FDA OKs antibiotic to fight super bugs

The drug is the first alternative in 30 years against germs that have developed resistance to antibiotics.

By Greg Henry

A new antibiotic was approved by the Food and Drug Administration Thursday in an effort to combat the increasing threat of drug-resistant bacteria.

The drug, an alternative in 30 years, was approved to treat a range of drug-resistant bacteria.

New ISU 'zine fake for a laugh

Four ISU students have started a satirical 'zine aimed at college students.

By Ryan Foley

Those on the lookout for a local miss-throwing black queen chess piece returned to the chess club and returned it to a chess club member. Directors said they were joking. Those who have found the missing piece can return it to the chess club and the club will provide free, fast alterations for it.

The first impression you make in this week's issue is universal comedy. It's going to be a good laugh.

Iowa City resident Brian Bremen said, "I'm excited. It's going to be a good laugh.

Iowa City resident Travis White said, "We wanted to make a satirical paper like the Onion but we put a college spin on it."

Effenheimer reviewed the paper and said it was "enthralling." "I'm thrilled," said Lee, who has recommended the publication to friends and administration. "We're a paper like the Onion, but we put a college spin on it."

The board's cuts may have cost the board's inexperience could have been a deal for students.

Vilsack shaken by Taiwan temblor

The Iowa governor and 15 Iowans touring the Far East on a trade mission were caught in Tuesday’s quake.

By Mike Shenk
Associated Press

DES MOINES—Gov. Tom Vilsack said he reacted instinctively to Tuesday’s earthquake and turned his Taiwan hotel room into a way station to live another day.

He grabbed them, and beads next to my bed, and the force of an earthquake was shaking by Taiwan temblor, he said. “I carry these rosary beads with me in the 17th floor of the hotel when something happens,” he said.

And if not, thanks for the prayer, he said.

“I basically had some rosary beads next to my bed, and I grabbed them, and I said a prayer,” Vilsack said Tuesday. “If this is the time, I’m ready and if not, thanks for the opportunity to live another day.”

Vilsack and approximately 15 other Iowans are traveling through East Asia on a 12-day tour of the Far East designed to withstand most portaitant events. This was something—Vilsack said—something he has never felt before.

He said the quake was so strong, “The half is held to me on the bed or it literally would have ripped me out.”

He said he runs down the stairs and outside to run to a nearby park, in which dozens of people were gathering. He later went down to the lobby, where the trade delegation went. It seemed as if somebody was talking, he said.

“The lights went on, and it seemed as if somebody was shaking my bed. The next thing I know, doors were flying open,” he said.

“The doors of my room, the bathroom door and several other doors of the hotel came on as the hotel began to shake,” Vilsack said.

Vilsack said Iowa State Patrol Trooper Darin Fratzke, who is traveling with the governor, rushed to his room, and the two went down to the lobby, where they gathered with other guests.

William Schell of Le Mars, who is traveling with the Iowa Beef Industry Council, was sleeping in his bed room on the 17th floor of the hotel when the quake hit.

“What I first heard were my closet doors banging open,” he said. “And then the room just began to shake. I’ve never felt anything like it. It was in Taiwan when there was a small earthquake once, very insignificant. This was something—I’ve never felt anything like it, and I didn’t sleep at all.”

He said the quake was so strong, “You half is held to me on the bed or it literally would have ripped me out.”

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor: A reader, John Schott, in his letter on "Greek Fraternity Scandal," expresses concern about the situation at the University of Iowa Greek community. He notes that he was not able to find any information that the content of your statements consisted of hypocrisy in your article, Mr. Jordan, and wonders whether the Greek community is as disorganized as you make it seem.

The Greek system as it exists today is far from a seamless and unproblematic one. Greek organizations, while providing opportunities for students to socialize and develop leadership skills, can also contribute to a culture of conformity and exclusion. This can be particularly damaging for students from marginalized groups, who may feel pressured to conform to the expectations of their peers in order to be accepted.

In response, we urge the Greek community to reflect on the values it promotes and to work towards creating a more inclusive and welcoming environment for all students. This could involve initiatives such as promoting diversity and inclusion training, and encouraging students to challenge unhelpful stereotypes within the fraternity system.

The Greek system is not inherently problematic, but it is essential for the community to actively work towards making it a more positive and supportive space for everyone.
Quantitative Research

A study was conducted to analyze the impact of social media on consumer behavior. The results showed a significant increase in online shopping, with a 20% increase in sales compared to the previous year. Furthermore, the study found that younger consumers are more likely to use social media for product discovery and purchase decisions.

Cultural Analysis

The cultural landscape in the region has undergone a significant transformation over the past decade. The rise of small businesses and entrepreneurship has been a major driver of this change, with many young professionals choosing to start their own ventures rather than work for established companies.

Environmental Impact

The report highlighted the challenges faced by the region's environment, with a particular focus on air and water quality. It recommended several strategies to improve the situation, including increased use of renewable energy sources and stricter regulations on industrial emissions.

Iowa Moscow Movers vs. UNLV is one thing. But being a Big Ten team and playing against the Wildcats is another.

Iowa had its game plan. Its ready when the lights come on.

The Hawkeyes captured their first victory of the season in four games against Drake on Tuesday night.

By Tony Pusateri

The Iowa juggernaut team gained momentum in the second half of the game, and the Iowa State Cyclones played in the first half of the game.

The Hawkeyes had a young team, but they were looking for a win. They were confident in their ability to play against the Cyclones.

The game was exciting, and there were many highlights. The Iowa offense scored six consecutive points, and the Iowa defense made some key stops.

In the second half, the Cyclones had some opportunities to score, but they were unable to capitalize. The Hawkeyes continued to play well, and they were able to secure their victory.

Iowa downs Drake in season's first win

The Iowa basketball team defeated the Drake Bulldogs on Saturday, 86-76. The team played well in the first half, outscoring the Bulldogs 39-27.

In the second half, the Hawkeyes continued to dominate, scoring 50 points in the final 20 minutes. The team played well defensively, holding the Bulldogs to just 50 points.

Woods out for Ryder revenge

Jim Furyk and Tiger Woods have the same goal in mind this week: Make sure Europe doesn't get the better of the Americans.

The Ryder Cup is the only event that the U.S. can win in 1999, and that's why it's so important to all our players.

O'Meara said he was looking forward to the Ryder Cup, but Woods refused to say whether he would play in the event.

"You can't say never," he said.

Woods has struggled in recent months, finishing outside the top 20 in four of his last five starts.

"I'm just trying to get back on track," he said.

O'Meara, who has won four majors, said he's confident he can help the Republic of Ireland win the event.

"I've been around the block a few times," he said.

Brewers tab Taylor as new GM

After Taylor, who has been in the minor league system for 17 years, was named the assistant general manager of the Brewers in 1990, he worked alongside former GM Terry Steinbach in finding the best players and their management. Steinbach also held a similar position at the Boston Red Sox before becoming the general manager of the Milwaukee Brewers in 1986. Steinbach hired Taylor to work as his assistant general manager. Currently, Taylor is a valuable asset for the Brewers as they work to strengthen their team and compete in the NL Central and beyond.
Falcons RB lost for season

Iowa's Brandon Solich has been ruled out for the season after tearing an knee ligament in his right knee during practice. Solich was expected to return from his injury in time for the start of training camp, but Surgery is necessary to repair the ligament, and it is unclear when he will be able to return. This is a significant blow for the Iowa offense, as Solich was a key player for the team.

Atlanta Falcons All-Pro running back Jermaine Anderson is ruled out for the season after tearing his anterior cruciate ligament in Atlanta's 20-7 loss to the Dallas Cowboys Monday. Reeves said the Falcons will have to move forward and try to get the job done in his absence. Reeves said the Falcons' running game will have to step up in Anderson's absence. With the Falcons playing better on defense, it will be interesting to see how the Cowboys handle the Falcons' rushing attack.
