"We're very concerned..."
Stay in school and don't be a fool

NEWARK, Del. (AP) - Chris Powell says a group of high school students will not fight for their right to an education.

"We're going to stand up and demand that we get the education that we need," Powell said at a news conference, where he announced that he will run for office as a third party candidate in the fall of 2009.

"We're not going to let the government dictate our future, not when we have the right to an education," Powell said.

Powell said he plans to run as a candidate for the office of president of the United States, and he is expected to announce his campaign at a later date.

Just throw tomatoes, please

NEW YORK - Josephine O'Neill threw tomatoes that were being sold at the New York Stock Exchange on Tuesday, as part of a protest against the opening of a new stock market in Chicago.

"We're not throwing these tomatoes to hurt our fellow New Yorkers," she said. "We're doing this to bring attention to the fact that the new stock market is nothing but a scam."

Transit 'No' leaves Chatham Oaks in a bind

An additional route to Chatham Oaks would be 'a lot less convenient' if the option to stay open is the rotation, and would cost about $300,000 per year for a 12-hour period of Monday through Friday service under the current rules, said Dr. Andrew Bernstein, who heads the transit operations.

But Des Moines said there are not enough transportation services to make the addition worthwhile, especially being a weekend ride for the suburb.

"Weekends are bad because there is not enough people," Des Moines said.

"And then they take everything away from the food," Des Moines said. "People and police have demanded their food released, but they have been told to leave the area.

"There were reports of food riots, and many other incidents." Des Moines said, making sure the doors and windows are always locked.

"The juvenile was tied up before the bus," Des Moines said. "We need days to repair highways so we can travel to the port without any danger.

The suspects were shot in the rotation, and would cost approximately $60,000 in travel and plastic sheeting. Those who need transportation are tied up every day, but all IC residents at the facility need transportation," Des Moines said.

New class to ‘smack’ into ‘Net

A new English seminar will allow students to explore writing for and editing an online ‘zine.

Beginning in the spring semester, students also are interested in learning about and creating magazines on a small in new course dealing with literary and electronic magazines’ creators and Mary Rasmussen, the magazine’s faculty adviser. Students interested in taking the seminar need to obtain special permission from Rasmussen.

SMACK!, the online magazine that the course will produce, emerged in the spring as an English literature project of UI junior Megan Levad.

"There are no classes on literature and Electronic Magazine that can be published on the Web," she said.

SMACK! will deal with a new medium, Levad said, and there is a great interest by students to learn about the Web as a medium for expression.

"I think this course is an opportunity to be creative in the English department," she said. "I think there will be a great opportunity for students to learn about the Web as a medium for expression."

SMACK! will be on the magazine’s Web site (http://www.iowas.com/~smack) on Dec. 6. Students interested in contributing to SMACK! on-chip submissions off at Noon, 1:00P.M. or e-mail them to megan.levad@uiowa.edu.

"I think one of the best benefits of the course is that you are going to be working on the Web," Levad said. "Sometimes if you want to be involved, you have to create it. Getting SMACK! off the ground was a great experience.

"I think the course is in the idea and format for the collaboration between Husmann, Balsley, Levad and Maryann Rasmussen, the magazine’s faculty adviser and the English Honors Program. Students are ‘privileged’ that the class will be offered.

"The students will be able to collaborate, brainstorm, discuss and figure out what kind of magazines they want SMACK! to be," Levad said. "I think it’s going to be pretty extraordinary."

Some interested students have talked to Rasmussen already, and, she said, she believes there is going to be a lot of interest in the class.

"SMACK! will be a great opportunity for students to learn about the Web as a medium for expression.

SMACK! was the magazine’s creators and Mary Husmann, the director of the Undergraduate Writing Program. Students will edit the electronic magazine while learning about literary and electronic magazines, comparing and contrasting print and electronic media, and implications of each, according to Husmann.

"I hope to get students involved about the reason mediums and open issues," Husmann said. "I hope that SMACK! will be a great opportunity for students to learn about the Web as a medium for expression.

"I think this course is one innovation to be creative in the English department," she said. "I think there will be a great opportunity for students to learn about the Web as a medium for expression."

Colombian indigenous tribe seeks to save Earth

Three members of the Arhuaco people visit Coralville bake house to laugh and teach.

By Blake Layton
The Daily Iowan

Danilo Villafana has known since childhood that his destiny would be teaching his younger brothers the importance of preserving the Earth. As a member of the indigenous Arhuaco tribe of Colombia, Villafana was chosen by his elders to be the voice of his people.

Dressed in a white robe, with long, dark hair stretching down his back, Villafana visited Coralville Wednesday as part of a two-week visit to the United States. He was accompanied by his aunt and cousin.

The trio was all smiles at the New Pioneer Co-op Bake House, 498 First Ave., Coralville, where they saw how their homegrown Colombian coffee was processed and sold in a trendy Midwestern shop.

"They came on this voyage to educate the world and teach.

They have suffered under a lot of threats to our culture and collective identification," Villafana said. "By responding and teaching, we can help to continue to live in our original way."
The importance of being cultured

When I got the copies of my degree evaluations, I realized that only two classes stood between me and my degree. I could have been out of college in under three years if I had played my cards right.

I would be well out of college without completely signing my real away to the government in student loans. As much as Rabeeh and Franklin eagerly tore parts of learning a foreign language to me a little bit later.

Right now I am struggling my way through a foreign language. It's frustrating, to be sure. It's a small world, I'm in it, and it's one of the few things I've done in my life that's not something I feel very comfortable with. A foreign language is a great way to learn more about the world and its cultures, and it's also a great way to improve my communication skills.

I'm not sure if I'll ever be completely comfortable with a foreign language, but I'm trying to make progress. English is a very difficult language to learn, and I'm not sure if I'll ever be able to master it. But I'm trying my best to pick up as much as I can.

I'm trying to take a new language class every semester, and I'm trying to practice as much as I can. I'm using a lot of different resources, and I'm trying to make progress as quickly as I can.

Man guilty in Shepard murder, may face death

LAMAR, Minn. (AP) — A 23-year-old man convicted of murder Wednesday in the beating of a college student was sentenced to prison after a trial that went to the jury.

The jury of seven men and five women deliberated for 19 hours before reaching its verdict.

Thompson was cited again for violating coal-fired air pollution controls in a plant in Atlanta, Georgia.

The Dally Iowan, in its editorial today, said: "The pollution suit is a necessary step in protecting our environment. We cannot allow these companies to continue polluting our air without consequence."

Braves may be leading Junior Sweepstakes

The latest rumors around the league have Ken Griffey Jr. with the Atlanta Braves next in line. By Harold Mum

The Braves are seen as one of the top teams to pursue a trade for Griffey, a lifetime home run leader. The Atlanta Journal-Constitution's David Opre reported Tuesday that Griffey is interested in playing for the Braves.

"If he's interested, then the Braves are interested," Opre said.

Griffey, 26, has been in the free-agency market since the team won it second World Series title.

"At this point, there's no serious interest in the market," Opre said.

Griffey said he wants to play for the Braves next season. However, the Atlanta Braves have not been interested in trading for Griffey, who would be eligible for the free-agent market after this season.

NEW YORK — David Cone, who could still be a pitcher for the New York Yankees in 1997, became the first member of the New York Yankees organization to file for free agency on Tuesday.

The left-hander filed for free-agency with the team's season over. Cone is 36 years old and has played for the Atlanta Braves since 1987.

"It was our first substantive conversation," Pate said. "He felt and looked a little white.

"He also filed for free agency in 1992 after he went 13-4 with a 2.58 ERA and posted a 2.49 ERA in the World Series last year.

"Cone was the only player on the field that night who had a chance to reach 300 career wins in his career.

"While he went 9-4 with a 2.58 ERA in the first half of this season and opened the second half with a 1-0 shutout against Montreal, he

RAVEN'S COACH APOLOGIZES

Brian Billick apologized for his comments after Saturday's victory over the Browns.

By Tom Wilmer

Cleveland - Coach Brian Billick of the Baltimore Ravens apologized Monday for his comments after Saturday's victory over the Browns. Billick got into trouble over a news conference in which he expressed himself negatively about the visiting team.

"I want to say I'm sorry," Billick said Monday in his news conference. "I wish I had chosen my words more carefully."

"I apologize for the comments I made during that news conference," Billick said.

"I think I just need to calm down and re palabra."

Billick, who was taken out of comfort by his teammates, apologized to the players in the locker room.

"I apologize to the players," Billick said. "I think I just need to calm down and realize that I need to be more thoughtful in the future."

Postmodernizing The Seagull

By J.B. Rodgers

The US Premiere of Chekhov's The Seagull will present the Nina Variations, a comedy by playwright Steven Barnes, at the Jane's Cabaret this weekend. But what is it about a young couple who were childhood sweethearts and whose love eventually went sour? They waited a lifetime for this moment, and now it is all over. The Nina Variations will play in a 45-seat cabaret-style setting, with tickets costing $25. The show runs Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

Welcome to a condensed 'hard knock life'

By Michael Kuchan

NEW YORK — You can't beat a good opera down, especially one with a dog named Fandango and a gardener who happens to be your brother in law. And so it is that the New York City Opera revives Prokofiev's 'War and Peace' with a host of new stars, including soprano Anna Netrebko in the title role. The show runs through Sunday, May 15, at the Lincoln Center Opera House.

Fiction Collective 2

Fiction Collective 2, a small press of authors from the Midwest and European musical niche, for a roof-blowing "The Power of the Pen," has started a series of new movies this spring. The series will continue through July at the Theatre B, University of Iowa, in Iowa City. The next movie in the series is "The X-Files: Fight the Future," which will be shown on Tuesday, May 17, at 6 p.m. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students. For more information, call 319-335-1800.

THE TRUTH MUST BE TOLD

The "X-Files" is about to make its long-awaited return.

By Stephen analyst

When we last left our favorite secret service agents, Fox Mulder (David Duchovny) and Walter Skinner (Mitchel Pileggi) were involved in a sexual rendezvous in a Russian prison. It was a revealing scene, one that showed us the private side of these two characters. But now, when the show returns, will any of the secrets be revealed? The creators of the show have said that "The X-Files" is about to get real, with a new lead. Instead of the usual static opening that showed the show for the first six seasons, the new lead will include images from the past couple of years. Fox has signed Gillian Anderson (Scully) to three more seasons for Mulder and Scully's lust-filled climax?

Out of the mainstream & into the slipstream

Rollins rolls on. .

The sound of Fast swing-dance songs such as Life is like a blank tape. It's going to roll all day long. The clock never stops. Is it just me or does time really go by fast? It seems like it's always from one moment to the next. No stopping, no looking back. You have to make the most of each moment because you never know what's going to happen next.

Singer Henry Rollins takes a break in his studio: "How have you been staying industrious lately?" Rolling Stone's Alex Taylor asks. I'll answer that question in a moment. But first, let me mention that the group has just released a new album, which is currently available at most music stores. The album features a variety of genres, including rock, pop, and electronic music. The group's sound is unique and hard to classify, making it appealing to a wide range of listeners.

Rollins has been described as one of the most influential figures in punk rock, and his influence can be heard in the sounds of many of today's bands. He started his career as a member of the band Black Flag in the early 1980s, and his powerful voice and intense stage presence have been a major influence on many other musicians.

When asked about his next project, Rollins responds, "I have a few ideas floating around in my head. I'm always thinking about new music and new projects. I'm always looking for ways to push the boundaries of what's possible."

Overall, Rollins remains committed to his craft and continues to be a driving force in the music industry. His passion for music and his willingness to take risks have helped him to create some of the most memorable moments in rock history.

and one another. Whatever the reasons behind the success or failure of a particular production, the vănish type of performance is not necessarily to be condemned. However, it is important to consider the potential for such performances to be unique and intriguing. Furthermore, the consistency of the production's success may be attributed to the unique approach adopted by the director. From my perspective, I believe that this approach can be seen as a way of challenging traditional norms and conventional ways of thinking about theatre. Therefore, we should consider the benefits of such performances in order to promote innovation and creativity in the field of theatre.

Theatre has the potential to challenge existing norms and bring new perspectives to the forefront. The production may be considered a success because it has succeeded in breaking down barriers and stimulating thoughtful dialogue.
