Inpatients down, outpatients up at UIHC

■ The hospital had a decrease of 2 percent in admissions in the first three months of the fiscal year.

By Cori Zarek
 The Daily Iowan

Fewer patients were admitted to the UI Hospitals and Clinics in the last fiscal year, and more people were treated as outpatients, a new report shows.

The UIHC has seen a 2 percent decrease in admissions and an 8.6 percent increase in outpatient care from last year in the first three months of the budget year, which began July 1, according to the report released to the Iowa state Board of Regents.

This is not unusual and nothing for the hospital to worry about, said Dean Borg, UIHC public information director.

"This is a long-term trend that's consistent with what is happening across the nation," he said. "More care is being done on an outpatient basis."

In addition to the drop in admissions, inpatients are spending less time at the UIHC. For instance, Coralville resident Chantelle Miller gave birth to her son on Nov. 18 and said two days at the UIHC was adequate.

"I was actually kind of ready to go home," she said.

If Miller had suffered from complications, she said she was confident she could have stayed as long as necessary and received proper care.

However, Miller said difficulties with breast feeding that she encountered after being discharged may have been detected earlier if she had remained at the hospital.

"If I had stayed longer, I might have caught this sooner, and it could have made things easier now," she said.

UIHC admissions were reported to be 14,003 between July 1 and Sept. 30; outpatient visits numbered 228,011. The statistics will be discussed along the rest of the report at a regents meeting in West Des Moines Thursday, said Regent Beverly Smith.

"We'll discuss the changes in the types of patient care and hear any recommendations to change the facilities," she said.

Patient numbers aren't the only change at UIHC — more patients are paying with managed-care programs, such as Health Maintenance Organizations, than health insurance.

In the July-September period, one in four patients was covered with a managed-care program, compared with one in five last year, the report said.

Women's studies backers fight feminist critique

■ Some disagree with a report that says the discipline is not a legitimate field of study.

By Elly Wallin
 The Daily Iowan

The people affiliated with the UI Women's Studies program insist that recent criticism of their field's doctorate programs is unfounded.

An article in the Nov. 27 issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education questioned whether Ph.D. programs in women's studies, such as the one at the UI, are really preparing students to be feminist scholars.

The story profiled the UI program, which is one of six nationwide. With three students enrolled so far, the program is one of three created this academic year.

In the article, critics described women's studies programs more as an exercise in consciousness-raising than an academic discipline. They said these programs do little more than turn out feminist activists.

"I don't object to an emphasis on the study of gender," Daphne Patai, a professor of Spanish and Portuguese at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, told the Chronicle. "But in these programs, is it getting serious

"I think our program is one of the most academically serious on campus."

— Laura Donaldson,
 UI associate professor of women's studies with joint assignments in English and the American Indian and Native Studies Program examination? Or is it an ideologically heavy-handed form of study?"

The last 20 years were devoted to consciousness-raising, said Professor Margery Wolf, UI Women's Studies program chairwoman. Students currently enrolled in the UI program are looking at very serious problems, she said.

The UI program is expected to grow tremendously in coming years, Wolf said, adding that there have already been inquiries about the program for next year.

Wolf said the doctorate in women's studies program requires courses with readings in several disciplines, the goal being how a feminist might look at each discipline.

It was noted in the Chronicle that the UI encourages its women's studies students to volunteer with non-profit groups that support women.

But that oversimplifies and discred-

Speeders receive season's greetings

Many holiday travelers got something extra to take home besides leftover turkey Sunday, as Coralville police ticketed 43 people for speeding on Interstate 80.

Speeding drivers make up a small percentage of traffic on Iowa roads, but they make driving hazardous, said Coralville police Sgt. Shane Kron.

"They're weaving in and out of traffic — those are the dangerous ones," Kron said Sunday afternoon, while standing along side the interstate, aiming a radar gun at cars whizzing by. "If we take that small percentage off the road, we won't have nearly so many accidents."

He pointed at a green station wagon, ordering the driver to pull over. He clocked the car at 78 mph — 13 mph over the speed limit. Inside the car were four children.

Six police officers spent four hours on Interstate 80 near exit 242, using part of the Coralville Police Department's $7,000 in federal Special Traffic Enforcement Program grant funds to check for drivers breaking the speed limit.

The average speed of the speeding drivers was 80 mph; the fastest vehicle was clocked at 87 mph. The average speed for all vehicles was 65-67

Warming up to the holidays

■ Iowans were thankful for unseasonably warm temperatures.

By Kelly Wilson
 The Daily Iowan

Having grown up in Iowa weather, UI sophomore Matt Light said he cannot remember the temperature ever being as unseasonably warm as it was over Thanksgiving break.

"I can't believe how nice it is," Light said. "Usually I have to worry about snow affecting the roads coming back after break, but not this year."

Temperatures reached a 70-degree high in Iowa City Sunday, possibly setting a record high for this time of year, said National Weather Service meteorologist Linda Engebretson.

"It is very possible a new record was set for Iowa City, because (the record) was in Cedar Rapids, but we don't have a long enough climatological record to be certain," Engebretson said. "This is because the Iowa City official observing the site has only been in place for three or four years."

The days following Thanksgiving are traditionally known as the beginning of holiday shopping; however, some retailers said they fear that the warmer temperatures will prevent customers from feeling the holiday spirit associated with buying gifts.

Kelly Stephens, an employee for Garden Botanika, Old Capitol Mall, said the weather probably had some impact on customer turnout this year but that the new Coral Ridge Mall likely affected her store more. The weather also can cause a lot of confusion because no one knows what to make of it, she said.

"I enjoy the weather, but it is kind of misleading, because it is hard to figure out what to wear in the morning because you never know what it is going to be like," Stephens said.

Government: Emergency rooms cannot delay treatment

■ The government is clarifying the "patient dumping" law to ensure immediate care in ERs.

By Alice Ann Love
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Hospitals can't delay or deny emergency-room care just because a patient's health insurance plan requires permission before treatment, government regulators are ready to announce this week.

A 1986 law bars hospital emergency rooms from refusing to examine and stabilize patients who can't pay. Now, federal officials will use the "patient dumping" prohibition to ensure that immediate care, whether or not insurance pays.

"Despite the terms of any managed-care agreements ... federal law requires that stabilizing medical treatment be provided in an emergency," said June Gibbs Brown, an inspector general in the Health and Human Services Department.

The 1986 law was intended mainly to protect people without health insurance. However, delays while emergency room staff consult with health plans to see if insurance will pay are on the rise, regulators say. In some cases, federal officials say, patients with potentially serious health conditions have left emergency rooms after being questioned about their insurance.

To deter such incidents, the U.S. government will begin applying the patient-dumping law, which carries fines up to $50,000 per incident.

Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn is among those already warned to correct delays that regulators say may have been caused by attempts to ensure health payment.

American Hospital Association spokesman Rick Wade said clarification in the law is welcome; but, he said, "it's not going to solve the problem of some plans deciding that they'll use pre-authorization rules as a way not to pay hospitals."

It has become more common for HMOs and other health plans to control costs by refusing to pay unless patients first get permission from des-

GOP: Clinton must admit lying before censure

WASHINGTON — Before the House Judiciary Committee can consider any alternative to impeachment, President Clinton must state clearly that he lied in his testimony about the Monica Lewinsky affair, Republican members said Sunday. But other lawmakers warned Congress not to ignore momentum for the lesser action of censuring the president. The move to censure was complicated last week by GOP dissatisfaction with Clinton's answers to 81 questions on the affair.

GENEVA — The Swiss voted overwhelmingly Sunday against legalizing heroin and other narcotics, apparently heeding government warnings that the proposed law would turn their pristine Alpine nation into a drug haven.

With all ballots counted, 74 percent voted against a constitutional amendment that would make legal "the consumption, cultivation or possession of drugs, and their acquisition for personal use." In favor were 26 percent, or 454,404 people.

SAN DIEGO — John Elway and the Denver Broncos aren't collecting style points, just victories.

Elway had four first-half turnovers but finished with a season-high four touchdown passes as the Broncos, returning to the scene of their Super Bowl victory, pushed aside the San Diego Chargers 31-16 Sunday night to remain unbeaten after 12 games.

The Broncos become the fourth team in NFL history to start 12-0 or better.

■ NEW YORK (AP) — Director Gus Van Sant is tired of people saying his new film "Psycho" is just another lame Hollywood remake.

"It's an anti-remake film," Van Sant says in the Dec. 7 Newsweek. "Why do people take films that are really well done and change the dialogue and change the shots and call it the same movie?"

Van Sant's "Psycho" is more tribute than remake, since he made the scary thriller the same as Alfred Hitchcock's original, copying it nearly shot for shot.

■ LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's all over for Pamela Anderson Lee and Tommy Lee — at least where their honeymoon videotape lawsuit is concerned.

A federal judge dismissed the Lees' $90 million lawsuit against an Internet company, saying the couple signed away the rights to the explicit tape.

U.S. District Judge Dean Pregerson ruled in favor of Internet Entertainment Group, which contended its agreement with the Lees was broadly written and provided for the video's distribution without specifying the format.

■ NEW YORK (AP) — Dylan McDermott turned to TV hoping that audiences would finally starting looking beyond his handsome face.

"One of the reasons I took 'The Practice' was because I was sick of the movies I was getting," McDermott says in the December issue of US magazine.

McDermott debuted in the 1987 film "Hamburger Hill," appeared in "Steel Magnolias" in 1989, and had a decent role opposite Clint Eastwood in the 1993 film "In the Line of Fire."

Help Me, Harlan

Dear Harlan,
I've danced for more than a dozen years, and I'm an above average singer and actress. At my school leads are traditionally given to seniors. Well, this is my year, and I have my heart set on a part that I feel would be fun, challenging and exciting. The problem is another girl, "Emily." She can't sing or dance and her acting is mediocre. Still, she keeps landing principal parts because she is very close to the casting director. I act sweet and kind to the director, but when auditions roll around, "Emily" always lands the part. How can I show the director my talent, responsibility and NEED for this part?

— Casting call
Dear Casting,
If you don't get the part of Dorothy, you can always play the role of the condescending "Wicked Witch of the West." There is always going to be some "Emily" in your life. You must strive to be your best and shine your brightest, regardless of your role. If you're not the lead, be the best at your part and you will be recognized. The Academy Award for a supporting role is still pretty cool.

Brave new college: no men

■ An Iowa researcher claims that, given the trends, men could vanish from college by 2068.

Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — An Iowa researcher, whose work found a decreasing number of men in America's college classrooms, cautioned that men could disappear from the graduation stage altogether if the trend continues.

Between 1970 and 1996, the proportion of bachelor's degrees awarded to males dropped from 57 percent to 45 percent, the Omaha World-Herald reported in its Sunday editions.

If the decline persists, researcher Thomas Mortenson said in a report, "the graduation line in the year 2068 will be all females."

"That's silly," said Dr. Ann Mari May, an associate professor of economics at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"This is like saying that because the proportion of the population over 65 has been increasing over the past several decades, if the trend continues the whole population will be over 65 by the year 2163," May told the World-Herald.

Mortenson said he believes the decline in male college students is a serious matter.

"When does it become a public policy problem?" asked Mortenson, a higher-education policy analyst from Iowa City and a senior scholar at the Center for the Study of Opportunity in Higher Education in Washington, D.C.

In his report — titled "Men Behaving Badly ... Where Are the Guys?" — Mortenson predicts that men will disappear from higher education within the lifetimes of children born this year.

The report says the proportion of bachelor's degrees awarded to men fell during the last century, while women received a larger share of degrees.

Women's gains accelerated in the 1970s; in 1982, for the first time, more women received bachelor's degrees than men, Mortenson's study found.

From 1970 to 1996, the number of bachelor's degrees awarded to women in the United States increased 81 percent, from 353,465 to 642,338. In the same period, degrees awarded to men rose 15 percent, from 453,605 to 522,454.

May said all Mortenson's report shows is that men have gone from dominating higher education to numbers that are roughly equal with their proportion of the population.

Women, who make up about 51 percent of the U.S. population, received 55 percent of the bachelor's degrees in 1996.

Women have begun to have equal representation, May said.

"But for men to totally disappear is, to me, wildly unrealistic," she said.

In his report, Mortenson said the "dazzling" progress of women has diverted society's attention from "the failure of young men to keep pace, to prepare for the world."

Mortenson's report was in last month's edition of "Postsecondary Education Opportunity," a research letter he publishes from his home in Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Mortenson, 55, is a consultant who has done work for the Nebraska Coordinating Commission for Postsecondary Education.

For his report, he used figures from the National Center for Education Statistics dating back to 1870.

Plotting the numbers over time, Mortenson found that since 1870, the proportion of bachelor's degrees awarded to women has increased and the proportion awarded to men has decreased. The numbers crossed boundaries of race, nationality and even educational disciplines, he said.

A serious study of the issue might find that the education system and society need to address learning differences between boys and girls, Mortenson said.

"We may also end up with some uncomfortable conclusions — one being that the progress made by women has literally come at the expense of men," he said.

Problems loom for GOP after election wash-out

DES MOINES (AP) — There are systemic problems looming for Republicans as they begin searching for the lessons to be learned from this year's election. The clearest lesson, one would think, is that the party needs to work harder at broadening its base and making a stronger appeal to moderates and independents.

Exit polling showed that half the voters consider themselves moderate; Democrat Tom Vilsack easily carried that group in Iowa's governor race. It would seem something short of advanced rocket science to argue that Republicans need to change that chemistry.

There are significant forces working against that change, however.

First, social and religious conservatives continue to have their hands firmly on the levers of power within the state's Republican party. They have spent years patiently organizing and doing the grunt work of politics. They show up for off-year precinct caucuses, staff phone banks and get rewarded with jobs such as belonging to a county central committee or organizing a school board campaign.

That dynamic leaves the party's machinery controlled by the right.

As Republicans look to select a new state party chairman, there's little evidence of a moderate emerging as a serious contender. The likelihood is high that Republicans will select an arch-conservative to be the party's main voice during the looming campaign for Iowa's precinct caucuses.

Independent voters who tune in for such things are likely to be jarred by the winner.

STATE NEWS

There are already clear signs that Republicans are working hard to avoid the lessons of this year's election.

Veterans such as Gov. Terry Branstad reject the notion that voters were sending any message at all. He argued that Republican Jim Ross Lightfoot simply ran a poor campaign and must bear the blame for the first losing Republican campaign for governor in 32 years.

Iowa leads nation in working parents

DES MOINES (AP) — When it comes to the proportion of school-age children whose parents work outside the home, Iowa leads the nation.

But is that a mark to be proud of or are the children worse off?

Teachers tell me that even little kids fall asleep in school because there's not a responsible person taking care of them," said Jeanne Roller, associate professor of education at St. Ambrose University in Davenport. "Or they don't have their homework done or a permission slip signed to go on a field trip."

A federal report says 83 percent of Iowa children come from homes where both parents — or the only parent — have jobs. It's the highest in the country and well above the national average of 71 percent, according to a Bureau of Labor Statistics report issued earlier this month.

John Johnson, principal of Howe Elementary School on Des Moines' South Side, said his school has had to find "innovative ways of communicating with parents," most of whom aren't at home during the day.

'Porking out' to protest hog prices

INDIANOLA, Iowa (AP) — Craig Hill didn't mind the festive atmosphere surrounding the giveaway of 50 of his hogs.

He had given up on making money on the animals — estimating he loses $60 to $70 every time he sells a hog — and instead was trying to increase awareness of low market prices.

On Nov. 28, one of Hill's friends — Tim Phillips — bought the hogs and then gave them away at his flooring store; it was more of a protest than a raffle. Phillips arrived at 5:50 a.m. Nov. 28 and found people already waiting; he had planned to start at 9 a.m. but relented and opened the doors at 6:45.

Phillips wanted to help publicize the economic plight of hog farmers. He grew up with Hill in the Sandyville area east of Indianola and knows that if farmers struggle, others in the community will soon struggle, too.

Taped to the iron rails was this message: Producers are paid $40.80 for a 240-pound hog; consumers pay at least $331.49 for that meat when it reaches the grocery store.

"It's just an awareness thing," Phillips said. "A lot of these folks probably didn't realize this until there was a hog giveaway."

"Too bad he has to do all this to get his point through," said Sofie Ochoa of Des Moines, whose family was one of the 50 raffle winners among 1,000 people gathered for a chance at the pork barrel.

Report: Iraq made missile bid

■ CNN claims the Iraqis tried to obtain prohibited missile technology in Bucharest despite denials.

Associated Press

Despite years of claims it has ended all programs to build weapons of mass destruction, Iraq made a bid to acquire prohibited missile technology last May, CNN reported Sunday.

In its program "NewsStand," produced with Time, CNN said Iraqi missile experts, escorted by Iraqi secret police, went to Bucharest, the Romanian capital, to negotiate the purchase of guidance equipment for long-range missiles.

Iraq is required to eliminate its long-range missiles and chemical, biological and nuclear weapons by U.N. Security Council resolutions that were adopted after the Gulf War in 1991.

The CNN report quoted unnamed sources and Scott Ritter, an American ex-Marine who resigned as a U.N. arms inspector in August and complained that the U.S. government was undermining the search for Iraq's forbidden weapons.

Iraq has insisted since the early 1990s that it has destroyed all its prohibited weapons. Tough U.N. trade sanctions, imposed after Iraq's 1990 invasion of Kuwait, cannot be lifted until U.N. inspectors certify that its weaponry has been destroyed.

According to the program's transcript, the Iraqi purchase in Bucharest was blocked because spy agencies from the United States, Romania and Israel uncovered the potential deal and monitored the Iraqis' two-week visit.

"We had the goods on the Iraqis ... We caught them red-handed," Ritter told "NewsStand."

CNN said Romania's government cooperated in the spying operation.

Iraq refused to comment on the reports until after Sunday's broadcast, CNN said.

"NewsStand" also noted that the Security Council, which set up the arms inspection program, was never officially informed of the spy operation in Bucharest, which was approved by Richard Butler, the chief U.N. arms inspector.

Ritter, who earlier had disclosed U.N. arms inspectors' dealings with Israel's Mossad spy agency and the CIA, expressed disappointment the Romanian operation had remained secret.

might have diminished the "holiday feeling" for some, the ability to spend time outdoors without freezing enhanced his break.

"I was able to do all the normal holiday stuff like trim the tree, but I got to go outside and throw around a frisbee this year when I was done," he said.

UI senior Rhonda Paulsen said she hopes the weather will stay warm, delaying the onset of winter, which in Iowa can be wretched — especially for college students who have to walk or wait for public transportation.

"Cold weather doesn't add to the holiday feeling, it only takes away from it because it makes people so miserable," she said.

However, she said, the unseasonably warm temperatures have been interfering with the natural progression of the seasons, affecting many things she has grown accustomed to.

"It is kind of irritating, because some people are still showing the summer cleavage thing because it is so nice out," Paulsen said. "The disappearance of it is about the only good thing about winter."

UI graduate student Ricardo Nava, a native of Mexico, said this winter will be his first in the United States and he is dreading the cold. The lingering high temperatures — which he said may be a result of El Niño — are welcomed.

"If this nice weather is what El Niño does in Iowa, then I guess it's not such a bad thing after all," Nava said.

Although Iowa City has likely seen its highest temperatures until spring, residents can expect warm weather to continue throughout the week, Engberetson said, with highs in the upper 50s.

I-80 speeders get extra stocking stuffer

SPEEDING

mph, Kron said.

The focus was on travelers driving home after the Thanksgiving holiday, he said. Sunday was one of the busiest travel days of the year.

The reasons drivers gave for going over the speed limit ranged from "they weren't paying attention" to "they were going the speed of the traffic," said Coralville police Officer Chuck Murray.

"I tell them they need to watch their speed, or they'll just get in trouble," Murray said.

Iowa City resident Matt Flattery, 24, was westbound on Interstate 80 when an officer pulled him over. He was given a ticket for going 76 mph in the 65 mph zone.

"I'll slow down, but just in that one spot," said Flattery, who already had another ticket.

Flattery questioned the safety of doing the speed check while there were so many vehicles on the road; he said it was difficult for him to pull off the road and pull back on due to the traffic.

One minor accident occurred during the check when a semi-truck rear-ended a van merging onto the interstate from an on-ramp near the officers. However, Kron said the accident was unrelated to the check.

The check makes the roads safer by slowing the traffic down, Kron said. It helps to slow down the people ticketed as well as the others who see the officer, he added.

"If we can get them to slow down that extra 10 to 15 mph, they'll have a better chance of surviving," Kron said.

Two people were also arrested for drug offenses and one for operating while intoxicated, he said.

During stepped-up enforcement on interstates, such as on Sunday, officers usually get at least two cars going more than 90 or 100 mph. But heavy traffic kept the speeds lower, according to Kron.

In addition to Sunday's check, the officers have been using the grant money to check for speeding drivers, people not wearing their seat belts and drunk drivers throughout Coralville since Nov. 23.

The Iowa City Police Department has also conducted similar traffic checks since Nov. 23 on Riverside Drive and Burlington, Dodge, Governor and Dubuque streets, Iowa City police Sgt. Ron Fort said.

Women's studies supporters dispute critical report its the UI program, said Laura Donaldson, a UI associate professor of women's studies with joint assignments in English and the American Indian and Native Studies program.

WOMEN'S STUDIES

"I think our program is one of the most academically serious on campus," Donaldson said. "We have no interest in promoting the simplistic, ideological activism, whatever that means."

What sets the UI program apart, she said, is its focus on studying women from emerging nations. All the faculty members in the UI

Women's Studies program have studied in countries other than the United States.

"We think the scholarship we are producing is some of the most necessary for moving into the new millennium," Donaldson said. "I think women's studies has now become a legitimate field of study."

The Chronicle report raised questions about job opportunities for someone not trained in more traditional disciplines. Of the 10 graduates from two other universities offering the degree — Clark University and Emory University — three have landed tenure-track jobs.

The UI puts equal emphasis on its doctoral candidates taking classes in anthropology or comparative literature to give graduates a broad educational background in more recognized fields.

With trends toward downsizing at the nation's colleges and universities, there is a rising need for professors with a multi-faceted background who can teach more than one subject; the Iowa women's studies graduates will have that, Donaldson said.

Sandi Solis, a Ph.D. student in the UI program, said her field has established a strong base. "This is not a passing fad," she said. "We're bringing in voices traditionally not heard in the academy."

Gov't directs emergency rooms on immediate care

TREATMENT

gnated doctors.

Plans that cover elderly, disabled and low-income Americans in government health insurance programs such as Medicare or Medicaid must waive such requirements for emergency care in situations a "prudent layperson" would judge to be a medical crisis — such as having symptoms of a heart attack. Congress this year considered imposing similar laws on the private sector, but gridlock in the Senate stopped the legislation.

Karen Ignagni, president of the American Association of Health Plans, said the group's members — which include insurers covering 150 million Americans — already voluntarily use the "prudent layperson" standard.

"Our plans want to make sure our beneficiaries know that if they reasonably believe they need to go to the emergency room, they should go," said Ignagni.

However, gray areas abound when health plans won't pay for emergency care and hospitals get stuck with the bill for patients who can't pay themselves. Many plans would not pay if a parent took a feverish baby to the hospital without first calling their pediatrician to make sure an emergency room visit is necessary.

"We want to make sure patients are seeking care in the most appropriate setting," said Ignagni. That means not going to the hospital "just because it's the most convenient place to seek treatment on a weekend or after hours." Hospitals can't make such distinctions, however, according to the new government guidelines.

Once a baby with a fever is brought to an emergency room, the hospital's staff can't delay care while employees ask about insurance or check with a health plan pediatrician for permission — even if it seems urgent treatment isn't necessary.

Emergency room personnel also can't send a patient to a clinic or doctor's office without first doing a medical exam to be sure immediate care isn't required to avoid seriously jeopardizing the person's health.

Regulators are seeking public comment on voluntary guidelines hospitals could follow to avoid problems in particularly tricky situations.

Giving those gifts that keep on giving

OK. There's three and a half weeks before Christmas, and I haven't even begun shopping for my people yet. This is partly because I'm poor, but mostly because I'm lazy and don't feel like braving the seething hordes of holiday shoppers to dig through racks and tables of merchandise, looking for just the right thing for some aunt I haven't seen in years but who will be miffed if I don't send her something.

Actually, I don't have any distant, long-silent relatives to buy for, and I'm thankful. In fact, I have kin who have to be told regularly that I'm still alive, still in school and still without a criminal record. It is unlikely that these people will show up on my stoop with a fruitcake and a box of Franzia any time soon — torches and pitchforks seem more apropos, if not quite as festive.

HANNAH FONS

way? I'm probably making a much bigger deal out of this than need be made, but I remember well the feeling of embarrassment and hurt that a poorly chosen gift can illicit in a recipient.

One year not too long ago, some of those estranged relatives I was talking about earlier sent me ... me! ... this gauzy, flower-print skirt with a mauve-ish, sleeveless sweater-vest to go with.

Now, I realize that these people rarely see me and no doubt meant well, but when you start sending somebody like me anything in a mauve floral print, you're way out of touch. I mean, they've seen pictures — when have I had anything to do with mauve? Obviously, they just thought they'd feel worse about not sending me anything at all, so they grabbed something that caught their eye (for whatever reason). It just sort of hurt my feelings (I do have them, despite what you may have heard) that they boxed up the first thing they came across and figured I'd just return it or give it away if it didn't suit me.

But I don't want people to return the gifts I give them. I want them to say they love it and mean what they say. I suppose it's partly an ego thing on my part — "it is I ... the gracious Gift Diva!" — but it's also a friendship thing. I want people to feel that I spent time thinking about them and what would make them happy, which I try to do on a regular basis anyway, but which is particularly important this time of year.

A good gift from a good friend can go a long way toward warming a person up, you know. And I don't mean that in a "Oh cool, I got new stuff" kind of way. It's just good to know that there are people around besides your immediate family who care about you and like to make their affection known from time to time with a little something-somethin'.

So yeah, I know that I'll get my holiday shopping done sooner or later. With my luck, I'll probably be wandering the city at 8 p.m. Christmas Eve, trying to find that one last thing for that one last person. Wish me well, and do us all a favor: don't send anybody some skirt emblazoned with mauve-ish roses. Last I heard, Santa kept a certain list for people like you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Finding justice in the little things

To the Editor:

I recently chose not to perform court-ordered community service — this violated the terms of my probation, and the court not unexpectedly ordered two days in jail. Of course, community service was a very light punishment, and community service is a good thing to do under any circumstances.

I came to realize over time that I would not be able to live with myself if I did not protest against a legal system that went to extraordinary lengths to prosecute me for a shove (a special prosecutor), but could not find a way to prosecute police officers who violated my son's constitutional rights, who criminally trespassed into my son's shop, who engaged in criminal recklessness that is gross beyond belief, who intentionally killed my son in his well-lit shop as he talked on the phone, and who then engaged in shameful lying as they attempted to create some justification for the unjustifiable.

My protest was not one I would ever choose — I certainly regret shoving Police Chief R.J. Winkelhake because it was unlawful, as well as because it has allowed people to focus on a shove instead of a killing. But it was a protest I could not avoid, because the two crimes are inextricably bound together, and only one of them was prosecuted. Fortunately for me and for my family — and probably for the community — Judge Gerard reconsidered and showed compassion and allowed me to voice my protest without going to jail. I do appreciate that.

It probably will come into many people's minds that compassion was shown to the police officers as well and that makes it even. But there is a huge difference — by arresting and prosecuting me, the shove was declared to be a crime. The police officers were not even arrested, and in failing to prosecute the officers, the legal system has declared the killing of my son to be a non-crime. The contrast is obscene.

This failure of our legal system effectively gives police a license to kill. If police are not prosecuted in circumstances so obviously criminal as the circumstances surrounding my son's killing, then there is virtually no chance that a police officer will ever be prosecuted for killing anyone in any circumstances that police officers find themselves in.

By itself, a prosecution of these officers would have validated my son's right to live and would have made a powerful statement that police do not have a right to kill. The proper place for compassion would have been in reducing the charges and in reducing the punishment — certainly both would have occurred if these officers had been prosecuted. Unfortunately for my family and for the cause of justice and the cause of good policing, compassion (along with bias) was substituted for justice rather than judiciously being allowed to temper it.

Surviving economic crisis takes help from many

To the Editor:

In regards to a recent article by Kelli Otting about Asian students who are still battling the economic crisis in their homelands, I would like to point out that the graph accompanying the article is misleading. ("Asian meltdown still affecting students," DI/Nov. 6.)

The figures in the graph, titled "Asian students at the UI," only show the number of new incoming students from those respective countries in fall 1997 and fall 1998 and not the total number of students who are currently studying at the UI from those countries.

In actuality, more students from those nations are affected. As a Malaysian student here, I estimate that there are only about 35-45 Malaysian students enrolled at the UI this year. This is a decline from the early 1990s, when the Malaysian student population at the UI was more than 100 people.

Second, I thank and commend the DI for highlighting and following up on the plight of international students faced with the economic crisis. I'm sure that my fellow international students would join me in giving our thanks and gratitude for the help and support given by the people at the UI, Iowans and Americans in general during this past year.

Personally, I know I wouldn't have been able to continue my education here this year if it had not been for the people who advocated and worked hard to keep students like me in school. I'd especially like to thank the staff at the Office of International Students and Scholars and the faculty and staff in the College of Pharmacy. Every cent helps United Way campaign

To the Editor:

The 1998 United Way campaign is in high gear. Committed volunteers have signed, folded, stuffed and sealed thousands of letters, visited area businesses, attended meetings, made phone calls, and worked very, very hard to get the United Way story out.

These volunteers are from every walk of life. They are all busy people who give their time freely because they have a clear understanding of the needs of the growing number of residents — often friends, relatives and co-workers — who do not have the resources for the health and human services most of us take for granted.

More importantly, the volunteers recognize the value of a vital, dynamic, successful United Way to our communities in Johnson County.

Our Planning and Allocations Committee works most of the year with all the health and human service agencies. They listen to presentations, study the budgets, visit the agencies and report back on the needs met and unmet. The United Way uses these reports and recommendations to set the goal for the next campaign.

This year's goal is very high. The needs are great. I hope you will carefully read the letter you received, sign the pledge card and be a part of reaching our $1.5 million goal. Every dollar given stays in Johnson County. Thanks.

A fish tale: The Incredible Mr. Barry gets a raw deal

TODAY'S culinary topic is: How to make sushi. I happen to be an expert on this topic because I recently put in a stint as a chef at an actual sushi restaurant. (One of the first things you learn, as a sushi chef, is how to put in a stint.)

Before I give you the details, I should explain, for the benefit of those of you who live in remote wilderness regions such as Iowa, what sushi is. Basically, it is a type of cuisine developed by the Japanese as part of an ancient tradition of seeing what is the scariest thing they can get you to eat raw.

The way they do this is, they start out by serving you a nice, non-threatening piece of fish, from which all the identifying fish parts have been removed. This fish is safe to eat and tasty.

But the trick is that it's served with a green condiment called "wasabi," which is the Japanese word for "nuclear horseradish." This is an extremely spicy substance, the formula for which must never be allowed to fall into the hands of Saddam Hussein. If you put more than two wasabi molecules on your sushi and eat it, your hair will burst into flames.

So after consuming some wasabi, you naturally order a cool, refreshing Japanese beer to pour on your head and perhaps, since you have the bottle in your hand anyway, wet your whistle with. The result is that your judgment becomes impaired, which is when they start trying to get you to eat prank food, such as sea-urchin eggs.

Sea urchins are vicious, golf-ball shaped, poison-spined sea creatures whose sole ecological purpose is to ruin your tropical vacation by deliberately not getting out of your way when you are wading barefoot.

If you eat the eggs of this animal, and fail to chew them thoroughly, you could develop an alarming medical condition that doctors call "baby sea urchins walking around inside your body poking holes in your spleen."

Other prank foods that they will try to get you to eat at sushi bars include eels, clam parts, jellyfish, tentacles with flagrant suckers and shrimps with their eyeballs still waving around on stalks. If you eat those, the waiter will become brazen and start bringing out chunks of coral and live electric eels. My point is that, in a sushi restaurant, you must watch carefully what you eat. (This is exactly what "The Star-Spangled Banner" is referring to when it says "o'er the clam parts we watched.")

Despite this, I happen to be a big fan of non-prank sushi. And so when Bok An, the proprietor of Sakura, my local sushi restaurant in Coral Gables, Fla., invited me to be a guest sushi chef, I enthusiastically answered: "No!" I was afraid that I'd have to touch an eel. I am 51 years old, and I did not get this far by touching eels.

But Bok assured me that we would stick to basic fish species such as tuna, salmon and cucumber. And thus I found myself one Tuesday night, wearing a samurai-style headband and standing behind the sushi bar, blending in perfectly with the other sushi chefs, except that my headband was actually the belt of my bathrobe.

Bok stood next to me and prepared various sushi items, and I attempted to imitate him. Here's the recipe: You start with a little rectangle made of dried seaweed (I asked Bok where the seaweed comes from, thinking he would name some ancient Japanese seaside village, and he said, "a distributor"). Then you pick up a glob of special sticky rice and spread it evenly on the seaweed. At least Bok did. The majority of my rice remained firmly stuck to my hands and started migrating to other parts of my body. I may have to have it removed surgically.

Next, you cut up your ingredients, using a lethal-looking, extremely sharp sushi knife that causes professional sushi chefs to become very nervous when it is being wielded by a professional humor columnist.

Then you put these ingredients on the rice and execute the secret sushi-rolling technique, which is difficult to describe in English words, as we can see by this actual transcript of Bok explaining it to me: "OK, you go like this, Boom! Then you go, Boom! Boom! Boom!"

The thing was, when Bok went boom, he produced this attractive, appetizing cylinder of sushi. Whereas when I went boom, I produced this mutant food unit leaking random seafood parts. I also had a problem with my sizing: Sushi rolls are supposed to be small, bite-size morsels; mine were more along the lines of seaweed-covered hams.

But I kept trying. Remember the movie "Karate Kid," where the mean bully beats up Ralph Macchio, but then Ralph studies karate under Mr. Miyagi, and then finally, in the big tournament, with everybody watching, Ralph stuns the bully by rolling a reasonably tight cucumber roll? Well, that's what I did. In fact, I may have a knack for it.

So if one day you walk into a Japanese restaurant, and you see, standing behind the sushi bar, what appears to be a man-size blob of rice wearing a blue bathrobe belt on its head, feel free to say hi. But keep your distance if I'm holding a knife.

House ponders nixing impeachment, censuring Clinton

Some Republicans want the president to apologize; others say the GOP must move on.

By Jim Abrams
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Before the House Judiciary Committee can consider any alternative to impeachment, President Clinton must state clearly that he lied in his testimony about the Monica Lewinsky affair, Republican members said Sunday. But other lawmakers warned Congress not to ignore momentum for the lesser action of censuring the president.

One Republican who has come out against impeachment, Rep. Peter King of New York, predicted that a vote to impeach would fall short in the House and said pursuing that course could perpetuate the image that Republicans are putting the scandal ahead of the nation's legislative needs.

"It's going to make it harder to get our agenda across. We have to show that we can lead, that we can bring an end to this," he said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

But the move to censure was complicated last week by GOP dissatisfaction with what they said were Clinton's evasive answers to 81 questions on the affair presented

"I do not want to have an unrepentant perjurer leading the nation into the 21st century."

— Rep. Lindsey Graham

to him by Judiciary Committee Chairman Henry Hyde, R-Ill.

"This censure idea without an admission on the president's part is a political cop-out," committee member Rep. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., told NBC. "I do not want to have an unrepentant perjurer leading the nation into the 21st century."

House Majority Whip Tom DeLay, R-Texas, on CNN's "Late Edition," said, "The Congress and the House have no other option but to vote impeachment or not."

Clinton has a chance to directly confront the committee on Dec. 8, when he or his representatives have been invited to testify.

White House spokesman Jim Kennedy said the White House is still evaluating how to respond to the invitation. Already, he said, "We've made a good faith effort to respond to the questions despite the fact that they were designed more for a partisan purpose than a constitutional one."

One Senate Republican, Sen. Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, said Clinton should personally appear to defend himself. "I think he ought to have to answer questions and be subject to examination, because the answers that he gave were evasive," he said on "Fox News Sunday." "Let's bring the president in."

After that, the committee would decide whether to recommend articles of impeachment to the full House, which could take up the matter the following week.

If 218 House members vote to impeach, action would move to the Senate, where a two-thirds majority is needed to convict and remove the president from office. With opinions split down party lines, there is little chance of that happening.

Sen. Joseph Lieberman of Connecticut, one of the first Democrats to openly condemn Clinton's behavior, wrote in the New York Times Sunday that with impeachment unlikely, Congress must censure the president. "Congress needs a strong statement that makes clear to ourselves and posterity that we are a nation that understands the difference between right and wrong, truth and falsehood."

Honduras capital may elect mayor's widow

After the mayor was killed in a helicopter crash during Hurricane Mitch, Tegucigalpa call for his wife.

By Julie Watson
Associated Press

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — As she watched workers pull a bloated body from the trash-clogged Choluteca River in the heart of this devastated capital, tears welled up in Vilma de Castellanos' eyes.

"I just ask God to make me strong," she said. "That's what my husband would want."

And, it seems, what the people of Tegucigalpa want as well.

Residents are pushing the grieving woman to take her late husband's post as mayor of the capital, which was crippled by Hurricane Mitch's fury. Carlos Castellanos was killed in a helicopter crash while surveying the damage.

Now, supporters want his wife to keep alive the memory of a man known as "the hardworking little fat guy" — and possibly to carry through his dream of becoming president, which he seemed poised to realize.

"His death left us with a great emptiness," said Jesus Rubio, 49, who was trying to sell the sand that buried his home. "He was our hope for change, and because she was his companion, there is no one better than her to carry out what he left unfinished."

An overwhelming majority of capital residents apparently agree.

In a country not known for honest civil servants — the previous mayor was jailed on corruption charges — Castellanos seemed to be the exception.

Already the front-runner in presidential elections in 2001, the hefty leader forged through whipping rain into high-risk areas when Hurricane Mitch struck, knocking on doors to evacuate residents before the Choluteca River ripped apart his city.

Tegucigalpa suffered its worst flooding in 200 years during the hurricane that killed as many as 7,000 people across the country. In northern Honduras Sunday, more than 7,000 survivors prepared to evacuate their homes amid fears that more rain could produce flooding.

In the capital, entire neighborhoods remain buried. More than 30,000 people are homeless, and approximately 12,500 unemployed because of the storm. More than a third of the city's bridges are gone. More than 200 factories no longer exist.

The already cash-strapped city government needs at least $350 million to get Tegucigalpa up to speed.

The area around the central market is a sea of putrid trash. Bodies continue to be pulled from the debris. This week, authorities found the decapitated body of a woman in a downtown building; nearby, desperate people wrestled in the muck for a pile of muddy toys they could sell.

"It's a big challenge," Castellanos said of the mayorship. "I don't claim to have all the answers, but I promise to work from my heart."

After her husband's death on Nov. 1, Castellanos quickly won her husband's National Party nomination despite her lack of any political experience. Castellanos had worked closely with her husband, organizing housewives for his campaign and running a project teaching former prostitutes how to make piñatas.

Swiss just say, Non, No, Nein to legalizing drugs

By a resounding 74-26 percent margin, the Swiss vote down the notion of legal narcotics.

By Claire Nullis
Associated Press

GENEVA — The Swiss voted overwhelmingly Sunday against legalizing heroin and other narcotics, apparently heeding government warnings that the proposed law would turn their pristine Alpine nation into a drug haven.

With all ballots counted, 74 percent voted against a constitutional amendment that would make legal "the consumption, cultivation or possession of drugs, and their acquisition for personal use."

In favor were 26 percent, or 454,404 people.

Last year, the Swiss were the first in the world to vote overwhelmingly in favor of state distribution of heroin to hardened addicts.

"The outcome shows that the Swiss population rejects extreme solutions to the drug problem," said Felix Gutwiller, a pioneer of the heroin distribution program.

The government opposed the plan, saying it was a health risk and would turn Switzerland into a haven for drug tourists and traffickers. It said the current policy of helping hard-core addicts while clamping down on dealers was best.

Church groups, police chiefs, social workers, doctors and other professionals working with addicts held similar views.

No other European nation, not even the Netherlands, has legalized the possession or sale of any drugs or has plans to do so. In Holland, soft drugs such as marijuana are decriminalized, and Dutch authorities don't prosecute people who sell or use small amounts.

The pro-legalization lobby — a loose left-wing coalition that gathered the necessary 100,000 signatures to force a referendum — claimed it would stamp out trafficking and the black market.

Backers hoped that a large turnout in their favor would persuade the government to relax laws on soft drugs such as marijuana.

Israeli ministers call for military strikes on Beirut

In two weeks, seven Israeli soldiers have been killed in Israel's "security zone" in southern Lebanon.

By Jack Katzenell
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Some Israeli Cabinet ministers called Sunday for military strikes against Beirut's power and water supplies in retaliation for the killing of Israeli soldiers by Islamic guerrillas in south Lebanon.

But the Cabinet announced no decision on such action or on any plans to change Israel's 13-year presence in south Lebanon.

Seven Israeli soldiers have been killed in the past two weeks by the Iranian-backed Hezbollah militia in the "security zone" that Israel occupies in south Lebanon to protect its northern border.

The latest deaths fueled public calls for a reassessment of policy towards Lebanon. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu cut short a European trip to deal with a growing debate in Israel over the losses in Lebanon and calls for a unilateral Israeli withdrawal.

The 12-member Cabinet security committee met in Jerusalem for four hours Sunday to hear military and security chiefs report on the Lebanon situation, after Netanyahu returned from visiting soldiers wounded in the latest fighting.

Military officials told ministers they did not recommend a one-sided withdrawal from south Lebanon without some kind of negotiated arrangement with the Lebanese government, Israel's Channel 2 TV reported.

The Cabinet took no decisions regarding Israel's presence in south Lebanon but agreed to tour the area to better understand the security situation, Channel 2 said.

Before the meeting, Netanyahu said Cabinet members would discuss minimizing Israeli troop casualties, not withdrawal.

"We are looking for an arrangement in which we can achieve that objective of protecting northern Israel without our presence in Lebanon," Netanyahu said before the meeting.

"As long as we don't have a way of leaving Lebanon in an arrangement that will guarantee the safety of northern Israel, our main objective is to protect Israeli soldiers," he said.

With heavy losses, a growing number of the Israeli public and officials support a unilateral withdrawal from Lebanon.

Lorrie Moore shares her humor from the dark side of life

The acclaimed short story writer will read in Shambaugh Auditorium at 8 tonight.

By Hillel Italie
Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — The world is a funny place around author Lorrie Moore.

She talks about God, and a black bird darts by. She gets easy laughs out of blind dates and cafeteria spinach. She gets hard laughs out of the cemetery she has picked for her eternal resting place.

Moore is 41, by all appearances healthy and a confirmed nonbeliever. The afterlife, so to speak, is for the birds. Her faith is that everything must end and that the end will not be happy.

That's where the jokes come in. "If you know everything is going to end in tears, it can release you from worry," she says. "If you know all will end in tears anyway, there might be acts of generosity you find yourself capable of."

The rare short story writer to make national best-seller lists, Moore has

"If you know all will end in tears anyway, there might be acts of generosity you find yourself capable of."

— Lorrie Moore,
author of "Birds of America," on her dark sense of humor become a popular voice for a generation of skeptics, a successor to witty, wide-eyed observers from Ann Beattie and Mary McCarthy to Dorothy Parker and James Thurber.

In books such as "Like Life," "Self-Help" and her newest collection, "Birds of America," Moore sends up poets, academics and young professionals. But Topic A is the unhappy-but-funny endings of modern love — the broken promises and the missed connections, the arguments and the silences, the "dust bunnies" under the beds of our souls.

"I don't really feel like a cynic," Moore said during an interview in her office at the University of Wisconsin, where she is a professor in the English department. "A cynic is someone who feels like nothing is worth believing in, that it's all just trash."

"I'm maybe just more of a pessimist. I think that all these ideas and these little emotional projects we hope for in the world are all worth hoping for. But that they will come about? I doubt it."

Born and raised in the upstate New York town of Glens Falls, Moore remembers nothing exceptional about her childhood, although a normal childhood is enough to set off a potential writer.

She had always liked making up stories, and making her friends laugh, and the gifts fit together nicely. As a graduate student she entered the creative writing program at Cornell University, where her teacher was the acclaimed fiction writer Alison Lurie.

"It was obvious she was amazingly gifted," Lurie said. "And at first I didn't know what I could teach her. "I encouraged her to write about people her own age. The first thing she turned in was about someone from a previous generation and it was awfully, awfully good, but it wasn't as amazingly modern and original as the stuff about people of her generation."

As with any good writer, the sum of Moore's stories transcends the parts, although the parts are worth noting. Few fiction writers are so quotable. "Wives are like cockroaches," the narrator advises "other women" in one story — "they will survive you after a nuclear attack." Marriage is likened to a "nice warm bath, in a tub flying off the roof." And life? "In the end, you suffer alone. But at the beginning you suffer with a whole lot of others."

Moore was single and living in New York when her first book was published, in 1985. Now, she is married and settled in Madison, settled enough to know the shady spot where she wants to be buried. In earlier fiction, her characters confront the shortage of decent, available men. In her more recent stories, Moore's characters confront parenthood and death.

The most talked about entry in "Birds of America" has been "People Like That Are the Only People Here," a semi-autobiographical story about a mother whose child is diagnosed with cancer. "People," which first appeared in The New Yorker, has won a National Magazine Award and the O. Henry Prize for the best short story of 1998.

No relationship in Moore's fiction is as intense as the narrator's with her son. The death of a child, she thinks, is a "fierce little country abducting you; it holds you squarely inside itself like a cellar room." At the end of the story, leaving the hospital, she kisses the boy as tenderly as any woman in Moore's fiction would kiss a man.

"It's a little raw emotionally," said Moore, whose son is a cancer survivor. "It's bare, or bare-naked, as we used to say when we were little."

BOX OFFICE

Forget the ham — Thanksgiving was for bugs and rats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "A Bug's Life" broke box-office records for Thanksgiving weekend and "The Rugrats Movie" remained strong against tough competition. But the troubled porker sequel "Babe: Pig in the City" got walloped, estimates showed Sunday.

It was a banner weekend for Disney, which had three of the top five films — "A Bug's Life," "Enemy of the State" and "Waterboy" — and about 60 percent of the total box-office take for the Top 10.

Here are estimated grosses at North American theaters for Nov. 25 through Sunday as compiled by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. Final figures are to be released today:

1. "A Bug's Life," $46.5 million.
2. "The Rugrats Movie," $27.6 million.
3. "Enemy of the State," $25.7 million.
4. "The Waterboy," $19.9 million.
5. "Babe: Pig in the City," $8.5 million.
6. "Meet Joe Black," $8.1 million.
7. "I Still Know What You Did Last Summer," $6.5 million.
8. "Ringmaster," $5.3 million.
9. "Home Fries," $5.2 million.
10. "Very Bad Things," $4.7 million.

ARTS BRIEF

You better watch out, Television is brimming with holiday spirit — and programs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Go ahead and slap a big shiny bow on your television set, which will be bursting with holiday largess over the next few weeks.

So, in the spirit of the holidays, we'll give TV a cheery thanks for being generous and wish it a bountiful commercial harvest in return. Here are the highlights (all times CST):

MOVIES:

— "The Christmas Wish" stars Neil Patrick Harris ("Doogie Howser") as a young man who goes in search of a family secret and, with Debbie Reynolds' help, finds himself. It airs 8 p.m. on Dec. 6, on CBS.

— "It's a Wonderful Life" once again as NBC airs the Frank Capra black-and-white classic starring Jimmy Stewart and Donna Reed at 7 p.m. on Dec. 19.

ANIMATION:

— Burl Ives narrates "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer," 7 p.m. today, based on the Johnny Marks song about a shy reindeer with unexpected talent. CBS has remastered the program and included footage unseen since its 1964 debut; call it the director's cut.

— The Peanuts gang again finds the true meaning of Christmas in "A Charlie Brown Christmas," rebroadcast by CBS on 7 p.m. on Dec. 2.

— "Annabelle's Wish," 6 p.m. on Dec. 6, on Fox, tells the tale of a calf with a yearning to join Santa's reindeer on their rounds and her friendship with a boy in need of a miracle. Narrated by country singer Randy Travis.

— "Beauty and the Beast: The Enchanted Christmas," airing 6 p.m. on Dec. 6 on ABC, reunites Paige O'Hara, Robby Benson, Angela Lansbury and other members of the original "Beauty" voice cast.

— "The Year Without a Santa Claus," a 1974 cartoon musical featuring the voices of Mickey Rooney and Shirley Booth, airs 7 p.m. on Dec. 12 on CBS. Santa, bummed by the world's lack of holiday spirit, goes on strike.

MUSIC:

— "A Classic Christmas With Martina McBride," at 7 p.m. on Dec. 9, on cable's TNN, showcases holiday favorites including "The Christmas Song." Guests include K.T. Oslin and the Nashville Symphony.

— Barbara Mandrell serves as host of "My Favorite Christmas Songs," 8 p.m. on Dec. 16, on Pax TV, with guests including Mariah Carey, Michael Crawford, Hanson and Boyz II Men sharing songs and holiday memories.

— "Christmas in Washington," 9 p.m. on Dec. 18, on NBC, includes performances by popular singers, the U.S. Academy Glee Club and U.S. Army Band and concludes with a message from President Clinton.

FAREWELL '98:

— Images of Frank Sinatra, Alan Shepard and Gene Autry are included in "Life Remembers," a look at famous and little-known Americans who died this past year and the contributions they made. It airs at 7 p.m. on Dec. 30, on CBS.

QUOTABLE

"It was probably smart that I did sit out so long. It's such a different attitude here. You've got to be smarter than you were in college. In college, you'd play because you wanted to get to the pros. Now that you're in the pros, you want to stay there."

— Former Hawkeye and current Atlanta Falcon Tim Dwight, who returned to action Sunday after he missed four weeks of NFL action. Dwight suffered a strain and possible small tear in his medial collateral ligament running back a kickoff on Oct. 25 against the New York Jets.

SPORTS BRIEFS

DeVries named to Walter Camp first team

Iowa senior defensive tackle Jared DeVries joined Tim Couch and Ricky Williams on the Walter Camp all-American team, which was announced Wednesday. DeVries was one of six players from Big Ten schools to make the 23-member team.

Three Wisconsin players — tailback Ron Dayne, offensive lineman Aaron Gibson and defensive lineman Tom Burke — joined Michigan State defensive lineman Robaire Smith and Ohio State defensive back Antoine Winfield on the team.

Gibson is a leading candidate for the Outland Trophy, awarded to the nation's outstanding interior lineman, for which DeVries is also a finalist.

Iowa signs three baseball players

Three prep baseball players signed letters of intent to play for the Hawkeyes, Iowa coach Scott Broghamer announced Wednesday.

Thomas Nall is a pitcher and infielder from Schaumburg, Ill., who had a 2.00 ERA and .360 batting average last year.

Brad Husz is a pitcher and catcher from Lexington, Ky., who had a 0.28 ERA in 40 innings last year and hit .406.

Reed Pawelk is a pitcher and infielder from Plymouth, Minn., who had a 0.46 ERA in 75 innings last year and hit .397.

Forbes: Cowboys most valuable team in North America

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are the most valuable franchise in North American sports, according to estimates by Forbes, followed by the Washington Redskins, Carolina Panthers and New York Yankees.

Dallas is worth $413 million, the magazine says in its Dec. 14 issue, which was released Sunday. Washington is worth $403 million, Carolina $365 million and the Yankees $362 million.

The value of the Yankees is far below what Cablevision Systems Inc. and George Steinbrenner have valued the team at in their sales talks — $600 million to $1 billion, according to various reports.

The Chicago Bulls ($303 million) top NBA teams on the magazine's list at $303 million, followed by the New York Knicks ($296 million) and Los Angeles Lakers ($268 million). The New York Rangers ($195 million) top the NHL.

While the Los Angeles Dodgers were sold from Peter O'Malley and his family this year for about $350 million, Forbes says the team is worth $236 million, eighth among baseball teams.

IOWA FOOTBALL: THE SEARCH FOR A NEW COACH

2 coaches officially in the hunt

Kansas' Allen said he was contacted, but not interviewed

Who has interviewed:

Chuck Long

The former Hawkeye great and current Iowa quarterbacks coach went through a five-hour interview session Friday.

"It would mean a lot to me to follow a legend like Hayden Fry," Long said. "I have that special feeling at Iowa. For me, this is where it all started. I feel like I owe Iowa."

Long has never been a head coach or coordinator at any level, but he does have nine years of experience as a player in the NFL.

"I've been in football for a long time as a player and coach," Long said. "I've always had a fighting attitude. I've had people tell me all along the way I wouldn't make it and I wanted to prove them wrong."

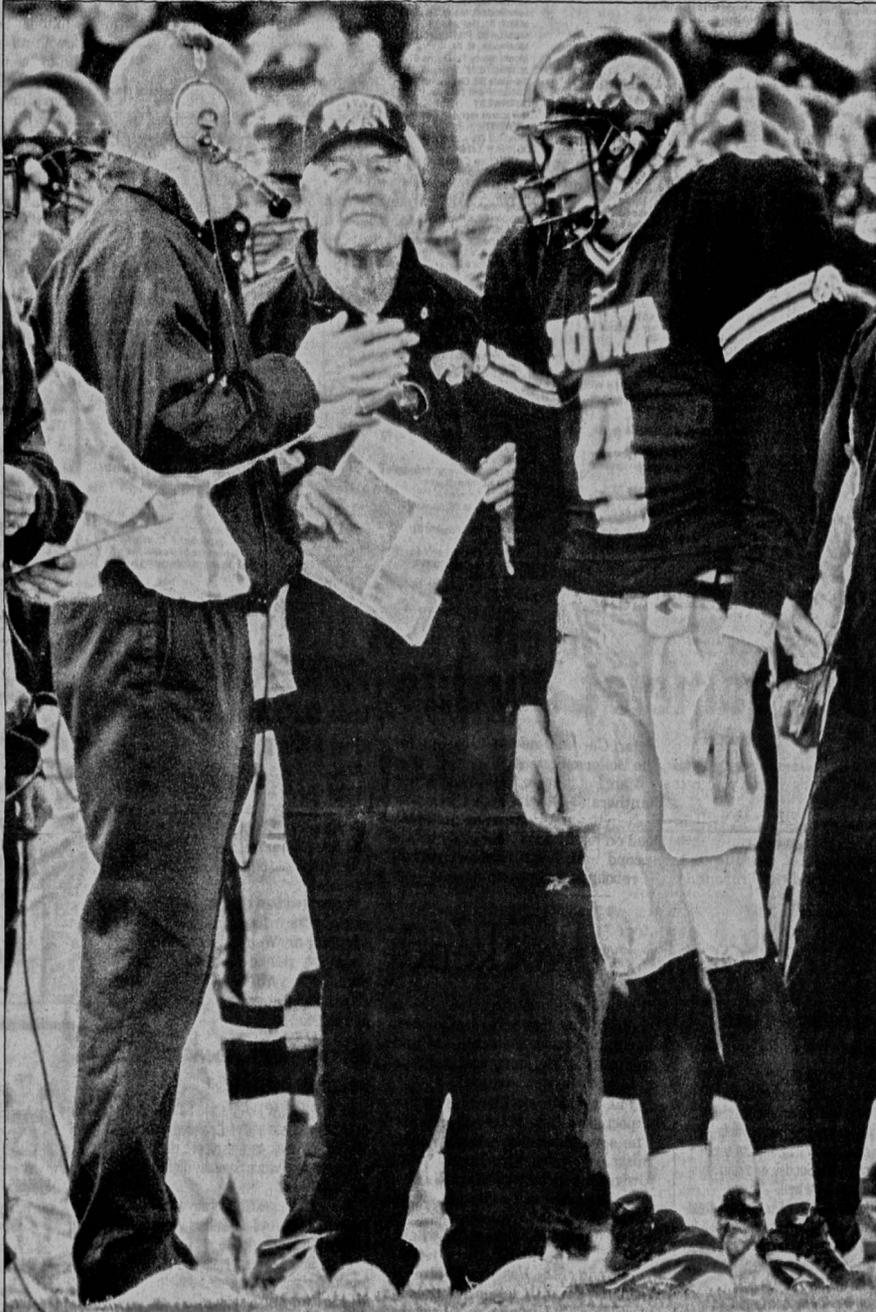

Don Patterson

The Iowa offensive coordinator met with the seven-member screening committee Sunday.

Patterson is the only remaining member of Hayden Fry's original Iowa coaching staff in 1979.

"No one is in a better position to know what needs to be done here than someone who has been here," he said. "I've seen Iowa at its best over the past 20 years and I've seen Iowa at its weakest over the last 20 years."

Iowa quarterbacks coach Chuck Long (left) talks to Kyle McCann as former Hawkeye coach Hayden Fry looks on Nov. 14 at Kinnick Stadium. Long interviewed Friday for the vacated head coaching position.

■ Bob Bowlsby squashed a report that he is already planning to offer Bob Stoops the job this week.

By Andy Hamilton
 The Daily Iowan

Iowa athletics director Bob Bowlsby said he wants to hire a new football coach this week, but most of the action so far seems to be taking place in the rumor mill.

Numerous reports have surfaced during the six days since Hayden Fry announced his retirement, but most of the talk has been hearsay.

The Gainesville (Fla.) Sun reported Bowlsby and Fry would travel to Gainesville this week and offer Florida defensive coordinator Bob Stoops the job with a package worth more than $500,000 per year.

"What the Gainesville paper has is not accurate in a number of ways," said Bowlsby, who would not elaborate on the flaws of the report.

The Des Moines Register stated sources close to the Terry Allen family said the Kansas coach interviewed for the position Saturday.

Allen was in Iowa City Sunday, but the "sole purpose" of the trip to his hometown was to be with his mother, who has been hospitalized since Tuesday and is set to undergo a heart procedure today, he said.

Allen confirmed he has been contacted about the job, but said he would not be "meeting with anyone from the University of Iowa during the visit" to Iowa City.

"I'm flattered from both a professional and personal viewpoint to be mentioned as a candidate for the job and because of those reasons, I feel a degree of obligation to look into the position," said Allen, who has called Iowa his dream job. "I can confirm that I have been contacted about the job."

Selection committee

- Bob Bowlsby, UI athletics director
- Ann Rhodes, vice president for university relations
- Fred Mims, associate athletics director
- Mark Jennings, assistant athletics director in charge of development
- Marv Cook, former Iowa tight end
- John Donelson, chairman of the Board of Control of Athletics
- Elizabeth Altmaier, UI education professor

IOWA MEN'S BASKETBALL

Creighton hands Iowa first loss

The Facts: Iowa failed to defend Creighton's three-point shooters early in the second half.
The Impact: The Hawkeyes lost, 75-73.

By Megan Manfull
 The Daily Iowan

With seven seconds left, the Iowa men's basketball team thought it was headed to overtime against Creighton Wednesday night in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Senior Kent McCausland missed a three-point attempt, but with time left on the clock Iowa still had a chance. Seniors Jess Settles and J.R. Koch crowded beneath the basket and tipped the ball around three times before time ran out.

Iowa (2-1) left with a 75-73 loss. "Coach always says tips don't go, and J.R.'s tip didn't get in there," McCausland said. "I really thought Settles was going to be in there, but he's been gone so long maybe his timing is off. You can't fault any one person, obviously. I thought we had overtime. I thought we were going to win." Iowa coach Tom Davis said last week and reiterated Wednesday that his team is not ready for top-30 rankings. The Hawkeyes were No. 22 in the Sagarin rankings entering the game.

Iowa turned the ball over 25 times in the game and missed 16 free throws. Players were frustrated with officiating, and in crucial moments Iowa's defense collapsed.

"At times we look really good, but we can't sustain it," Davis said. "That's no shock to me. Now, we'll get back to the drawing board and try and make this a better ball club."

The Hawkeyes led almost the whole first half. They jumped out to a 12-3 lead,

IOWA WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

Balanced Iowa captures Hawkeye Classic title

■ Iowa's inside game led the way Friday and the outside game took over Saturday.

By Roger Kuznia
 The Daily Iowan

The key to a good basketball team is having the ability to score on the inside and the outside.

The Iowa women's basketball team showed it has those two components, winning the Hawkeye Classic by defeating Missouri, 75-68, and Princeton, 59-44, over the weekend.

Iowa's starting post players, Randi Consuegra and Amy Herrig, dominated Missouri Friday afternoon, scoring 46 of the team's 75 points. Peterson led the attack with a career-high 26.

However, it was Iowa's guards, Cara Consuegra and Lindsey Meder along with freshman Patrice Jennings' solid play off the bench, that paved the way for the Hawkeye victory over Princeton Saturday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena in front of 3,267 fans.

Iowa's record improved to 3-3. Princeton sagged to the inside to take away Iowa's inside game, and Iowa's guards took the initiative.

"One of the first plays, I had a turnover trying to get the ball to Amy," Consuegra said. "About four different people were on her, so I knew at that point we had to shoot from the outside."

Consuegra finished the game with 12 points and five assists.

"She was very in tune with what we needed today," Iowa coach Angie Lee said. "She knew her shot was feeling good and she stepped up and made those shots."

It took until the second half for most of the players on either team to shoot well. Both teams had numerous wide-open jump shots in the first half, but failed to connect on a majority of them.

Iowa shot only 29 percent from the floor in the first half while Princeton did only 1 percent better. Despite the poor shooting and Princeton's ball control offense, Iowa led 21-19 at halftime.

Iowa's game plan was exactly like Princeton's: make the Tigers shoot from the outside. Though the Tigers have two dead-eye three-point shooters in Maggie Langlas and Kate Thirolf, the two didn't shoot well.

Thirolf missed all five of her three-point attempts and scored only four points. Last year, Thirolf made 58 three-pointers on 33 percent shooting,

Hawks end campaign with a split

Iowa's youngsters broke through to help the team win its third Big Ten match.

By Megan Manfull
The Daily Iowan

Rita Crockett is not complaining about her volleyball team's 3-17 record in the Big Ten.

That's in the past. She's looking toward the future.

Career-high performances and consistency from young players during last weekend's matches against Michigan and No. 14 Michigan State prompted the first-year coach to be excited for next season.

Iowa (9-20) split during its final weekend of play. Friday, the team defeated the Wolverines in five games (15-10, 15-11, 10-15, 8-15, 15-9) and Saturday, the Hawkeyes lost to the Spartans in three (15-9, 15-11, 15-13).

During Saturday's match, sophomore Katie Panhorst led Iowa in everything but assists as she collected 13 kills, eight digs and four blocks. Against Michigan, she added 15 kills and tied her career-high for digs with 18.

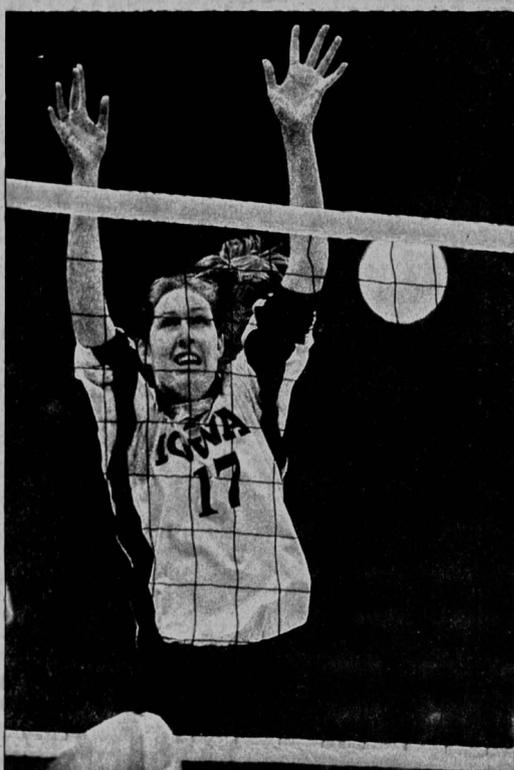

"Katie is really playing well," Crockett said. "She's understanding that middle position really well. She's such a balanced player and I'm just happy to have her on my team."

Junior Julie Williams was Iowa's star in the win over Michigan. She put away 30 kills to set a new career-high, and the performance tied for third-best in school history. The Iowa record for kills in a single match is 37, set in 1988 by Kari Hamel.

Sophomore Hannah Lehman also set a new career-high in the Hawkeyes' win. She collected 21 kills, shattering her previous high of 10.

"I think we started out (Friday) really well and then just had some rocky roads," Crockett said. "The sign of a good team is that you can play bad and still win and we finally did that."

Iowa honored seniors Barb Zvonek, Jordan Schultz and Katie O'Brien before Saturday's match, their final contest in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

O'Brien was a strong force at the net during Friday's match. She picked up 10 kills and six blocks in helping drop Michigan's record to 4-15 in the conference.

"Winning made it hard to want to leave," O'Brien said. "I'm going to come back and watch them next year. I'll watch them win, because I know they will."

Iowa juniors Sharla Johnson and Jill Schmidt also contributed in Iowa's close loss to the Spartans. Schmidt relieved Zvonek during part of the match, collecting 16 assists. Johnson added three kills, four digs and a block.

Crockett returns much of her team's core for next season. After joining Iowa last August, only weeks before the season started, Crockett is looking forward to training in the off-season with her returners.

"Next week we start getting ready for next year," Crockett said. "We'll have a much bigger jump than we did this year. And I'm looking forward to it. I'm happy. They did well this weekend. It's a boost into the next season. Now we get to work with them individually, and that's something I think will make a big difference for next year."

IOWA MEN'S VOLLEYBALL CLUB

New enthusiasm boosts Hawkeye clubsters

Preseason tryouts resulted in an influx of new talent for Iowa.

By Robert Yarbrough
The Daily Iowan

During the past three years, the UI men's volleyball club has learned to cope.

Trying to survive with scarce resources and little funding, the club almost fell apart last season due to lack of commitment by its players.

This season has proven to be the turning point. Fed up with the lack of enthusiasm from previous team members, the club held tryouts to find 20 of the top volleyball players within the university.

The result has been new talent and a strong dedication to the sport.

"When I first came here in 1996, the club was only semi-organized," said team captain Mike Ephraim. "The year after that, the guy in charge graduated and the club was in complete chaos ... We had about eight players and absolutely no commitment."

Ephraim is the veteran of the club, and its part-time coach as well. He was a second-team all-state player in Illinois and turned down a scholarship to Tri-State University before coming to Iowa.

Aware of the high population of the university, he decided it was time to see what talent Iowa had to offer.

"(Team)mate Jon Frericks and I wanted to initiate a change this year," Ephraim said. "I figured that since there are 30,000 undergrads, there had to be more than eight decent players. So we advertised tryouts for the team and now have a solid nucleus of players."

October tryouts brought a total of 36 players. That number eventually narrowed to two teams of 10 that would compete in tournaments.

Currently 17-14, the team has had the opportunity to play against some of the best club teams in the nation, as well as a few NCAA teams, this season.

As a member of the Big Ten Conference, the team's next step is qualifying for the national club tournament, scheduled for later this year at the University of Maryland.

Penn State is the only Big Ten school not sporting a club team due to the fact that the Nittany Lions are an NCAA-level program.

"The team is out there to gain a berth to the national tournament," Frericks said. "We have to finish in the top half of the Big Ten and that is a legitimate goal now."

Amidst all the success that change has delivered this year, one problem still persists for the team.

"We have plenty of talent, but no money," Ephraim said. "We are broke right now, so I am sure that you will see a credit card booth in the Iowa Memorial Union for Iowa men's volleyball."

Frericks added, "We have to spend 6 1/2 to 8 hours round-trip driving in a van and it gets pretty expensive after you are traveling to a lot of other schools."

UISG and Recreation Services allotted $1,200 for men's volleyball this year, but that money was used for expenses associated with the team's first tournament.

"I figured that since there are 30,000 undergrads, there had to be more than eight decent players. So we advertised tryouts for the team and now have a solid nucleus of players."

— Iowa team captain Mike Ephraim

Iowa finished 13th overall in the Michigan State Invitational — the largest preseason collegiate tournament in the nation. However, the players' pocketbooks paid the price.

"Clubs who have built a reputation, like Michigan State, can make up to $6,000 a year," Frericks said. "They clean up after hockey games right now for $500 a pop and we need to start thinking creatively like that so we don't have these troubles."

Financial struggles aside, the team is proud of the progress it has made after experiencing a lack of spirit in recent years.

"We now have a stronger and larger team," Frericks said. "I really think we are going to have a successful season because there is now a goal and everyone is committed to playing their best."

Iowa will play at home Thursday against the University of Wisconsin-Platteville. Matches are held on the main deck of the Field House, beginning at 6 p.m.

"This season has exceeded my expectations," Ephraim said. "The team is coming together nicely and there is no telling how far our talent might take us from here."

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

No. 1 Duke knocked off by Bearcats

Cincinnati won a wild one against Duke to take the Great Alaska Shootout.

By T.A. Badger
Associated Press

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Cincinnati looked through. Spirited and spent, the No. 15 Bearcats had squandered a 19-point lead against No. 1 Duke in the title game of the Great Alaska Shootout.

But Cincinnati had just enough left. With three seconds to go, Ryan Fletcher threw a three-quarter-court pass to Kenyon Martin, who handed the ball to a streaking Melvin Levett for a thunderous jump that lifted the Bearcats (4-0) to a 77-75 victory Saturday night.

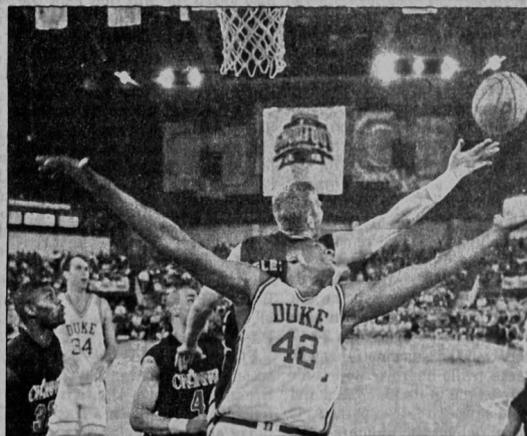

"The play is called 'home run,'" Levett said. "It just so happened that it was a perfect throw by Ryan and a perfect pass by Kenyon. It was the best play we executed all night."

No argument from Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski.

"They ran a great play," Krzyzewski said. "Levett just wasn't going to be denied on that. He was just a flash."

Still, Duke (5-1) nearly outdid Cincinnati. With one second remaining, Elton Brand tipped a long baseball pass to William Avery, who banked in what would have been a tying basket. The officials ruled Avery didn't shoot before the buzzer.

That ruling drew catcalls from many of the 8,700 fans, who packed the house to root for Duke and its star guard Trajan Langdon, an Anchorage native. Krzyzewski did not dispute the call.

"Certainly they played better than we did over 40 minutes," he said. "They just wanted it a little bit more than we did."

Bearcats coach Bob Huggins wondered about that.

"Our execution really wasn't very good," he said. "They took us out of what we wanted to do. (Basketball) isn't rocket science or brain surgery. You either do what you want to do or they stop you from doing it."

Levett led Cincinnati with 25 points while Pete Miceal added 17 and Alvin Mitchell had 14, six in the last two minutes.

"We knew that if we banded together, something good would come out of it," Levett said. "We found a way to win."

Avery, the tournament's outstanding player, led Duke with 30 points, 19 in the second half. Langdon added 13 points, and Brand had 12.

Maryland defeats Panthers for Puerto Rico title

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Maryland (7-0) dominated all three of its opponents, especially Pittsburgh in the championship game, to win the Puerto Rico Shootout Saturday night.

The No. 5 Terrapins led by 46 points before the Panthers (6-1) closed with an 11-0 run to make the final 87-52. It wasn't that close.

There wasn't a facet of the game in which Maryland didn't excel, and its 20-0 run ended any doubt about the strength of the Terrapins.

They made eight field goals in eight possessions. Each of the Panthers' missed shots and turnovers became Maryland points as quickly as you can say alley-oop lob for a dunk.

IOWA WRESTLING

Crazed Osage fans watch Iowa dominate

The defending national champion Hawkeye wrestlers opened their dual season with two blowout victories.

By Tony Wirt
The Daily Iowan

OSAGE, Iowa — The Iowa wrestling team opened up its dual season in impressive style last Friday in front of a wild crowd at Osage High School.

The Hawkeyes defeated Augustana, 57-0, and South Dakota State, 45-4.

The two duals had been sold out for weeks. The standing-room-only crowd cheered on the Hawkeyes from the opening match, but the noise rose to its highest level when former Osage H.S. wrestlers Doug Schwab and Ben Uker hit the mat.

Schwab, a 141-pounder, received a forfeit against Augustana and scored a 20-8 major decision against South Dakota State. Uker, a 165-pounder, ended the dual against South Dakota State with a 14-3 major decision, but did not wrestle against Augustana.

"Osage has a great wrestling tradition, and everyone knows Osage as a wrestling town," Schwab said. "It was nice for Ben and I to come back here and wrestle in front of the home fans one more time."

The Osage natives weren't the only ones who enjoyed the home-tan advantage. Iowa was clearly the crowd favorite, and the Hawkeyes fed off of it.

"I like this kind of environment," said heavyweight Wes Hand, who recorded two pins on the night. "It's a small-town crowd, and they're loud. It's really fun."

Of all the Hawkeye domination that was going on Friday night, one of the most impressive performances came from 174-pound Gabe McMahan. The sophomore had to adjust to a new role, as he led off both duals after having his weight drawn prior to the start of the match.

McMahan responded well to the leadoff position, recording pins in 1:07 against Augustana and 1:47 against South Dakota State.

"I thought McMahan wrestled well," Iowa coach Jim Zalesky said. "He came out, got two falls, and looked really good. He's the kind of guy you like to have start you off because he's a go-getter, a spark-plug. He just keeps going and going no matter what the score is."

Another Hawkeye that impressed was Hand, a Tama, Iowa, native. The junior pinned James Garvey of Augustana in 6:14, then pinned Bob Fullhart of South Dakota State in 4:16.

"I really liked Hand's second match," Zalesky said. "He kind of struggled in his first match, even though he ended up pinning the guy, but he really looked sharp in that second match."

The Hawkeye coaching staff was a little disappointed that they were forced to take four forfeit wins against Augustana and one against South Dakota State.

Two of the forfeits (125 and 141) were at weights where the Hawkeyes brought more than one wrestler, so the coaches could see who is in line for the starting spot.

"I would have liked to see (125-pound Ben) Kritsonis and (141-pound Mike) Zadick in matches, but once I found out that it wasn't going to be, you've got to put the hometown boy (Schwab) in," Zalesky said. "Against South Dakota State, Kritsonis had already wrestled the guy last week, so we put (Marc) Juergens in so we could compare the competition."

Juergens was Iowa's lone loser, falling to Chad Wickman of South Dakota State, 18-8.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Victory gives Falcons assured playoff berth

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jamal Anderson ran for a career-high 188 yards and 44-year-old DeBerg threw a 29-yard touchdown pass to Terance Mathis as Atlanta (10-2) clinched a playoff berth earlier than ever before with a 21-10 win over St. Louis.

Former Iowa star Tim Dwight had one reception for nine yards. DeBerg took over in the second half for Tony Graziani, who started in place of the injured Chris Chandler.

His TD pass came after the Falcons, who led 3-0 at the half, fell behind when Tony Horne of the Rams (10-2) returned the second-half kickoff 101 yards for a score.

Ravens 38, Colts 31
BALTIMORE — Baltimore's current team beat its predecessor much to the delight of 68,898 fans who waited 14 years to root in person against the traitorous Colts.

Back in Baltimore for the first time since Robert Irsay moved the franchise to Indianapolis in 1984, the Colts (2-10) immediately made themselves at home in a hostile environment by taking a 17-3 lead in the first quarter.

But the Ravens (5-7) outscored Indianapolis 17-0 in the fourth quarter to win consecutive games for the first time this season.

Chiefs 34, Cardinals 17
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Rich Gannon threw three touchdown passes and the Kansas City Chiefs, still plagued by penalties and mistakes, held on for a 34-24 victory over the Arizona Cardinals to snap their six-game losing streak.

The Chiefs (5-7), who had not lost six straight in a non-strike year since 1985, took a 31-17 lead with 10:26 left when Derrick Alexander scored his second TD on a 15-yard pass from Gannon. But the Cardinals (6-6), who had moved into playoff contention by winning three of their last four games, answered with an 80-yard drive and made it 31-24 on Mario Bates' 1-yard plunge with 6:07 remaining.

Jaguars 34, Bengals 17
CINCINNATI — Mark Brunell rebounded from his worst game as a pro by throwing a touchdown pass in each quarter, setting up a 34-17 victory over the Cincinnati Bengals.

Jacksonville improved to 9-3 for the first time in its four years and opened a two-game lead in the AFC Central, which the Jaguars have never won. Three of the Jaguars' last four games are at home, where they've gone 5-0 this season.

Jets 48, Panthers 21
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Blistered by three losses to weak teams, the New York Jets routed the Carolina Panthers 48-21. New York (8-4) won its fifth straight home game for the first time in 12 years.

Victimizing Carolina's 28th-ranked defense, Curtis Martin and Keyshawn Johnson struck for long TD runs. Vinny Testaverde's accuracy — 16-for-21 — and strong work by the offensive line also keyed the win that kept the Jets atop the AFC East.

Buccaneers 31, Bears 17
CHICAGO — In a day filled with wild and wacky plays, the Buccaneers (5-7) came up big on the strangest one of all as they beat the Chicago Bears 31-17.

With the game tied and no time left in the first half, Brice Hunter came in from out-of-bounds to catch a touchdown, and the Buccaneers never looked back.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak by the Bucs. It was the fourth straight loss for the Bears (3-9), whose mistakes led to all but three of Tampa Bay's points.

Patriots 25, Bills 21
FOXBORO, Mass. — For the second time in seven days, Drew Bledsoe flipped the winning touchdown pass with a fractured finger and kept the Patriots in the thick of the playoff race.

With no time but one play left after a defensive pass interference call in the end zone against Henry Jones, Bledsoe threw a 1-yard pass to Ben Coates.

Dolphins 30, Saints 10
MIAMI — Dan Marino threw three touchdown passes to O.J. McDuffie, becoming the first player in NFL history to reach 400 career TD passes, as the Dolphins (8-4) stayed in a tie with the Jets in the AFC East by overcoming an early 10-3 lead by the Saints (5-7).

Marino hit McDuffie with a 22-yard scoring pass late in the second quarter, then reached the milestone by hitting McDuffie with a 4-yard TD toss on the first play of the fourth quarter. They hooked up again on a 9-yard TD pass with 7:34 left to cap the scoring.

Packers 24, Eagles 16
GREEN BAY, Wis. — The heavily-favored Packers needed career days from running back Darick Holmes and wideout Bill Schroeder to slip past the Philadelphia Eagles 24-16.

Holmes rushed for a career-best 163 yards on 26 carries and Schroeder caught five passes for a career-high 128 yards in his first NFL start as the Packers (8-4) held off the Eagles (2-10) in a game that was much closer than anybody could have expected.

Redskins 29, Raiders 19
OAKLAND, Calif. — Trent Green threw three scoring passes and the Washington Redskins forced three turnovers as the Redskins spoiled Jeff George's return and won on the road for the first time this season. The loss also hurt the chances that the Raiders (7-5) will make the playoffs for the first time since 1993.

The Redskins (3-9), who have won three of five after opening the season with seven straight losses, came into the game with the worst turnover differential in the NFL. But they recovered two fumbles and made an interception while only losing the ball once.

Seahawks 20, Oilers 18
SEATTLE — Jon Kitna threw two touchdown passes and drove the Seattle Seahawks into position for the winning field goal with one second left.

Todd Peterson kicked a 48-yard field goal after Kitna marched the Seahawks (6-6) from their 29 to the Oilers' 30 after Al Del Greco's 42-yard field goal put Tennessee ahead 18-17 with 33 seconds to go.

Broncos 31, Chargers 16
SAN DIEGO — John Elway had four first-half turnovers but finished with a season-high four touchdown passes as Denver remained unbeaten after 12 games.

The Broncos became the fourth team in NFL history to start 12-0 or better. Only the 1972 Miami Dolphins went undefeated the whole way, finishing 17-0 after winning the Super Bowl.

Tom Lehman waves to his family Sunday while heading to the 18th hole for a second playoff round of the Skins Game. Mark O'Meara won eight skins.

O'Meara's dream season continues with Skins title

■ Masters and British Open champion Mark O'Meara had eight skins over the weekend and won $430,000.

By Beth Harris
Associated Press

LA QUINTA, Calif. — If he could, Mark O'Meara would never let 1998 end.

The Masters and British Open champion, who earned a career-high $1.78 million on the PGA Tour and won his first two majors, picked up a record $430,000 and a victory in the Skins Game Sunday.

O'Meara clinched his first Skins title on the 16th hole of regulation, knocking in a 3-foot birdie putt worth two skins and $140,000. That pushed his two-day total to eight skins and $430,000 — bettering the $370,000 Fuzzy Zoeller won in 1986.

"This year has been a tremendous year for me," said O'Meara, who will play two more non-PGA Tour events in South Africa and Australia before year's end. "To win the Skins Game caps off so positively everything else that has happened to me this year."

O'Meara's luck ran out when the Skins Game went to a playoff for the fifth consecutive year. He dropped out of contention for the largest skin ($270,000) with a bogey on the first playoff hole at Rancho La Quinta Country Club.

"I still would've liked to keep going and play for that super skin," said O'Meara, who had a two-day, 18-hole total of 1-over 72.

Instead, he plopped down cross-legged on the ninth green and waited as Tom Lehman, Fred Couples and Greg Norman continued a Skins record six-hole playoff.

Defending champion Lehman birdied the par-4, 400-yard 10th hole with a 4-foot putt to win two skins and $270,000 over Couples, whose birdie attempt curved around the cup.

"It seemed like it took forever," Lehman said. "I didn't think too much about the fact there was a lot of money on the line. I didn't want to lose the playoff."

Lehman finished second with seven skins and $420,000, also bettering Zoeller's record. Couples was third with three skins and $150,000. Norman, playing his second event since missing seven months because of shoulder surgery, was blanked both days.

Norman was eliminated on the third playoff hole. His second shot on No. 9 landed in water to the right of the green. He took a drop and hit his fourth shot within 30 feet of the hole, but missed the par putt.

That left Lehman and Couples in a match-play duel.

Couples, the career Skins leader with $1.34 million and 41 skins, missed four birdie putts that would have won the playoff. The first three putts slid by the hole, and the fourth, a 12-footer on No. 10, curved high around the cup.

"It's a big mind game," Lehman said. "Freddie had four putts to win and couldn't get it in the hole. That kind of thing wears on you."

Lehman sank his 4-footer to tie Couples' single-hole money record. Couples also won $270,000 in 1995 on the fifth extra hole.

Lehman completed a two-day, 18-hole total of 63 on the par-71 course.

Stern may be following NHL commissioner's lead

■ The commissioner might be using a tactic employed by Gary Bettman during the 1994-95 NHL lockout.

By Chris Sheridan
Associated Press

NEW YORK — It's called the January Theory, and it holds that the NBA lockout will last at least another five weeks.

"It could be that they don't meet for another month," agent Steve Kauffman said Sunday. "I've been telling my players for the past couple of weeks that they shouldn't expect to play until mid-January at the earliest."

With negotiations stalled and the players believing the owners are trying to further test their resolve, it appears that commissioner David Stern is following a lockout calendar similar to the one employed by NHL commissioner Gary Bettman during the 1994-95 lockout, which wasn't settled until Jan. 13.

The hockey lockout included a period from Dec. 6-Jan. 7 in which no talks were held. The sides then made "final" offers and "final-final" offers before a marathon negotiating session settled it.

It would take another three weeks of lockout limbo to match that month lull. So far, the sides in the NBA dispute have gone 10 days since their last full bargaining session, and that 9½-hour meeting was the only one the sides had in November.

Currently, the owners and players are at odds over whether there will be preconditions for a resumption. About 120 players participated in a conference call Saturday and were brought up to date on the stalemate, a union spokesman said.

Monday will mark the second missed payday for the players, and a new month will begin Tuesday with the outlook bleak. Millions of dollars have been lost, the fans are upset and the long-term damage could be worse than expected.

Stern and deputy commissioner Russ Granik have staunchly refused to set a "drop dead" date for saving the season, although they have alluded to mid-December being the ballpark date.

That vague deadline could be extended, however, if Stern backs off his insistence upon having the deal put on paper and ratified — a process that could take 2-3 weeks — before the lockout would be lifted.

"If they back off that 2-3 weeks, it's a different story. Then the January theory makes a lot of sense," said Kauffman, who represents 19 players. "And remember, we can go from a doomsday scenario to a settlement in a matter of 2-3 days."

The NBA has said four weeks would be needed from the time a deal was reached until the season begins.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

WEEKEND ROUNDUP

Wade Payne/Associated Press

Tennessee quarterback Tee Martin, foreground, celebrates with teammates after Tennessee defeated Vanderbilt 41-0 to finish the regular season undefeated, Saturday, in Nashville, Tenn.

Computer may have final say in '98

Top three teams remain undefeated going into the final weekend of the season, meaning one could get left out of the national title picture.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

This could be close. College football is set for a dramatic finish next weekend, when three games will determine which two teams play in the Fiesta Bowl with the national title on the line. And if each of the top three teams — No. 1 Tennessee, No. 2 Kansas State and No. 3 UCLA — win on Saturday, the Bowl Championship Series and its computer chips decide which team gets left out. "It's been a tight race throughout the season and if all three win on Saturday, it would have been a tight race to the finish," Roy Kramer, chairman of the BCS and commissioner of the SEC, said Sunday. "We feel confident in our system and look forward to next week when we designate teams for each BCS bowl."

The new BCS standings, based on the AP media poll and the coaches' poll, three computer rankings, strength-of-schedule and number of losses, will be released Monday. The final standings come out on Sunday. Tennessee (11-0) is expected to remain in first place this week after its 41-0 rout of Vanderbilt on Saturday. UCLA (10-0) had a comfortable lead over third-place Kansas State (11-0), but the Wildcats are still hopeful of overtaking the Bruins after Saturday's games.

Saturday's glamour games include a makeup, a potential mismatch and a Midwest showdown for the Big 12 title. — UCLA travels cross country for its rescheduled game with Miami (7-3). The game was originally set for Sept. 26, but postponed due to Hurricane Georges.

Miami was clobbered 66-13 by No. 18 Syracuse on Saturday, giving the Orangemen (8-3) the Big East title a berth in either the Sugar or Orange Bowl.

At Atlanta, Tennessee should be big favorites to win their second straight SEC title when they play No. 23 Mississippi State (8-3). The Bulldogs, who beat Arkansas 22-21 last week, topped Mississippi 28-6 on Saturday to get a shot at the Vols.

At St. Louis, K-State takes on No. 10 Texas A&M (10-2) for the Big 12 title. The Aggies enter the game wounded after a last-minute 26-24 loss to Texas that ended their 10-game winning streak.

The stakes are huge for the Wildcats. Even a win doesn't guarantee them a spot in the Fiesta, but they'll do no worse than the Sugar. A loss, though, could drop them to the Alamo Bowl, with the Aggies ending up in New Orleans.

Notre Dame (9-2) fell out of the BCS picture after its 10-0 loss to Southern California (8-4) on Saturday night. It looks like the Irish will play in the Gator Bowl against Georgia Tech (9-2), a 21-19 winner over Georgia (8-3) on Saturday.

No. 6 Arizona (11-1), a 50-42 winner over Arizona State on Friday, is the likely Rose Bowl opponent for No. 8 Wisconsin, but only if UCLA beats Miami. If the Bruins lose, they will play in the Rose and the Wildcats could end up in the Holiday Bowl.

Four of the eight BCS berths have been clinched — by conference champions UCLA (Pac-10), Florida State (ACC) Wisconsin (Big Ten) and Syracuse (Big East). The Big 12 and SEC champs get the other automatic bids, with No. 5 Ohio State, Arizona and No. 7 Florida the top candidates for two at-large spots.

One of the more intriguing matchups could be No. 20 Texas vs. No. 11 Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl, a rivalry renewal from the days of the old Southwest Conference.

Other possible matchups could find Florida against No. 15 Michigan in the Citrus, Georgia vs. No. 22 Penn State in the Outback, and No. 13 Nebraska vs. No. 21 Oregon in the Holiday.

Also, No. 9 Tulane (11-0) is set to play BYU (9-3) in the Liberty Bowl, while No. 14 Virginia (9-2) will likely meet Kentucky (7-4) in the Peach. Look for Central Florida (9-2) to play North Carolina State (7-4) in the Miron PC Bowl, Alabama (7-4) vs. Miami or West Virginia (8-3) in the Music City and Missouri (7-4) vs. Miami or West Virginia in the Insight.com.

The final bowl matchups should be set by next Sunday. No. 1 Tennessee 41, Vanderbilt 0 At Nashville, Tenn., Tee Martin threw for a TD and ran for another and the defense intercepted four passes and recovered two fumbles as the Vols beat Vandy (2-9) for the 16th straight time.

USC 10, No. 16 Notre Dame 0 At Los Angeles, freshman quarterback Carson Palmer scored on a 2-yard bootleg in the third quarter as the Trojans won their third straight against the Irish and shut them out for the first time since 1962.

Notre Dame, which played without injured quarterback Jarious Jackson, had five turnovers — four on interceptions.

No. 15 Michigan 48, Hawaii 17 At Honolulu, Anthony Thomas ran for 183 yards and four TDs as the Wolverines (9-3) handed the Rainbows' their 18th consecutive loss — the nation's longest losing streak. Hawaii became only the second school to post an 0-12 season — Colorado did it in 1981.

No. 12 Georgia Tech 21, No. 19 Georgia 19 At Athens, Ga., Tech ended a seven-year losing streak against the Dawgs when Brad Chambers kicked a 35-yard field goal with two seconds remaining. The Yellow Jackets had lost the last three meetings by a total of 13 points.

Joe Hamilton, who committed three turnovers, redeemed himself by directing a nine-play, 52-yard drive that set up Chambers' winning kick.

No. 14 Virginia 36, No. 25 Virginia Tech 32

At Blacksburg, Va., the Cavaliers overcame a 22-point halftime deficit and won on Aaron Brooks' 47-yard TD pass to Ahmad Hawkins 2:01 left. The Hokies (8-3) could end up in the Sun Bowl.

No. 18 Syracuse 66, Miami 13

At Syracuse, N.Y., Donovan McNabb ran for three TDs and threw for two as the Orangemen coasted. It was Miami's second-largest margin of defeat behind a 70-14 loss to Texas A&M in 1944.

No. 22 Penn St. 51, Michigan St. 28

At State College, Pa., Eric McCoo rushed for 206 yards, and David Macklin and Anthony King returned interceptions for TDs as the Nittany Lions (8-3) ended the Spartans bowl chances.

On Friday, at Tucson, Arizona completed its best regular-season with a 50-42 win over Arizona State (5-6) as Trung Canidate ran for a school-record 288 yards and scored on runs of 80, 66 and 48 yards. Arizona's only loss? To UCLA, 52-28, in a game the Wildcats led late in the third quarter. ... Ricky Williams has the record (and maybe the Heisman), and Texas got the last-minute 26-24 win, but Texas A&M still goes to the Big 12 title game against K-State.

Williams ran for 259 yards against A&M and now has the I-A rushing record with 6,279 career yards after passing Tony Dorsett's 20-year-old mark of 6,082. ... At Little Rock, Ark., Clint Stoerner threw for 334 yards and a TD as Arkansas had an easy time beating LSU (5-6) 41-14. ... At Lincoln, Neb., the Cornhuskers barely needed a nine-win season for the 30th straight year under first-year coach Frank Solich, beating Colorado 16-14. Kris Brown kicked three field goals, including a 25-yarder with 8:48 left, to hold off the Buffaloes (7-4).

On Thursday, at New Orleans, the Green Wave completed their first perfect season since 1931 as Shaun King (19-of-26 for 330 yards) threw three TD passes and ran for another and Toney Converse (24-182) added a school-tying four rushing TDs in a 63-30 rout of Louisiana Tech. ... At Starkville, Miss., despite a shoulder injury, James Johnson came off the bench to score two TDs and lead the Bulldogs to a 28-6 win over Mississippi (6-5). Over the weekend, the Rebels' Tommy Tuberville left to coach Auburn.

◆ CAKES ◆
CARROT CAKE

2 c. sugar
1 tsp. salt

◆ BEVERAGES ◆
HOLIDAY PUNCH

2 1/2 quarts cider
1 pint cranberry juice
1 tsp. allspice
2 sticks of cinnamon
1 orange - sliced
cloves

Stick cloves into orange slices and put all ingredients into crockpot. Cook on high for 1 hour OR cook on low 4-8 hours.

◆ BEVERAGES ◆
Hot Cranberry Punch

To be made in a 24-cup automatic coffee maker. In the filter basket combine:

4 T. whole cloves
12 sticks cinnamon
(broken into 1 inch sections)
2 T. whole allspice

In the bottom of the coffee maker add:

1/2 c. brown sugar
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. red food coloring
2 cans (28 oz.)
unsweetened pineapple juice
4 bottles cranberry juice cocktail

Plug in and let complete cycle.

◆ BREADS ◆
Festive Cherry Bread

1 c. sugar
1/4 c. nuts (chopped)

◆ BREADS ◆
Cinnamon Braid

1/4 c. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1/4 c. shortening
1 1/4 c. milk (scalded)
2 eggs (beaten)
1 pkg. yeast in 1/4 c. water
4 1/4 c. flour plus enough more to make a soft dough
2 tsp. cinnamon

Scald milk. Pour over sugar, shortening, and salt. Let cool slightly and add eggs and yeast. Add 2 cups of the flour and cinnamon, then beat thoroughly (in electric mixer). Then add rest of flour by hand—until a soft dough is formed. Put on floured board and knead thoroughly. Let rise in greased bowl. Then divide dough in half. Roll out each half in rectangle—about 12 inches or 15x4 inches. Cut in three strips and braid—pinching ends together. Put on greased cookie sheet and let rise. Bake in 350° oven about 20 to 25 minutes. Frost while warm with powdered sugar frosting with a little cinnamon added. Slice to serve.

◆ BREADS ◆
ONION BREAD

1 pkg. Pillsbury's Hot Roll mix
Butter (melted)
1/4 c. butter
6 medium onions (sliced)
or 2 large Bermudas

Prepare roll mix as directed on the package. When ready to shape, roll into 15x11 or any size which will fit your greased jelly roll pan. Fit into the pan and brush the top and well to the edges with the melted butter. Slice the onions and fry in rings until transparent in the 1/4 cup butter. Cool slightly and arrange on top of the roll mix in the jelly roll pan. Let rise until double in bulk, about 30 minutes. Bake in 375° oven about 30 to 40 minutes or until golden brown. Serve in squares while hot. Makes an excellent accompaniment for steak on the grill, spaghetti, ribs, etc. Makes 18 to 24 pieces.

◆ GIFT CERTIFICATES ◆
AVAILABLE

Need gift ideas for that "hard to buy for" person?

◆ SEAFOOD ◆

Crab Meat Souffle

1/4 c. shortening
1/4 c. flour
1 c. milk
salt
pepper
3/4 c. cheese (grated) or Cheez Whiz
1 can crab meat
1/2 c. fresh crumbs
3 egg yolks
3 egg whites
1/2 tsp. cream of tartar

Make white sauce of first three ingredients. Add salt and pepper. Add cheese, crumbs, slightly beaten egg yolks and crab meat. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar. Fold together gently. Bake in greased casserole at 325° for 55 minutes.

◆ SOUPS ◆

Delicious Ham & Bean Soup

- ◆ Soak 2 cups dry white beans overnight.
- ◆ Rinse beans with fresh, cold water and drain.
- ◆ Combine beans, 2 cups diced ham, 3 oz. bacon, 2 cups chopped onion, salt and pepper and 6 cups water.
- ◆ Cover and simmer slowly for 5 hours, stirring occasionally and adding water as necessary.

WALK-INS WELCOME

BREADS

Festive Cherry Bread

1 c. sugar	3/4 c. nuts (chopped)
2 eggs	1 1/2 c. all-purpose flour (sifted)
1 jar (8 oz.) maraschino cherries	1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/2 c. flaked coconut	1/4 tsp. salt

Beat eggs and sugar together. Dice cherries and reserve cherry juice. Add cherries, coconut, and nuts to the egg and sugar mixture. Combine flour, baking powder, and salt. Add flour mixture and cherry juice alternately to the egg mixture. Pour into greased 8-1/2x4 1/2x2-1/2 inch loaf pan. Bake in 350° oven for 1 hour.

CAKES

CARROT CAKE

2 c. sugar	1 tsp. salt
2 c. flour	1 1/2 c. Wesson oil
2 tsp. cinnamon	3 c. carrots (grated)
2 tsp. soda	4 eggs

Add eggs (well beaten) and oil to mixture of sugar, flour, cinnamon, soda, and salt. Mix well and add grated carrots and beat again. Bake at 325° for 60 minutes.

FROSTING:
Mix 5 tablespoons flour and 1 cup milk. Cook over low heat until thick. Beat in 1 cup butter - beat till fluffy. Add 1 box powdered sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat till fluffy.

BREADS

"Never Fail" Butter Horn Rolls

3/4 c. milk (scalded)	2 pkg. dry yeast in 1/2 c. warm water
1/2 c. sugar	2 eggs (beaten)
1 tsp. salt	4 1/4 c. flour (unsifted)
1/2 c. butter or margarine

Scald milk. Pour over the sugar, salt, and margarine. Cool and add the beaten eggs and yeast. Add 2 cups of the flour and beat hard (in electric mixer). Then add the rest of the flour by hand. Grease the top, cover with foil and refrigerate. (Can be kept up to 3 or 4 days). Divide dough into thirds. Roll out in circle (12 to 14 inches in diameter). Spread with butter or margarine. Cut in pie-shaped pieces, 12 or 16, depending on size of circle. Roll each piece, beginning at the outer edge and rolling to the point. Seal and place on cookie sheet. Brush with melted butter and let rise. Bake about 10 to 12 minutes in 350° oven.

CAKES

Orange Slice Fruit Cake

1 lb. dates (cut fine)	1 lb. candy orange slices (cut up small)
1 tsp. soda	1 c. mixed nuts (cut large)
1 c. boiling water	Candied cherries and candied pineapple (add as desired, 1/2 c. of each or more). Mixed candied fruit may be used.
2 eggs (beaten)
1 c. brown sugar
1 1/2 c. flour
1/2 tsp. salt

Combine dates, soda, and water and let stand till cool. Add rest of ingredients to above three ingredients. Nuts best used are Brazil, pecan, walnut, and almond. Soup cans or loaf pans greased well may be used. Soup cans make great gifts. Fill soup cans only 2/3 full and bake at 250° about 1 hour or more on high oven rack. Bake loaf pan approximately 1-1/2 to 1-3/4 hours. Place a pan of water in oven on lower rack during baking - this results in a glazed surface. Delicious!

◆ CAKES ◆
Holiday Peanut Cake
 1 1/2 c. brown sugar 2 c. flour (sifted)
 1/2 c. butter 1 tsp. soda
 3 eggs 1 tsp. vanilla
 1/2 c. milk Peanuts (grind about 2 lbs.)

Beat together brown sugar, butter, and eggs. Sift flour and soda. Add alternately with milk. Add vanilla. Bake in large pan at 350°. Allow cake to cool thoroughly. Cut into small bars. Frost bars on all sides with confectioner's frosting. Roll in ground peanuts.

◆ CASSEROLES ◆
ENCHILADA PIE
 1 can cream of mushroom soup 1 lb. hamburger
 1 can cream of chicken soup 1 medium onion
 2 soup cans of milk 1 small can chopped green chilies
 1/2 to 3/4 lb. Colby or 1 small can chopped red chilies
 American cheese (1/2 can each unless you like it
 1 pkg. frozen tortillas HOT, then use only red)

Mix together and heat in saucepan: soup, milk, and chilies. Put a layer of six tortillas in 9x13 inch pan. Fry hamburger and layer 1/2 meat on tortillas, then a layer of onion, layer of cheese, and half of soup mixture. Repeat and top with rest of soup. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes or until it bubbles.

◆ COOKIES ◆
BANANA-CHOCOLATE CHIP BARS
 3/4 c. oil 2 cans stewed tomatoes
 1/4 t. nutmeg 2 cans chili beans with gravy
 1 c. oil 1 T. sugar
 1/4 t. nutmeg 1 to 2 jars sliced mushrooms
 1 c. oil chili powder (to taste)
 1/4 t. nutmeg tomato juice

Brown meat and onions. Pour off excess fat. Add tomato juice, tomatoes, beans, sugar, salt and pepper. Simmer. About 1/2 hour before serving, add mushrooms. The longer it simmers, the better (at least 1 1/2 hours--stir occasionally.) Garnish with shredded cheddar cheese, sour cream or jalapenos.

◆ CASSEROLES ◆
MUSHROOM ALMOND RICE
 1 c. onion (chopped) 1/4 tsp. pepper
 2 T. butter 1/2 c. slivered almonds
 1 c. long-grain (not instant) 1 can (4 oz.) mushrooms rice (uncooked) and liquid
 2 c. beef bullion 2 T. butter

Cook onion in 2 tablespoons butter until tender. Add rice; cook until brown. Add remaining ingredients and cook until tender. If using fresh mushrooms, cook them with the onions.

◆ DESSERTS ◆
CHRISTMAS CRANBERRY DESSERT
 3 T. butter 1/4 tsp. salt
 1 c. sugar 3 c. raw cranberries
 2 c. flour 1 c. milk
 3 tsp. baking powder

Cream butter and sugar. Add remaining ingredients, except cranberries. Mix thoroughly. Fold in whole cranberries. Spread batter in greased 8 or 9 inch pan. Bake a good 45 to 60 minutes at 350°. Serve with hot butter sauce.

HOT BUTTER SAUCE:
 1 c. sugar 1/2 c. butter 1 tsp. vinegar
 1 T. flour 1/2 c. cream 1 tsp. vanilla

Mix sugar and flour in a heavy pan or double boiler. Add butter, cream, and vinegar. Cook until sugar is dissolved and mixture is bubbly. Stir constantly. Take off heat and add the vanilla. Serve hot over each serving of Christmas Cranberry Dessert.

◆ MAIN DISH ◆
Quite-A-Dish
 3 T. salad oil 2 cans (8 oz.) tomato sauce
 1 medium onion (chopped) 1 c. water
 1 clove garlic (cut) 1 c. cream-style corn
 1 lb. ground beef 1 c. ripe olives (chopped)
 2 T. flour 2 tsp. chili powder
 Soda crackers 1 tsp. salt
 1/4 lb. cheese 2 T. vinegar

Cook onion and garlic in oil. Remove garlic, add ground beef. Stir and cook until meat loses color. Sprinkle flour in and stir. Add all remaining ingredients except crackers and cheese. Simmer for 20 minutes. Butter large casserole, line bottom and sides with crackers. Pour in half of meat mix, cover with half of cheese. Add a layer of crackers and top with remaining meat mixture. Cover with remaining cheese. Bake at 350° for about 45 minutes. Serves 8.

◆ MEAT ◆
Meat Loaf with Mushroom Stuffing
 2 cans (3 oz.) sliced mushrooms 1 1/2 tsp. salt
 1/2 c. onion (minced) 1/8 tsp. pepper
 1/4 c. butter Dash of Ac'cent
 4 c. fresh soft bread crumbs 1/4 c. parsley (minced)
 1/4 tsp. thyme 1/3 c. catsup
 2 1/2 lb. ground beef (chuck) 1/3 c. mushroom broth
 2 eggs (slightly beaten)

Drain mushrooms, reserve broth. Saute mushrooms and onion in butter until onion is transparent. Combine with bread crumbs, thyme, and parsley. Lightly mix together ground chuck, eggs, salt, pepper, Ac'cent, catsup, and mushroom broth. Pack 1/2 meat mixture in large loaf pan. Pack stuffing on top, then rest of meat mixture. Bake at 375° for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Let stand 15 minutes to drain juices. Turn onto serving plate. To dress up this recipe, place sliced mushrooms over top before cooking. Good!

◆ SALADS ◆
Yuletide Salad
 1 pkg. lemon Jello 1 c. crushed pineapple
 1 1/2 c. boiling water or (drained) fruit juice 1 c. miniature marshmallows
 2 T. vinegar 1 c. heavy cream or
 2 T. sugar 1 envelope Dream Whip
 1 c. apple (unpeeled, diced)

Dissolve Jello in hot water or fruit juice, add vinegar and sugar. Chill. Fold in remaining ingredients. Refrigerate 2 hours before serving.

COOKIES
BANANA-CHOCOLATE CHIP BARS

3/4 c. oil
 1 c. sugar
 2 eggs
 1 1/2 c. flour
 1/2 t. soda
 1 t. salt

1/4 t. nutmeg
 3/4 t. cinnamon
 1 c. mashed bananas
 1 3/4 c. quick cooking oatmeal
 1 pkg. chocolate chips

Cream oil, sugar & eggs. Add dry ingredients; add alternately to creamed mixture with bananas. Stir in rolled oats & chocolate chips. Bake at 350° for 30-35 minutes or until tests done.

COOKIES
SUGAR COOKIES

1 c. oleo
 1 c. oil
 5 c. flour
 2 tsp. cream of tartar
 2 tsp. soda

3/4 tsp. salt
 2 c. sugar
 2 tsp. vanilla
 2 eggs

Cream oleo, oil, and sugar together until creamy. Add eggs and vanilla. Beat until thoroughly mixed. Add flour which has been sifted with cream of tartar, soda, and salt. Mix well. Make small balls, walnut-sized, and place on cookie sheet. Press down with fancy-bottomed glass dipped in sugar. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes in a 375° oven. These will be very crisp. Do not make when humidity is high. Yield: 100 to 120 cookies. These should be chilled before baking -- easier to handle.

COOKIES
BOOZY BOURBON BALLS

1 pkg. (6 oz.) chocolate chips
 3 T. light corn syrup
 2 1/2 c. vanilla wafers (finely crushed)

1 c. nuts (finely chopped)
 1/2 c. sugar
 1/2 c. bourbon

Melt chocolate in double boiler over hot water. Remove pan from fire and stir in sugar and corn syrup. Blend in bourbon. Combine vanilla wafers and nuts in bowl. Add to chocolate mixture. Form into 1 inch balls and roll in powdered sugar. Let ripen in container tightly covered and refrigerated.

COOKIES
CHRISTMAS CASSEROLE COOKIE

2 eggs
 1 c. sugar
 1 c. dates (snipped)
 1 c. flaked coconut

1 c. walnuts (chopped)
 1 tsp. vanilla
 1/4 tsp. almond extract

Beat eggs well. Add sugar gradually, beating until fluffy. Stir in remaining ingredients. Turn in an ungreased 2-quart casserole. Bake in 350° oven for 30 minutes. Remove from oven and while hot, stir well with a wooden spoon. Cool. Form into small balls and roll in granulated sugar. Yield: 3 dozen. These are rich, but oh so good.
