the committee isn't able to check all of them.

Anne Thimson, Kappa Kappa Gamma float chair, said she got mostly positive reactions from the crowd, although she noted some parents didn't seem to like the float's theme.

"We were having fun, no one dropped their towel or anything,"

she said. Everyone was clothed under the towels, she added.

In addition, other floats, including one of the Ski Club and Water Ski Club, featured club members in bikinis.

Clark said she wasn't sure about the number of people who attended the parade, but estimated it was the largest turnout in four years. The 80 floats cruised along a solid crowd five-people deep along the nine-block-long parade route.

She attributed the weather to the early date since previous Homecomings were held toward the end of the month.

Weather leading up to the parade was also generally nice, which Clark said contributed to the quality of the 80 floats.

"People spent a lot more time and money this year," Clark said. "People could put together their float without having to worry that it would get destroyed in a storm."

When it gets wet, the main ingredient in floats — tissue paper — "turns into a wet mushy mess."

Another reason for better floats this year is more Greek houses worked on them longer, she said.

member of the UI Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender Union, which sponsored the rally, said she was pleased with the turnout.

Although the group's visibility is important in the community, the rally was mainly held to give members a sense of unity with each other, said Kischmann, adding that allies in the straight community were also important.

"In a sense we all have the same enemies; they include prejudice, hate, ignorance and people who oppress others," Kischmann said.

Chuck Dufano, Iowa City resident and a fellow member of the group's executive board, said National Coming Out Day should serve as a testimony for others that it is "OK to come out" and that they are not alone.

"Each person needs to make the decision for himself or herself and take his or her own time doing it," Dufano said.

October is also National AIDS Awareness Month and Lesbian and Gay History Month.

percent of its 2 million people are ethnic Albanian, and most of them want independence or substantial self-rule.

Meanwhile, journalists heard sporadic gunfire Sunday and saw white and gray smoke rising from about six houses in the ethnic Albanian village of Makmalj, about 20 miles west of Pristina.

Ethnic Albanian rebels claimed the activity was part of a Serb police operation.

Police prevented the journalists from getting closer than about a half-mile from the village.

The Pentagon is continuing military preparations if Holbrooke's mission fails. Six U.S. B-52 bombers arrived in Britain on Sunday and a contingent of A-10 anti-tank planes flew from Germany to Italy.

On Sunday, Sen. John McCain,

R-Ariz., warned that Americans could be killed in the bombing raids. "There will be significant jeopardy there because the Serbians have a very good defense system," the former Navy pilot said on "Fox News Sunday."

In Bucharest, the Romanian government agreed to allow NATO to use its airspace in "emergency and unpredictable situations" if the alliance launches air strikes against Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia's defense minister, Pavle Bulatovic, warned neighboring countries Sunday that a NATO attack could plunge the entire region into conflict.

"Bombs cannot bring peace, bombs can only bring conflicts, war and instability, not only in Kosovo but in a wider Balkan region," Bulatovic told recruits at an army barracks in northern Yugoslavia. "It would be in nobody's interest to make the Balkans a powder keg again."

unfair."

One student said the Sunday-night retake was helpful because she has three tests to study for next week and it would have been difficult to fit another one in.

"I'm annoyed we had to take two (tests)," said UI senior Andrea Lichtenberger. "But the students requested the second test."

UI senior Bryce Peterson said that if students cheat, retaking the test is the best way to remedy the situation. Peterson said he had to alter some of his weekend plans, because it was Homecoming and his parents were in town.

"Overall, I'm not happy," he said. Associate professor Charles E. Wasley who issued the second test, refused to comment on the situation. The proctor who administered the first test could not be reached Sunday night.

Man stabbed during drug deal gone awry

DES MOINES (AP) — A drug deal gone awry early on Oct. 10 led to the death of one man and the injury of another, police said.

Brent Miklus, 34, of Des Moines, died from stab wounds to the chest following a fight a few blocks from his home, Des Moines police Sgt. Bruce Elrod said.

"They ran into some individuals they apparently were going to buy this dope off of, and for some reason, we don't know why yet, the deal went sour and wound up in a fight," Elrod said.

Ricky Green, 38, of Des Moines, suffered an eye injury in the fight that involved seven people, Elrod said.

No one has been arrested, but police are searching for James Hayes, 18, who is not a suspect but is wanted for questioning, Elrod said.

Jury's decision angers victim's family

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — A Cedar Rapids couple is angered by a jury's decision to convict a woman of voluntary manslaughter and vehicular homicide for killing their daughter with a car.

In its decision on Oct. 9, the Linn County jury rejected the prosecution's call for a first-degree murder conviction and mandatory life sentence, instead convicting Tara Krouse, 19, of charges carrying maximum sentences of 10 years and 25 years, respectively.

Jennifer Rathjen, 20, died early Feb. 14 after she was dragged about 4 1/2 blocks beneath a car Krouse was driving. Krouse testified she didn't know Rathjen was underneath the car as she floored the accelerator

"We're not pleased. Tara got much less than what we felt she deserved. Tara will have a life."

— Ron Rathjen, Jennifer's father

after an emotional, drunken confrontation outside Rathjen's apartment building.

"We're not pleased," said Ron Rathjen, Jennifer's father. "Tara got much less than what we felt she deserved. Tara will have a life."

The fatal encounter was the culmination of a feud between Krouse and Katrina Frondle, a neighbor and friend of Rathjen's, over a man who had left Cedar Rapids a year ago. Krouse testified that about 10 days before Rathjen's death, she had been confronted by the two in the same neighborhood. Frondle had carried a crowbar and Rathjen had tried to spray Krouse with Mace, Krouse said.

Krouse testified that she sped off on Feb. 14 out of fear Rathjen would again try to spray her with Mace.

Ron Rathjen said Krouse should have at least been convicted of second-degree murder for running over his daughter with malice but without specific intent to kill her.

Ron Rathjen and his wife, Cindy, are raising Jennifer's 4-year-old daughter, Makenzie. Cindy Rathjen said a friend has adopted Jennifer's other daughter, Madison, 3.

Krouse is being held without bail pending sentencing, which has yet to be scheduled.

Countdown to Armageddon

I was sitting cross-legged on my bed the other day, doing my little morning grooming rituals and listening to a kind of newsy chat show on the radio, as I often do because I don't have a television.

My household does actually claim one TV set, but we all decided when we moved in that there were more important things to spend money on than cable — piddly things like food and rent. So we use the radio for news and stuff and the TV for movies, which is fine with me since I only ever watched MTV and CNN anyway, and MTV now sucks and CNN might as well be called The Bill 'n' Monica Network.

HANNAH FONS

So anyway. The guest on the radio show was this guy, Tim from Tennessee, who is an engineer by trade but has become a publisher of magazines catering to various industries around the nation. Recently, as a result of research he did for a speech he was asked to give at some convention or other, Tim has become an expert on the "Y2K bug," which is supposedly going to bring the world to its knees at midnight on Dec. 31, 1999. Despite his down-home accent and quaint turns of phrase, what of Tim had to say scared my undies into a twist.

I have, of course, heard of Y2K, and I'm sure you know the drill: Billions of computer chips the world over are date-sensitive, and because of a shortage of memory space back in the '50s when computer tech was in its infancy, the dates that the chips operate on are only composed of two digits instead of four. So "1998" is just "98" to most computers. Which is fine. Until the '90s run out, we start over at "00" for the new year and all those little chips think it's 1900 and that they haven't been invented yet.

It has been suggested that banks and airplanes will crash, cars will stop dead on the road, satellites will plummet from the sky, phones and ATMs will be useless, the water supply will be contaminated and (according to Tim the Expert) the world will go dark because all the big utility companies use date-sensitive chips to regulate the electrical power grid and they'll freak out and shut down at midnight.

Also according to Tim, we don't need to worry about most of that stuff. He says banks are going to be mostly fine unless people just panic and rush them to get their money out. That's what happened back in the late '20s to exacerbate the Great Depression, and we all remember how much fun that was. Tim also says credit cards, cars and planes will all be OK. So that's good. Chaos may reign, but at least we can still shop.

What worries me the most, though, is the whole electricity issue. I mean, it was weird enough this past summer when we had that whopping big quasi-tornado or whatever and the lights were out for a whole day, but it wasn't exactly terrifying. Folks had their little hibachis out on their driveways cooking steaks they got cheap from panicky supermarkets and drinking warm beer. It was kind of a party atmosphere, and everybody looked really good in the candlelight. I'm sure the cops were a little edgy that night, but nobody rioted and it was all OK by morning.

But if the Y2K bug kills the electricity in, things will be very different. For starters, there's a lot less fun and camaraderie to be had in mid-winter with no heat and no light. The perishables may stay cold — but so will we. And though we'll be here in the more or less rural, neighborly Midwest, I'd sooner sell my liver than be in, say, New York City on New Year's Eve.

If I do wind up there when the big "00" clicks over, you can rest assured that I'll be cheerfully exercising my Second Amendment right to bear arms, balled up in a goose-down comforter in my apartment, facing my quadruple-bolted door with my cat and my Glock, waiting for the looters and saying my prayers.

I don't consider myself a hard-core pessimist or a conspiracy buff or anything like that, but let me tell you: I think things are very weird right now and are just going to get weirder in the next 14 months or so, culminating with what may be the disintegration of society as we know it on Dec. 31, 1999, and possibly before, if people really take this to heart and freak out as expected.

And they will freak, you know. Pre-millennial tension is a powerful, paranoid thing. All I can say is I'm gonna be as far away from everybody and everything as possible. I'm talking my cat, my gun, a spare tank of gas, some candles and matches, maybe a crate of Ramen noodles and, of course, my radio, and I'm busting out to the wilderness somewhere to hang with the antelope and the tumbleweed.

We've only got 14 months, people. Where will YOU be when the lights go out?

Columbus Day celebrations reveal historic misconceptions

Inaccuracy celebrates its own holiday today.

Columbus Day is heralded as a triumph for discovery, for man, for Old Worlds and New Worlds that blend into ancient sea voyages, chests of gold and heroics.

But Columbus Day, like many things, is not what it seems.

The UI does not observe Columbus Day, and in most instances, students will register Oct. 12 as another Monday in a sequence of Mondays that complete a month, a semester, a year ...

Christopher Columbus can have a parade, a party and several Santa Marias, but not according to the UI, which, along with other state agencies, regards it as an "ethnic festival" and not official holiday.

The notion of ethnicity having a festival seems like a pro-active step toward cultural diversity — if only the UI did offer events to educate us about Columbus and to dispel the myth behind the man. This could work, if the historical truth didn't have to ruin it.

Columbus' influence on history warrants our sorrow, not our celebration. The actuality is: Columbus didn't discover America, he landed near the outlying cays of the Bahamas, on an island he claimed for the Catholic majesties of Castile and Leon.

He somehow missed the population of Guahani Indians living there, and unofficially bought the rights to the soil by renaming it "San Salvador," decimating the resistant native people, enslaving the rest and exposing them to European diseases.

And this isn't, or at least shouldn't be, a surprise to the general public, yet the misconception prevails.

Yes, Columbus was responsible for the widespread settlement in the West Indies; his navigational skills were impressive, reliant only on Polaris to guide him, and he knew how to get the funds together for his expedition. So, Columbus knew how to market himself. There must be another lesson here.

The UI policy of not advocating or participating in a Columbus Day celebration is a good one, if not for paying respect to native communities, then for the pursuit of honoring factual evidence that historians have known for a while.

While grade schoolers continue to learn of the salience of 1492 and sailing the ocean blue, the real impact of Columbus cannot be glossed over by a clever limerick or a day on the calendar.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Students' support could save tunnel art

To the Editor:

It has come to my attention that the UISG, in an effort to beautify the campus, has determined it necessary to paint over the tunnel between the English-Philosophy Building and the Union.

Upon hearing this, I wanted nothing more than to compose a fiery message calling for the complete dissolution of our governing body. I thought better of it, however, and decided to stop by the UISG office instead.

I must say I was pleasantly surprised by the reception I received. While the UISG members I spoke with disagreed with me on my views on the tunnel, they were very interested in my point of view — so much so that we discussed the issue for more than half an hour.

Unfortunately, I was unable to dissuade them from their present course, and it appears the tunnel will be painted over with a UISG-sanctioned mural.

Still, UISG proved to me that it is definitely interested in the opinions of students. As such, it occurred to me that if enough people expressed their opinions, the student government might see things a little differently.

So, if readers feel as I do — that the tunnel is not mere graffiti, but rather an organic art form that has become a local landmark — I suggest stopping by the

Meager attendance at lectures a shame

To the Editor:

Amy Coutee's column, "Speakers at the UI Need to be Given a Sporting Chance" (DI/Oct. 6), touched on some very important questions concerning the meager turnout thus far at many of this year's lecture events.

Where does everyone go at 8 p.m. on a Thursday? Why aren't they at the Union meeting with the former surgeon general of the United States or shaking hands with a 1998 Nobel Peace Prize candidate?

Are students at the UI apathetic? Are the organizations responsible for bringing the speakers really doing the best job that they can do? It's nearly impossible for anyone to find clear-cut answers to questions such as these. Chances are, as is the case with most politics and prophecies, the answers lie within some vague middle ground.

We at the University Lecture Committee, however, are constantly reinventing ourselves in order to better accommodate all possibilities. We regularly take into consideration what seems to work and what clearly doesn't work. Then we adjust our processes, advertising and so on to better serve the university and Iowa City.

But why do we bother? Why is it important? Why should people come out (on a weekday none the less) to listen to someone speak?

Upon his arrival at the university last year, I remember Dr. Drew Pinsky from MTV's "Loveline" describing Iowa City as "a Mecca rising up from the cornfields." This is why we do what we do. In fact, I think this is why most people live in Iowa City.

Our only real business here is academia, and our only real export is intellect. More than any other place in the entire state, we are witnesses to history and all things that affect that history.

The groups who work hard to keep Iowa City's window on the world open wide are working magic. Think about all the great Broadway shows, world leaders and top 20 bands that visit this tiny Midwestern town of only 60,000! We are truly a Mecca rising up from the cornfields!

So, isn't being a witness to history a good enough reason to come down to the Union on a Thursday night? Isn't listening for a moment to what a Nobel Peace Prize candidate or world leader has to say a little more important than "Must See TV." I certainly hope so.

Housekeeping with freezers

TODAY'S topic is: Domestic Tips From Guys. Guys do not get enough credit for being domestic. This is because the people who give OUT the credits for being domestic are — not to generalize or anything — women.

Women tend to believe domestic things should be done in a certain way, defined as "not the way guys do them." I have a perfect example of this type of thinking in the form of a letter I received from a woman named Karen in Portland, Ore., who does not approve of the way her fiancé handles his dirty dishes. Here's how he handles them: He puts them in the refrigerator.

Now I can hear you women asking: "Why?" But I bet most guys immediately grasped the reason, which is: If you put dirty dishes in the sink, after a couple of days they get moldy; whereas in the cold, airtight environment of the refrigerator, mold takes much longer to develop.

Karen says her fiancé does not actually wash the dishes "until (a) he runs out of dishes; or (b) his refrigerator gets full." Fortunately, he has a lot of room in the refrigerator, because, Karen states, "he hates to go grocery shopping." She also notes, for the record, that "he has a dishwasher that works perfectly fine."

"I'm wondering," Karen wrote, "if we should just ask for an extra refrigerator for a wedding gift." My feeling is, no. It makes far more sense to get a freezer. Not only will a freezer hold a lot more dirty dishes than a refrigerator, but, thanks to the lower temperature, these dishes can remain relatively mold-free in there forever. This will leave Karen's guy with more time for other domestic chores, such as laundering his underwear in the dishwasher, unless that is where he keeps his canned goods.

Speaking of which, what this nation needs is an Institute of Guy Domestic Research, where guy scientists wearing white laboratory coats stained with Cheez Whiz would conduct experiments to answer household questions that concern guys, such as: If you leave your used underwear in the freezer for a week, is that as good as laundering it? Or should you also splash a little Old Spice on it, just to be safe?

But getting back to my main point: Guys are sometimes accused of not having a domestic "flair" just because they tend to accessorize a room with used pizza boxes. But there are examples of guys coming up with decorative "touches" that Martha Stewart would never conceive of even with the aid of world-class narcotics.

For example, I have here a fascinating newspaper article sent in by alert pastor Pete Beckstrand of the Zion and Franklin Lutheran Churches of Viroqua, Wis. This article, which I swear I am not making up, is from the Sept. 26, 1996, edition of — get ready for an excellent newspaper name — the Vernon County Broadcaster.

It concerns a local resident named Mervin Langve who, according to the article, "discovered a slice of toast in an old-time toaster ... in an old cookstove." He realized the toast was made from bread baked by his mother; thus, as the article states, "Mervin determined that the toast is 36 years old."

I am telling you right now what a woman would have done if she had found a piece of toast older than all three Hanson brothers combined, and even older than some Christmas fruitcakes: She would, using tongs, throw the toast away, then throw the tongs away, then get out her industrial disinfectant and violently scrub the entire house as well as several neighboring houses.

But that is not what Langve did. According to the Vernon County Broadcaster, he "mounted this piece of toast on a breadboard he now has hanging in his kitchen." The Vernon County Broadcaster states that it makes for "a very attractive keepsake."

I called Langve, and he told me the toast is still on his wall and looking as good as ever, despite the fact that he has never put any kind of preservative on it. I asked him if visitors think his wall decoration is unusual.

"They sure do," he said. "They can't hardly believe it." I bet they can't. And I happen to think that — despite the fact that this entire story has been ignored by so-called major newspapers such as the so-called New York Times — Langve has broken important new interior-decor ground with the concept of wall-mounted heirloom foods.

Think of the possibilities! ("... and on this wall is the actual meal that Uncle Walter was eating when he passed away; you can see his forehead impression in the mashed potatoes.")

So let's not say guys are not domestic, OK? When we see a guy who makes drapes by nailing trash bags over his windows, let's remember that he might have a legitimate domestic reason, such as that he ran out of duct tape.

Let's be fair; let's be open-minded. And above all, let's remember to let our underwear thaw before we put it on.

'Jewish'

Edith Stein, who converted in her early 20s, was a victim of Auschwitz.

By Ellen Knickmeyer
Associated Press

VATICAN CITY — Under towering marble figures of the Jew who founded Christianity, Pope John Paul II Sunday decreed the first Jewish-born saint of the modern era: Edith Stein, a nun killed in the gas chambers of Auschwitz.

From now on, the pope said, Catholics should commemorate all the Holocaust's murdered Jews each year when they mark the day Stein died — Aug. 9.

"In the martyr Sister Teresa Benedicta of the Cross so many differences meet and are resolved in peace," John Paul, using the name Stein chose in the church, told the thousands filling St. Peter's Square.

"The value of her testimony is to render ever stronger the bridge of mutual understanding between Christians and Jews," he said, calling Stein an "eminent daughter of Israel and a faithful daughter of the church."

It was a day filled with remarkable gestures of reconciliation: The Roman Catholic Church putting all its ceremony, pomp and grandeur into a tribute to a woman of Jewish heritage. Relatives of Holocaust victims — Stein's family — sharing a dais with the leader of Germany, Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

Talks continue as budget debate stalls

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton called for a budget "that is worthy of our children" Sunday, as White House and congressional bargainers sought a truce in their spending battle that would allow lawmakers to go home to campaign for re-election.

Budget negotiators met yet again at the Capitol to sort through scores of disputes over money and policy, even as top Republicans went on television trying to define the fight. They sought to portray the president as being distracted by scandal and by repeated fund-raising trips, trying to characterize him as rejecting GOP proposals for tax breaks and vouchers aimed at students.

"Now, all of a sudden, he shows up. Where has he been all year?" asked House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, on ABC's "This Week with Sam Donaldson and Cokie Roberts."

In an office just paces from where Sunday tourists strolled through the Capitol's august Rotunda, White House Chief of Staff Erskine Bowles and an administration team bargained with House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., and other congressional leaders.

Nearly two weeks after the government's new fiscal year began, eight of the 13 annual spending measures remain incomplete. A stopgap measure keeping the government operating expires tonight.

'Jewish' nun becomes saint

Edith Stein, who converted in her early 20s, was a victim of Auschwitz.

By Ellen Knickmeyer
Associated Press

VATICAN CITY — Under towering marble figures of the Jews who founded Christianity, Pope John Paul II Sunday decreed the first Jewish-born saint of the modern era: Edith Stein, a nun killed in the gas chambers of Auschwitz.

From now on, the pope said, Catholics should commemorate all the Holocaust's murdered Jews each year when they mark the day Stein died — Aug. 9.

"In the martyr Sister Teresa Benedicta of the Cross so many differences meet and are resolved in peace," John Paul, using the name Stein chose in the church, told the thousands filling St. Peter's Square.

"The value of her testimony is to render ever stronger the bridge of mutual understanding between Christians and Jews," he said, calling Stein an "eminent daughter of Israel and a faithful daughter of the church."

It was a day filled with remarkable gestures of reconciliation: The Roman Catholic Church putting all its ceremony, pomp and grandeur into a tribute to a woman of Jewish heritage. Relatives of Holocaust victims — Stein's family — sharing a dais with the leader of Germany, Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

"From now on, in celebrating the memory of our new saint, we also cannot forget the Shoah, which slowly worked at the elimination of a people, costing the lives of millions of Jewish brothers and sisters."

— Pope John Paul II

Stein is believed to be the first Jewish-born saint since the Apostles, said the Rev. Simion Hernandez, who oversaw the process toward canonization. Incomplete records and the prevalence of conversions, voluntary and forced, make it impossible to say for certain.

She was born into an Orthodox Jewish German family on Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, in 1891.

An atheist, she joined the Roman Catholic Church in 1922 and later became a Carmelite nun.

In 1942, Adolf Hitler's regime ordered all the converts in the Netherlands shipped to Auschwitz to punish the Dutch bishops for speaking out against him.

Stein was offered a chance to escape deportation, the pope said, but turned it down.

"Why should I be excluded?" he quoted her as saying. "If I cannot share the fate of my brothers and sisters, my life is, in a certain way, destroyed."

Stein was in a chapel praying with nuns of her order when the Nazis came to arrest her.

Her sister, who had followed her into Catholicism, also was among the converts who were deported. At Auschwitz, they are thought to have been taken almost directly from the trains to the gas chambers.

"We remember all of them today with profound respect," said John Paul, whose voice stayed strong throughout the 2½ hour ceremony.

"From now on, in celebrating the memory of our new saint, we also cannot forget the Shoah, which slowly worked at the elimination of a people, costing the lives of millions of Jewish brothers and sisters," he declared, using the Hebrew word for the Holocaust.

In Jerusalem, the Simon Wiesenthal Center protested Stein's canonization, saying the action sends a message that the best Jews are those who have left Judaism.

"Perhaps this is some expression of guilt on the part of the church for the fact that she was turned over to the Nazis," said Ephraim Zuroff of the center's office.

"But at the same time she could in no way symbolize the Jewish martyrs of the Holocaust, because she chose to leave Judaism," he said.

NATION & WORLD BRIEFS

Talks continue as budget debate stalls

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton called for a budget "that is worthy of our children" Sunday, as White House and congressional bargainers sought a truce in their spending battle that would allow lawmakers to go home to campaign for re-election.

Budget negotiators met yet again at the Capitol to sort through scores of disputes over money and policy, even as top Republicans went on television trying to define the fight. They sought to portray the president as being distracted by scandal and by repeated fund-raising trips, trying to characterize him as rejecting GOP proposals for tax breaks and vouchers aimed at students.

"Now, all of a sudden, he shows up. Where has he been all year?" asked House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas, on ABC's "This Week with Sam Donaldson and Cokie Roberts."

In an office just paces from where Sunday tourists strolled through the Capitol's august Rotunda, White House Chief of Staff Erskine Bowles and an administration team bargained with House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., and other congressional leaders.

Nearly two weeks after the government's new fiscal year began, eight of the 13 annual spending measures remain incomplete. A stopgap measure keeping the government operating expires tonight.

Impeachment would endanger future presidents, counsel says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accusations against President Clinton in the Monica Lewinsky affair fall so far short of being impeachable offenses that impeachment would endanger future presidents, the White House said Sunday.

The comments came as word surfaced of discussions among congressional Republicans and Democrats on ways to punish the president short of impeachment.

A Democratic senator said two actions Clinton should take first are to "correct" his testimony to prosecutor Kenneth Starr's grand jury and to settle the Paula Jones sexual harassment case now on appeal.

Greg Craig, the White House's new special counsel, said the House Judiciary Committee has legitimate reason to call Starr to testify in its impeachment inquiry.

Whatever Starr's report to the committee accuses Clinton of having done, Craig said, "it does not rise to the level of impeachable-offense standard that we have used throughout history, and we lower that standard at our peril."

The House Republican staff has outlined evidence of 15 possible grounds for impeachment, including conspiracy, false testimony, obstruction of justice and witness tampering.

Health problems prompt Yeltsin to cancel welcoming ceremony

TASHKENT, Uzbekistan (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin, on his first trip out of Russia since May, canceled a welcoming ceremony in Uzbekistan on Sunday because he wasn't feeling well, his spokesman said.

Yeltsin appeared stiff during another public appearance after arriving in Tashkent, the capital of this Central Asian nation. At one point, he stumbled and had to be supported by Uzbek President Islam Karimov. But the two later held a one-on-one summit as scheduled.

The trip is Yeltsin's first high-profile foray since an economic crisis swamped his country in August. The 67-year-old president, whose health has often sidelined him during his seven years in power, has spent most of the last two months out of the limelight and out of the Kremlin, holding meetings in his country home outside Moscow.

His last foreign trip was to Britain in May, when he attended a summit of the Group of Seven leading industrial nations.

During his visits to Uzbekistan and Kazakhstan this week, Yeltsin is expected to discuss improving Russia's relations with the two former Soviet republics, whose economies have suffered from the crisis that hit its larger neighbor since it devalued its currency in August and defaulted on some of its debt.

Murphy's latest venture a 'holy flop'

FILM REVIEW By Phil Kennedy

Buckle up. Eddie Murphy's newest so-called comedy "Holy Man" takes audiences into "Corn City." "Holy Man" isn't the first film to overstep the boundaries into the land of corniness, but it certainly puts itself with the best. The only piece missing from the film that could possibly make it one of the cheesiest movies of all time is that no actors from the TV show "Friends" appear in the movie.

Eddie Murphy continues his string of family films by starring as a Dali Lama-esque wise man simply named G. And for God's sake, G is so in love with the world, he even kisses concrete roads on Miami Beach freeways to prove his affection. The one delight of Murphy's performance is the revival of his "Coming to America" voice. Murphy's Hakim voice returns with gusto.

Starring alongside Murphy are Jeff Goldblum (Ricky) and Kelly Preston (Kate). Ricky and Kate are TV infomercial producers who discover G on a Miami freeway while he's kissing a patch of grass. The three become closer, and Ricky and Kate realize they've got an antidote for their failing infomercial station. They bring God and wisdom into the world of TV sales. G, who has hospital orders to stay indoors for a few weeks, decides to help out his greedy friends and take a brief pause from his pilgrimage.

The only laughs that work in "Holy Man" are when G is selling infomercial goods. In fact, the only original dialogue occurs during G's moment in front of the cameras. As G sells items, he routinely breaks from the TelePrompTer to rant about why the item he's selling compares to what's wrong with society today. G makes some good points by using items such as necklaces, mixing bowls and a chain saw to touch infomercial TV audiences. Overnight, he becomes a cult hero. "Holy Man" is trite and not very fresh, but it is somewhat enjoyable. The momentum of the film dies out in the end though; the conclusion of the film is overly predictable and just straight cheese. The Dali Lama would not be at peace.

BOX OFFICE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Holy Man," Eddie Murphy's follow-up to the summer hit "Dr. Dolittle," flopped in weekend box offices, preliminary figures showed Sunday.

Estimated grosses at North American theaters for Oct. 9 through Sunday as compiled by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc.:

1. "Antz," $15.4 million.
2. "Rush Hour," $11.5 million.

Herbie & Headhunters' harmony hits Hancher

Jazz pioneers of the '70s bring the groove back to the UI with '90s style.

By Deanna Thomann
 The Daily Iowan

Explosive sounds of funk and jazz will groove the UI tonight at 8, when Hancher Auditorium and SCOPE present Herbie Hancock and the Headhunters in one energy-packed concert.

After 20 years, the original Headhunters — Herbie Hancock, Bennie Maupin, Paul Jackson, Bill Summers and Mike Clark — have reunited in support of their album, Return of the Headhunters, recently released on Hancock Records under the production of Verve Records.

Mike Clark, drummer for the Headhunters, says it was a mutual decision by all the band members to reunite.

"We all agreed to make a recording, go on the road and see what happens," Clark said.

Before founding the Headhunters in the early 1970s, Hancock was a member of Miles Davis' renowned mid-'60s quintet. Hancock also played on some of Davis' electro-jazz recordings before experimenting with elements of African percussion, electronics and acoustic instruments in his group, Mwandishi.

Hancock and the Headhunters became known for their energetic, jazz-funk fusion sound. In their early days, the Headhunters recorded four best-selling albums, including the 1973 debut album that became the first jazz record in history to go gold.

John Rapson, a UI associate professor of music and the director of jazz studies, believes the Headhunters were "certainly among the ground-breaking groups of the '70s."

"The band's funk/groove sound initially caused lots of controversy. They were a group of musicians that were exploring new directions away from mainstream jazz through the use of rock, African and funk sounds.

"We hear much of [the band's influence] in today's pop music. Their innovations have had a pretty wide impact," Rapson said.

The newest recording, Return of the Headhunters, creatively blends elements of the old Headhunter sound with that of the energetic new. The relic sounds of the synthesizer and the Fender Rhodes electric piano are used on the album, along with a rich depth and intensity made possible through contemporary recording technology.

Brent Sandy, sales representative for West Music, Coralville, says he likes the Headhunters' new sound.

"They've changed with technology, but the musicianship is still very high. As recording technology changes, so go the sounds. You don't expect the sounds of the '70s to sound the same in the '90s," Sandy said.

The Headhunters' reunion tour has crisscrossed the United States, taking the band from Boulder, Colo., to Lake Buena Vista, Fla. Iowa City will be the final venue of the 17-city tour.

After dropping a 3-2 decision to Northwestern Friday afternoon, the Iowa hockey team had lost five straight games and was hungry for a win.

It took out its frustrations on Southwest Missouri State Bears, dominating most of the game on the way to a 4-0 win Sunday.

"We're very happy with the result because we needed the win," I coach Beth Beglin said. "We were happy that we found the back of goal four times and were much better in our defensive communication organization."

From the opening possession, it clear the Hawkeyes were prepared to take the game. Iowa kept the ball.

IOWA 26, NORTHWESTERN 24 Reiners takes back the reins

GAME ANALYSIS/ANDY HAMILTON

Even in victory, Hawkeyes showed their inexperience

■ Iowa's inexperience was the difference between a two-point win and blowing out Northwestern Saturday. Maybe it's time to believe Hayden Fry and blame inexperience for the majority of Iowa's problems. The Hawkeye coach has insisted youth is the biggest obstacle for Iowa throughout the season. While several of his players debated the theory, Fry stood by his words. The 26-24 win over Northwestern will make believers out of those last doubters. Saturday, inexperience was the only excuse the Hawkeyes could use for not blowing out Northwestern and keeping Fry uneasy until the final minute. Perhaps the Hawkeyes paid too much attention to Northwestern's loss to Illinois the previous week and taking an early 17-0 lead made them complacent. But the Hawkeyes should have finished off Northwestern much earlier than the one-minute mark of the fourth quarter. A veteran team wouldn't let the Wildcats off the hook one time, much less two or three, which the Hawkeyes did, making their 69-year old coach age with every play. The final two minutes epitomized the Hawkeye win. Iowa had a 26-17 lead and everything looked safe. Northwestern quarterback Gavin Hoffman had just been sacked twice and run out of bounds for a five-yard loss after center Adam Fay shotgun-snapped the ball over the signal caller's head. Then Fay snapped it over Hoffman's head again on fourth and 26, and somehow D'Wayne Bates pulled down a 29-yard jump ball pass. Northwestern used its final two time-outs on that drive and Fry emphasized one point to his secondary. "The only way that Northwestern can get in the game is if they get behind you," Fry told his players. "Do not let them get behind you. Do not let them get behind you." John Burden did just that for a 25-yard touchdown reception with 1:13 to play. "I can't believe they scored that last touchdown," Fry said "That was the slowest receiver on their team that ran right by us. I promise you. He may not appreciate that, but he's the slowest receiver on their team." See ANALYSIS Page 2B

■ With Kyle McCann out, junior quarterback Randy Reiners led Iowa to a Homecoming victory.

By Wayne Drehs The Daily Iowan

Perhaps the hardest part of Randy Reiners' day Saturday was making it to the Iowa locker room. After spending the afternoon avoiding the tenacious rush of the Northwestern defense, Reiners couldn't avoid autograph hounds or the media after Iowa's 26-24 win. "It's never an advantage to sit out. It's probably wrong to say that, but its just my way of expressing myself. I hate sitting on the sidelines." - Randy Reiners

When he finally escaped the cameras and microphones, he was stopped yet again by more kids wanting more signatures. It took Reiners about ten minutes to make it to the locker room, but he didn't mind the confusion one bit. After missing the last four games due to a knee injury, the scene was one Reiners had dreamed of in past weeks, and the timing couldn't have been better. Reiners admittedly had not been himself since the death of his sister, Natalie, on Aug. 9. "That kid has taken that so hard that he just couldn't communicate, and he wouldn't smile," Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. "He was really down. But last week he started coming around, and today, that is the greatest medicine that could happen for Randy Reiners."

Reiners started in place of injured freshman Kyle McCann and passed for 249 yards and two touchdowns in Iowa's first win over the Wildcats (2-4) in four years. The Hawkeyes (3-3) now need three wins in their final five games to qualify for a bowl appearance. "It's never an advantage to sit out," Reiners said. "It's probably wrong to say that, but its just my way of expressing myself. I hate sitting on the sidelines."

Reiners was more successful eluding the league with 106 wins and reached the postseason for the seventh straight time. Now, after a good effort from Denny Neagle, Atlanta will come back Monday night with the first of its Big Three pitchers. John Smoltz will start against Andy Ashby in a rematch of Game 1, won by the Padres 3-2 in 10 innings. "We thought we had it," said Padres postseason hero Jim Leyritz. "But we still feel good. It would have been nice to sweep, but we're talking the Atlanta Braves and it's not easy to sweep them."

No team has ever come back from a 3-0 deficit in playoff history. If the Braves can get past Monday night and take the series back to Atlanta, their other two Cy Young pitchers, Tom Glavine and Greg Maddux, will be ready to go. "We did keep it alive," Cox said. "Hopefully, back home it will be better for us."

After Leyritz hit a solo homer in the sixth that put the Padres ahead 3-2, Javy Lopez tied it with a leadoff home run in the seventh. The Braves went on to load the bases with two outs before Galarraga, who had no RBIs and just one single in his 12 previous at-bats this series, unloaded. The Big Cat stood at home plate and watched the ball sail into the seats in left-center, hushing the crowd of 65,042 that had come to celebrate. "You go 0-for-2, 0-for-3, you start swinging at bad pitches. I decided to be more patient and I think it worked today," Galarraga said.

Two in a row puts New York back in control

■ The Yankees go home with a 3-2 series lead over the Indians.

By Tom Withers Associated Press

CLEVELAND — The Yankees came to town distracted, in disarray and near disaster. They're heading home in control and in reach of their next goal — a trip to the World Series. David Wells pitched well enough to win, Chili Davis drove in three runs and Mariano Rivera got out of a hairy eighth inning Sunday as the Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-3 to take a 3-2 lead in the AL championship series.

New York saved its record-setting season with two wins this weekend at Jacobs Field, where its season ended last year. Now, the Yankees are one victory away from the season's final destination and the only place their fans will allow their magical year to finish.

"I'm very proud of this team," New York manager Joe Torre said. "Every time they've been faced with a challenge they've responded." And for all his griping about the urgency to flee the Bronx and build a new ballpark, even New York owner George Steinbrenner will be happy to see the old neighborhood again. Now the Indians, whose lineup looked more like the Triple-A Buffalo Bisons than the defending AL champs, face the awesome task of trying to win twice in Yankee Stadium. The Yankees, who won 62 home

SAN DIEGO — Just in time, Andres Galarraga and the Atlanta Braves solved San Diego's pitching. Facing elimination and trailing in the seventh inning, the Braves rallied for six runs, capped by Galarraga's 459-foot grand slam, and beat the Padres 8-3 Sunday to avoid an unthinkable sweep in the NL championship series.

"I knew the team really needed it to stay alive," Galarraga said. "They were not throwing me too many good pitches to hit. That was probably the best pitch I got to hit all series." The slam "was really big," manager Bobby Cox said. "He's struggled a little bit, but if he gets hot, watch out."

After dropping a 3-2 decision to Northwestern Friday afternoon, the Iowa field hockey team had lost five straight games and was hungry for a win. It took out its frustrations on the Southwest Missouri State Bears, dominating most of the game on the way to a 4-0 win Sunday. "We're very happy with the result, because we needed the win," Iowa coach Beth Beglin said. COLLEGE FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Aggies pull off shocker against Nebraska

The Cornhuskers' 19-game win streak ended with the loss.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

On a streaky day in college football, UCLA, Tennessee and Kansas State came up winners, Nebraska was a rare loser and top-ranked Ohio State kept sailing along toward a trip to the Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 4 for a shot at its first national title in 30 years.

Nebraska (5-1) was outplayed for the second week in a row, but this time No. 10 Texas A&M came away with the 28-21 upset Saturday at College Station, Texas.

The loss ended the Cornhuskers' 19-game winning streak, 40-game conference winning streak and probably their chances for a fourth national title in five years. Nebraska fell from No. 2 to No. 8 in this week's AP poll.

"We're struggling and that doesn't happen to Nebraska," wide receiver Matt Davison said. "I really don't understand what we're doing."

No. 2 UCLA, No. 3 Tennessee and No. 4 Kansas State, meanwhile, were happy to take advantage of the Huskers' misfortune as the trio came out on the winning side in games matching unbeaten Top 25 teams.

At Tucson, Ariz., Cade McNown passed for two TDs and ran for another as UCLA (4-0, 2-0 Pac-10) pulled away from No. 16 Arizona 52-28 (5-1, 2-1) for its 14th consecutive victory — the longest winning streak among major colleges now that Nebraska's has ended.

"They were guessing all night and for most of the first half, they were guessing right," McNown said after the Bruins scored 28 consecutive points in a 6:10 span of the second half. "But you can't guess right the whole game. Eventually we knew our offense would turn on."

At Athens, Ga., Tee Martin threw two 3-yard TD passes in the third quarter as the Volunteers (5-0, 3-0 SEC) beat No. 13 Georgia 22-3 and extended their winning streak over the Bulldogs (4-1, 2-1) to eight games. Georgia has now lost nine straight at Sanford Stadium against Top 25 opponents.

At Boulder, Colo., Kansas State won its 13th straight game — tying the school record — but was less than impressive in a 16-9 win over No. 19 Colorado (5-1, 2-1). The Wildcats (5-0, 2-0 Big 12) entered the game averaging over 60 points, but 137 yards rushing from Eric Hickson and three field goals from Martin Grammatica was enough for the win.

"If there really is such a thing as an ugly win, then you've just witnessed one," K-State coach Bill Snyder said, even though his team won in Boulder for the first time since 1973. "This is not a joyous locker room."

Next week, there's one major matchup of unbeaten when No. 11 Oregon (5-0) plays at UCLA.

In other Top 25 games, it was: No. 1 Ohio State 41, Illinois 0; No. 5 Florida 22, No. 21 LSU 10; No. 6 Florida State 26, Miami 14; No. 9 Wisconsin 31, Purdue 24; No. 11 Oregon 51, Washington State 29; No. 12 Penn State 27, Minnesota 17; No. 15 West Virginia 37, Temple 7; No. 17 Arkansas 23, Memphis 9; No. 18 Notre Dame 28, Arizona State 9; No. 20 Missouri 35, Iowa State 19; No. 22 Texas Tech 24, Oklahoma 17; No. 23 Syracuse

63, Cincinnati 21; and No. 25 Georgia Tech 47, North Carolina State 24.

No. 1 Ohio St. 41, Illinois 0
At Champaign, Ill., the Buckeyes (5-0, 2-0 Big Ten) held the Illini (2-4, 1-2) to 57 yards rushing and Joe Germaine threw for 307 yards and three TDs.

No. 2 UCLA 52, No. 16 Arizona 28
McNown had plenty of help against the Wildcats. Tailbacks DeShaun Foster and Keith Brown, who took turns subbing for the suspended Jermaine Lewis, ran for two TDs each and combined for 209 yards. Arizona's nine-game winning streak ended.

No. 3 Tennessee 22, No. 13 Georgia 3
The Vols, playing their first game without injured tailback Jamal Lewis, relied on a stingy defense against the 'Dawgs, holding them to 59 yards rushing.

"I think we were favored before Jamal was hurt, then all of a sudden we were a three-point underdog," said Al Wilson, who led the swarming Vols defense. "That really motivated us. It was like people look at us as a one-man team."

No. 5 Florida 22, No. 21 LSU 10
At Gainesville, Fla., receiver Travis McGriff took a lateral from Doug Johnson and threw a 49-yard TD pass to Travis Taylor for the clinching score.

The Gators (5-1, 3-1 SEC) suffered several key injuries. Jesse Palmer, who started against LSU, may be out for the season with a broken right clavicle; defensive lineman Ed Chester has a dislocated knee, running back Terry Jackson has an ankle injury and linebacker Johnny Rutledge has a concussion.

No. 6 Florida St. 26, Miami 14
At Miami, Peter Warrick caught a 62-yard scoring pass and set up another TD with a 50-yard catch as the Seminoles (5-1) beat the Hurricanes (3-2) for the fourth consecutive year. Chris Weinke passed for 316 yards and two TDs; Warrick finished with 190 yards on seven catches.

No. 10 Texas A&M 28, No. 8 Nebraska, 21
The Aggies built a 28-7 lead but needed Sedrick Curry's interception with 59 seconds left to secure the school's first win over a top 5 team since 1975. The loss was just the fourth in 69 games and the first since a 37-27 setback against Texas in the Big 12 title game in 1996.

"We're down and hurt right now," Huskers coach Frank Solich said after his first loss since replacing Tom Osborne. "We're not accustomed to taking a loss."

No. 9 Wisconsin 31, Purdue 24
At Madison, Wis., Mike Echols had an interception in the end zone and Jamar Fletcher had a 52-yard interception return for a TD as Wisconsin (6-0, 3-0 Big Ten) overcame a record-setting effort by Drew Brees.

Brees tied an NCAA record with 55 completions — 18 to Randall Lane — and set an NCAA record with 83 attempts. He threw for 494 yards but had four passes intercepted.

No. 11 Oregon 51, Washington St. 29
At Pullman, Wash., the Ducks (5-0, 2-0 Pac-10) kept their 50-point average intact as Reuben Droughns ran for 217 yards and scored four TDs to get ready for next week's game at UCLA.

Akili Smith, the nation's leading passer, was 15-of-22 for 280 yards and three TDs. The Cougars (3-3, 0-3) had an eight-game home winning streak broken.

No. 12 Penn State 27, Minnesota 17
Also: — Travis Fortney kicked four field goals, Corey Jones caught a 65-yard TD pass and Penn State's defense had seven sacks in a 27-17 win over Minnesota at Minneapolis. The Lions are 4-1, 1-1 Big Ten, the Gophers 3-2, 0-2.

— At Philadelphia, backup Alvin Swoope filled in for an injured Amos Zereoue and had 141 yards and two TDs for WVU (4-1, 1-0 Big East). Zereoue missed the game with a bruised thigh. Temple is 0-6, 0-2.

— At Los Angeles, Marcus Fields scored on a 3-yard run with 3:30 left as California (4-1, 2-0 Pac-10) overcame a 21-point, second-half deficit. USC (4-2, 2-1 Pac-10) led 31-10 in the third quarter, but Cal came back for only its second win in the Coliseum since 1970. The loss knocked USC out of the Top 25.

— At Memphis, Clint Stoerner's 52-yard TD pass to Michael Williams in the third quarter helped Arkansas (5-0) pull away for a 23-9 win over Memphis (0-5).

— Devin West ran for 252 yards and Corby Jones accounted for three scores despite a sore toe in Missouri's 35-19 win over Iowa State in Ames, Iowa.

— At Tempe, Ariz., Autry Denson scored twice on 1-yard runs and A'Jani Sanders returned an interception 25 yards for another score as Notre Dame (4-1) beat Arizona State (2-4) 28-9.

— Jason Bostic scored on a blocked punt and fumble return and Joe Hamilton added three TDs as Georgia Tech (4-1, 3-0 ACC) cruised past N.C. State (3-2, 1-1) 47-24 at Raleigh, N.C. — At Syracuse, N.Y., Donovan McNabb threw four TD passes in the first half as Syracuse (3-2) beat Cincinnati (0-6).

EAST LANSING, Mich. — For most of four quarters, Antwaan Randle El was putting on a brilliant display of football at Spartan Stadium. Then he stepped into a hit by Michigan State's Robert Newkirk.

The redshirt freshman tried to play on, but his Indiana teammates saw it was a mistake. Their quarterback couldn't remember the plays.

Coach Cam Cameron had to take Randle El out of the game and Michigan State pulled out a 38-31 win over the Hoosiers in double overtime Saturday.

"Tyronne Browning came off the field and told me that basically Tyronne had to call the plays in the huddle," Cameron said.

Still, it was clear that Indiana will be a force to be reckoned with as long as Randle El is around. As he has done in every game this season, Randle El was a man of many talents.

He was the Hoosiers' leading rusher with 134 yards on 21 carries. Randle El also completed 10 of 16 passes for 147 yards, including a 43-yarder to Levron Williams that got Indiana untracked late in the second quarter.

"Did he play as good as I thought he did?" Cameron asked rhetorically. "Antwaan goes down, a play here, a play there ...

"Everybody around the country is going to say, 'Look, Indiana got beat again.' But we're not going to measure ourselves like that. We're a young team and as long as we stick together, we'll be fine."

Bill Burke and Sedrick Irvin pulled the game out for the Spartans, who went from a 16-0 lead to a 24-16 deficit while Randle El was doing his magic.

Burke threw for a career-high 324 yards and two touchdowns, including a 25-yard strike to Plaxico Burress in the first overtime. Irvin rushed for 130 yards and won the game with a 25-yard scoring run in the second overtime.

"There was nothing anyone could tell us," Burke said. "We knew what we needed to do, we just had to go out and make the plays. I just told myself not to try to create something out of nothing — I had to just execute the plays that were called, and stay in the system."

Jay Rodgers, who lost the starting job to Randle El in the first week of the season, hit tight end Craig Osika for a 15-yard touchdown in the first overtime.

"We're this close to being 5-0," Rodgers said, holding his thumb and index finger inches apart. "We're this close to being a great team."

Frankie Franklin, Chris Gall and Randle El ran for Indiana touchdowns and Andy Payne kicked a 32-yarder for the Hoosiers (2-3, 0-2).

NFL ROUNDUP

Edwards, Bledsoe lead Pats to victory

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) Robert Edwards became the first player since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger with touchdowns in his first five pro games, and Drew Bledsoe threw three TD passes. New England's 40-10 victory over Kansas City on Sunday.

The Patriots (4-1) scored on seven consecutive possessions after punting on their first one. Tom Brady (4-2) helped them score with a fumble, a roughing-the-passer penalty and two fourth-down failures.

Kansas City began the game with the NFL's second-best pass defense, allowing 129.6 yards per game, and second best overall defense, giving up an average of 240. By halftime, Bledsoe had thrown for 174 yards and two touchdowns had 246, and the Patriots extended the lead to 37-0 in the third quarter.

Eagles 17, Redskins 12
PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia won the first matchup of teams in NFC East history. Rodney Peete ran for a touchdown and threw for another in a victory that gave Washington its worst start in 37 years.

Washington benched Trent Green, brought back Gus Ferret and got a sack from Dana Stubblefield. None of it was enough to beat the Eagles, who breathed some life into what had been a hopeless season and just might have saved coach Ray Rhodes' job.

Bengals 25, Steelers 20
CINCINNATI — Neil O'Donnell rescued Cincinnati's final 93-yard drive with a long fourth-down completion, then surprised a relaxed Pittsburgh defense with 25-yard touchdown pass to Cam Pickens in the closing seconds.

The Steelers (3-2) seemed to have the victory in hand when Norm Johnson kicked a 40-yard field goal for a 20-18 lead with 1:56 left. A holding penalty on the kickoff left the Bengals (2-3) their 7-yard line with no timeouts left.

Six plays later, O'Donnell threw a desperation pass on fourth down that Pickens caught for a 50-yard gain.

Cowboys 27, Panthers 20
IRVING, Texas — Jason Garrett threw two touchdown passes and Deion Sanders made a critical interception with two minutes left, but Dallas' win wasn't secure until Steve Beuerlein's last pass sailed out of the end zone as time ran out.

Beuerlein, making his first appearance of the season because Kerry Collins decided he didn't want to play, completed 22 of 30 passes for 286 yards and three

Alou signs deal to stay

The Facts: Felipe Alou signed with the Expos, not the Dodgers Sunday.

The Impact: Davey Johnson and Kevin Kennedy are the leading candidates for the L.A. job.

MONTREAL (AP) — Felipe Alou was 10 minutes away from accepting a job as manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers when the Expos came in with an offer that would keep him in Montreal.

"I'm glad to say I'll stay at home," Alou said Sunday after agreeing to a three-year contract to remain manager of the Expos. "But I have to be honest — I thought I was gone."

In fact, Alou was booked on a flight to Los Angeles when the Expos called.

"But some Expos people requested that I wait because they had something to offer me," Alou said. General manager Jim Beattie and Mark Routtenberg, a member of the Expos' ownership group, met with Alou at his Florida home on Friday and convinced him to stay.

NFL ROUNDUP

Edwards, Bledsoe lead Pats to victory

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Robert Edwards became the first player since the 1970 NFL-AFL merger with touchdowns in his first five pro games, and Drew Bledsoe threw three TD passes in New England's 40-10 victory over Kansas City on Sunday.

The Patriots (4-1) scored on seven consecutive possessions after punting on their first one. The Chiefs (4-2) helped them score with a fumble, a roughing-the-passer penalty and two fourth-down failures.

Kansas City began the game with the NFL's second-best pass defense, allowing 129.6 yards per game, and second best overall defense, giving up an average of 240. By halftime, Bledsoe had thrown for 174 yards and the offense had 246, and the Patriots extended the lead to 37-0 in the third quarter.

Eagles 17, Redskins 12
PHILADELPHIA — Philadelphia won the first matchup of 0-5 teams in NFC East history as Rodney Peete ran for a touchdown and threw for another in a victory that gave Washington its worst start in 37 years.

Washington benched Trent Green, brought back Gus Frerotte and got a sack from Dana Stubblefield. None of it was enough to beat the Eagles, who breathed some life into what had been a hopeless season and just might have saved coach Ray Rhodes' job.

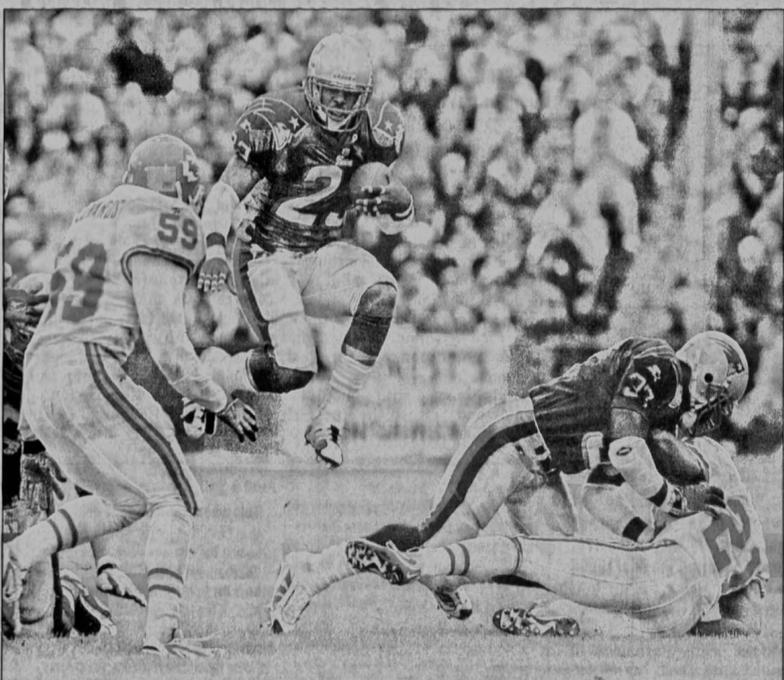

Bengals 25, Steelers 20
CINCINNATI — Neil O'Donnell rescued Cincinnati's final 93-yard drive with a long fourth-down completion, then surprised a relaxed Pittsburgh defense with a 25-yard touchdown pass to Carl Pickens in the closing seconds.

The Steelers (3-2) seemed to have the victory in hand when Norm Johnson kicked a 40-yard field goal for a 20-18 lead with 1:56 left. A holding penalty on the kickoff left the Bengals (2-3) at their 7-yard line with no timeouts left.

Six plays later, O'Donnell threw a desperation pass on fourth down that Pickens caught for a 50-yard gain.

Cowboys 27, Panthers 20
IRVING, Texas — Jason Garrett threw two touchdown passes and Deion Sanders made a critical interception with two minutes left, but Dallas' win wasn't secure until Steve Beuerlein's last pass sailed out of the end zone as time ran out.

Beuerlein, making his first appearance of the season because Kerry Collins decided he didn't want to play, completed 22 of 31 passes for 286 yards and three touchdowns against the dazed Dallas defense.

New England Patriots running back Sedrick Shaw, center, tries to elude Kansas City Chiefs linebacker Donnie Edwards (59) in the third quarter Sunday, at Foxboro Stadium in Foxboro, Mass. Shaw ran for 68 yards on 19 carries in the Patriots' 40-10 defeat of the Chiefs.

Sanders intercepted Beuerlein's pass with 1:55 to play, but Carolina got the ball back with 51 seconds left for a last-ditch drive to the Dallas 37, where Beuerlein let fly on a desperate heave that overshot his three receivers with the clock showing 0:00.

49ers 31, Saints 0
NEW ORLEANS — Steve Young had his fifth straight 300-yard passing game and became the 20th player in NFL history to throw for 30,000 yards in San Francisco's rout of New Orleans.

Chris Doleman's four sacks moved him into fifth place on the career list, and the 49ers (4-1) won by their second largest margin against the Saints (3-2).

Young, who left after one series in the fourth quarter, completed 21 of 40 passes for 309 yards and three touchdowns. He is now tied with Joe Montana for most consecutive 300-yard passing games.

Oilers 12, Ravens 8
BALTIMORE — Eddie George ran for 123 yards and quarterback Steve McNair had a 40-yard touchdown run in as Tennessee overcame 141 yards in penalties to outlast Baltimore.

The Oilers (2-3) were penalized 13 times, but they managed to win as the Ravens (2-3) went 0-for-13 on third down and mustered a mere 36 yards on the ground.

Bills 31, Colts 24
INDIANAPOLIS — Doug Flutie passed for two touchdowns and set up two short scoring runs by Antowain Smith for Buffalo.

The 35-year-old Flutie, back in the NFL after eight years in the Canadian Football League, entered the game in the first quarter after Rob Johnson was sacked and left with sore ribs. Flutie, who had passed for only 158 yards as a backup this season, his first in the NFL since 1989, was 23-for-28 for 213 yards with no sacks or interceptions. Peyton Manning, the top pick in this year's draft, was 20-for-41 for 235 yards, but was intercepted twice. He has thrown an NFL-high 14 interceptions for the Colts (1-5) this season.

Broncos 21, Seahawks 16
SEATTLE — John Elway returned to Denver's lineup and threw two touchdown passes against Seattle.

Elway got a lot of help from Terrell Davis, who became the Broncos' career leader in rushing touchdowns with 44 to give Denver a 21-10 lead on the third play of the fourth quarter with a 2-yard run.

Davis, the NFL's leading rusher, had his third career 200-yard rushing game. He carried 30 times for 208 yards, while Elway was 13-for-27 for 185 yards and two TDs, with two interceptions, one of which was returned for a touchdown by Darrin Smith.

Rams 30, Jets 10
ST. LOUIS — St. Louis forced five turnovers by the New York Jets to snap an eight-game losing streak at home.

Amp Lee, playing a prominent role at running back due to injuries, ran for two touchdowns, and St. Louis played error-free ball.

Jets quarterback Glenn Foley, who missed the previous two games with a rib-cage injury, had a miserable day. Foley was 5-for-15 for 76 yards and two interceptions, each of which led to a St. Louis touchdown, before coach Bill Parcells yanked him in favor of Vinny Testaverde with 3:13 to go in the third quarter and the Jets (2-3) trailing 23-3.

Raiders 7, Chargers 6
OAKLAND, Calif. — After 58 1/2 minutes of offensive ineptitude by both teams, third-string quarterback Wade Wilson gave Oakland an unlikely victory over San Diego.

After the Raiders went the entire second half without making a first down, Wilson threw a 68-yard scoring pass to a wide-open James Jett with 1:28 left.

Wilson, who replaced Donald Hollas early in the fourth period, was 0-for-6 until completing his bomb to Jett.

Cardinals 20, Bears 7
TEMPE, Ariz. — Linebacker Ronald McKinnon had three interceptions and returned a blocked punt 31 yards, and little-used Mario Bates scored two touchdowns for St. Louis.

McKinnon, who also caused a fumble, had one interception in the first quarter, another at the end of the second and the last in the third. Then he topped himself in the fourth quarter when Chicago's Ricky Bell blocked a punt by Scott Player. McKinnon grabbed it out of the air, shook off a tackler at the sideline, and cut back to midfield to gain a Cardinals first down.

Falcons 34, Giants 20
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Not only did Dan Reeves come back to haunt the New York Giants, so did a couple of their teammates on the revived and playoff hopeful Atlanta Falcons.

Chris Chandler threw two touchdowns and ran for another and former Giant Antonio Edwards scored on a 2-yard fumble return as the Falcons defeated New York 34-20 in Reeves' first game against the team that fired him in 1996.

Dwight makes headfirst plunge into rookie season

■ Former Hawkeye Tim Dwight is making an immediate impact in the NFL.

By Ed Shearer
Associated Press

SUWANEE, Ga. — After signing an NFL contract, Tim Dwight had to tone down his off-the-field antics — racing motorcycles, leaping into

“Now the insurance we take out on ourselves doesn't let you do some wild things,” says Dwight, a rookie with the Atlanta Falcons. “I haven't been too wild and crazy lately.”

I'm playing against the best guys in the world, so if I can do some crazy things against them, I feel like I might have the edge on some people.

— Tim Dwight

So the 5-8, 184-pound receiver-kick returner from Iowa is trying to use all that pent-up energy on the field.

“I'm playing against the best guys in the world, so if I can do some crazy things against them, I feel like I might have the edge on some people,” he said.

He calls his dive into the river from a place called High Rock “a long drop. I jumped with a big breath and hit the cold water. When I came out, it was such an adrenaline rush. It was just like returning a punt or kickoff. You just get that feeling.”

Dwight gets a few snaps as a receiver and even running back, but he's making his biggest impression as a kickoff and punt returner.

His 93-yard kickoff return for a touchdown started the Falcons on a 51-23 thrashing of the Carolina Panthers last Sunday. He also had two carries for 7 yards and even completed a halfback pass for 22 yards to quarterback Chris Chandler.

“It kind of spelled out things I can do on the field,” Dwight, an All-American punt returner his senior year, said of the kickoff return. “I had some great blocks out there. If we get everybody excited and doing their job, then it makes my job that much easier.”

“He's exciting because he loves to play the game,” Falcons coach Dan Reeves said. “He's a heck of a football player. He's explosive.”

Dwight — a fourth-round draft pick — had an exceptional career with the Hawkeyes, leading the Big Ten Conference in punt returns in three of his four seasons. His 19.3-yard average in 1997 led the nation.

He also was a track star, both at Iowa City High School and at the university in his hometown. And his college career isn't over. He plans to return to Iowa next spring to complete his degree in sports management and, with one season of track eligibility remaining, to run the 100 and 200 meters for the Hawkeyes.

“Tim is like Superman, he's all heart,” Iowa coach Hayden Fry said. “He's the greatest competitor I've ever had in 45 years of coaching. He's the most exciting player I've had in 18 years here.”

Dwight says he hasn't set any personal goals for his rookie season in the NFL.

“The biggest goal I set was getting on the field as many times as I can,” he said. “I think when you become a veteran player you can start setting realistic goals.”

He said his biggest adjustment has been realizing that he won't be on the field all the time like he was in college.

“In the NFL, you're just lucky to be here,” he said. “When you get on the field, you take your opportunities.”

Alou signs three year deal to stay in Montreal

The Facts: Felipe Alou signed with the Expos, not the Dodgers Sunday.

The Impact: Davey Johnson and Kevin Kennedy are the leading candidates for the L.A. job.

MONTREAL (AP) — Felipe Alou was 10 minutes away from accepting a job as manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers when the Expos came in with an offer that would keep him in Montreal.

“I'm glad to say I'll stay at home,” Alou said Sunday after agreeing to a three-year contract to remain manager of the Expos. “But I have to be honest — I thought I was gone.”

In fact, Alou was booked on a flight to Los Angeles when the Expos called.

“But some Expos people requested that I wait because they had something to offer me,” Alou said. General manager Jim Beattie and Mark Routtenberg, a member of the Expos' ownership group, met with Alou at his Florida home on Friday and convinced him to stay.

“The Dodgers were coming in on the next plane from Santo Domingo to finalize the agreement,” Alou said. “But the Expos made an awesome offer.”

“There was about a 10-minute difference. Otherwise, I'd be on a flight to L.A.”

Alou's contract is believed to be worth about $2 million per year. Los Angeles was reported to have offered the 63-year-old manager a three-year contract worth a total of $3.5 million to $4 million.

The contract includes escape clauses that will allow him to go to another team if the club is sold and moves to another city.

Dodgers general manager Kevin Malone said the Expos told Alou they were willing to almost double whatever the Dodgers offered.

“We're not surprised,” Malone said from his home in Los Angeles on Sunday. “He felt obligated to stay. He didn't want to be the reason for the organization not surviving in Montreal. They were laying the guilt trip on him. If he left, there was a good possibility the franchise would not survive in Montreal. He didn't want to be responsible, feel guilty about it.”

Malone said Davey Johnson and Kevin Kennedy now are among a half-dozen candidates to manage the Dodgers. Last week, the Dodgers said interim manager Glenn Hoffman would be a coach next year.

Malone said Alou's choice to stay in Montreal exemplified why the Dodgers coveted him.

“Character and his loyalty,” he said. “I'm happy for Felipe. I just wish him the best.”

Alou's strong ties to Montreal may also have been a factor. His wife is from Montreal and he owns a home in suburban Laval.

But it wasn't easy for Alou to turn down the Dodgers' offer.

“The hardest thing was to call Kevin Malone and tell him I wasn't going to be part of the Dodgers, because they put out some kind of effort,” Alou said.

GOLF ROUNDUP

With Palmer as inspiration, Colbert wins Transamerica

Senior golfer Jim Colbert won his first match since 1997 prostate surgery Sunday.

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — As Jim Colbert neared victory in the final round of The Transamerica, his thoughts turned to Arnold Palmer.

Colbert, who had successful prostate cancer surgery in July 1997 but hadn't managed to win a tournament since, needed Palmer — who had similar surgery last year — for inspiration Sunday.

"I was kind of talking to him as I was going today, because there's never been a greater fighter than him," Colbert said.

Colbert finished with a 5-under-par 67 to win the tournament by one stroke over Senior PGA Tour rookie David Lundstrom. It was his 19th win as a senior and his first since the Raley's Gold Rush Classic in October 1996.

"It's by far the most meaningful golf tournament I ever won," Colbert said.

Colbert, 57, also moved ahead of Lee Trevino and became the leading money winner in the history of the senior tour.

The first prize of $150,000 brought his 1998 earnings to $1,007,041, the fourth time in his career he has earned over $1 million, and gave him a senior total of $8,133,838. Trevino, who did not play in The Transamerica, has $8,017,077.

"This sounds crazy, but at first it's just a feeling of relief," Colbert said about finally winning. "The second thing is a real sense of satisfaction."

Palmer played in The Transamerica last year, one of only 13 senior tour appearances after cancer surgery in January 1997. This past August, Palmer started a follow-up course or radiation treatments.

Michelo Championship

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Make it seven victories in a year for David Duval, golf's newest Sunday superstar and its first Mr. October.

Duval shot a 3-under-par 68 Sunday in the final round of the Michelo Championship for his seventh victory in the last 364 days. It was his fourth in his last five October events, and his first as a defending champion.

Once known as Mr. Runnerup because of his seven second-place finishes before the breakthrough playoff victory here last year, Duval improved on his Sunday scoring average of 69.5, which already ranked him fifth on tour.

He also became the first successful defender on the 6,853-yard River Course at Kingsmill since Calvin Peete in 1983, and he still has to defend titles at Walt Disney World and in the Tour championship later this month.

"If this is some type of dream, I certainly don't want to wake up anytime soon," said Duval, who won $342,000 to boost his earnings for the season to $2,464,408, extending his PGA Tour record.

rounds of the LPGA Tournament of Champions and, given her struggles of late, would have considered that a success.

She went one better Sunday, closing with a 2-under-par 70 for a four-stroke win over Juli Inkster and her first victory since the opening event of the season.

"To have it be a win is just a huge, huge bonus," Robbins said. "I thought going into (Sunday) I had already won. I had already accomplished more this week than I had expected."

Robbins, 29, earned $122,000 for winning the tournament at the 6,300-yard Grand National course and passed the $3 million mark for her career. She vaulted 11 spots on this year's money list to 14th place with $396,432.

Buetikofer wins singles championship

Iowa freshman Tom Buetikofer won the C flight singles championship at the Purdue Invitational this weekend.

By Todd Heffernan
The Daily Iowan

Redshirt freshman Tom Buetikofer won the only flight championship for the Iowa men's tennis team last weekend at the Purdue Invitational.

Buetikofer continued a stellar fall season by winning the C flight singles championship Sunday morning.

He also teamed with junior J.R. Chidley and reached the finals of the B doubles flight. He is now 7-0 in singles after winning the D singles flight championship at the Ball State Invitational and now the C singles flight at the Purdue Invitational.

Sophomore Jake Wilson reached the finals of the A flight before losing Sunday morning.

The Hawkeyes also got extensive results from their doubles teams last weekend, with both of their doubles teams making it to the finals. Sophomore Jason Dunn and senior Ulf Jentler lost in the A doubles flight finals and Chidley and Buetikofer lost in the B doubles flight. Even though the Hawkeyes failed to take home several championships as they did at the Ball State Invitational nearly two weeks ago, coach Steve Houghton was encouraged by their results.

"I would call it a pretty good performance team-wise," Houghton said. "Our doubles improved, but we've got a lot of room to improve."

Sophomore Tyler Cleveland was still alive in the All-American Championships as of Sunday evening. Cleveland defeated Johan Lindquist of Miami 2-6, 6-2, 7-6 (7-4) and Baylor's Mark Williams 6-1, 6-4 in the pre-qualifying rounds.

Men's tennis

Women's golf

This week: The Iowa women's golf team travels to Bloomington, Ind., for the Big Ten-Big 12 Shootout today and Tuesday.

Tournament notes: The Hawkeyes will play 54 holes over the next two days. It is the first tournament in which the Hawkeyes will have to play 36 holes in a day. ... Eight Big Ten teams and seven Big 12 teams will compete in the inaugural tournament. ... Like most collegiate tournaments, there will be an individual champion and a team champion. In the Big Ten-Big 12 Shootout, there will be a conference champion as well.

... The lowest individual score from each team will count for the team score and the conference with the lowest combined score wins the championship. ... Texas, Michigan State and Northwestern are expected to be the biggest competition for the Hawkeyes this weekend.

Coach's comment: "I think this is a course where we can play well at," Iowa coach Diane Thomason said. "We need to have a good first round and put ourselves in a position to win."

Next week: Iowa concludes its season in Naples, Fla., on Oct. 24-25 at the Benita Bay Invitational.

Men's golf

This week: The Iowa men's golf team goes to Cincinnati for the Xavier Invitational today and Tuesday.

Tournament notes: The Xavier Invitational is the final tournament in Iowa's fall season. ... The Hawkeyes will shoot 36 holes today and 18 on Tuesday. ... Chris England will continue to play as Iowa's No. 1. ... Marion, Iowa, native Jason Wombacher shot his best tournament of the year last week at the Legends of Indiana. The sophomore's 17th-place finish was the best an Iowa player finished last weekend. ... Besides England, Adam Turner is the only other Hawkeye with a top 10 finish this year. He placed eighth at the Hawkeye Intercollegiate. ... Other mainstays in the Iowa lineup this fall have been David Hersh and Iowa State transfer Tyler Stith.

Coach's comment: "We need to regroup a little bit after last weekend," Iowa coach Terry Anderson said. "I am still optimistic about our team and our season. I think we can go out and give a good showing."

Next spring: Iowa has five more tournaments in the spring, including the Big Ten Tournament and the NCAA Regionals.

Hawkeye varsity 8+ boat finishes 2nd in Rockford

In their second race of the fall season, the Iowa women's rowing team came away with a strong showing at The Head of the Rock on the Rock River Sunday.

Iowa's varsity 8+ "A" boat finished in second place, coming in with a time of 15:43.4. Wisconsin's "A" boat won the event with a time of 15:19.4.

Iowa's other two boats in the Varsity 8+ race also finished with solid performances. The "B" boat finished fifth with a time of 16:06.7 and the "C" boat finished in 11th place with a time of 16:49.5.

"The A boat had a tremendous race and we looked better as a team," Iowa coach Mandi Kowal said. "All three of our boats beat their counterparts from Michigan State, a team that sent an Eight boat to the NCAA meet last season."

Iowa 26 Northwestern 24

IOWA-NORTHWESTERN NOTEBOOK

Return of Reiners just in time for Fry and Hawkeyes

■ Fry said Kyle McCann may not be able to play next week against Indiana, either.

By Wayne Drehs
The Daily Iowan

For the second time this season, Iowa's injury bug bit the team's most important position: quarterback.

Freshman Kyle McCann missed the Hawkeyes' game against Northwestern due to a high ankle sprain he suffered against Michigan.

Coach Hayden Fry said McCann wore an immobilizer throughout the week, and there was no way he could have played against the Wildcats.

Luckily for Fry, Randy Reiners' injured knee was close to 100 percent, so Iowa was still able to start a quarterback with experience. Reiners, a junior, saw action in eleven games in 1997.

"Thank God for Randy," Fry said after Iowa's 26-24 win. "We lost Kyle last week and it's pretty serious. I don't even know if he'll be ready for next week."

Fry refused to speculate on who his quarterback will be next week at Indiana until further medical reports are given on McCann and Reiners.

Reiners took numerous hard hits from the Wildcat defense, including one that kept him on the turf for a prolonged period of time. Reiners said he refuses to get thrown into a quarterback controversy with McCann.

"We play two different styles," Reiners said. "I read articles about the controversy and stuff and I hate reading that. We are on the same team and we both want to win."

"The coaches will do what they want to do and we need to respect their decision, no matter what it is."

More injuries

Linebacker Raj Clark and lineman Matt Rogers were two Hawkeyes who sat out the game due to injuries.

Clark injured both of his knees against Michigan, but still dressed for Saturday's game, while Rogers watched from the sidelines in street clothes.

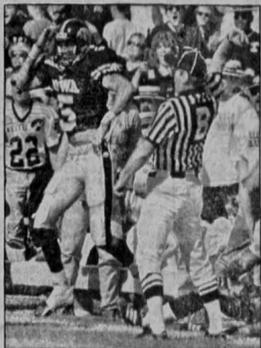

Rogers, a junior college transfer from California, underwent arthroscopic surgery Thursday to repair damage to his knee. He is expected to miss 2-3 weeks.

Hayden's Going Gray

Fry was absolutely beside himself in the postgame interview room, thanks to his defense allowing the Wildcats back in the game late in the fourth quarter.

"I didn't know who was going to have a heart attack first, me or (defensive coordinator) Bob Elliott," Fry said. "I should be given the Congressional Medal of Honor for not killing anybody. Or at least the Purple Heart, anyway."

Following two shotgun snaps over his head, Northwestern quarterback Gavin Hoffman lofted a ball up on fourth and 26 that D'Wayne Bates pulled down to move the chains.

On the next play, Hoffman hit a diving John Burden in the end zone for a 25-yard score.

"Every time-out, I'm out there in the middle of the field telling the secondary that the only way Northwestern is going to get in the game is if they get behind you. Do not let them get behind you. Do not let them get behind you."

"Yes sir, yes sir, yes sir," they said. Then they get behind us. And that was the slowest receiver on their team that ran right by us. He probably won't like me saying that, but he was the slowest receiver on their team."

Kicking Problems

Fry was not pleased with the efforts of his kicking unit after the win, either.

Zach Bromert missed a 22-yard field goal attempt early in the first quarter, and Jason Baker was more than erratic with his punts.

Baker's eight punts on the afternoon went like this: 53, 29, 37, 35, 20, 57, 36 and 41 yards.

"He is just really inconsistent right now and we have to work on that," Fry said. "It was a struggle today with the kicking game."

Bromert made a 27-yard field goal in the second quarter, and was 3-for-3 on his PATs.

Welcome Home, B.J.

Ex-Hawkeye basketball player B.J. Armstrong was in Iowa City for the Homecoming festivities, and shot around with the team before the game.

Armstrong, who plays for the Charlotte Hornets, said in a halftime radio interview that he hoped the NBA owners lockout would end quickly.

"Right now, I think we are in a feeling-out period where we are trying to see who has the upper hand," Armstrong said. "I just want to get back to work."

Armstrong spends the off-season in Chicago, and said the longer the lockout lasts, the greater the chance that Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen will return to the Bulls.

"The longer the lockout goes, the more they are going to get restless," Armstrong said. "If it's only going to be a 45- or 50-game season, those guys will come back and play. It will be interesting how things unfold."

Youthful players making mistakes

Maybe the Hawkeye secondary took Burden's speed for granted. If so, it wouldn't have been the first time Iowa underestimated the Wildcats.

There was no question Iowa was the better team on the Kinnick Stadium field. At times, it just appeared the Hawkeyes thought they were better than they really were.

Iowa took a 17-0 lead midway through the second quarter. Then it appeared the Hawkeyes relaxed and flipped the intensity switch off.

By halftime, the Iowa lead was just 17-10. The Iowa defense had its way with the Wildcats on four of its first five drives reverted to the Hawkeye offense that couldn't do anything against Michigan last week.

And the defense couldn't put together a full series to bury the Wildcats.

"To me, we need to play with more emotion," defensive tackle Jared DeVries said. "I'm not sure what makes us play with all that heart at times and at times we don't. That's why we let them back in the game."

When the Hawkeyes did play like they had something to prove, they dominated the Wildcats.

Northwestern tied the game at 17. The Hawkeye defense regained its intensity and the lead with a safety when Hoffman was called for intentional grounding after his pass from the end zone fell nowhere near an intended receiver.

From that point until Burden's touchdown, the Hawkeyes had the spark back, especially after the emotional play of the day.

Quarterback Randy Reiners came out of the grasp of defensive end Dwayne Missouri, scrambled to his right and found Kevin Kasper for a 49-yard touchdown, just before Reiners got decked by linebacker Conrad Emmerich.

The touchdown gave the Hawkeyes another cushion and another sense of security — one that lasted until Burden's touchdown.

The young Hawkeyes made Fry sweat out the win.

"This really gives you an example of what the coaches are going through this year with the young football team," Fry said. "If they didn't play so hard and bust their rump, we probably wouldn't win a ballgame because we make so many dumb mistakes."

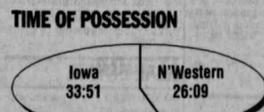

DI sportswriter Andy Hamilton can be reached at athamit@blue.weeg.uiowa.edu

thebottomline

Quarterback Randy Reiners returned to the Iowa lineup after missing four games with a sprained knee. He threw for 249 yards on 17-of-30 passing and Iowa held off the Wildcats, who made it interesting after Iowa took a 17-0 lead.

quarterbyquarter

The Iowa defense set the tone for the Hawkeyes to get out to a nearly lead. Northwestern's first drive resulted in three plays that combined for a loss of 12 yards.

After the defense allowed Northwestern just one yard on its next drive, the Iowa offense pieced a 71-yard drive together. Kahlil Hill gave the Hawkeyes the lead on a 23-yard touchdown reception from Randy Reiners.

Wildcat coach Gary Barnett called a fake punt after Northwestern's offense went three and out again. Doug Miller batted down the pass from punter J.J. Stranding to Iowa's offense the ball at the Northwestern 50-yard line.

Iowa went for the end zone on the first play and Bashir Yamini drew a pass interference call that set up Ladell Betts' two-yard touchdown run.

Iowa extended its lead to 17-0 on Zach Bromert's 27-yard field goal. The Hawkeyes set up the score when Reiners found Betts for a 35-yard gain and Hill caught a 12-yard pass.

A roughing the passer call gave the Hawkeyes the ball at the Northwestern nine-yard line, but Iowa failed to get closer to the end zone and had to settle for the kick.

The Wildcats finally showed ability to move the ball on the ensuing drive. Quarterback Gavin Hoffman hit John Burden, who made a spectacular catch at the Iowa 66-yard line. Damien Anderson scored two plays later on a one-yard run.

After Jason Baker's 25-yard punt, Northwestern took advantage of the great field position to put a 30-yard Brian Gowins field goal on the board to pull the Wildcats to 17-10.

Both defenses took control early in the second half, coming out with three plays.

Northwestern moved down to Iowa territory on its first drive of the half. Josh Barnes returned Baker's punt to the Iowa 38-yard line.

Two Brian Marshall punts put Northwestern at the Hawkeye 16-yard line. Betts elected to go for it on fourth down and Marshall and Marshall got stuffed for a six-yard loss.

Northwestern missed another opportunity to score when Gowins missed a 42-yard field goal attempt to the left.

The Wildcats finally moved even on their last offensive play of the third quarter. Hoffman found receiver D'Wayne Bates in between Iowa's Joe Slatery and Eric Thigpen for a 66-yard touchdown pass.

Baker made up for all of his short punts with a 57-yard effort that, combined with an illegal block penalty, gave Northwestern the ball at its own three-yard line.

The Hawkeye defense gave Iowa the lead back when Hoffman was pressured by defensive end Ryan Loftin and threw a pass out of the end zone with no intended receiver in the area for a safety.

Reiners' interception of a Wildcat defender and found Kevin Kasper, just before the junior quarterback got tackled by Conrad Emmerich, for a 49-yard touchdown.

Trailing 26-17, the Wildcats crept closer on Burden's 25-yard touchdown reception with 1:13 to play. But the Hawkeyes sealed the victory when Slatery recovered Gowins' onside kick.

Serbia and NATO deal

■ NATO agrees to hold back strikes to give the Serbs time to comply in Kosovo.

NEW YORK (AP) — President Clinton announced Monday that Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic agreed to comply with U.N. demands to end his seven-month repression of Kosovo Albanians. The president warned that any backtracking would bring swift NATO air strikes.

Clinton said Milosevic promised to allow the international community to verify first-hand that he was abiding by U.N. conditions for ending the violence in Kosovo.

He also said NATO's political leadership, meeting in Brussels, Belgium, took a dual-track approach: authorizing air strikes, but also giving Milosevic a four-day breathing period. In those days, international inspectors will verify Milosevic's compliance.

"Commitments are not complete," Clinton said in a statement he read at a campaign fund-raising event in New York.

Parody doesn't

■ Copies of the "Press Shitizens" have been plastered all over I.

The subjects of satirical posters titled the "Press Shitizens" that have popped up on Iowa City trash cans and telephone poles seem to be taking it in stride.

The posters, which bear a striking resemblance to the Iowa City Press Citizen, feature a headline that reads "Buy a Full Page Ad, Get a Front Page Story" with "Special deal for ch stores" as a subhead.

Charles Wanning, publisher of Press Citizen, said he didn't want comment on the content of the "Press Shitizens."

"I didn't pay very much attention to it," Wanning said. "These kind of things happen periodically. We do get too upset about them."

The "Press Shitizens" also contain articles critical of city councilors and a poll asking "What do you like to buy at the mall," with 100 percent of respondents saying they purchase "platinets."

The lead article accuses the Press Citizen of considering its most important job to make money rather than inform readers about current events.
